Speedway System For Toronto Suburbs Planned

TORONTO (CP)—A multi-million-dollar speedway system to service fast-expanding suburbs was outlined Wednesday night by metropolitan Toronto's consulting engineers.

The plan calls for five expressways fanning out like arteries from the city's heart to its growing suburbs.

The consultants said such a network would provide minimum service for a population of 2,000,000, the mark expected to be reached in Greater Toronto's population now is 1,200,000.

The Lakeshore expressway, stretching along the Toronto waterfront meeting the Queen Elizabeth way to Hamilton on the west and Highway 2 to Oshawa and Montreal on the east, is under construction and is expected to be completed by 1958 at a cost of $50,000,000.

The remaining four would lead from downtown Toronto to meet the Toronto bypass at intermittent points. The bypass is Highway 401 which allows through traffic to skirt the city.

Hold Four Men For Cattle Theft

SUTTON, Ont. (CP)—Four men believed to have stolen 18 head of cattle here last August, have been apprehended by provincial police.

Sixteen of the cattle, valued at nearly $4,000, were found on farms in various parts of Ontario.

Police did not disclose the names of the men but said all have been charged with stealing cattle. Police said one was arrested in Vancouver, one in Markham, 10 miles northeast of Toronto; another in Minden, 44 miles northeast of Orillia and the fourth in the Sutton area, 20 miles southeast of Orillia.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP). — Synopsis: A large high pressure area centred over the eastern United States extended northward across Ontario early this morning. Skies were generally clear in cold air and temperatures dropped well below zero overnight at most points in northern Ontario with White River, the traditional cold spot, registering minus 32 below zero. In southern Ontario, temperatures ranged from 3 above in eastern counties to 26 above in the south early this morning.

This mild air is moving slowly eastward and the winds over Ontario will gradually change from the northwesterlies of the last few days to southerly breezes by Friday. This will bring somewhat milder air over the province and a new disturbance moving toward the Great Lakes from Montana, is expected to cause increasing cloudiness by late Friday.

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters) — A man believed to have been influenced by a recent Toronto shooting ran amok in Brisbane's medical district today, killing two of his doctors and wounding two others and another man before blowing himself up with a bomb.

Karl Kast, 30, had been a patient of all four doctors, orthopedic specialists practising in suburban Wickham Terrace, centre of medical specialists in this east Australian city.

He was wounded in the explosion and died later in hospital. One of his victims had had his throat slashed when a bomb exploded as he tried to wrest it from Kast.

Police said Kast had been heard to babble something about a report he had read of a patient shooting an Australian doctor in Canada.

BAG OF BOMBS

Her husband, Stephan, 57, an Australian-born orthopedic consultant, was shot dead in the hospital near Wickham Terrace, centre of medical specialists. Another patient, his patient, has been charged with murdering Kast.

Kast went to the consulting rooms of the doctors carrying home-made bombs in a suitcase. Police said there were enough sticks of gelignite to blow up the whole building. He also had detonators and a candle to light fuses.

He carried his suitcase into the foyer of the building where various specialists have their chambers. In the foyer, he took out four bombs and began lighting the fuses.

George Boland, a Brisbane hairdresser, was passing through. He saw smoke and grabbed a bomb in an effort to put out the fuse. It exploded, tearing away both hands.

Kast then ran upstairs to the rooms of Dr. Michael Gallagher, whom he shot and critically injured with a .45 pistol.

TWO MORE DIED

The assailant ran with his suitcase to the consulting rooms of Dr. A. V. Medcalf. Dr. Meehan was shot dead.

Kast passed on to the chambers of Dr. A. R. Murray, placed his suitcase outside the door and told a patient: "This is my attaché-case, keep out of it."

He walked into the surgery and fatally wounded Dr. Murray with several shots.

Kast left for the nearby chambers of Dr. J. R. S. Lahr, picking up his suitcase on his way. As an explosion shook the building, Dr. Lahr was also dead, but Kast received fatal head injuries.

Gales Delay Shipping

YARMOUTH, N. S. (CP)—Gale-force winds and mountainous seas in Nova Scotia Wednesday destroying traps, damaging gear and postponing the fall lobster season for approximately 1,500 fishermen.

Breakers battered across nearby beaches, scattering stone, rubble and 400 lobster pots at least across the highway. Tides rolled in through low-lying sections at town, fouling power and communication lines for more than two hours.

Although damage was considered slight, a three-day postponement could mean success or failure to many fishermen. Their entire whole economy depends on a good catch during the short season.

Guards Accused of Running Bribery Racket in New York's City Prison

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven guards have been accused of running a bribery racket in the Tombs, New York's city prison, with a "fixed price" for favors to prisoners ranging from 50 cents for a stroll in the corridor to $35 for a bottle of scotch.

District attorney Frank S. Hogan said a "up"—followed by pain-killing narcotics—was given to arrests. Privileges for a fee included the arranging of card and dice games, extra food, liquors, visits from call to call and an $85 whisky-and-cold-cuts party in a prison store room.

The guards were booked early today on charges of taking illegal fees and delivering contraband.

A steak sandwich, $1; change to a more desirable cell, $60; stroll in the corridor, $1; visit to another prisoner's cell, $1; delivery of money from the outside, $15; a quart of scotch, $35.

CANADA PUSHES PLAN TO ADMIT 18 LANDS TO UN

Will Present Motion Despite Veto Threats

By TOM HOGE

Health chiefs of the United States and Canada will discuss the resolution to admit all 18 applicants, prepared to introduce it soon after the opening of the membership debate this afternoon.

The 60-member committee will give the much-discussed Canadian proposal its first public airing. But the fate rests with the security council, where Nationalist China has threatened to veto Communist Outer Mongolia and Russia has warned that she will turn thumbs down on the whole package deal if any of the five Red candidates are rejected.

The Russians announced they would speak today in the committee debate. It was assumed that they would make clear at the outset their insistence on all 18 or none.

The 17 sponsors of the "package deal" resolution held a private conference Wednesday to decide how to present their case before the committee. Martin later voiced optimism that a solution could be worked out.

The resolution calls on the security council to report to the general assembly on the applications of prospective members. The Russians have introduced an amendment naming 13 states.

To be admitted to the UN, an applicant must get seven affirmative votes in the 11-member security council—and escape the big power veto. It must then win approval of two-thirds of the 60-member assembly.

Western delegates were hopeful this morning that the Chinese or the Russians might be persuaded to relax their positions before a final vote is taken.

The U.S. said it would abstain on all five Communist applicants—Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria—but would not campaign against them.

President Eisenhower sent two direct appeals to the Chiang Kai-shek government to do likewise, but the Nationalists announced today their decision to veto Outer Mongolia.

Kremlin Chiefs Reach Rangoon

During the next seven days in Burma they will fly over the hilly jungle country bordering Red Chinese interior where outlawed Communist bands have been waging civil war for the past seven and eight years.

The government, headed by Premier U Nu, has declared the Communist party illegal. But Burmese officials hope to give the Soviet leaders a reception to match the demonstrations of friendship that greeted U Nu on his tour of Russia earlier this year.

City authorities have demolished more than 600 dilapidated huts and shacks to clear the route into the city, and given the streets of the capital a thorough cleaning.

Queen Frees Cockney Jailed For Watching Man Hook Fish

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elisabeth today personally freed a one-legged Cockney who had been jailed for watching a friend catch a fish illegally.

By royal prerogative she ordered the courts to release Frederick A. Barber from a jail cell and also cancelled the remaining 15 days of a 20-day sentence he was serving for poaching.

It was one of the few times that the Queen has intervened in an issue between one of her subjects and the law.

Barber's troubles began last month when he journeyed from London to Scotland the first time for a vacation.

The morning after he arrived at Dunbeath, in Caithness, he went for a walk with a fisherman, 23-year-old James Sutherland. They crossed a footbridge, and the famed Scottish salmon were leaping in the stream below.

Excitedly, Barber pointed to the big, fat fish, and Sutherland whipped out a snigger—three hooks at the end of a line—and expertly snagged one of the salmon.

Within a matter of hours Barber and the fish-filled snigger were arrested for poaching in a stream owned by Capt. Bertram Frances George Currie, director of a chain of banks.

Barber, who runs a small grocery shop, pleaded guilty. He got 20 days. Sutherland, who had a previous conviction for poaching, received six days.

The case was appealed, but the lord chief justice, Gen. Lord Clyde, said that both men had pleaded guilty the appeal court could see no way of interfering with the sentences.

Barber's friends then appealed directly to the Queen, and upon Her Majesty's order the grocer was released from Edinburgh's Saughton jail.

Works Dept. Keeps Check On Operations Since Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Tight check on operations of the $1.29 units by the army works service has followed the 1952 Currie report which found a general breakdown in the system of administration, supervision and accounting.

The investigation by Montreal engineering firm A. R. Currie—ordered by the defence department into the service which administers $1,000,000,000 worth of properties—also found "extensive irregularities" at Camp Petawawa.

Col. P. A. (Pat) O'Connor, director of works, said in an interview Wednesday that [illegible] no thefts there [illegible] comparable to those mentioned in the Currie report. "I don't think there could be any large-scale thefts now," he added.

Two teams of works personnel and accountants were constantly in the field checking all aspects of the work done by units.

"We measure the maintenance costs for each army camp. If we find any increasing the cost above the average, we immediately find out why."

The army's stand has always been that it was already overhauling the works service and that the Currie report speeded up the process.

This year the service is handling [illegible] approximately $60,000,000 worth of new construction. The value of work done on plans and specifications for new building has increased about five times in the last three years which the number of headquarters personnel has been reduced.

Maj. Frank Barr, 36, head of the army's utilities section, gave some examples of how medicine maintenance costs were being cut. [illegible] the army alone could [illegible] $10,000,000 a year. "I'm sure we can chop $2,000,000 of this bill."

Many of the 2,500 agreements now with the army buys utilities from power companies and municipal water boards are being renegotiated.

A crackdown had been instituted on occupants of army married quarters wasting utilities. If consumption exceeded allowances, there was a possibility occupants of married quarters—there are or will be 10,000 housing units—might be charged for utilities.

Plan No Bonn-Moscow Talks To End East-West Deadlock

BONN (AP) Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano told the Bundestag today that negotiations between West Germany and the Soviet Union are impossible as long as Moscow blocks the reunification of Germany.

In a government declaration delivered to the deputies of the Bundestag, the Lower House of the West German parliament, Brentano said firmly ruled out separate, bilateral negotiations between Bonn and Moscow on the Soviet proposal for second lap of their Asian tour.

During a stopover in Rangoon in Burma they will fly over the hilly jungle country bordering Red Chinese interior where outlawed Communist bands have been waging civil war for the past seven and eight years.

The government, headed by Premier U Nu, has declared the Communist party illegal. But Burmese officials hope to give the Soviet leaders a reception to match the demonstrations of friendship that greeted U Nu on his tour of Russia earlier this year.

City authorities have demolished more than 600 dilapidated huts and shacks to clear the route into the city, and given the streets of the capital a thorough cleaning.

Brentano said the Russian announcement that it has transferred East Berlin to the Communist East-German regime questions the four-power status of the former German capital agreed upon by the Big Four powers.

"We know that the Western powers are loyal to these agreements and will defend them. We cannot believe that the Soviet Union intends to tear them up.

"The [illegible] shows anew that the present situation of Berlin must remain and continue [illegible] lead to conflicts that prevent a real relaxation [illegible] international tension and [illegible]."

"The elimination of such focal points of danger as the reunification of Germany into one state is the necessary basis for a lasting international relaxation and state of peace."

He stressed that inclusion of a reunited Germany within the European Defence Alliance [illegible] "offers the safest guarantee that she will never misuse her political and economic forces."

Police Warn Cheque Artists May Be in City

City police warned today of two men believed to be cheque artists who attempted to pass cheques in the city without having funds on accounts.

Police say of the men was reported to be about 35 years of age, six feet, two inches tall and of large and swarthy appearance. The second man was said to be shorter.

Police said they believed the two men had been operating west of Belleville before arriving in the city yesterday.

POLES SENTENCED

LONDON (Reuters)—Two Poles, Czeslaw Ilnicki and Ignacy Dlacnik, accused of 'being in the service of American intelligence' have been sentenced to 12 and 10 years imprisonment by a Warsaw military tribunal, the Communist Warsaw radio reported Wednesday night. Both were given "light sentences in view of their full confessions."

FAURE DISSOLVES FRENCH CHAMBER, VOTE IN JANUARY

Invokes Constitution To Win Early Election

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—France's election campaign got off to a booming start today, only a few hours after Premier Edgar Faure's government decided to dissolve the National Assembly.

The socialists and backers of premier Pierre Mendes-France, like Faure, is a Radical Socialist—lost no time in getting under way their drive for votes in the general election expected to be set for Jan. 8. They turned their heaviest propaganda artillery against Faure and the dissolution.

The cabinet decision to dissolve the assembly—the first such move in the history of the post-war fourth republic—gives Faure the early election the assembly had denied him.

USES 1946 CLAUSE

The assembly handed Faure a vote of no confidence Tuesday, largely because of its opposition to his campaign for early elections. The 318-to-218 vote, however, permitted him to use a clause in the constitution providing dissolution of the assembly by the cabinet if two governments were defeated on votes of confidence by a majority of the deputies in office within an 18-month period.

Mendes-France received a no-confidence vote last February, with more than half the deputies against him.

Mendes-France, who still is in the process of reorganizing and digesting his grip on the Radical Socialist party, wanted the elections delayed to give him more time to prepare for a campaign. He also had pushed for election of individual deputies by districts, believing that the change would help his faction.

USE OLD LAW

Since the assembly failed to agree on a new electoral law in a month of discussion, the elections presumably will be held under the 1951 system of modified proportional representation. This permits alliances among parties on a departmental (county) level. If any alliance gets more than half the votes, it gets all the seats from the department.

The delay in publishing the decree dissolving the assembly was decided on tentatively because of a constitutional provision calling for a 20-day delay after the decree before voting can be held off until Jan. 8.

Ghosts of Wild West Are Awakened By Plans for Alberta Buffalo Hunt

LAMONT, Alta. (CP)—News of a big buffalo hunt in the offing on the western plains promises to awaken the ghosts of a frontier past.

But they'll soon doze off again, when they see that one lone marksman shall be in for all the Plains Indians who ever hunted the Buffalo for food. Only descendants of dudes who hunted him for sport and his prehistoric ancestors who wiped him off the face of the west with their, butchery for hides.

Alfie Roberts will be the sportsman instead of slaughter, and about as much as butchering beef in a barnyard.

Rifleire will signal the start of the big hunt when he fires the original' park 25 miles east of Edmonton. The park was set aside by order in C. E. Roberts has finished his job, the herd of 1,800 will have been reduced by 500 animals.

Instead of a fast buffalo horse, he will use a horse-drawn sleigh as he moves among the shaggy animals. Instead of driving them to stampede, he will scatter hay as he goes, to pacify them. Range will be 10 to 15 feet. The only problem will be to place the shots in a large, about the size of a snooker box"—between the eyes.

2 Others Escape; Neighbors Fail In Rescue Attempt

Children Alone in House; Believe Stove Was Cause

Two small boys were burned to death Wednesday night when flames swept through their parents' four-roomed cottage at Shannonville, ten miles east of here.

Dennis Moore, nine months, and David, age 3, sons of William Moore, died in the fire. Two older children staying in the house escaped when they were awakened by the fire.

The blaze swept rapidly through the small home and half an hour after the fire was noticed little more than the embers remained.

The boys' father was visiting at Desmorne, 12 miles away. The children were alone at the time of the fire.

The fire is believed to have started from a Quebec heater which was used in the small dwelling, a close neighbor reported he heard a "boom" while he was watching television 300 feet away. He looked out and saw the Moore house in flames.

FIRE HAS SINGED

John Shelley, 10, and his sister, Lorraine, 12, escaped from the fire in their night dress. The girl's hair being singed as she made her way to safety.

Lorraine was quoted as saying she had been awakened by her brother shouting "fire." The two children ran up the road in near wooded property screaming for help.

Rodney Green, a near neighbor, said he had been watching TV when at 11:30 when he heard a dull explosion. He looked out to see the Moore house aflame.

He ran across the field to the burning house and shouted to through a window in an effort to rescue them if there was anyone in the house. Just then the Shelley children returned. They cried to him to "save the baby."

MEN BEATEN BACK.

By this time another neighbor, Harold Hall, and several other men were beaten back as they attempted to enter the burning building to save the two small children still in the house.

Rodney Green said he grabbed an axe and attempted to chop a hole through the outside wall of the children's bedroom but again he was beaten back by the flames.

"Believe me, I tried my best to get those kids out but I couldn't do it," he said.

Rodney Green also said he called the provincial police before he ran to the fire. Police in turn called the Belleville Fire Department but the small cottage was already nearly down by the time they arrived.

Police Constable Ivan Tinkness who investigated the fire and double fatality said his office had received the call at 11:30. When he arrived on the scene the cottage had already burned to the ground.

Green said he assisted police and firemen to take the bodies of the two small children from their cots after the fire.

An inquest looking into the deaths of the two small boys has been ordered by Coroner Dr. D. M. Greenwood of Deseronto, who was called to the scene of the fire. The preliminary hearing was held this morning at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home and was adjourned to December 8th at 2:30.

Breaks in Paper Make Issue Late

Circumstances beyond the control of the Ontario Intelligencer caused a delay in the delivery of newspapers yesterday.

A combination of new press "blankets" and an abnormal amount of static electricity in the press-room were responsible for several "breaks" in the paper rolls.

It was some time before the situation was under control and the daily quota of newspapers delivered to newsboys and other outlets.

Mine 5 Months To Make Quarters For New Store

Five months of hard-rock excavating beneath Front Street has resolved itself into a business that is to provide shoppers in Belleville with a mine of interest in the furniture line.

Friday morning Lipsen's Front St. store re-opens its doors on its redesigned furniture department for the general public and patrons, shoppers, an old-established firm, this time it once again is starting at the bottom.

For this latest of up-to-date store departments now is located in the basement of the Lipsen's Stores Limited premises on 201 Front, entrance down south of its former situation at street level.

The old site was vacated in September, but work had been progressing non-stop on preparing the new store for opening. The work involved a continuous round of solid excavating for the basement of the big clothing store was of solid rock.

Pneumatic heavy hammers made increasingly short work of the job and explosive detonations required results proves the mining has not been in vain.

LARGE ORDER BOOK

Today the basement is a good five feet higher and commands a floor space of 5,000 square feet, an area that is equivalent to nearly two-thirds of the main store overhead.

Added brightness is given the smart floor-covering of the flamingo and green color scheme of the layout, and department is gained easily enough, for it is approached by a staircase seven feet wide.

All the lines of merchandise in which the store has been in the past have been retained. Available to customers for purchase are choice between most of the assembled furniture ranges including Gibbard, Snyder, Sklar — all offering a wide variety of modern and living room furniture.

In charge of the department, Morley Lovelace continues as manager with the same staff providing efficient service for the public.

The department opens tomorrow morning at the same time as the store proper. To attract the public a special opening-day feature has been offered. Six prizes will be awarded during the next two weeks to any member of the public who simply signs a form at the store, which later will be entered in a special draw.

Candidates for Office Appeal For Support at Club Meeting

By "THE OBSERVER"

The Wharf Street Debating Club held its annual meeting Wednesday evening when all aspiring for public office were on hand to take the rap and have to take the penalty. The meeting was a riot of raillery — a roar of laughter from beginning to end. Every candidate had to go through it with the exception of Mrs. Jane Forrester who, as befits a lady, was listened to with keen attention with no interruption.

It was a feather in the caps of that mixed crowd of male citizens, who proved that they could be gentlemen when the occasion demanded. And the old club room put "toasted cat all over". It was jammed pack full some even had to stand on the floor. Some of the chairs were hurled and taken, altogether it was one uproarious affair.

The old site was vacated in September, but work had been progressing non-stop on preparing the new store for opening. The work involved a continuous round of solid excavating for the basement of the big clothing store was of solid rock.

ADDRESSES CANDIDATES

Alderman Thomas Argue then addressed the meeting by reminiscing, "when I was a green boy in Jane, why not me," which called for a loud laugh. He had been in the council six years in the council and although Wharf St. could put a man on the council in Belleville, why not come down to the city hall and have more say. He mentioned that a couple of new industries had come to Belleville recently. He said that as residential areas had been reduced it is up to the city to see that we don't be parking on Bridge Street.

Alderman Bram Humphreys said that during the past week his phone had been ringing constantly, and to crown it all he produced a letter which he read to the audience which climaxed the many interesting things he had been experiencing in the city. He requested all to mark the ballot with an X after Humphreys.

Alderman Arthur Keegan received a great welcome from his native wards. He said that he had a speech prepared but somehow he "had lost it". Some of the things accomplished since he had been in council were a new pavement and a change for the better on the waterfront. He also mentioned Quinte Pinnacle St. In the last two years he had accomplished much and he vowed that no park land would ever be sold as long as he had a voice in municipal affairs. So vote for Art Keegan, he concluded.

Alderman Douglas Moxam thanked all of Foster Ward for giving him such a lift in the last election. He stated that the windows in the city hall cost the Belleville taxpayers nothing. The job was paid for by the provincial government. Always, he concluded, his conscience guided him when he cast his vote.

Alderman Ben Safe thanked all for past favors during his term of office. He was born in Belleville 48 years ago and was first elected to council in 1933. During the past year he was chairman of public works saying which period had seen the completion of roads in Bayview Heights, together with sidewalks, a good job was done on Coleman St. and Front Street. In all $300 tons of asphalt were used. "So" said he, "if you think I have done a good job, vote for Ben Safe on Monday."

Alderman Bruce Smith stated that he had served in the council for the past four years. He gave an accounting of just what had been done by council in the Memorial Arena, and he stated that open rinks had to be provided for the use of the youth "should you elect me," he concluded, "I will do my very best in my new field of endeavour."

Quite a few of the old stalwarts of the club were amplified upon and included George Forhan, Dr. Jack Marshall, Frank Lang, Carson Billett, Bob Pringle, Jim Driscoll, Harry Rollins and Maurice Gallagher, secretary. As usual, Harry "Senator" Rollins was a riot of fun, and his remarks were pantomimic. He had the house in an uproar for he finished from comedy to tragedy, and the laughs were loud and long. One cannot get old Harry's goat and he continue long to entertain these meetings with his jovial presence, for without Harry there surely would be a missing link for fun and frolic. And Maurice Callaghan, as always, was sincere in all he said and he believed in fair-minded men. As far as the Chamber of Commerce was concerned it thought they were attempting a dictatorship. His concluding words were: "No matter how you vote next Monday, get out and vote."

Leslie Digby in offering his services as an alderman stated that if elected he would treat every issue on its individual merits and that he would always have the best interests of the city at heart.

George DeVuyst, as always, had a loud roar to greet him when he stated that he had been at the council meeting for 17 years in succession and enjoyed them all. He stated that a new bridge would go for a new fire and down town traffic problem. He solicited the vote of the meeting and he promised that if elected his platform would be "action".

Patrick Ballard stated that it was a very serious time for all Belleville for you have been and all those who are again aspiring for office. "Put me in", he said, "and I will do a job." He did not stut-mpt to say what he would do, but he would do his best.

Frank Huson mentioned that he originally intended to make a speech, but as the meeting had been answered that evening. He mentioned that $600 was loaned to the arena, but nothing had been repaid to the city. He was against the new proposed parking areas.

Ex-Alderman Charles Hyde was brief and to the point in offering his services to the city of Belleville. He would always give of his best as he had always done in the past.

Dr. John S. Stock was very brief when he said that he had been received with interest in all the arguments. He promised that if elected he would give of his very best to the city of Belleville.

Robert Temple stated that he was again running as an alderman and would represent all to the best of his ability if elected.

John A. Weese stated he was seeking a second term although he confessed that it was the first time he attended a meeting of Wharf Street Debating Club, and it was evident that he had missed a lot of fun. He went on to say that he was born and bred and "across the bay," but now living in the city limits. He also claimed that he had had much experience in civic matters in Prince Edward County and with such an experience he felt that he could continue to do a good job for the Commission.

Ex-Alderman Don Thomas received a reception which to say the least must have been heartrending. He confessed to serving on the council for six years, and if elected for the Commission he would do his best, even as his record proved as Alderman.

"Just to know and to love her."

TORONTO STOCKS
TORONTO (CP) — Selective demand appeared for utilities, refining oils, papers, foods and financial institutions in first-hour stock exchange trading today. Otherwise the industrial component was dull.
Among industrials, price movements were seldom larger than fractions. Gold A was down $1.50. General Dynamics eased 75 cents. Page-Hersey was a firm standout in a weak steels group, adding 50 cents at a high of $80.
Higher uranium stocks included Beaucage, up 29 at $2.60, Bayrock, 16 ahead at $1.80, and Rix Athabasks, up 12 cents at $5.
Senior base metals were listless. Falconbridge was up ¾. Copper-corp and Iron firmed pennies. Cassiar dipped 25 cents at $8.65.
Golds showed little change. A few senior issues gained narrowly. Lake Dufault added 14 at $2.40 among holding companies.
Peruvian and Sapphire gained in an irregular western oil section, each firming about 15 cents.

Three Teachers Given Medals

During the past week Mrs. W. C. Mikel, 1st vice-president of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross, presented medals to Miss Frances Sullivan of Queen Elizabeth school; Miss F. A. Young of Sir Winston Churchill school; and Miss Laura Harrison of the Dufferin school, Trenton.

Medals were presented at a general assembly of the student body in each school. Mrs. Mikel spoke briefly of the work of the Junior Red Cross and of its part in the over-all Red Cross program and congratulated medal winners on their excellent service to the Red Cross cause through instruction in Junior Red Cross work.

District Youths At Investiture In Ottawa

Thomas Lyons Seymour, 11, former Belleville scout, today was the youngest in a group of eighteen receiving the scouting award from Governor-General Vincent Massey, at an investiture in Ottawa.

Thomas, who now lives with his parents in Kingston, won the silver cross for rescuing Freddie and Harry Spice, two non-swimmers, from the Bay of Quinte last year.

The Spice brothers got into difficulties while trying to swim from a wharf to a raft.

Also awarded a gilt cross for rescuing a possible drowning victim was John Kenneth Ray, 15, Stirling.

Holland Company Exercises Option On 22-Acre Site

TRENTON. (Special)— An official spokesman for the town of Trenton today announced that a 22-acre piece of property north of the four-lane highway crossing Sidney Street, has been purchased by a company known as Canadian Schokbeton Limited, with headquarters in Rotterdam, Holland.

The firm proposes to manufacture structural concrete products. The site for Trenton's newest acquisition to industry was widely known as the Hickory Nut Orchard, running parallel with the Trent River above No. 3 dam.

Last summer two representatives of the parent company making a survey of industrial sites in Eastern Ontario, stopped in at the municipal building to inquire about land Trenton had to offer.

On instructions from Mayor Ross Burtt, town-clerk and treasurer O. W. Larry referred the prospective buyers to Sen. W. A. Fraser, who acts as one of the town's two industrial commissioners.

Word was received today that the option had been exercised.

TV DESK CLERK

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A hotel executive says sidewalk television receivers and transmitters will allow tired travellers of the future to register at a hotel without getting out of their cars. "It will no longer be necessary for prospective patrons to look for a parking space before going in a hotel to make inquiries," Tom L. Powell, president of the American Hotel Association, said Wednesday.

Reporter Finds Safe Driving Day Nerve-Wracking

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—They said in the newspapers and on the radio it was national Safe Driving Day. I'm still shaking from the experience.

Bowled to work as usual in my 1950 English car . . . sun shining, roads clear. Visibility unlimited. Drove five blocks to Richmond road, one of the main east-west thoroughfares, w i t h o u t incident. Waited couple of minutes for long, clear spot to pull onto thoroughfare. Got honked at anyway.

Zoom! A 1956 something passed me on the right doing about 45. (Speed limit; 30 miles an hour).

Brakes, man, brakes. That jerk turned left across my path.

UP OVER CURB

Oh, Oh. Look at that. Coupe passed bus coming toward me. I can't make it. Bus going too fast, I drove up over curb. Cha grinned.

"I'm really worked up now. T pass that crazy woman that pulled out in front of me from curb. Easy, boy. Safe Driving Day, you know.

Last light. In my favor. But look at that pedestrian. Got to slow down. Light turned red.

Made parking space. Trembling, shut off engine.

Safe driving day. Phew!

'TWAS THREE WEEKS BEFORE CHRISTMAS . . .

When all over town
People hurried and scurried
Some wearing a frown.

Soon the stockings would hang
By the chimney with care
But what to put in them?
We feel such despair.

The children were nestled
All snug in their beds,
What to buy? Where to shop?
Buzzes through our poor heads.

Mum with her list
And Dad just confused,
Had just settled down
Not too enthused.

When out of his chair,
Dad rose with a clatter.
Mother, surprised, said,
"What is the matter?"

The light from the lamp
Lit the floor up below,
Where Dad dropped the "Intell"
His face all aglow.

Then to my wondering eyes did appear
An ad in the paper that made it all clear.

As rapid as eagles our ideas all came,
We whistled and shouted as we checked off each name.

"WATCHES AND DIAMONDS—EARRINGS AND BEADS—
CHINA AND SILVER—

DIFFERING REPORTS ON LIFE IN RUSSIA

Have we brainwashed ourselves in our thinking regarding Russia? That is the provocative question asked by an editorial in the current issue of Maclean's magazine, and it is prompted by the fact that several Canadian newspaper correspondents, accompanying Hon. Lester B. Pearson on his visit to the Soviet Union, sent back accounts of life there, and of the attitude of the common people towards the regime, which were distinctly at a variance with the conceptions commonly held in this country.

Maclean's illustrated its point by comparing a CBC program on Russian life and the reports of newspapermen of unquestioned integrity, including J. Norman Smith, the Ottawa Journal's able and talented observer.

Maclean's explanation of the discrepancy is that reports of Russian life which have been circulated in the western nations have painted such a drab picture that when these newspapermen found a Russian smiling they considered it newsworthy.

It was a curious coincidence that, on the same day that we perused the editorial in Maclean's, we should have read an article by Chester Bloom, writing from Ottawa in the Vancouver Sun.

"Return of a party of Canada's ablest newspaper correspondents in the press gallery who accompanied Hon. Lester B. Pearson to Moscow, Leningrad and points in India, Malaya and other cities has cast a quite different, gloomy light on the first glowing reports of the happy populace in Soviet land," he declares in his opening paragraph.

There follows approximately a column of the impressions of three of these newspapermen, two of them identified only as Mr. A and Mr. B.

"It left with a complete feeling of hatred of the government and a feeling of depression," Mr. A is reported to have said. "The overall feeling is one of a gray atmosphere everywhere; of a depressed people."

Mr. B, the newspaperman, unidentified by even a letter of the alphabet but described as "a highly experienced Canadian and responsible representative of a great world news agency," could be safely struck by the huge numbers of women employed everywhere, by the lack of deliveries of milk, bread and laundry, by the fact that both men and women wear the same clothing they have, "since they dare not leave it anywhere without danger of theft."

These are but a few of the facts which, in Mr. Bloom's article, paint a very gloomy picture indeed.

Were the first glowing reports based on premature conclusions, reached without sufficient observation? It might be tempted to entertain the possibility of this explanation, were it not for the fact that Mr. Bloom says he cannot give the real names of Mr. A and Mr. B because "we guard the Soviet government and the Canadian government it would be unrateful on the one hand and perhaps embarrassing to Canadian government policy, on the other, to voice publicly their criticisms."

Then who has been deceived? Probably, in great measure, nobody. Probably the explanation lies more in differences in the observers, than in the scenes observed. A hint as to this difference may be provided in Mr. Bloom's description of Mr. A as "a great admirer and booster of the contacts with Soviet Russia, apologetic for their system." Mr. I. Norman Smith, on the other hand, has certainly been no admirer of the Communist regime.

Could it be that Mr. A, expectins much, found little and was dismayed; that Mr. Smith, expecting nothing good, found a little good and was impressed?

That, at any rate, would fit in with Maclean's theory. As to the magazine's conclusion, "it appears eminently reasonable, that western nations must recognize the rigors of life in Russia would be of as little service to the west in the cold war as were our constant underestimates of Germany's oil reserves in the Second Great War, it argues well how your enemy" is always good advice.

A GOOD QUESTION

In Kingston recently a young man was acquitted of charge of murder in connection with the shooting of Mrs. Azulay, a young Kingston mother.

In a letter to the editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard a reader asks, "Who killed Mrs. Azulay?"

It is a good question.

The person charged with the murder was declared innocent of the crime by a jury after evidence had been heard. Since the man charged was innocent, who committed the murder?

There was a murder. A woman is dead. Is the murderer still at large in Kingston or in Kingston district? If not, what are the police doing to apprehend him or her? Does a search for the murderer cease when the man charged is found innocent? Or is the case closed and marked "unsolved?"

There is no doubt that the police feel Mrs. Azulay was murdered. Simple justice demands the apprehension, trial and execution of the murderer. Apprehending, convicting and executing murderers is not always accomplished and the scales of Justice balanced.

It is well that, while Justice here below may not always be served, there is an Eternal Judge and perpetual Justice to serve us all hereafter.

KEEPING BUSINESS BAD

"Business is bad," wailed Old Man Gloom,
And his face was sombre as the tomb.

"My trade's all gone, and I don't know why Nobody now comes in to buy."

A customer heard his tale of woe
And decided he didn't need that Another man heard his doleful tale
And made up his mind not to buy a sail.

A stranger had come in some
To buy a hat,
Thought it better perhaps not to take them yet.

Thus killing the sales that he might have had,
He sits there wailing that trade is bad.

Most Travelled Fruit

(National Geographic Magazine)

The bananas, carried centuries ago nearly around the globe, is still the world's most travelled fruit.

One of man's oldest cultivated crops, the yellow fruit originated in Southeast Asia. Traders eventually spread it to Africa and the Guinea coast. Then the Portuguese carried it — with its African name, "banana," — to the Canary Islands. A Spanish priest brought a few plants to Haiti, and Thomas de Santo Domingo soon after Columbus's visit.

Today, 80 percent of the world's banana exports come from tropical America. South America's Ecuador is out-produces all other countries by a wide margin. Last year Ecuador shipped more than a sixth of the record-breaking total 128,534,000 bunches.

Bananas sail today as far south as the Union of South Africa and north all the way to Norway where, in the warehouse in Trondheim, they are delivered to Spitsbergen, 600 miles south of the Arctic Circle.

Nearly half wind up in the United States. As recently as 1876, they arrived just a few bunches at a time. In that year, at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition, they were sold individually wrapped in tinfoil.

Since 1879, when the first steamship was chartered to the United Fruit Company, the fruit has journeyed ever faster, farther, and in more ships.

One of the few fruits which attain maximum flavor and food value when ripened off the plant, the banana is picked green even for eating in the tropics. It grows, not on a tree, but on one of the world's largest land plants without a woody stem or trunk.

Towering as high as 30 feet, the banana plant has a stem of overlapping leaf sheaths; it grows from rootstock which has eyes much like those of the potato. Each plant yields only one bunch of fruit.

At nine or ten months when the tiny bananas are plump at the end of the stem, they point downward. As they mature, they grow rounder and swell. Experienced men learn when to cut and wrap.

Each bunch is made up of nine or more clusters or "hands." Hands, in turn, contain 10 to 20 bananas, or "fingers." Most grocery stores sell only hands or fingers.

By far the most common banana is Musa sapientum, or "fruit for the wise men." Nearly all bananas eaten in this country are a variety of this species called Gros Michel.

Two other varieties, flown to a few metropolitan centers, are the Red Banana, named for the color of its skin, and the Lady Finger, known in Mexico as ciento en boca, "hundred in the mouth." Wrapped in a kid-glove peel and delicate in taste, the 3-to 4-inch Lady Fingers run more to one-to-mouth proportions.

During World War II when bananas of any variety were hard to find, a Houston Texas, newspaper announced, "Yes, Houston has bananas." In the shipyards there the fruit was used to the bows to grease the ways, down which new ships slid into the sea.

One Consolation

(Edmonton Journal)

Reading of the latest American gang murder, the poor but honest man has one consolation. He never steps on the starter of his car, it may refuse to start, but it is unlikely to explode.

Pursuit of the Wild Swan

(The Printed Word)

A friend writes that it is the finer things in life that, in the long run, matter. There seems to be a trace of guilt in his statement, as though he should enjoy getting hold of some money, but he feels he must not touch it lest that fact impair his capacity to pursue the wild swan. In his case the wild swan happens to be architecture. He is a first-class architect and, with only a certain number of years left to work, he wishes to squeeze some satisfaction out of them by designing a few things that will not make him shudder when he builds again.

Anyone who amounts to anything has much the same notion, whether his job is drying the dishes expertly for his wife, delivering the newspaper perfectly and on time or getting the estimates through Commons. Superstition whispers that the beautiful wild swan to pursue is a sorry case indeed.

It is the reference to money as being that that is the controversial feature in the letter from this architect. Love of money is the root of all evil, but the fact that most people omit "love" from this quotation made it a popular misquotation that money itself is bad.

Carthage and Rome are pointed to as notable examples of empires with a lot of money and no happiness. It is, indeed, hard to difficult to find a civilization of quality that did not own a considerable amount of material wealth. Athens in her best days of art had made the Aegean her lake and was invading Asia. Sicily and the lower Italian mainland. Rome is not a good example, being more a has some.

wealthy patron of the arts; but the Florence of 200 years later. Pericles was a trading town that beat out Pisa and Siena and stayed off Milan. Shakespeare was twenty-four when English sailors with scales glittering like armour on the back of their hands and wrists, confounded the Armada and one of the secrets of growing older happily.

That contribution may be active or passive but it will be apparent to you and to your associates.

Sometimes the finest service an individual can make to those about him is simply to be a consistent example of cheerfulness, temperance and alertness to the needs of others.

In short the model Senior Citizen could be a person toward whom the younger members of the family and the community may look with warm recognition that growing older is a fine and rewarding experience. How do you measure up?

Easy to say, isn't it? But how can you achieve it?

Perhaps by careful study and daily practice. Isn't the charm of young children partly their continuing curiosity and wonder in the world about them? Isn't a man also wondering with so many worlds yet unchartered?

Although it seems clear that nations most effectively pursue their wild swans on full stomachs, there have been too many hungry individuals who did great things for any such rule to apply to the man himself. Edgar Allen Poe was plagued by poverty and his work was probably impaired by it, while the fact that Sir Isaac Newton made a lot of money did not interfere with his genius. The fact remains that he can be mustered, in reply to the architect who has just lost his make some money, is that money is a fine thing to have, especially if it creates a feeling of security in itself it is not evil, but one must have more than enough to have more.

The architect friend should be in very finest building he is capable of, so only in that way will he own a considerable amount of material wealth, and in providing skills to be traded for dealing with committees. A man as busy as that seldom thinks of million mainland Rome is

India Offers West Lesson

(Ottawa Journal)

India's welcome to the well-meshed smooth-running team of Bulganin and Khrushchev is depicted as "the greatest political demonstration since the declaration of India's independence".

A lesson there for the West.

We, in democracies, especially, too often imagine that the peoples of Asia and Africa are panting for the Western system, just waiting for the day when we can go in and give to our democratic textbook and maxims to joyously embrace democracy.

It just isn't true. The teeming, starving millions of the multitudes of Asia and Africa are waiting for bread for the things and ordinary decencies which long have been denied them; if ever they have had a chance to choose, the doctrines of Marx will end their misery more quickly and effectively than any book of Adam Smith and John Stuart Mill, it is the promise of bread that they ask for.

For a hungry man knows no politics. He has no time much moved by some family on "freedom".

What India's seemingly passionate demonstration for the Soviet leaders means is that their bumbilies on freedom may not be winning the victory that we imagine. "Neutralism" could go against us.

Strangely, there are many among us who, if we may judge from what they say or write, are ready for this dreadful gamble. They can get excited over slogans about "neutralism" and "peaceful coexistence" and exult over claims (perhaps only fanciful) that Russian leaders really will sacrifice materially for gains. They cannot be moved at all by arguments that bread may be more important as armaments, that the decisive battle for democracy's future and freedom will not be won on the battlefield but will be determined by which of the world's conflicting systems can do more for the millions of the earth who live in squalor and misery.

In exploiting misery, in promises of bread, the Communist leaders are experts. If the West in its complacency should sit idly by, content that democracy is inevitable and must always prevail, it may well be inviting the whirlwind.

Baruch Gives Advice to Old

(Montreal Gazette)

Bernard Baruch, 85, was asked, "How can the old in years remain young in heart and spirit?" In a recent magazine article, this adviser to presidents and confidant of the great minds of the world made his reply.

Older years are not "declining" years, says Baruch, for "the men of maturity are the ones who have gracefully and sensibly to the limitations of their years and have learned to live, to work, to participate as fully as possible in life to enjoy life."

This wise man chose "to learn" as the first requisite for those that is to continue to be useful. The difference between formal education and life itself is great, he says. Mastering the techniques and instruments which will make life better. Now we are beginning to see the possibility of doing this. The sunlight that is here with us always is now grad-

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A young woman of my family has just returned from a year and a half of civil engineering in Britain, and travelling student-style in France, Italy, Austria and her very first question on returning home to Canada was:

"Where's the sky?"

It is her impression that we have the finest sky in the world.

"In England, in London especially," she said, "you never see the sky every day, and many times a day. And it is not for the reason you might think. It is not because of your interest in England's weather. It is because there is no sky there, part of the view, part of life itself. It is close, intimate, as real as the buildings or the landscape. It is included with everything else."

I asked if the sky in Europe were any different from the sky in Canada. She thought not. Was it more moving, with clouds? Possibly.

But this absence of sky in Canada disturbed her, and for a week after her return she looked for it constantly.

I asked her to describe how tender the stars are in England, how radiant in Italy, how effulgent in Austria.

"In London," she said, "you will commonly see people looking at the sky at night, attentively, appreciatively."

"Why?" I suggested, "it's the effect of those pubs . . ."

But now that I am my various years in Erope, in the wars and on travels, I am left with a strong impression that many an old soldier will confirm out of his own memory, that there is a sky over England, over France and Italy which does not seem to be there when one comes to rest on one Canadian sky.

"Why, in Mallorca, in the Mediterranean, with all our young women, "I have sat.at my open window looking at the beauty of night sky, the stars festooned as if against blue-black velvet, a scene of immensity and calm drawn and teacher you. And after I stared a while, I would call out my name, and I couldn't see at all . . .

"Aha!" . . .

"Aha!" said she. "I was thinking of Canada."

Obligations of Old Folks

Continuing to learn and grow is the obligation of an individual who senses his own significance in life. Making a contribution to your family, your community, is one of the secrets of growing older happily.

Must we sit and bemoan our personal infirmities so long as there is a breath left in us with which to support and stimulate our companions?

We can learn to play the piano at seventy. Just by daily reading you can learn to understand the psychology of children and adolescents; how many homes would be how much happier if the folks there, old and young, had studied with care the problems of adolescents, 1955?

Say you are sixty-five and your daughter-in-law is forty-five. Have you forgotten? If so, the public libraries will provide endless material on her present problems, so you can have a fellow-feeling she will love you for.

Your son-in-law goes out daily to battle an asphalt jungle you never knew in your fighting days. Study it. He will return your sympathy and understanding with ten-fold respect.

And if it's all too much for your failing energy, there is at hand medical and psychiatric help to adjust your spirits and offer you the energy you used to have. How, so many of the Idle Rich use easy-going and never dark or difficult. Try them!

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

Usually we find that the things which have taken for granted turn out to be of most value.

There is a great deal of talk now about utilizing the power of the atom. Yet it has never before been falling upon us since God by His word brought order out of chaos. Yet it has never ceased to us to try to use the power of the sun. Without the sun, the earth would be no fields and harvesting, there would be no life, but we have begun give us life, but we have not tried to take life out of the sun's rays—harness its force to make clothes and instruments which will make life better. Now we are beginning to see the possibility of doing this. The sunlight that is here with us always is now gradually emerging as our best friend —and with a promise of power that a humanity has never known before.

The friends that have been with us always—how precious their friendship becomes as the day of life draws to its close! The loved ones that have been round about us and whose confidence he has taken so much for granted, and his providences day by day and his mercies all the time, his tender mercy. Then, in an hour of crisis, we know the power and value of what we have taken for granted.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GOAL

It is essential to both success and happiness that each one of us should have an aim in life—an objective to which we can train all our faculties. Many people have no goal in sight beyond the day's meager necessities.

As a boy that famous book on heroes by Thomas Carlyle came to me "Heroes and Hero Worship" is the title. It was the earliest of many books that influenced and inspired me. Said Carlyle: "Great men, taken up in any way, are profitable company." And so they are. To this day I read that useful book, and whenever I come across a first edition that I might get something of the spirit of the man who first breathed it to all mankind.

The study of heroes and great leaders in the world is a wonderful education. Sometimes there are those we do not. Certainly there would not be the ambition to do and climb that we have in the great examples of those with a real aim in life.

From earliest boyhood I have always had my heroes. Outstanding, the life of Lincoln was the first place. The more you delve into his life the more does his nobility of character impress you. God gave him great wisdom and tenderness and humanity and he knows his simple strength and humility of spirit. Here was a world figure with a goal before him, and with ambition, but only that he might serve others and his country.

I have always loved biographies and autobiographies that clearly the aim and goal of the one portrayed. If we don't know where we are going we are far off. With the deeds of heroes ever fresh in our memories we can rise and advance —and with a high spirit.

This Fish Earns Cheers

(St. Catharines Standard)

Well, when a 17-foot fish, type unknown, attacked an angler in a rowing boat off the shores of Italy. The man had to fight for his life before boat loved fish to his shore, and even they took hours to kill the creature.

Avid fishermen will probably object, but there is something refreshing in learning about a fish turning the tables on man. The fish lost, of course, but not before it had given the angler a variety of character impress you. God

Declares Israel Will Never Yield Any Territory

MONTREAL (CP)—Moshe Shartett, Israel's minister of foreign affairs, said here Wednesday night his country will never "give up what we have in order to obtain peace."

In Montreal to raise money for the development of Israel, he told an Israel bond dinner that the Jewish state, however, might be willing to negotiate a settlement on the basis of "certain mutual border adjustments."

"I don't see any reason why we should sacrifice our territorial conquests," he added. "We won't let our country be carved up just to give the Arab bloc an adhesion it never had before."

Mr. Sharett said he is "sceptical" of Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden's recent suggestion for a possible settlement between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Police Blotter

Police are on the lookout for a musically minded thief who is reported to have stolen a silver trumpet from the RCAF, No. 6 Repair Depot at Trenton.

The city and district got away to a good start for Safe Driving Day with no accidents being reported by either city or provincial police up until noon today.

In fact all was comparatively quiet at both police headquarters with little more than routine matters being reported.

A. Yeomans street resident complained that an unidentified motorist had killed her pet dog when it was run over by a car. The motorist did not stop.

IF ELECTED TO COUNCIL I PROMISE THAT I WILL ATTEMPT TO PUT A STOP TO THE RIDICULOUS SPENDING OF TAXES.

IN THE PAST YEAR YOUR PRESENT CITY COUNCIL HAS THROWN YOUR TAXES AWAY FOOLISHLY, AND WILL CONTINUE TO DO SO, IF YOU THE PUBLIC CONTINUE YEARLY TO ELECT COUNCIL MEMBERS BECAUSE THEY ARE POPULAR, rather than citizens with Belleville's interest at heart or sufficient business experience to run your city as they should run a business. Listed here are a few of the unwarranted expenditures made or contemplated by the council members, you the public elected, to carry on your city business, in the past two elections.

WOULD YOU SAY THESE EXPENDITURES WERE SOUND THINKING:

- ★ $5000 of your taxes were spent on a law suit, after the city solicitor advised your council that they could not win a law suit against McFarland construction, but still council sent this case to court.
- ★ $6000.00 of your taxes were given as a loan to last year's hockey team, when council knew that the team had no possible means of paying this money back.
- ★ $2000.00 of your taxes were spent on painting windows in the city hall.
- ★ $7500.00 of your taxes were spent on aluminum windows for the city hall to replace the windows not yet dry from the paint job.
- ★ $25000. of your taxes were spent to support the Albert College on their drive for funds, over the next five years, yet your present council could not see fit to give our own library a grant of six thousand for more books for our children as they claimed they could not spend in next year's budget.
- ★ $115,000.00 is now wanted by council to erect a parking lot downtown when the council know or should have made it a point to know that a shopping area is to be erected in the east of the city next year.

I think as you should that these expenditures are out of place and indicate nothing less than poor business sense and a lack of Belleville's interest by our city council.

I promise that if I am elected to your city council this year, that as long as I am able to argue down this type of spending I will do so, or let you the citizens know why I have not been successful.

Belleville is my adopted home, and it is near time we, the citizens of Belleville, decided to stop our council from making a laughing stock of Belleville in the Quinte area.

ENTERTAINS

Mrs. John A. Buchan, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary Association of Ontario, entertained her predecessor, Mrs. H. G. Horning of Windsor, on Tuesday evening. Other guests were: Mrs. H. Ramsay Park, Trenton, Public Relations director for the Hospital Association; Mr. Kenneth C. Cross and Mr. A. George Ferchat, executive director and past director, respectively of the Public Relations for the Ontario Hospital Association; also Mrs. Harry J. Fuke. Mrs. Horning had been a guest speaker at Alma College, in the afternoon. Mr. Cross and Mr. Ferchat had also visited with Mr. K. M. Box, administrator of Belleville General Hospital.

St. Andrew's Guild Bazaar, Tea Charming, Successful

St. Andrew's Day was commemorated yesterday afternoon by an exceedingly fine bazaar and tea under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in the church assembly room. Christmas decorations of Scotch pine boughs and entwined ropes of metallic red and silver, and bows of red, green, adorned the various booths and peeped from unexpected corners.

The fine weather brought throngs of patrons and guests who were extended a most gracious welcome by Mrs. R. D. MacLean, wife of the pastor of the church, and by Mrs. M. C. Ryan, president of the Guild.

After paying the usual dues to the treasurer, Mrs. F. Townley, they wended their individual ways to the booth of which each was in search where the special Christmas gift might be obtained. An apron from the apron booth, was convened by Mrs. A. Williamson and her assistants. Here were many aprons, some in lovely organdies in pastel tints of pale green and yellow, and some in Christmas red; a white, dotted Swiss muslin was accented by triangular inserts of fancy handkerchiefs. All in half and all-over styles in prints, gingahams, and unbleached cotton.

LOVELY NOVELTIES

On the novelty table, conyened by Mrs. J. Hayman and Mrs. R. Brain, and their assistants was a bangers; doll dresses, little coats; bootees; embroidered tea towels; hand lotion; crocheted flower baskets; pillow slips with crocheted lace edging, and several beautifully embroidered; shopping bags; stuffed toys; dogs, and horses; and little pinnqutes.

The candy counter with its St. Andrew's Cross in blue and white, was a drawing card for those of the sweet tooth with its little cups, boxes and bags of delicious Turkish delight; popcorn snowmen with lollybean eyes, and gumdrop mouths, and sporting cute little topper hats; pop corn balls in pink; creams in pink, green and white centred with nuts; marshmallows; cakes of maple cream, nut centred; chocolate fudge. This sweet place was convened by Mrs. A. Bell, and Mrs. J. Alexander with their assistants.

At the post office there were seen several little packages, Christmas stockings in red and green felt, as well as boxes of attractive Christmas cards. Mrs. D. G. Ross and Mrs. R. Buskard were in charge.

FINE CHILDREN'S WEAR

The children's wear, under the convenership of Mrs. W. D. Adams, and the Friendly Group, displayed some very fine articles, baby layettes, dressed dolls; bibs; coats and bonnets in coral color with white swandown trim.

DELECTABLE HOMECOOKING

The homecooking, convened by Mrs. D. R. White and her group of helpers was delightful with its lemon, apple, berry, cherry, mince, pumpkin pies; loaves of fragrant homemade bread; angel cakes; blueberry tarts and cranberry tarts; jars of jams, jellies, pickles, both sweet and dill; minted pears, short breads that would melt in the mouth, and tempting doughnuts.

Mrs. A. Trainer was in charge of a plant booth, where one might purchase tall sansavari, African violets, foliages, rubber plants, and asparagus ferns.

The team room occupied the large assembly room and was a delight to the eyes with its lovely metallic candles of graduating lengths in rose, gold, blue and green, which spread across the rear of the room, stood in stately dignity amid sprays of Scotch pine upon the window ledges, and adorned the white, mantel place amid its piney boughs, while on either side, tall wrought-iron candelabra with red candles added the Yuletide touch.

The twin tea tables, one at the rear of the room, and the other at the front, were appointed identically with lovely Scotch lace cloths and centred by a picturesque arrangement of frosted juniper trees, and flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with tall, red tapers.

Round about the tall pillars with their complement of metallic candles and greenery, were placed the little guest tables, each with its white cloth, and centrepiece of a colored plate holding a red candle surrounded by tempting little sandwiches, and dainty cakes.

PRESIDING

Presiding at the tea table were, Mrs. A. D. MacLean and Mrs. Russell White; Mrs. Alex Williamson and Mrs. C. Argue; Mrs. M. Barlow and Mrs. William Cook; Mrs. J. M. Kinnear and Mrs. G. Robertson.

Replenishing cups, saucers and tea, Mrs. D. Kane, Mrs. E. Elliott, Mrs. George Graham and Mrs. H. Wright; the plates and hot water pots, Mrs. R. Benoit; Mrs. G. Wallbridge, and Mrs. P. G. Gelsthorpe; while those who served were, Mesdames W. Robinson, E. Wilkie, R. Strachan, R. Braid, C. Bower, E. Graham, M. Anderson, J. Fisher, N. A. McMillan, G. Williamson, D. MacDonald, A. Dumo, Misses Gladys Gordon, H. Elvidge, Fargey, Drummond, W. Richardson, Mrs. Gowning were J. Darvell, G. R. Kimmett, E. A. Marson, J. F. Benson, E. D. Mott, D. Gilmour, Mrs. Boyd Farrell, Miss Irene Muir, Mrs. D. Locke.

Serving in the kitchen: Mrs. J. Browning, Mrs. J. Chambers, Mrs. M. Ward, Mrs. A. Marvin, Mrs. N. McGrath, Mrs. H. Kennedy, Mrs. C. Maybee and Mrs. James McKenzie. Cooming were Mrs. R. Cameron and her committee.

Serving in the ladies' parlor, Mesdames Gladys Goodfellow, Helen Connolly, Frances Marner, Betty Burley, Joe Clendehan, Amanda Fullerton, Benson, Gerry Barton, Eve Benger, Doris Trill, Elvina Woods, Vera Reynolds and M. Carstens.

TEA ROOM HOSTESSES

The tea room hostesses were, Mrs. G. J. Shaw, Mrs. J. Marshall, Mrs. C. Weir, Mrs. D. Fleming, Mrs. H. G. McKay, Mrs. G. A. Freeman, Mrs. N. Smith and Mrs. M. C. Brown.

Other treasurers included, Mrs. C. J. Fisher, Mrs. R. B. Chadwick and Mrs. I. L. Moore.

The decorating committee included, Mrs. G. Robertson, Mrs. M. Barlow, Mrs. William Cook, Mrs. K. Hill, Mrs. J. Marshall and Mrs. R. W. Smith.

Mrs. R. Bly was in charge of the nursery where the tiny tots were amused while mothers were enjoying a refreshing cup of tea after making the Christmas purchases.

A delightfully appointed tea, and most successful bazaar bringing tribute to its convener, Mrs. Ralph C. Ketchenson; to the decorating committee for the exquisite Yuletide atmosphere created, and to all those others behind the scenes whose willing hands made it all possible.

National Night Of Business Women Marked

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville observed "National Night" at their November dinner meeting, held Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. The lovely table decorations were appropriate to the occasion, centering in the display of United Nations flags at the head table. Crossed flags on the place cards were painted by Mary Moult.

President Dorothy Brown welcomed the guests and members and presided over the program following the dinner. After the toast to The Queen, Simone McPadden, editor of the Ontario "Messenger," the club's provincial bulletin, introduced the head table guests, who included Mrs. Ab Mazur, president of the Soroptimist Club, the presidents of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Napanee, Tweed and Trenton, Mrs. Jane Forrester, candidate for mayor; Alderman Effie McCabe, Mr. Alan Venn, the guest speaker and Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. for West Hastings.

Miss Evelyn Coulter proposed the toast to the National Federation after which Muriel Jobson delighted the audience with two solos, "Ode to Sleep" and "Love is a Many Splendored Thing," accompanied by Mrs. Evelyn Warham, who was pianist throughout the evening.

Miss Dorothy Dowdell introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Alan Venn, director of the Information Branch, Department of Travel and Publicity of the Province of Ontario, who spoke on "Ontario's Visitor Industry." Mr. Venn stressed the importance of the growing visitor industry pointing out that this industry included visitors from other countries, from other provinces and our own citizens travelling within the province. It is the duty of the Department of Travel and Publicity to see that standards are improved and to tell visitors what they may find of interest. But they must be careful not to publicize one part at the expense of other parts.

Mr. Venn pointed out that the work of the department is aided by tourist promotion of communities on the local level, and that any improvement measures in a community makes that place more attractive to its own citizens. Every achievement along this line benefits the whole province, the Shakespearean Festival at Stratford being an outstanding example of this.

Mr. Venn's advice for increasing visitor industry in a community was first, to clean up and beautify, and second, to sell your historical points of interest and attractions. Belleville in Kingston is an outstanding example of this point.

Mr. Venn warned not to oversell or to advertise what you have not and finished his address with this advice, "Take off your hat to the past and promote it by taking off your coat to the future."

Appreciation for his address was expressed by Harriet Sleeves on behalf of the club and guests, and Mr. Venn was presented with a gift of Cook's White Clover cheese as a memento of this visit to Belleville.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF YOU DON'T "FIT IN," WHY DON'T YOU JUDGE IN"?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a young wife. I have a good husband, a nice family and friends. Still I am not satisfied. I am, frankly, bored. I was born and raised in a community where everything revolves around farming. The life here is slow-paced. The movies, square dances and church socials are our only entertainment. My family are farm people, my husband owns a farm-supply store. Our friends have similar backgrounds.

Everyone seems content except me. Somewhere along the line I got lost. I just don't fit in any more.

I have never cared for raising crops or cows. I like store-bought food, and house pets. I like square dances, but I would love to do some dreamy waltzes once in awhile, and go to night club, and dinner parties. I know all about the theater, opera, movies and other forms of the entertainment world from reading countless magazines and books. I love this type of life.

I read everything that comes along to obtain a more intimate view of the rest of the world. I want to be a part of it, but I haven't had, and probably never will have the chance. I haven't canned or preserved a thing since my marriage. I buy my clothes readymade. And the people look down on me for this. But it's just the way I am.

Wherever I'm in a group of people I get bored listening to the same chatter about crops and babies and animals. But when I try to introduce a subject I find interesting, no one seems to know what I'm talking about, and the conversation returns to crops and babies and I'm once again left to myself.

I'm not against farm people They're the backbone of the country I have heard. But I'm just not one of them. I want to get away, but I can't because of my marriage

So what am I to do? Can you possibly offer a little help?—N.N. Dear N.N.:

You say you "just don't fit in any more" in the life you're living. I wonder just why this is.

Apparently what you really want is city life with its stimulating variety of activities, amusements and people. Have you ever spent any time in a big city so that you are quite sure you'd prefer that life? or do you imagine you would because you have read so much about its glamorous side in the books and magazines you mention?

Don't think I'm not sympathetic with this problem of yours. I am. I can well imagine how restless and frustrated you feel because the environment in which you live doesn't offer the things you believe you want most.

However, since you married a man whose life and business is in that environment you evidently chose to remain there, and I think what you will have to do is to try and find in it—or even to put in it yourself—some, at least, of the things you want, while at the same time really throwing your heart into trying to get interested in the things already there.

I'm sure you know the old saying which declares that one gets out of anything just what one puts into it. In your case, this means that if you do your utmost to put interest and enthusiasm into the life around you, you will gradually become interested and enthusiastic about it

You say you don't "fit in" where you are. Well, perhaps you can "edge in." If you really want to try, and I'm going to suggest a small thing that might turn out to be a big help.

You say you haven't "canned or preserved a thing" since your marriage. Why don't you start right now and make some quick jams and conserves for Christmas gifts? The impression I get from your letter is that you are a live wire and like to use your imagination. To make some Christmas gifts of this sort—maybe cookies, too, or some fancy breads—would give you an opportunity to do something creative and you might even get fun out of it. I have some fine quick recipes of this kind that I'll be glad to forward if you will send me your name and address. They may well be recipes that would be new to your friends, so that you could have the fun of giving them not only the surprise of receiving a hand-made gift from you, but the surprise of a goodie they may never have tasted before.

There are a lot of things that I would like to say to you, but my space in the newspaper is limited. So I am just going to make this one specific suggestion at this time, and hope you will let me know if you are going to follow it out. If you do, by writin me that you would like to have the recipes, I will make further suggestions when I send them.

GOOD MANNERS

ENGAGED COUPLE MAY SEND CHRISTMAS CARDS TOGETHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have just become 'officially' engaged! We had a definite understanding before Michael went to Germany for his two years' service with the Army. He returned two weeks ago, and last Saturday my mother and father gave a small dinner for the two families announce our engagement. We can't plan to be married before next summer at the very earliest. But we're so thrilled at being engaged that we would love to send our names together on our Christmas cards this year. However, I've never sent this done, and we're wondering if you would say 'yes' to such a plan. Would it be proper? — Michael and Carol

Yes! Here it is, the answer you wanted, Michael and Carol, and I'm hoping it will sing to you with a joyous lilt. It is entirely proper for you to send your Christmas cards together this year . . . and of course this card-sharing will add another measure to your happiness. However, two notes, please, about these cards:

1. Such intimate cards should of course, be sent only to your and "his" relatives and intimate friends. To not-so-close friends and to mere acquaintances you should send separate cards.

2. An attractive way to sign your name (Carol) below the name, and have Michael sign his name on the line below yours. However, the cards to relatives and to your closest mutual friends, you may sign "Michael and Carol" or "Carol and Michael" . . . depending on who signs the card. Remember that the one signing a card politely signs her of his name last.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

DAINTY LINGERIE A BEAUTY "MUST"

Personal cleanliness is a beauty factor which we have stressed time and again, but which, actually, cannot be over-emphasized. In referring to personal cleanliness, however, we usually accent bodily cleanliness. Yet there is another aspect to this subject—one which concerns your intimate accessories. Lingerie, girdle and hosiery must always be kept fresh and clean. You may not realize it, but such clothing rapidly picks up skin oil and perspiration. Any trace of moistness in worn garments will betray the cleanest of bodies and no bottled fragrance can quite disguise it.

Here are a few tips which may be helpful, therefore, in keeping your lingerie as delightfully dainty as it should be:

You can divide your lingerie into just two categories: fabrics that drip-dry and need little or no ironing, and fabrics that do require some ironing.

In the first category are "Miracle" fabrics, which include nylon, orlon, and dacron; various blends of "miracle" fabrics; embossed cotton plisse, and cotton georgette. Plisse can be swished through soapsuds and rinses and hung to drip-dry on shaped hangers. Be careful not to rub, twist, or wring "miracle" fabrics, so wrinkles won't become creased in. Fingerpress ruffles and pleats, and smooth flat surfaces with the palms of your hands. If some ironing touch-ups are needed, use a cool iron.

Fabrics that do require ironing include cotton broadcloth and organdy, acetate taffeta, or permanently crisp crinoline. The cotton can be washed in hot soapsuds and rinses and hung up or dryer dried. Press them while evenly damp, using a fairly hot iron. Other fabrics in this category should be washed in warm soapsuds and rinsed and drip-dried. Press acetate taffetas on the wrong side while slightly damp, using a cool iron.

Do wash all lingerie frequently. Slips, panties, and bras should be soaked after each wearing, gowns after two or three wearings, robes and negligees at the first sign of soil. If you put off washings, ingrained soil will weaken the fabrics, and will be difficult to remove. It's a good idea to pre-treat extra-soiled areas by rubbing soapy fingers or a well-soaked soft brush before proceeding with the actual laundering.

Be sure to wash whites with whites, only Nylon particularly tends to pick up tints from other colors, even pale pastels, which might not be visible in the water. And wash all dark color fabrics before wearing—no matter how good the quality, excess surface dye is bound to rub off on the skin and other clothing. Use a series of soakings and rinses in the first washing to flush away the excess color.

And don't disillusion your business by staging a laundry production in the bathroom! If your days are tied up at the office, do your basic washing before you retire, but be first up in the morning to have the bathroom cleared for hubby's tubbing.

Chocolate Dipping Method Revised

By Mary Moore

Last year at this time I gave you a method for making chocolates—fondant centres and dipping instructions. I made an error in the recipe and some of our readers wrote kind letters to me pointing out that the dipping chocolate called for too much paraffin. They were right and I appreciate their vigilance.

We have gone through the whole fondant-making and chocolate-dipping routine again and I think you can trust the method I am giving you today.

The amount of chocolate for dipping given here will cover the amount of fondant for centres given here. We had about 2 tablespoons chocolate left over when we had coated all of the fillings and the yield was 12 one-half lb. boxes of chocolates. Thirteen homemade gifts.

The one difficulty amateurs experience is keeping chocolate coating at the right temperature to coat the fondant to the proper thickness. So watch all instructions carefully won't you?

HOMEMADE CHOCOLATES

Fondant —One tin sweetened condensed milk, 2 lbs. sifted icing sugar, 1-4 lb. best quality butter, (2 teaspoons corn syrup are optional). Mix in order given and knead in bowl for about 5 minutes, then wrap in wax paper and allow to ripen for at least one day in refrigerator, tightly covered. Dipping Chocolate—In double boiler over steaming not boiling water melt 1-2 lb. unsweetened cooking chocolate, 1-2 lb. semi-sweet chocolate, 1-8 lb. (3 oz. or 1-2 of one of the 4 strips of paraffin (3 teaspoons corn syrup are optional). Remove from heat to dipping, but add boiling water to water in bottom to keep temperature of chocolate constant—about 1-2 cup boiling water about every 3 minutes.

Divide ripened fondant into six portions: (1) Ginger: Enclose 1 inch pieces of preserved ginger in 1 1-2 inch rounds of fondant. (2) Maraschino cherries: Flatten small ball of fondant, place drained cherry in centre, draw fondant up to cover all but top. Stick toothpick in top and dip in chocolate. After several are made fill hole at top with hot chocolate from spoon. The other four varieties may be peppermint patties, chopped walnuts, pineapple, chocolate coconnut centres. When all centres are prepared dip-in-chocolate on a nut pick, twirl to cover completely, being very sparing with the chocolate coating, drain a moment then place on wax paper to harden. Keep the water under the dipping chocolate steaming but throughout dipping process, but not boiling.

Club Activities

SUNBEAM M. B.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The Sunbeam Mission Band met at Quinte View School on Friday with a good attendance of members. The president, Billy Arthur, presided.

The offering was taken by Iva Drouillard and dedicated by Joanne Gainforth.

The minutes of October meeting were read by the secretary Gail Goldie, and adopted by the president. The roll call was answered by all marching to the front with their mite box and white gift for their mission project.

Karen Gallupe, Vicky Glydon and Billy Arthur read, "Bobby and the Owl" which told how Bobby learned that to be a good Brownie he must not be lazy but must help with many tasks which he had always disliked to do.

Cathy Dale and Peggy Ackerman sang, "Jesus Loves Me", accompanied by Mrs. Campbell.

Mrs. L. Young read the final chapter of Study book, "Fiji Tree Village", which told of the end of the religious festival and the return of the family to their homes accompanied by Sushila the little sister of Myria and Ajit, who was released from the leper hospital to return home.

It was decided to ask the mothers to the December meeting.

After the meeting closed practice for the Christmas meeting was started with Mrs. D. Bowers as pianist.

Wage Increases For 733 Workers At GM Plant

TORONTO (CP) — Company and union negotiators have been tentatively agreed on wage increases for 733 workers in the strike-bound Windsor plant of General Motors of Canada, it was reported Wednesday.

Workers in Windsor and four other GM plants have been on the strike almost Sept. 19. Negotiators Wednesday were reported to have reached agreement on special increases for most Windsor plant employees. The amount of the boosts was not disclosed.

Sources close to the talks said wages for 63 skilled workers at Windsor still are to be discussed. The strike involves a total of 17,600 employees in Windsor, St. Catharines, Scarborough, London and Oshawa.

Talks aimed at settling the main dispute—the union's demand for 15 cents an hour in wage increases have been in session little more than a week.

The increases under discussion have been asked by the union to overcome what it calls wage inequities at the five plants.

The company has offered a total of $470 an hour to be split among workers at the five plants. The United Auto Workers Union CIO-CCL said last week the offer was only half of what it wanted.

The union is reported to have made demands totalling 26 cents an hour. The company's last offer before the strike was estimated to be worth 17.7 cents but included a version of the guaranteed annual wage.

TWO MORE CHARGES LAID

HAMILTON (CP)—A man police say passed a narcotics capsule to his wife in court while awaiting trial on a drug charge, was remanded Wednesday on a trafficking charge. James Jordon, 26, and his wife, June, 25, were charged with trafficking and illegal possession of narcotics respectively after the courtroom incident two weeks ago. They were awaiting preliminary hearing on narcotics possession charges when a detective said he saw Jordan pass the capsule to his wife.

AIR SERVICE RESUMED

FORT FRANCES (CP) — Air travel service returned to the International Falls, Minn., airport Wednesday. North Central Airlines resumed its daily flights after eight days of cancellations due to heavy snow on the runways. The airport finally was cleared by plows.

Overseas Ships May Have To Berth in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—The superintendent of canals for the Montreal district said Wednesday night some overseas ships may have to be tied up above Montreal for the winter unless weather conditions improve.

Jean Barcelo said ice has been formed with the opening and closing of gates between Montreal and Galoop Place, at the western end of the canal, for the last few days. "If ice interference continues," he said, "we will have to close the gates earlier than usual."

Dec. 15 has been set by the department of transport for the official closing of the canal system.

Price Increased

VICTORIA (CP)—The Daily Colonist, Victoria's morning newspaper, announced Wednesday an increase in street sale prices.

Effective today, the regular edition price will be increased from seven to 10 cents and the Sunday weekend edition from 10 to 15 cents.

The city's afternoon paper, The Daily Times, announced similar increases Tuesday. Both papers are published by Victoria Press Ltd.

Socred Leader Suffers Severe Heart Attack

CALGARY (CP)—A series of extensive tests are being made by medical authorities to determine the severity of a heart attack suffered by Solon Low, 55-year-old national leader of the Social Credit party.

Hospital officials said Wednesday night Mr. Low was "resting comfortably," following the attack Tuesday night, the eve of the Alberta Social Credit party's annual convention.

Doctors said it will take two or three days to complete a study of Mr. Low's case.

Mr. Low talked for a short while Wednesday night to Premier Manning of Alberta and the premier reported Mr. Low was quite cheerful at that time.

No one would estimate how long Mr. Low will be in hospital.

WAS ON TOUR

The attack cut short a speaking tour Mr. Low started in New Brunswick in September. National leader for 11 years and one of the party's "originals," he was scheduled to end the tour Dec. 5 at Mindedosa, Man., but this has been cancelled.

Rev. E. G. Hansell, Social Credit member of Parliament for Fort Macleod, took Mr. Low's place in addressing a public meeting here Wednesday night in connection with the Alberta convention.

Mr. Low was elected to the Alberta legislature in his first try at the polls, winning Warner constituency in 1935 when Social Credit was first elected in the province. Two years later, Mr. Low became provincial treasurer. He failed to hold his seat in the 1940 election, but was elected by acclamation later in the year in Vegreville.

Moffats Ltd. Showing First Electronic Range

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Moffats Ltd. is showing in Toronto what it describes as "the first electronic range ever demonstrated in Canada."

It is called the RadaRange and takes 30 seconds to cook a fish fillet; three minutes to cook a lobster; two minutes to bake a potato.

As outlined by Moffat engineers, two magnetrons radiate microwaves at 2,450,000,000 cycles a second. The microwaves penetrate the food, cause the food molecules to accelerate tremendously and create internal heat in the food itself. Utensils and the oven interior remain at room temperature.

At present costs the range is for commercial use, rather than domestic. It has been installed in one Toronto restaurant.

A news release from the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association says that by the end of 1955 nearly 6,500,000 Canadians, or 49 per cent of the population not covered by compulsory government hospital plans, will have acquired voluntary insurance against hospital expenses.

Close to 5,500,000 Canadians, the release adds, will have insurance against surgical expenses and about 4,250,000 will have medical-expense insurance against doctors' bills.

The figures are based on projections of 1950-54 survey figures released by the joint committee on health insurance representing most insurance companies and fraternal benefit societies providing medical, surgical and hospital insurance in Canada.

In 1940 only about 500,000 Canadians carried hospital insurance and less than half this number was covered for surgical and medical expense.

The Wall Street Journal says that air curtains in place of doors are coming for stores. They're entirely open entrances, says The Journal, people walking through feel nothing, but a complicated system of air streams shuts out the cold and heat.

One Standard for Inventors Urged by Patent Institute

OTTAWA (CP)—The Patent Institute of Canada said today it does not agree that the corporate inventor should be judged by standards different from the individual inventor.

In a brief to the Ilsley royal commission on patent, copyright and like laws, the institute said it would not be in the public interest if different standards should be applied either in the field of invention or the right to sue for infringement of a patent.

"If we are to encourage the development of basic and applied research in Canada we should not emasculate patents applicable to this technology by refusing the right to institute suit for infringement solely on the ground that a person holds a number of patents."

The institute, an association of Canadian patent lawyers, was represented before the commission early last month by two Canadian newspapers, the Regina Leader-Post and the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix. In a 34-page brief the newspapers urged sweeping changes in the patent law to prevent corporate control of industry and markets and the setting of prices through the pooling of patents.

In its submission today the patent institute disagreed with suggestions in the newspaper brief that litigants who would challenge patent pools in court should be offered treble damages, and that patent pool holders should register their patents with the restrictive trade practices commission with a statement of policy on their use and a justification of royalties charged to licencees.

The institute said the requirement of a policy statement would in effect be a penal provision which could operate without the patent owner ever having been guilty of any anti-trust violation.

Suffragan Bishop Is Elevated

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Archdeacon William A. Townshend, the man who was once turned down for the priesthood because of ill health, Wednesday was elevated to the position of bishop amid solemn ritual in St. Paul's cathedral.

When he was finally admitted to the priesthood of the Church of England in Canada, he rose to become secretary-treasurer of the diocese of Huron.

The 57-year-old new suffragan bishop, first in the diocese, was consecrated during a two-hour service. He becomes the 29th bishop of the church in Canada and the eighth man to be raised to episcopal rank in the diocese.

Taking part in the consecration were 13 archbishops and bishops from Canada and the United States, headed by the metropolitan of the House of Bishops for Ontario, the Most Rev. L. Wright of Sault Ste. Marie.

DENTIST DIES

HAMILTON (CP)—Dr. Herbert L. Field, former vice-president of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, died Wednesday. Dr. Field retired in 1946 when illness forced him to give up the vice-presidency of the college and other professional activities. Born in Treverton, he had lived in Hamilton since 1917, when he set up practice.

Note-Passing Gunman Gets $1,000 from Bank

TORONTO (CP) — About $1,000 was stolen Wednesday in Toronto's second note-and-gun bank robbery within two weeks.

Police said a man armed with a revolver grabbed the money from a north Toronto branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Two weeks ago a note-passing gunman held up a cashier in the basement bond office of the downtown Bank of Nova Scotia and escaped with $4,300.

The police reconstruction of the robbery:

A man of about 45, wearing a grey hat and dark overcoat, entered the bank on Yonge street above St. Clair avenue and walked to the wicket where Letter Jean Sawerthal, 19, was working. He pushed a note reading, "this is a holdup—all large bills or I'll kill you" across the counter and produced a revolver.

Miss Sawerthal handed over a bundle of $10 and $20 bills.

The gunman then slipped away on busy streets.

PATIENT FOUND

CAMPBELLFORD (CP) — Kew Fong, 32, who police say escaped Wednesday from the Ontario Mental Hospital at Kingston, was picked up by police Wednesday night as he stepped from a taxi. Two others who escaped at the same time are still free, police said. Fong was committed three months ago after being convicted of pointing an offensive weapon. Police said he had operated a restaurant here and when health officials ordered it be closed, Fong threatened them with a gun.

Indians to Meet With Pickersgill

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives from Indian bands will meet with Citizenship Minister Pickersgill in Ottawa Dec. 12 to discuss proposed amendments to the Indian Act.

A government official said Wednesday the meeting will review the act established in 1951 and try to iron out some administrative difficulties.

It is likely there will be some amendments proposed both by the government and the Indian delegates, the official said. But he declined to elaborate.

The 27 representatives were chosen by the Indians themselves for the meeting. Each delegate will represent one of 27 regions. There are 152,000 Indians in Canada. The meeting will last two or three days.

Oshawa Merchants Suffering Loss of Business from Strike

By KEN SMITH

OSHAWA (CP)—The 11,000-man strike against the General Motors strike has slowed the pace of business in Oshawa, although an officer of the Chamber of Commerce says it isn't as bad as expected.

About 14,000 men, almost half this booming city's working force, have been idle since Sept. 19 when the Unified Auto Workers (CIO—CC) I) called a strike against five GM plants in Ontario—here, in Toronto suburb of Scarborough, St. Catharines, London and Windsor. Chief issue was wages although seniority and other problems entered into the dispute.

MIXED PICTURE

A survey of merchants turns up a mixed picture. Stores selling food and similar essentials report their business is down 10 to 15 per cent compared with the same period in 1954. However, those selling the sort of stuff people can postpone buying — furniture, appliances, clothing and luxury goods—estimate the strike has reduced their business up to 50 per cent.

Morley Wyman, department store manager who is director of the retail division of the Chamber of Commerce, says the strike hasn't affected sales as seriously as most business men had feared.

Company spokesmen, reported they have heard that several families are seriously affected by the loss of a regular pay cheque, report that one striker called and asked them to settle the strike quickly because he was so far in debt it will take him a year to recover.

However, Clifford Pilkey, financial secretary of UAW Local 222, says workers and their families are living satisfactorily if not expensively. He says savings, earned over the years and union vouchers provide the necessities of life.

Mr. Pilkey gave the following outline of union benefits: Single men get basic relief vouchers of $8 a week and married men $12, with extra payments according to need. The union is helping 5,000 families, mostly in food and had vouchers, at a cost of $125,000 a week. The union pays medical and hospital insurance and is ready to intervene to prevent eviction for non-payment of rent although it is not contributing to rental payments.

Ralph Kerr, manager of the appliance department of a mail-order wide chain's branch, said sale of television sets, refrigerators, stoves living and bedroom suites is at least 25 per cent lower than had been anticipated.

Manager of another appliance store said his sales would have been 50 per cent higher if GM had not been on strike. His store was facing a serious problem because strikers, who had bought goods on time, now cannot meet payments.

George Murless, manager of a clothing store, said the strike has "ruined the fall trade." His sales are down 30 per cent and he expects it will get worse.

"The workers have been using what money they've managed to save," he said. "When that backlog is gone, and most workers are close to the end of their savings now, they'll have to tighten up their spending a lot more."

His store was empty during the noon period, despite a sale of suits. "I don't mind talking," he said. "I've got lots of time to do that now."

Beauty parlors, however, report business as usual.

Grocery stores say they are doing a normal trade, although 25 per cent of it is made up now of union vouchers.

Department stores say they have suffered only a slight drop. they expect that pre-Christmas business will be good, although well below what they would be if all the population was working.

Loan companies say they have had a sharp upswing during the last two weeks in the number of long-term, small loans. Most are being arranged so that payments will not start until the new year.

Among strikers many parents say they are worried about Christmas and where they will get the Several indicated they are counting on relatives and friends to help. Others are depending on a toy shop set up by the union at which old toys are repaired and repainted. These will be distributed to strikers' children at a large Christmas party.

Belleville is my home town and I like living here.

Belleville is a good place and can be a beautiful place in which to live and to work. However, Belleville, like all cities, has its problems, and like all cities the solutions for these problems must be worked out by the citizens and by their elected representatives.

It is important for a growing city such as Belleville to have a team of representatives that is not only aware of the problems which face it, and prepared to meet the challenges of growth but willing to work hard at their solution. It is most important that there be effective, working hard and consistent leadership to the team of councillors.

As alderman, I have become more and more certain, a any experience in council expanded, that lack of leadership was jeopardizing the best interests of all the citizens of this city.

You have been made well aware, via the newspaper and radio accounts of the present lack of leadership.

You are aware that following a futile and expensive court action an attempt was made to shift the responsibility in the case by discrediting a city employee. Council unanimously opposed the mayor's recommendation that the employee who had 15 years of service with the city be discharged. The Judge trying the case commended the employee for his service to the city.

You know, too, that council approved an increase in the membership of our hospital's Board of Governors by giving the Women's Hospital Auxiliary a seat on the board. Subsequently the present mayor took his personal objection, despite the council vote, to the private bills committee of the Ontario Legislature where his objection was overruled and council's vote upheld.

The present mayor was outvoted 11 to one on May the 24th, 1955, when he objected to surface treating of certain city streets. The treatment had been recommended and money allotted in the budget for carrying out this important part of maintenance.

No doubt you have heard of the city manager mixup. The position of city manager was to have been filled, but the present mayor has his way before the job the manager was to do had been defined, before required qualifications had been ascertained and before salary had been established. In other words, a city manager was to be hired to do a job which was not determined, with authority that had not been defined, at a salary which had not been agreed upon.

All these things are, to me, evidence of a lack of leadership from the office in city which should take the lead in working out practical, satisfactory solutions.

It is an impossibility for a city to solve its civic problems or to progress when the work of council is constantly opposed by its leader for no good reason.

It is an impossibility for one person to be an effective member of all the boards and commissions of which the mayor is automatically a member.

I propose, as mayor, to work with, and not against, your elected council: A good administrator and executive knows where and to whom to delegate responsibility.

I propose to delegate aldermen, as often as possible, to boards and commissions and to have them report back to council as a whole on the work and problems of such commissions. I want councillors to represent the mayor and the citizens to share in work functions as often as possible. I want councillors to give city government in and in the responsibility of maintaining good city government in Belleville. I feel that in this way they will have the satisfaction of knowing they share in representation of the people who elected them.

I know that as mayor I will not deny councillors the privilege and the responsibility of attending special or regular committee meetings.

As mayor, I will not deny councillors access to files and information. I will explore every avenue of getting councillors' views on subjects under consideration and of enlisting their aid in solving problems arising from city business. I will try to foster their interest and co-operation and not try their patience or their good manners with personal wrangling and bickering.

As mayor, I will attempt to encourage the work and efforts of our city employees and not belittle the good work they have done through the years because of a personal desire to avoid the responsibilities of my own actions. I respect their experience and recognize their interest in doing their jobs well.

In appointing special committees I will give careful considerations to the appointment of members whom I feel are actively interested in a particular field. I do not intend to delay the work of special committees by delaying appointment of members.

I intend to hold regular office hours in the city hall for two hours every day, four days a week for the purpose of transacting city business in a businesslike manner. I will not be in an ivory tower of unapproachability. I intend to make my time available to council members and to citizens alike.

I intend, as mayor, to report each month to the citizens, via newspaper and radio, on the business of the city.

Belleville is important to me as my home town. As your city, Belleville is important to you, too, and I intend as your mayor, to keep you fully informed about the problems which your elected representatives are trying to solve and the means they are taking to solve them.

For a new deal at city hall that offers co-operation, not obstruction; information—not silence; teamwork—not turmoil; and planning —not procrastination, vote Jane Forrester for Mayor on Monday, December 5th.

Social Crediters Want Direct Individual Aid

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—The rank and file members of the Social Credit party of this oil-rich province have urged the government to pay Albertans "individual participation dividends" instead of increasing grants to municipalities.

A resolution calling on the provincial Social Credit government to do this was almost unanimously adopted Wednesday by about 300 delegates attending the 21st annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League.

Funds for the dividends, proposed earlier this year by Premier Manning, were to come from any surpluses derived from the administration of the province's natural resources.

OPPOSE VOUCHERS

Delegates, however, rejected a resolution which asked the government to "increase the purchasing power of needy people in the province by giving them an extra allowance of $20 in the form of a transfer voucher."

Provincial treasurer E. W. Hinman told the convention that funds for the payments could come only through taxes, borrowing and from withholding some other services.

The resolution urging individual participation dividends said pressure was being exerted on the provincial government to make larger grants to municipalities from funds derived from the administration of Alberta's resources.

These surpluses "are really the property of the people of Alberta and not of its various levels of governments"

Before the resolution was brought before the convention, Mr. Hinman said the government was anxious to begin paying dividends but until Social Credit monetary policies were introduced, its only sources of revenue were taxes, natural resources and licences.

Assails Hiring Unqualified Men To Tend Boilers

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Wednesday unqualified persons are operating boiler plants in the province because the government does not enforce its own legislation.

Mr. MacDonald in a prepared statement commented on a case in which the Ontario labor relations board Tuesday reserved judgment.

The case involved the release by the Lakeshore district board of education of two boiler tenders and an offer to rehire them at a lower salary as caretakers with engineers' duties.

The International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-TLC) seeks to prosecute the board of education for refusing to be bound by a collective agreement with the engineers.

"In view of the unequivocal stipulation of the Operating Engineers Act, 1953, that no persons other than an operating engineer may perform the duties of an engineer, this case raises once again the widespread violation of this legislation because the government refuses to enforce its own laws," Mr. MacDonald said.

"When I raised this issue Nov. 11, Labor Minister Dailey is reported as admitting that there are boilers in the province being operated by persons without the proper qualifications, but that this was being done with the knowledge of the department."

Mr. MacDonald said the labor minister's excuse was that a shortage of stationary engineers exists.

He said Mr. Dailey's neglect is jeopardizing public safety in hospitals, schools, hotels and industrial plants.

FAILS TO APPEAR

HONG KONG (AP)—Richard R. Tenneson, American soldier who chose to stay with the Chinese Reds after the Korean war, is being allowed to leave Red China, but he still has not crossed the Hong Kong border. The Red Cross received word Wednesday from the Chinese of Tenneson's release. But United States consular officials waiting at the frontier between China and Hong Kong said he was not on the daily train from Canton.

Fuel Shortage Very Acute In Newfoundland

GRAND BANK, Nfld. (CP) — South coast Newfoundlanders face the coldest winter of their lives. The fuel shortage has never been so acute.

The school at Rencontre East on Fortune bay is ready to close in a "day or so" because there isn't enough fuel to keep the stove hot. Other schools may follow. Many homes and businesses are no better off.

Major C. W. Carter, Liberal member of Parliament for the south coast riding of Burin-Burgeo, said Wednesday that the chief hope of immediate relief lies in chartering several French ships he believes are available to rush in coal. Approval would have to come from the federal government and the maritime transportation commission.

Carter accused the Dominion Coal Company of being "short-sighted" and said the firm had "a good market here. It could be expanded. Instead they're doing their best to lose it."

He said the company preferred the "line of least resistance"—coal subsidies from Ottawa instead of efforts to supply potential markets.

Western Powers To Protest Reds' Berlin Shuffle

THREE NO's
DO YOU AGREE WITH THESE SUGGESTIONS FOR BELLEVILLE?

	My Answer
NO. 1—8 Aldermen can manage our affairs better than 14.	No
NO. 2—2 Engineering Departments can manage our affairs better than 1.	No
NO. 3—CUSTOMERS should build a River Parking Lot and also pay to use it.	No

THE THIRD NO!

This last of the year, last of the minute thought up scheme to obtain the approval for a large expenditure of public funds from the taxpayers, for an undeveloped idea, without plans or details presented and which on the face of it lacks merit, should be firmly rejected.

For many years a redevelopment along the River Water Front has been talked about, but has never been realized. It will be and should be just talked about until a workable plan of redevelopment has been drawn up properly and timely presented.

The old story is still true, "What is everybodies' business is nobody's business." Each store owner, councillor, city club or organization has at one time or another expressed its views as to how and what should be done, but never, at least in my time, have all the interested parties, including the public's representatives, got together with a view, through co-operation, to produce a Redevelopment Plan. The Final Plan might not suit everybody but at least it would be in the best interests of the public and with the blessing of the Council and other organized bodies when presented to the public for approval would be accepted open heartedly.

But what is the public now presented with. Just a request for money for an undeveloped idea having the backing and support of only the originator of the idea.

The acceptance of the public cannot be urged at this time through any plea of urgency. There are so many technical and legal details to surmount before any work could be even started on this proposed narrowing of the River that there is plenty of time available for the preparation of a Redevelopment Plan for the public's perusal and ratification.

Undoubtedly, those claiming to be adversely affected would commence legal action. Governmental approval would have to be sought, public hearings before the Municipal Board be held, and so on—and all without a Plan to present.

I am sorry for Mr. David who desires to see some improvement take place along the river, but who lacks the support of the store owners whose property backs up to the river? There is no doubt that there are many owners who would like to have their back yards cleaned up at the city's expense, but the taxpayers are surely not so gullible as they are being asked to be.

Public parking to provide Traffic arteries and other necessary services are a municipality's duty to provide and maintain, and may or may not be used as the municipalities wish for parking.

It remains to be proven however, that off-street parking areas are directly a Municipality's responsibility to provide.

There are many recognized authorities on the subject who claim that it is not the city's responsibility nor is it wise for the city to assume the responsibility. It goes without saying that parking facilities to serve public buildings are not included in this discussion.

Time and space do not permit me to enlarge on the Good Planning idea, but the voters should read and study it in the City Council that is not fulfilling its job when it endeavors to side-step leadership and ask the public $64 question without a clue.

What is required in Belleville is a strong support by every citizen, club, organization and City Council of a Planning Committee whose duty it would be to organize the planning minded property owners of Belleville representing private enterprise and endeavor to formulate an overall redevelopment plan for at least central Belleville. The planning committee to have authority from Council to engage any technical assistance it requires, but financial assistance be given by the private investors that have so much at stake.

I am sure that if the individual and/or group efforts now striking off at all tangents could be harnessed up into one unified force with a strong enthusiastic organizer at its head, a Redevelopment Plan fit for approval and action would be produced and not only would be acceptable to private enterprise, for they would naturally be expected to contribute their share of the costs, but to the public at large, and, in the accomplishing of this united effort, in the bringing about of a new, more attractive, more efficient Downtown Belleville the people will be proud and private enterprise will be more than recompensed.

For Belleville's Sake Keep the Tax Rate DOWN!

BY
MAYOR
JACK

DEAR FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS:

This evening I shall try to explain to you some of the functions of our city government, as well as straighten out some of the mis-statements made during this campaign for the office of Mayor.

Those who have council experience, will no doubt look on the statements with a smile, the others who are not so familiar with procedure of council, will take another view, and, possibly there are others who will be in a state of bewilderment.

As you know, there are elected each year seven aldermen, for a term of two years, making in all, a body of fourteen aldermen, and with the Mayor elected each year, makes up the working council of fifteen.

At the inaugural meeting, the chairmen of each committee, are selected by vote of the council, and, in each case must have at least eight votes, this gives them a majority.

The members of the committee are selected by council to act on the different committees, to bring in reports and recommendations to council.

Thus, you are aware that it is not the Mayor that appoints the different heads of committees, but rather, the majority of council as a whole, decides who are to become chairmen, and, who will be appointed to the different boards.

It is obvious the majority of council did not think my opponent, as indicated by their vote, was capable to fill a position of chairman of a committee or as a member of a board.

THAT WOULD CALL FOR LEADERSHIP!

I would like to point out to you, that it is the majority of council that rules in all cases, and, not as my opponent has indicated, that the mayor is the culprit and he alone responsible for all actions of the councillors.

I assure you many things have been done without my approval, but with the majority of council, and being a member thereof, I must assume part of the responsibility, as should every member of council.

And so my fellow citizens, my opponent, after ten months in council, does not understand the procedure of council or else chooses to shirk her responsibility, and, in the same breath ridicules honest efforts of members who try to make a community a better place in which to live.

On one occasion, the council voted on their honor, and later my opponent said, and I quote, "The Mayor has no right to ask that the vote be on the honor of councillors," vote. Is it too much to expect of the representative of the citizens of Belleville to be honorable enough at all times, that their word be unquestionable? I think not.

Now my opponent expects you should come out in force and support her for Mayor. When she has nothing to offer as an alderman, what will she have to offer as Mayor?

I suggest to you, it would not be more, but less.

You will go to the polls to elect seven Aldermen and a Mayor on Monday, December 5th. These men will complete your Council, and be entrusted in the spending of your tax dollar. Judge well for your own welfare.

GIVE MAYOR JACK BOTH YOUR SUPPORT . . .

You will see miners and bull cooks; carpenters and cat-drivers; executives and laborers.

Speak to them and they will answer in the accents of Portugal and France; Scotland and Scandinavia.

Visit their homes and you will meet their women and children.

But you will not meet their parents, for there are no old people in Kitimat.

This town, which claims 7,500 population, has no past. It was born in April, 1951, when 10 men stepped ashore and cooked their lunch on a tidal flat. The stove fell apart.

But its future is there to see—on the drawing boards of town planners and in the tractor imprints leading into the forests.

"You can drive from one end of town to the other—and on the way back, something will have changed," says Mrs. Stan Rough of Montreal, wife of the recreation director for the Aluminum Company of Canada.

"Somebody has put up a wall or added a roof since you last passed that way."

But the real gauge of Kitimat's future lies in a cleared area six miles from the smoke, heat and dust of the smelter. It's called "Neighborhood A," the pilot plan for the town that started from scratch.

There are nearly 1,000 homes completed in the area and clearing and installation of sewers is going on in other neighborhoods.

A perimeter road circles the development, fed by U - shaped streets, lined with neat, ranch-style homes. In the middle is a wide park of grass and trees. To one side is a shopping centre with a modern supermarket and the skeleton of a theatre.

In Kitimat's Neighborhood A, no child has to cross a main street to go to school. Where such a crossing is necessary, an underpass has been built.

As estimated 50 per cent of the population has been in Canada less than three years. Smelting of aluminum is a trade for which there is no labor pool and unskilled immigrants, who flocked to the area during the boom days of construction and since, have been trained to keep the silver river of molten metal flowing from the potlines.

"We have more adults attending night classes in our schools than we have regular students," says Philip Sampson, secretary-treasurer of the school board. "And there are kids everywhere.

"We expect to have to build a large elementary school and part of a high school every year from now until 1960. We expect to spend $750,000 to $1,000,000 a year in the process."

"We had 106 enrolments in September, 1953. In 1954 it was 170 and this year 674. We expect 2,000 next year."

A high school and an elementary school are under construction; two elementary schools have just been finished and "two others are on the drawing boards. We also have 10 temporary, portable classrooms."

But it isn't all modern homes in planned sub-divisions. Thousands of single workmen still live in bunkhouses and aboard the old Delta King, a retired Sacramento river paddle-wheeler. Others dwell in temporary houses and motels, and the luxe hotel is crammed.

For those who want to build, the room is available. And for those who want to buy, a $700 down payment puts them into a $14,000 home in one of the neighborhoods.

Alcan estimated that the homes, if built in Vancouver, would be worth approximately $13,000, with transportation and high labor costs accounting for the remainder.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation grants first mortgages of $9,360 and the balance, less the down payment, is covered as a second mortgage by Alcan.

However, to offset the higher prices and encourage home ownership, the company pays employees a monthly bonus of $2.85 per $1,000 of home cost—about $40 on a $14,000 home. This is roughly equal to the principal and carrying charges of the second mortgage and leaves the purchaser with a monthly payment of about $60.

Any time within 10 years, Alcan will buy back a house at pre-determined depreciation rates from anybody wishing to sell. With the taxes he has paid, the seller would be out about $53 a month.

Reeve Wilbur Hallman, commenting on how well the different nationalities have assimilated into his new town, quotes a slogan he found chalked on a wall in the smelter:

"Portugal will see me no more. Canada is for me."

The sign was in English.

Motor Licence Fees Expected To Be Discussed

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Allan said Wednesday proposed increases in motor vehicle licence fees likely would be discussed today at a meeting of the Ontario cabinet.

Although there has been no government announcement on how much increases will be or when they will be effective, it is expected Ontario motorists will have to pay from $5 to $5 more for their 1956 plates.

Highways department officials apparently thought the matter would be placed before a special cabinet meeting Wednesday.

A press conference was scheduled for early in the afternoon but Mr. Allan said after the cabinet meeting that it would not be held.

A government spokesman said routine matters had been discussed.

Lewis Demands CIO Pay Debt For Organizing

By NORMAN WALKER

NEW YORK (AP) — The CIO went ahead today with plans for a quick merger with the AFL after ignoring a note from James L. Lewis for alleged past-due debts.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, an independent labor organization not a party to the prospective merger, sent his payment demand on the eve of separate AFL and CIO conventions called to ratify the amalgamation.

AFL and CIO leaders, unruffled by the Lewis move, summoned delegates to the merger conventions this morning.

SAYS MONEY IS OWED

Lewis is a maverick in the union movement who in the past has been a leader in both the AFL and CIO. Wednesday night he demanded that the CIO, before any merger action, pay up $1,663,000 which he claimed to be the balance owed the UMW from early CIO organizing days. Lewis headed the CIO at that time.

Lewis wrote Carey that the UMW had advanced the CIO approximately $7,250,000 in the late 1930s, and that $1,665,000 is still due in "valid loans."

Carey, CIO secretary - treasurer all during CIO history, even when Lewis was its president, fired back a reply telling Lewis that "the CIO owes you no money."

TORONTO (CP) — Canada attempted to prove today that death on the highway can be avoided.

Motorists and pedestrians faced the challenge of keeping accidents to a minimum for 24 hours. The period started at midnight Wednesday night with the beginning of Safe Driving Day.

The Canadian highway safety conference, sponsoring the drive, hopes it will set an example of safety for the future. A similar campaign is on in the United States.

Safety conference officials say normally there would be 450 acci-

OLD LADY KILLED

WHITE ROCK, B. C. (CP) — RCMP charged a 62-year-old man with murder Wednesday in the stabbing death of Mrs. Helen Cowan, 72. The woman died from multiple wounds. Charged is James Guthrie, who lives at the Cowan home. Police said it appeared the woman fought desperately for her life. Her body was found under a bed.

"These are the figures we will have to try to beat," one official said.

In 1954, 8,586 persons died because of traffic accidents in Canada. In the U. S. the toll was 38,300. Records show 58,725 Canadians and more than 1,000,000 persons in the U. S. were injured.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ANOTHER ONE!

The top two teams in the senior "B" increased their positions last night with the pace-setting Whitby Dunlops defeating the TPT's 7-2 in Bhairville and the Kingston Goodyears handing the Brockville Magedomas a 9-3 shellacking in the Limestone City.

The Dunsies' power-packed squad worked smoothly to rack up their tenth victory of the season as against one loss and a tie, leading 4-0 at the end of the first heat. The TPT's rallied strongly in the second and outscored the group leaders 2-1 but the Dunlops came back in the third to ram home a pair while holding our side scoreless.

Bobbie Attersly, the group's top sniper, fired home three of the Whitby goals with Sinden, Williams, Neil Attersly and Bonello getting the rest. Bert Hill and Davy Jones were the TPT sharpshooters.

The TPT's face their arch enemies from Kingston here Friday night in what should be a typical Kingston-Belleville battle. The TPT's are long overdue in the win column and they'll be rarin' to acquire the victory at the expense of the second-place Goodies.

Whitby leads the pack with 21 points while the Goodyears are in undisputed possession of second slot with 13. Brockville follows with ten and our side with seven. Cornwall Colts bring up the rear with five.

The Goodyears defeat of the Magedomas stopped the Brockville unbeaten string at five. Previously they had chalked up three victories and two ties and seemed headed for the top spots. The TPT's have lost four in a row but with added strength hope to clip the skein against Kingston here tomorrow night.

Pressure Off--Smiles On

Dour-Faced Peahead Relaxed Is Confident East Will Win

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Doug (Peahead) Walker growls and grunts and seldom smiles in his main occupation as coach of Montreal Alouettes.

So, it comes as somewhat of a surprise to see the usually dour-faced Big Four football coach cheerful and unconcerned as he works to whip his eastern all-stars into shape for the East-West all-star Shrine game here Saturday.

The pressure of the Big Four season and the Grey Cup game is behind him and the job of directing one of the all-star squads is a relaxing tonic.

"I'm sort of enjoying this," he said in his slow, southern drawl. "There isn't any pressure and I'm not so vital whether we win or lose. It's a lot of fun under those conditions.

"I would like to beat the west and I think we can do it. The Alouettes lost the Grey up game and I don't want to lose this all-star game if I can help it."

NO BARKS OR GRUNTS

Far from Vancouver and the scene of Alouettes' loss to Edmonton in the Grey Cup final, Walker has taken a philosophical view of the Als' downfall. He doesn't bark or grunt when it's mentioned to him.

"Edmonton is an unorthodox team with its split-T attack, or belly series as I call it," Walker said. "We couldn't stop them on the ground, but I think it can be done.

"Anyway, I don't go along with the idea that teams will concentrate on running attacks just because of Edmonton's success.

"I don't believe that and I don't think any competent football team do either. A good club will have both—passing and running."

After and his assistant coach, Jimmy Dunn of the Alouettes, are sparing no effort to make sure the East's team is ready Saturday. They have been carefully moulding the squad together, paying particular attention to small details and concentrating on a passing attack.

Unleashes Withering Attack After Near-KO in Seventh; Claims Hand Hurt in Second

By BOB HOOBING

Basilio, the 28-year-old Canastota, N.Y., gamester, rallied from DeMarco's stinging punches Wednesday night to repeat his June technical knockout of the Boston challenger in the 12th round.

The time was 1:54—just two seconds longer than it had taken him at Syracuse six months earlier. Both fighters weighed 145½ for the title scrap at Boston Garden

TONY WENT DOWN

After he had floored DeMarco for an eight count with a smashing right to the jaw, then flattened him for good with withering combinations in his good-luck 12th, Basilio revealed he had hurt his left hand in the second round.

That sore hand may make the patient Saxton wait even longer for his title shot. Saxton, who lost the championship to DeMarco here April 1, has steadfastly refused to contract return-bout priority for both of the Basilio-DeMarco fights. The contract for the latest match called for the winner to meet Saxton within 90 days.

The hand was to be x-rayed today.

"I'll have to wait and see how it feels," Carmen said.

How did he feel about Saxton?

"I'M GONNA WIN"...

"I just fought a tough fight," Basilio answered. "Saxton is tough. They're all tough. I have to fight Saxton, I want to fight him. And I'm gonna win it."

A near-capacity crowd of 13,372 paid a local record of $117,373 to watch what amounted to two fights in one.

DeMarco, calling on his long-range power, took charge in the early rounds and had Basilio wobbling into his corner in the seventh round. It took a near superhuman effort by the ex-marine from upper New York state to keep from going down for the second time in his professional career.

But he used the staggering left hook, Basilio grew stronger as he unleashed a battering body attack on the weary DeMarco. Sting just as he had done in punching himself out last June.

DeMarco was ahead in rounds on all the official cards. Referee Mel Manning had it 5-3-2 on rounds for Tony, judge Joe Santarpio 6-4-2 and judge Joe Santoro 9-4. The AP had it 5-4-2 for Dearco.

"After the fifth round I knew DeMarco would run out of gas," Basilio said. "It was just a question of time."

Canadians Bet 82 Million On Race Tracks

They bet a record $82,685,610 through the pari-mutuel machines compared with last year's previous all-time high of $81,053,267. That, in terms of the country's estimated population of 15,706,000, was equivalent to about $5.26 per Canadian.

The agriculture department, in its annual report issued today, said it supervised pari-mutuel betting at the hands of 32 racing associations this year compared to 31 last year. There were 2,588 thoroughbred horse races during 349 days of racing this year. Last year there were 2,602 races in 344 days.

Of the $82,685,610 wagered this year, the racing associations kept $7,996,798 as their legal percentage and governments of the five provinces in which the races were run collected $6,201,700 in taxes.

Wagering took the biggest jump in Alberta, rising to $8,313,115 from $7,522,734 in 1954, but it was up in all of the other provinces where thoroughbreds were raced. Quebec had no thoroughbred racing this year.

Fontana Leaves On World Tour

TORONTO (CP)—Don Fontana, Toronto's young man about tennis, has announced: "I suppose I could have gone into business—but what about all that travel?"

Today the lean six-footer tucks five racquets under his arm and sets out to plant for New York. Two days and 9,000 miles later he'll land in New Delhi and for the next seven months he'll live on the other side of the world.

"I can't think of any other sport that gives you the same opportunity to see the world," the quiet athlete said Wednesday in a luncheon interview, sandwiched between shopping and packing.

Santee Retains Amateur Standing

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Wes Santee, fastest U.S. miler, kept his amateur standing Wednesday as the deadline passed for protesting his return to the good graces of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Unless complicated parliamentary procedure revives the case later, the Kansas will be eligible to run for the United States in the 1956 Olympics as well as participate in other amateur events.

The Olympic track and field committee of the AAU was in session Wednesday as time elapsed on the period in which a protest could be filed by the reinstatement committee that suspended him. He had been accused of accepting an illegal expense money in excess of the AAU limit of $12 a day. The suspension was rescinded 10 days ago.

Wings, Leafs Tied for Fourth After Playing Three-All Tie; Rangers Clobber Chihawks 6-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's an old saying that you can't win hockey games in the penalty box. How well Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs know it.

The Wings and Leafs ran into some costly offences Wednesday night in their National Hockey League game at Toronto and battled to a 3-3 tie. Four of the six goals — two by each team — were scored while players sat out penalties.

The tie was Red Wings' 10th of the season and Toronto's fourth. The teams remain in a four-way place deadlock with 30 points each. two behind Chicago Rangers, in second place with 22 points, moved to within four points of the leading Montreal Canadiens.

Boston Bruins, who play host to the Habs in the only game tonight, are in the cellar with 18 points.

Real Chevrefils was serving a penalty at the six-minute mark when Armstrong tied the score with a 25-foot screened shot that hit the post and bounced behind netminder Glenn Hall.

At 5:51 of the middle period, Hanigan put Leafs ahead 2-1 and Duff made it 3-1 at 9:27 while Jerry Toppazzini was serving a Detroit holding penalty.

Armstrong was serving time for holding when Lindsay cut the Leafs' lead to 3-2 at 16:08 of the second frame. Reibel's tying goal at 19:49 of the third period followed a screened shot from along the boards—was scored while Real Balfour was serving a penalty for interference and Hugh Bolton was serving a holding penalty for Toronto.

Dave Creighton scored twice and Andy Bathgate had one goal and three assists for Rangers. Dean Prentice, Larry Popein and Danny Lewicki were the other New York marksmen. Jack McIntyre's goal late in the third period prevented Ranger goaltender Gerry Worsley from registering his third shutout in four games.

Rangers led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 5-0 after two frames.

Wichita Takes Toledo Spot In American

By JOE REICHLER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Wichita became a member of the American Association today as a farm club of Milwaukee Braves in place of the abandoned Toledo baseball club.

The triple-A American Association, after a four-day franchise wrangle, finally ironed out its difficulties by successfully negotiating with the Western League for its Kansas territory.

The deal was completed 16 hours after Milwaukee reluctantly agreed to discard its plan to move the Toledo franchises to Miami. The Florida city's hopes for triple-A ball was revived, however by reports that an insurance executive, Sid Salomon, had executed an option to purchase the Syracuse club in the International League for the purpose of moving it to Miami.

MEYER TO RETIRE

KNOXVILLE Tenn. (AP)—Baseball's William Adam (Billy) Meyer reluctantly said farewell Wednesday to the sport he has been part of as player-manager - scout for nearly a half century.

"I've decided I just can't go on any more," Meyer said as he relaxed at his suburban home. "If I regain my health, I might do a little scouting But right now it looks like I'm through."

Will Investigate Stadium Question

TORONTO (CP)—Board of control Wednesday night ordered an investigation into the possibility of building a civic stadium to hold 75,000 to 100,000 persons.

The board authorized parks commissioner George Bell to inspect stadia in the United States and Canada and prepare a report.

Projected site for the park is city-owned land in east-central Toronto's Don valley area. The stadium would be suitable for football, soccer, baseball and similar spectator sports.

Maroons Edge Indians 4-3; Dutchies Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A defeated Stratford Indians 4-3 at Stratford Wednesday night as they scored twice with an Indian in the penalty box.

In the other game at Kitchener, the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen moved nine points ahead of the rest of the league with a 4-1 win over Owen Sound Mercurys before 1,800 fans.

Dutchmen have 26 points. Windsor Bulldogs and Owen Sound are tied for second place with 17 each, one ahead of fourth-place Indians. Chatham holds down the cellar with 14 points.

Eddie Bunch scored Chatham's winning goal at 16:45 of the third period as he stickhandled past three Indians while Ernie Dick was sitting out a penalty.

Clair, Ottawa To Take Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Clair, former coach of Toronto Argonauts, and officials of the Ottawa Rough Riders football club will meet in Toronto at the all-star game Saturday to discuss a contract.

Dave Gill, president of the Ottawa club, said Wednesday he expects to see Clair in Toronto "but I don't know what will come of it." He would not elaborate.

Westwick wrote in his sports column that "one good guess would be that Riders will sign Frank Clair this weekend. . . . They've been talking to Clair now on several occasions. . . ."

Westwick said Clair, fired by Argonauts in 1954 after five seasons as head coach, originally sought a three-year pact from Rough Riders.

"Now the former Argo leader apparently has relented in his original demands and is agreeable to a two-year contract, So it might well be that Saturday's meeting at Toronto will close the deal.'

Whitby Dunlops Extend Lead Beating TPTs by 7-2 Score; Kingston Here Friday Night

Roaring along in seasonal victory stride, the Whitby Dunlops earned another notch on their win guns last night, defeating the Belleville TPTs 7-2 in the Whitby Arena.

The victory was the tenth for the Dunlops who have met defeat but once this season, that at the hands of the Brockville Canadiens. They played to a five-all tie with the Kingston Combines earlier in the season, but since have brushed aside the opposition at topflight form.

Unleashing their patterned passing play, the Blair crew rained more or less smoothly to a 4-0 lead in the first period. The TPTs rallied strongly and came up with their best hockey of the night in the second frame outscoring the winners 2-1. The Dunlops roared back in the third heat ramming home a brace of markers as the TPTs tried desperately to whittle down the lead.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Belleville crew who meet the revamped Kingston Goodyears in Belleville on Friday night.

The Dunlops lead the eastern senior "B" group with 21 points while Kingston Goodyears who defeated Brockville Magedomas 9-3 last night are solidly in second place with 13 points. The Brockville Magedomas occupy third slot with ten points with Belleville in fourth place with seven. The Cornwall Colts are in the cellar position with five points.

Spencer Tracy, 2-Time Oscar Winner, Not Going to Retire

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Me retire? Nah, I don't think an actor ever retires—unless he can't get a job anywhere. Of course, I would like to quit at least a few days before that happens. But you never can tell; you might wait two or three years and a role will come out from under a rock."

This was Spencer Tracy in the mellow mood. He was finishing up a picture called "The Mountain" and he felt pretty good despite or perhaps because of—his most strenuous role in years.

There have been reports that he was going to retire. He scoffed at these, but added wryly, "I don't know how much longer people will want to look at this pan."

Probably as long as he wants to expose it. Because the two-time Oscar winner is still one of the screen's stalwarts. He shows no signs of slowing down.

YOUGHT LOCATION...!

As a matter of fact, he just returned from the toughest location of his career. The Mountain's company shot right on Mont Blanc in the Alps.

"It was a three-mile trip up the mountain every day," he said. "And sometimes we had to wait three hours over rock and snow to get to the location."

He and co-star Robert Wagner got the scare of their lives when the suspended car taking them up to the peak suddenly stopped. The jolt swung the bottom of the car up to the cable, and there was nothing but air—and lots of it beneath them. They were stranded for 35 harrowing minutes until service was restored.

"See what I went through?" he asked. "And they call me temperamental!"

He has long been comforted about y Hollywood reporters, but he bragged that three writers visited him on the European location—and, he said proudly, they sent him gifts and thank-you notes for his co-operation.

He, producer Leland Hayward and Ernest Hemingway are partners in "The Old Man and the Sea." They'll film it under Fred Zinneman's direction in Cuba starting next April. Tracy said the script will be largely Hemingway's words.

"And what words!" he enthused. "This is going to be a great one. The only thing that worries me is how can I follow 'The Old Man and the Sea.'"

HOPALONG GETS AWARD

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Howard (Hopalong) Cassady, Ohio State's all-America halfback, Wednesday was selected unanimously to receive the Robert W. Maxwell Cup Award as the outstanding football player of the year.

Cassady, who Tuesday was named winner of the Heisman Memorial Trophy as the player of the year, was third in the nation in rushing this year with 598 yards.

Youthful Symphonic Conductor Leads Busy Life in New York

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—In the arts it's always pleasant to find a genuine long-hair with a natural crew-cut personality. Such a man is Leonard Bernstein — conductor, composer, pianist—who at the age of 37 has three lifetimes of musical achievement behind him and is rather tired of being referred to as a "young genius."

On "Omnibus" (CBS-TV) he interpreted Beethoven last season and just the other day received a Presidential citation for his work in symphonic orchestra to discuss the art of conducting.

Bernstein lives and composes in a vast, high-ceilinged apartment in an old carriage house on one of the noisiest corners in New York. It has a rare geographical advantage of being just across the street from Carnegie Hall.

A candid, friendly man whose hair is not literally cut to crew length, Bernstein was wearing cowboy boots the other day because he felt like it. He was enduring the racket of traffic calmly, except to wince once when truck brakes screeched and remark, "That was D flat." He composes in a window-less interior room with dark grey walls.

Bernstein's accomplishments since he became the protege of conductor Serge Koussevitsky fill 12 pages of unlarded facts. Item: Composer of the symphonies "Jeremiah" and "The Age of Anxiety." Item: Composer of the music for that popular hit "On the Town."

What's he doing now besides appearing on "Omnibus" next Sunday?

He has just finished the incidental score for "The Lark," the Julie Harris vehicle which opened on Broadway with the critics' blessings. He's writing a show with Arthur Laurents and Jerome Robbins on contemporary New York; he's working on a musical version of "Candide" with Lillian Hellman. He has a commission for a symphony from the Boston Symphony, and another commission from the Juilliard school of music. He has—

Well, there isn't space. But in addition to composing, he is free conducting commitments this season. In the last few weeks he has regretfully turned down profitable invitations to conduct in South Africa, Australia, Indonesia, India and Japan.

Your Horoscope

For Friday, December 2, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—An especially good period for conferences, research; for community affairs; for quiet contemplation too.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—A few "don'ts" for today: Don't speak first and regret it later; don't lose hope in a worthy cause; don't let others' indifference or slights deter your progress.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—You can do more than you think you can with this day. Start briskly, but not so hastily that you must retrace your steps. Get unfinished business out of the way, without being careless of details.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Here is a day when you can set another to a better way of thinking, to easier doing or greater enjoyment of the little things. Give and take in a cheerful way.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—This day, whether at home, in business or elsewhere, calls for the natural warm-heartedness of Leo at his, or her, best. Try to help youngsters, the elderly, the infirm.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)— You may have to double-check, forget some personal wishes to bring out the best of this day's prospects. In your hurry, do not overlook good advice, friendly suggestions.

FAST RELIEF FROM PAINS OF RHEUMATISM ARTHRITIS

When you suffer from the pains of Rheumatism or Arthritis you want relief and you want it fast . . . That's Aspirin! A tablet starts disintegrating almost the instant you take it—to start to relieve that pain fast.

Always Ask For ASPIRIN

A PRODUCT OF BAYER

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Aim to do it (whatever it is) the best you know how, and as promptly as possible and you will have nothing to regret. Use Libra's inborn know-how.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—A day of mixed influences. First it's good, then it's the reverse. You will have to use keen judgment to make the most of it. But you can!

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Familiar matters, personal affairs likely to make quickest advancement. Take time to recap and revitalize energy and get going.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—It is always better to have tried and not achieved than to have said, "I can't" and let it go at that. The trying itself brings knowledge, strength. Avoid over-indulgence.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — How well do you know yourself? A good question to ask yourself now. Be careful in associations, relationships; be tactful with loved ones. Don't spend savings foolishly.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Especially favored now: scientific research, children's affairs, religion, charities, chemistry, education, political science, music. Expand within reason.

You born today have numerous aptitudes and assets with which to achieve lasting success. Your straightforward manner, insight, initiative and knack for getting essentials done quickly help you stride ahead rapidly when you once make up your mind. Learn your faults and correct them. You are a conscientious worker, a clear-sighted leader; may resent criticism or interference; are prompt and like others to be. Birthdate: Waldeck-Rousseau, French statesman.

Paz Flies Home To Take Charge Of La Prensa

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Alberto Gainza Paz, famed Argentine editor, flew homeward today to take charge once again of his family's newspaper La Prensa, seized by Juan D. Peron and freed by the men who overthrew the dictator.

A tumultuous welcome was prepared for Gainza Paz, who was due early tonight from New York after nearly five years' exile in Uruguay and the United States.

This done, government officials launched intensive talks with Henry P. Holland, Spanish-speaking United States assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs who flew in Wednesday for a three-day visit during a Latin American tour.

Holland, who is accompanied by Samuel Waugh, president of the U. S. export-import bank, planned to confer today with Dr. Paul Prebisch, the government's economic adviser. The topic undoubtedly would be possible U. S. economic aid for the new Argentine regime, which has inherited many financial problems left by Peron.

Some leaflets proclaiming 'Get out, Mr. Holland' were scattered in Buenos Aires by Argentina's small Communist party as Holland arrived. A few hours later government circles let it be known the authorities were considering outlawing the Communists.

Had Backache; Food Upset Stomach; Always Tired

"There has been such a definite improvement in the way I feel since I've been taking Syntona that I will certainly recommend this medicine to any person troubled as I was," said Mr. Maurice Verbraeet, 43 Cross Street, Chatham, Ontario, in a recent report.

His Experience

"The trouble of mine started about 2 years ago and ever since then I've had to be careful of what I ate. I would suffer with gas, indigestion and sour acid risings. Then I became troubled with backache and rheumatic pains in my limbs, joints and muscles. My nerves seemed to be all on edge, so I could not get my proper sleep at night. I was always tired and subject to throbbing headaches and constipation.

"But this is all changed since I've used Syntona. Although I eat heartier meals, my stomach doesn't trouble me, backache and the other pains are relieved and my nerves are calmed down. As a result I sleep better, feel rested and am not always tired as before. Syntona is a pleasant to take and there are no bad after effects. So if you suffer from minor complaints of the stomach, kidneys, liver or bowels and are nervous, tired and rundown, or have developed rheumatic pains, try Syntona today.

BRITAIN BACKS CANADA'S PLAN FOR UN MEMBERS

Russia Also Endorses Proposal to Admit 18

By JACK BEST

Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Britain has lined up behind Canada's resolution calling for the admission of 18 countries to the UN.

Sir Pierson Dixon announced Britain's support in the General Assembly's special political committee Thursday after Health Minister Paul Martin had introduced the resolution to admit five Communist and 13 non - Communist states.

The British delegate said his country would "acquiesce" in the admission of all 18 candidates though it did not exclude other possible countries.

Britain's only aim was to break the five-year-old membership deadlock. "We shall, of course, support the Canadian resolution," Sir Pierson said.

PREVIOUS STAND

Previously, Britain had said it would continue its efforts to reach a solution but avoided saying it backed the resolution. Most of the Commonwealth countries except South Africa, which left the assembly in protest against a decision to debate South Africa's race policies, are co-sponsors.

Russia's V. V. Kuznetsov also announced full support for the 25-power resolution, as did Peru's Victor Andres Belaunde, speaking for the Latin American bloc countries.

Martin, chief Canadian UN delegate, asked member nations to put aside their political differences for the sake of broad representation in the international organization.

He appealed especially to members of the Security Council, where the big-power veto applies: "When they next deal with this matter, I am sure that they will bear in mind the widespread desire within this organization and outside to see the United Nations develop into the representative organ which its founders envisaged. . . ."

MOTOR VEHICLE OWNERS TO PAY 12 MILLION MORE

Car Licence Fees To Be $1 to $6 Higher

TORONTO (CP)—Motor vehicle owners in Ontario will pay an extra $12,000,000 for their licence plates next year.

Highway Minister Allan said Thursday, private car owners generally will contribute an extra $4,760,000 to the provincial treasury, on the basis of this year's registration figures. Their licences will cost from $1 to $6 more.

The increase in fees, which applies to all vehicles using Ontario's 90,000 miles of highways, roads and streets, was announced following a cabinet meeting.

Although there have been increases in recent years in fees for some cars due to changes in horsepower, this is the first change in the fee structure in 18 years.

Even with the increases, Ontario will still have, on the average, the lowest licence fees of any province, Mr. Allan said. He said the increases are needed to provide more money for highway construction.

EXPENDITURES GROWING

Ontario's expenditures—likely—$176,000,000 this year—is approaching $200,000,000, he added, with the bulk going to the local municipalities on highways and subsidies for highways which run through them and the direct revenue from vehicle owners through licence fees and gasoline tax.

Mr. Allan said he felt the increases spread the burden equitably over all highway users. The passenger car operator can feel satisfied the truck is paying a fair share of the cost of the road, he said.

Mr. Allan's announcement was made after Premier Frost said that a figure of $250,000,000 was being considered for next year's highway construction.

He made the statement at a celebration dinner with Ontario Federation of Agriculture officials. He said the province is now involved in construction at the rate of $220,000,000 annually and that about $250,000,000 should be spent on highways in the next 10 years.

Four Dead, Scores Of Accidents On Safe Driving Day

Public Responded Well To the Day's Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The toll for Canada's safe-driving day: four dead, scores of accidents, but still encouraging.

A 24-hour national campaign to cut traffic accidents and deaths ended at midnight Thursday with three persons dead in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia.

But an early survey by The Canadian Press indicated the number of traffic accidents likely will be smaller than the average for a 24-hour period based on previous figures.

Dec. 1 was designed as Safe-Driving Day in an intensified drive to curb road accidents for 24 hours.

Canada's last known fatality during the 24-hour period occurred in suburban Toronto. Mrs. Lela Top, 19, was killed and two men were severely injured when their car collided with a truck Thursday night.

FIRST KILLED

Earl M. Black, 29, of New Toronto was the first Canadian killed during the campaign. His car crashed head-on with a transport truck near Oshawa at 2 a.m. Thursday.

Nine hours later George Korolenko, 52, of Hamilton died when his car collided with a truck on the four-lane Queen Elizabeth way between Toronto and Fort Erie.

In Nova Scotia, Joseph Lamb, 41, died of head injuries when a car and a fire truck collided while the latter was on its way to a blaze. Three men and a woman were injured.

The number of known fatalities in Canada was less than half the average for the date based on figures in previous years.

USUALLY 9 DEATHS

W. M. V. Ash, chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Conference, sponsors of Safe Driving Day, said nine Canadians are killed and 190 injured on the average driving day.

Mr. Ash said reports from provincial directors indicated the public had responded to the "responsible degree" in the campaign.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced plans for the campaign Nov. 21. Dr. A. D. Pollock, executive safety organizations, newspapers, radio stations and provincial police all co-operated.

A department official estimated the province's share behind in construction at the rate of $120,000,000 annually and that about $250,000,000 should be spent on highways in the next 10 years.

PUSHED BY CAR

MACON, Mo. (AP)—Ivy road conditions usually are blamed for traffic accidents, but five-year-old Ralph Brammer proved Thursday life to the slippery pavement. He was hit by a car Thursday and knocked down the road. Instead of being run over he was pushed ahead of the front wheel for about 100 feet, sliding on his side. His injuries were slight.

Tip Touches Off Police Hunt For Guns in Malton Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Police are searching for firearms at the workmen's compensation board hospital at nearby Malton following an anonymous phone call to the hospital Thursday that a shooting similar to one which killed Dr. Jerry Hylton last week would take place today.

Police guarded the hospital overnight until today's search could be made.

Dr. Hylton was shot last Wednesday by a patient who walked into his office. Robert Martin, 49, of Ottawa has been charged with murder in connection with the slaying.

After Dr. Hylton's death police learned that Martin's wife had killed him, a rifle, had been hidden in a hospital locker for several days.

Police said other firearms may have been smuggled into the hospital since the shooting.

Space Suits Lack Style Say Tailors

LONDON (AP)—Tailor and Cutter, the fashion magazine which instructs smart Englishmen what to wear, protests that the space suits which astuits draw to dress their interstellar travellers aren't stylish.

Voyagers to other planets should make a good impression when they arrive, the magazine says, otherwise what would the folks of Mars think of Uncle ow? So it has announced a contest for a design of a good-looking space suit.

The first prize: All clothing trading rights in the whole of the andromeda nebula. Tailor and Cutter says that if an American complying can sell real estate on the moon it feels that it can dispose of a few trading concessions in the galaxies.

Is Found Guilty Of Killing Aunt

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Twenty-year-old Edmond Gagne was sentenced to death Thursday night for the strangulation murder of his 36-year-old aunt last August.

The jury took only 45 minutes to return the guilty verdict. Judge Eugene Marquis sentenced him to be hanged at Montreal's Bordeaux jail Feb. 6.

Gagne's three defence lawyers announced immediately after the verdict that they will appeal.

Mrs. Lodger Tremblay was found dead on her bed last Aug. 18 by her husband when he returned from a week-long fishing trip. Gagne was arrested the same day.

GM and Union Settle Three Minor Points

TORONTO (CP) — Union and management officials at strike-bound General Motors of Canada said negotiations remained deadlocked after a 5½-hour meeting Thursday—their first in 10 days.

They said 25 major items are still in dispute after 74 days of strike. Neither General Motors officials nor the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) had altered stands on any of the issues.

Since early last week company and union have been meeting in sub-committees to wrestle with individual problems. Thursday's top-level meeting was suggested by management "to see what the other's attitude is."

Three minor clauses were settled. The company agreed to put union representatives on hold policy offices on day-shift work. The union withdrew its demand that new-hire changed job classifications be subject to arbitration.

The strike involves 17,000 workers at plants in Windsor, St. Catharines, Scarborough, London and Oshawa.

SUDBURY (CP)—After his car crashed into a long-type phone booth, Paul Roy, 22, was surprised to see constable Bill Mitchinson climb from the overturned booth. The constable was dialing a number when Roy's car struck the booth. He emerged with a bruised arm.

Redesigned Comet Jet Airliner Starts Test Flight to Australia

HATFIELD, England (Reuters)—A new Comet jet airliner, redesigned and strengthened after two Comets exploded in mid-air last year and the entire fleet was grounded, took off today for Australia on its first overseas test flight.

Thick fog delayed the departure for five hours and the plane, carrying British hopes of a new era of commercial jet flying, could not be expected to take off along the runway.

The plane, designated a Comet III, is a flying laboratory with 15 crew. It includes nine observers who will cruise the 12,000 miles to Sydney at about 500 miles an hour by way of Cairo, where it will stop over tonight, Bombay, Singapore and Darwin.

The Comet I, first commercial jet airliner in the world and the pride of British aviation, was withdrawn from service last year after two disastrous crashes in the Mediterranean had cost 56 lives.

De Havilland put a Comet II into the air early this year and followed with the Comet III—the only one of its type that will ever fly.

Its task is merely to provide the technical information to restore the reputation of the Comet series and pave the way for the Comet IV, a 90-passenger plane planned to revolutionize world flying.

British Overseas Airways have already ordered 20 Comet IVs, the first of which is expected to be operating late in 1958.

Demonstrations may be given during the flight trip to the chief executives in the countries visited. Trans-Canada Airlines and some American operators have already shown interest. CPA has asked for four by 1958, with possibly eight more later.

The Comet IVs aim at a high-speed range of nearly 3,000 miles. They will not be capable of flying the Atlantic in a non-stop hop, but with one stop at Gander, Nfld., they should be able to cut the London-New York journey to 7½ hours.

Milder Weather May Solve Montreal Navigation Problem

MONTREAL (CP) — Shipping officials hoped for help from the weatherman today in clearing 20 ocean vessels faced with the possibility of being trapped inland by the rapidly-freezing canal system.

The Lachine canal here is scheduled to remain open until Dec. 10 but Jean Barcelo, superintendent of canals for the Montreal district, says it will have to close earlier if ice continues to interfere with the operation of gates from Montreal to the western end of the channel.

Shipping officials said some of the ocean-going ships might be delayed in port for as many days before the official closing date.

"If the weather does not change the ships remaining will have to stay where they are," Mr. Barcelo said.

Milder weather was forecast for the Montreal area today, with the high just reaching the melting point. Forecasters said it will be accompanied by snow and freezing rain, however.

Some 30 lake vessels still are above Montreal but the main concern is for the ocean-going ships which would be tied up for the winter if they failed to reach here before the canal closed.

The collier Kexport bogged down in three feet of drifting ice with a broken rudder Thursday but was towed to the side of the canal to allow traffic to continue.

Some 30 shipping companies were represented at a meeting of the Shipping Federation called Thursday night to discuss the problem. Following the meeting, A. W. McCallum, the federation's general manager, said he is confident the department of transport is aware of the dangerous situation and appealed to federal officials to make every effort to keep navigation open to Montreal until Dec. 10.

The Canadian Exporters' Association also sent a telegram to Transport Minister Marler saying it was "alarmed by reports of the possibility of an early closing. . ."

East Germany Says 4-Power Rule in Berlin Non-Existent

BERLIN (AP)—The East German Communists declared today that the four - power occupation status of Berlin now is "non-existent."

The declaration was made by Neues Deutschland, official newspaper of the East German Communist party. It was the Communists' first reaction to a protest Thursday by the Western big three to Russia that Soviet claims that East Berlin is sovereign and part of East Germany were "wholly inconsistent" with Berlin's four-power status.

Neues Deutschland's comment is the first time in the current controversy that either the Russians or the East German satellites have used the term "four-power." The Communists have confined themselves to saying instead that East Berlin is no longer occupied territory and is the "sovereign" capital of East Germany.

The Western powers' protest was sent to the Soviet Union's ambassador to East Germany, followed an earlier Russian rejection of Western protests to the decision at plenary sessions of two visiting United States congressmen by Communist authorities for four hours in East Berlin. The Western Russians declined to accept responsibility for the incident, insisting that the East Germans controlled East Berlin.

Ambassador James B. Conant of the United States, in his protest to Pushkin, a U.S. spokesman says: "must continue to hold Soviet authorities responsible for the welfare and proper treatment of all United States citizens during their presence in those areas, including the Soviet sector of Berlin, which are subject to Soviet authorities and control."

Noting the reaction from the West, Neues Deutschland says:

"The gentlemen should not make themselves laughable. The (East) German Democratic Republic is sovereign, and the occupation statutes exist only in the Western and West Berlin where they still are imposed upon people with the pressure of bayonets."

Puppy's Vice Is Inflated, Swallows Ring

ROGNOR REGIS, England (AP) — Mrs. Joan da'Costa's Alsatian puppy, Prince, who ate her £3. was briefly worth 100 times that much Thursday.

Prince, because he had swallowed Mrs. da Costa's diamond engagement ring, which set her husband back £300.

Toronto Traffic Snarled by Storm

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's first major snow fall of the season hit Thursday night, throwing motorists and transportation into confusion.

The weatherman said 1.1 inches fell in the city.

Police said thousands of cars were tied up in traffic jams as autos skidded on slippery hills.

Some jams lasted for more than two hours, they said, as motorists were helpless in trying to sort them out.

The weatherman has predicted freezing rain for Toronto by the time the traffic starts homeward this evening. .

Cream Producers Praise Ottawa's Butter Policies

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's Thursday decision to drop Ontario's cream producers for its butter export policy.

E. H. Martin, chairman of the Ontario cream producers' marketing board, said cream producers are "pleased" that the federal government has expressed the shocks of butter sales may be in excess of domestic requirements.

Mr. Martin told the annual meeting of the Ontario Creamerymen's Association:

"If it was right in 1951 and 1952 to import butter to maintain a fair price for consumer, then it is good business to export some of our butter for the assistance of the industry."

If it has been fair to subsidize the gold, coal and shipping industries, Mr. Martin said, it was fair that the dairy industry also should receive support.

Duke Pumps Himself a Beer, Can't Drink It

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh pumped himself a beer in a public bar Thursday, but he didn't get to drink it.

The duke popped in at the saloon while inspecting a block of flats in Regent's Park. Spotting the old-fashioned hand beer pump which is a fixture in all British bars, he drew a can of beer with almost professional adeptness.

"I've always wanted to do that," he told proprietor Dermot McDermott.

"Sorry, I can't let you have a drink," said McDermott. "It's after legal closing hours."

Red-faced with anger and pointing his finger wildly, the Soviet Communist party chieftain accused the United States and France of attempting to kidnap a Russian visitor. He also had some derisive words for Britain.

Convicted on a charge of car theft, Owen Feever, formerly from the Maritimes, was sentenced to six months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court this morning. The sentence will be consecutive to a six months term which Feever is now serving at Kingston.

400 Present at Collegiate To Hear Candidates Present Views on Municipal Issues

Approximately 400 persons attended the Chamber of Commerce public meeting in B.C.I. auditorium Thursday evening to hear candidates for municipal offices present their pleas for support.

Chamber president F. G. McGuire was chairman of the meeting.

He welcomed those in the audience to the meeting, said Chamber officials were heartened by the size of the turnout and urged everyone to vote.

Candidates for the mayoralty spoke first and were given five minutes. The mayor was allowed a two-minute rebuttal. School trustees, public utilities commissioners and aldermanic candidates spoke for three minutes. The candidates were heard in alphabetical order.

Following the meeting a question period was held.

Mayor Jack Bell opened his remarks by saying he would deal with statements made by "my opponent."

"My opponent states that Bellville is growing," he said. "I think that amply contradicts the statement we are in a chaotic condition."

He stated that it was true the city issued almost $1,250,000 in new debentures this year.

He said in 1954 when he took office there were $ 4,149,000 worth of outstanding debentures and he found the city had operated in 1953 with an overdraft of $125,000.

He claimed that after two years in office and after covering the $1,250,000 debentures issued this year, the debenture debt would be reduced by half a million dollars by 1958.

"City business is improving," he claimed.

He said that charges levelled at the administration could not be laid at the feet of individuals. He said he "repudiated the insinuation" made by his opponent about juggling debentures and claimed that if her contention that Bellville had finally did not have debentures ready it was her responsibility as city council to say one's.

Mayor Bath was cut off by the bell.

Mrs. Jane Forrester said that Bellville, as Mayor Bath knows, was important to her. She said that physical, financial and social problems of growth are enormous and that as a hard-working alderman during the past year she has come to know and to appreciate these problems.

She said that the insight which her concentrated experience gave her convinced her that there was a crisis in the direction of the city's affairs caused by a lack of leadership.

She said it was because this crisis must be met that she was standing for the mayoralty.

She said that she resigned as alderman "not to shirk aldermanic responsibility but to serve you in a fuller capacity, that of giving direction to the administration of Bellville's affairs as mayor."

She said that mayors, in the past, had been elected with no previous municipal experience. She said she was prepared and willing to accept the challenge of being mayor.

Mrs. Forrester promised to work for a practical, economical solution to financial problems to keep the tax rate down; to seek to promote planning and teamwork and co-operation between members of council, city employees and neighboring planning agencies.

She said that new sources of revenue that can keep taxes low included exploitation of federal properties that will come due next year.

She said she would attempt to work amicably with council and would try to foster enthusiasm in meeting the challenges ahead.

Mayor Bath, in his rebuttal, said that although he was not a good speaker he was very good at figures.

"My opponent says one day she is going to raise the mill rate by 7-1-4 mills and the next day she is going to keep it low," he said. "I would like to get a sincere answer," he said.

"Any day that I can bicker for $180,000 or $200,000 I am glad to do it for you people," he said.

Clarence Lazarbeer, candidate for Separate school trustee to Murney Ward, was the only Separate school candidate to appear. He said he was married and the father of seven children, five of whom attended St. Michael's school.

He said he had a vital interest in school matters in the administration and asked for the support of Murney Ward voters.

Outside of one public school ward and two Separate school wards all public trusteeships are acclamations.

In Separate schools' contests in Bridge Ward, Ward 1 and Murney Ward, the trustees are acclaimed. The contest is being fought for in in Samson ward between Mrs. Agnes Hall, wife of the sitting member, Arthur Melville Richards. Only the last named has been in attendance at public meetings to represent the education slice of the election pie.

George De Vuyst — wanted to know where the money received from a purchase of land was spent. He complained about roads and said that Bridge street was not built for 30-ton trailers but "for horse and buggy days."

"Why are we using industry indiscriminately?" he asked. "Industry without people is still nothing."

Leslie Digby said he felt that in his eight years in Bellevville he had served the city in a reasonably worthy activities. He felt he had the necessary qualifications for alderman and said that he felt it essential for "elected representatives to be able to accomplish things for the city."

He said he was qualified to administering our affairs. There is no time like now to plan for a bright and healthy Bellville.

He said unity, co-operation and teamwork were essential.

Patrick Halloran, referring to report of the Wharf Street Debating Club meeting, said he was present there to be your alderman. He claimed that he was criticized here in council last year and then two houses in any business is not good for business.

"If you pick me I'll give them as much attention as possible and I'll operate with them if needed," he said.

Alderman Bram Humphreys said that the two most important things required of an alderman were honesty and service. He said he felt a sound business training was a good asset for anyone on council. As chairman of planning, vice-chairman of the recreation board, he felt he merited the voters' support. Frank Brown, who was not originally levelled at him at the Wharf Street Debating Club on Wednesday night, had $10 000 for the new arena and $700 for paint for new dressing rooms on the floor and $4,500 had been spent for 30 skating room windows at city hall and that there were more than that to be covered. He claimed that the window, for $120 each, could have been wooden windows instead of costing $400.

He said that $6,000 had been given to the arena commission to be given to the city and that all of that records were on file in city hall.

"No one said why they painted the windows before they tore them out," he said.

Charles L. Hyde said he was strictly interested in the welfare of the city and was prepared to devote the time required to the office. He said he was willing to co-operate with council members and departments.

He felt that because the city was expanding that co-operation must be encouraged to come here and that the federal government should be urged to have its expenditures city occupied by departments in Bellville.

He felt the eastern end of Bellville should be organized in regular wards.

Alderman Arthur Keegan promised to do all of his abilities and to vote on them to the best of his ability.

He said the secret of success for the city was a good planning committee. He said that in 1954 he produced a zoning plan for the city which was adopted and he said a new industry had come to Foster Ward and studies were in to locate two other industries in electric plant.

"I have brought Victoria Park back from being three-quarters under water to a beauty spot.

"I believe in co-operation with Thurlow and Sidney township," he said, referring to the scheme whereby 400 acres outside Bellville can become an industrial area.

Alderman Dengiz Mezzan said he was a progressive and favored high taxes.

Taxation on the installation of new windows in city hall, he said he felt it was accused of spending money foolishly.

He reviewed the type of windows that were being installed, adding that all the aldermen had inspected the windows, which were old and warped.

It is reckoned hundreds of dollars a year will be saved in fuel as a result of the installation.

He said that he felt the shopping city - manager question which faced this year's council.

"I do not support a city manager," he said.

"I have voted against it and I will vote against it if re-elected," he added.

"The difference between a city manager and a good work for city is six or eight thousand dollars a year," he said.

Next candidate to address was Ald. Ben Safe, who reviewed his record of service on city council and also the work of the Public Works Department, of which he is chairman, during the past year.

"Most of you will agree that the city is well kept," he said.

"There was no scandal in the public works this year, although it is the biggest spending department."

Next year he promised to obtain funds to replace "some of the sidewalks which are unsafe" in Parkwood Heights were promised, but have not yet.

He also said he would not stand in the way of any civic improvement "if it is good."

Alderman Bruce Smith, member of the Public Utilities Board team for two years, was the next speaker and straight away launched into the subject of the $6,000 council grant, claimed in some quarters to have been given to the team.

"When anybody gets up and says there was $6,000 loaned to the Bellville hockey team that is a direct falsehood," he told the assembly.

"One thousand dollars did not go to the hockey team," he said, concluding his speech.

The proposed rink at the arena for the winter sport has seen some of the ice made for the season to date, he said.

Planning for public office as did oreman for the first time is Dr. John S. Stock, who said he offered his services integrity and a sincere desire to see Bellevville grow as it should. "Council needs young men with new ideas," he said. He said that it is the duty of the young men of Bellville to help to ease the burden of civic responsibility.

He said he was qualified for the job and that he was the greater the challenge the greater the duty.

Mayor Both was asked why he opposed street paving in Bayview Heights against council advice.

"What part of Bayview Heights?" he asked the mayor. "The only reason I didn't vote for it was because I was opposed to local improvement in 1954. We didn't get a good deal. Mr. Sutherland and Mr. Bull never seen and for that reason I suggested we give it to another contractor."

Mayor Both was asked by a member of the audience if the city solicitor could be present during the meeting to advise on matters of law.

Mayor Both replied that "we have been recommended Mr. Anthony Roe as city manager that we keep Mr. Roe at a minimum. Thoughts of you are over near."

Front Street Out-of-Bounds For Parked Cars During Parade

Tomorrow Santa Claus is supreme and Front street will be strictly out-of-bounds for motorists wishing to park their cars.

The reason for the ban on parking on Front street is the annual Santa Claus parade scheduled for Saturday morning.

The absence of cars along the route of parade will result in the kiddies as well as the oldsters having an unobstructed view of the various floats and other characters in the parade.

And who would want to deprive the kiddies the opportunity of seeing Santa?

Fire Chief Gerald Vance as chairman of the Santa Claus parade committee has also appealed to motorists to keep Front street clear until after the parade.

Cost Accountants Hear Address On Statistics

The regular monthly meeting of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants, Bay of Quinte Chapter, was held this week at the Queensway Hotel, Trenton.

Chairman Les Lennox welcomed three new members, Arnold Terry, Trenton, and W. Milne and R. Lane, both of Belleville. Guests present included George Tripp of Belleville, F. Skoutjan, Batawa, and Miss K. Kost of Trenton.

Speaker of the evening was A. Cohen, assistant director, Industry and Merchandising Division, Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa. He was introduced by Mr. Cohen Ireland, Batawa.

In a lively talk entitled "Statistical Data, Source and Use in Industry," Mr. Cohen showed that statistics need not be dry and for those who take the time to look beneath the face of a report there is a wealth of information.

The speaker explained the role which the Bureau plays in assisting industry through the provision of statistical information. The Bureau does on a national scale what accountants do for businesses individually, but the co-operation of industry in providing the necessary facts was essential.

Mr. Cohen said it should give Canadians a feeling of deep satisfaction that when figures show that in the production of certain commodities such as nickel, Canada leads the world and in spite of Canada's compartively small population she is third among the trading nations of the world.

FINANCED BY CANADIANS

Also statistics show that the tremendous expansion which has taken place in Canada since the war has been financed to the extent of 80 per cent by Canadians.

Employment statistics from the years 1939 to 1953 show that the number of workers in Belleville increased 194 per cent and in Trenton 84 per cent.

Under no consideration does the Bureau publish information which would disclose the business status of individual companies, although trends can be revealed without individual figures.

Manufacturers can use statistics for a comparison of operating ratio for industry, for material, labor and expense. Statistics also provide the manufacturing trade with operation ratios but trade and size groups for comparison by accountants and management. Market analysis can be made from annual reports showing whether a new store or branch in this field will be successful.

Following the speaker's address a question period was led by Carl Casey concerning student members and the type of questions likely to be encountered during examinations.

Selected by all active men who seek a dependable self-winding watch

The weakest point in ordinary waterproof watches is the fit of the crystal. Under extremes of temperature it expands or contracts. Each little opening permits dust or dampness to penetrate. The steel-rim, pressure-fitted Seamaster crystal maintains a perfect seal under all conditions. The unique Hydro-Seal back and Hermetic Crown give additional immunity. Of all water-resistant watches we consider the Seamaster best.

A RIDICULOUS SITUATION

Nationalist China's threat to veto Outer Mongolia's application for United Nations' membership is reported to have aroused growing resentment in UN circles.

A veto of Outer Mongolia could wreck a plan, sponsored by 16 neutralist nations, to admit 18 states. Russia has announced that she will invoke the veto to keep out all non-Communist nations unless five Communist countries, including Outer Mongolia, are admitted.

Since it was Russia which first talked about invoking the veto on this occasion, it might appear that resentment would naturally be directed chiefly at her. That, however, does not appear to be the case, according to an Associated Press despatch from United Nations headquarters. It is Nationalist China, not Russia, which is being regarded as the villain of the piece.

It is not difficult to discover how this feeling should arise. It is an understandable, and logical, resentment at a proposal for a most ridiculous application of the veto power granted by the UN constitution to the big powers.

This veto power was a device, perhaps indefensible in theory but necessary in practice, to prevent the UN from taking action which might cause, rather than prevent, a war. It was conceived as a last resort for a big power which felt that it would have to resist, with force if necessary, a policy approved by the majority of the Security Council.

It has long been argued that applications for membership in the UN should not be subject to veto, because it is extremely improbable that any power would be so violently opposed to UN membership for another nation that it would go to war rather than permit it.

Thus there is sound reason for regarding Russia's threatened vetoes as contrary to the spirit, if not the letter, of the UN charter.

If, however, this is true of a veto by Russia, it is just as true of a veto by Nationalist China. In this latter case there is an additional factor. Nationalist China is not a major power. It is a puppet which Chiang, sitting on Formosa, should enjoy greater power in UN decisions than, say, a large land like Brazil, a populous nation like India, or a powerful nation like Canada. By threatening to invoke its veto power to the ultimate absurdity.

That is why the nations in the UN are so resentful.

FRENCH PREMIERS IMPROVING?

It may be wishful thinking, but the calibre of French premiers appears to be improving.

Premier Edgar Faure has obtained the early elections he desired despite the refusal of the National Assembly to support his policy. He has won his victory in an eminently fair manner by invoking a clause of the nation's constitution permitting a cabinet to call for dissolution of the assembly in the event of two hostile adverse votes against governments within an 18-month period.

There can be no quarrel with this clause in the constitution, which is definitely designed to prevent a long series of cabinet crises arising from the existence of an Assembly whose members are so divided that they refuse to support any government for any reasonable length of time. It was this clause which provided for the adoption in certain cases of our own parliamentary system, in which an election almost invariably follows the overthrow of a government.

Premier Faure has now paid the penalty for being too smart—he has been ousted by his own party, the Radical Socialists with a parliamentary strength of 95, and by representatives of French politics, being well to the right of the Socialists (without the prefix Radical.)

The Radical Socialists, incidentally, are also the party of of Pierre Mendes-France, who led the opposition to Faure's plan for early elections, who scored a victory in the Assembly's non-confidence vote against Faure, suffered a defeat when Faure invoked the constitutional clause to get his own way and now, in the ousting of Faure from the party, has scored another point in his duel.

However, Mendes-France may not figure as France's premier and, like Faure, he showed considerable courage and sagacity. Thus we have two French premiers who have acted like statesmen.

A SUBTLE DEVICE

Announcement by United States officials in Berlin that a blockade of the West's section of that city "could arise at any minute" has an alarming ring.

Actually this has always been true. There was never anything to prevent Russia from resuming the blockade which was defeated by the famous Allied airlift. If the blockade was not renewed, it was only because Russia did not believe she had anything to gain from doing so, not because she could not have done so.

The alarming part of the present situation is that it now appears that, by a subtle maneuver, Russia may have created a situation whereby some propaganda gains might accrue from a blockade.

By declaring that the East German Communist republic that surrounds Berlin is completely sovereign, Russia washes her hands of any responsibility for a blockade. By regarding the eastern section of Berlin as part of the East German republic, she provides the satellite government with an excuse for a blockade. And, because such a blockade would be instituted by Germans, against foreign occupation troops, there is created a situation which might be exploited for propaganda purposes.

A new blockade was always practicable, now it is possible.

HIDE YOUR TROUBLES

Hide your troubles, keep 'em down,
Nothing's bettered by a frown.
Spreading dismal tales of woe
Doesn't help you as you go.
Talking of your round of care
Makes it doubly hard to bear.

Find some joy to talk about.
Never let your hardships out.
Keep me to yourself, an' tell
How fine you're doing well.
Whimpering won't help a bit.
Silence is the source of grit.

Hide your troubles, big or small.
Talking doesn't help at all.
Even though you're in despair,
Just pretend your skies are fair.
Fight by day, but when it's night
Never talk about your fight.

Friends should see you at your best;
Keep your troubles in your breast.
Don't make petty troubles known;
You can handle 'em alone.
Just forget 'em for a while;
Hide 'em underneath a smile.

Should Mark Street Corners

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

With night shadows falling at an early hour during fall and winter months, drivers frequently complain about not being able to see intersections in the darkened residential areas. Although street lights are usually shining at the corners of intersecting streets, they sometimes prove inadequate and drivers, not familiar with the vicinity, find that they have a tendency to overshoot these side streets.

In order to better mark the corners of intersections in the residential districts, it might be a good idea to apply luminescent paint in a spiral like pattern to the telegraph poles or trees at the corners. Motorists would soon learn to look for these markings and much of the strain would be taken from driving.

The combination of fluorescent paint as it shines from the glow of car headlamps should lessen the hazards of accidents on side streets. Too often drivers realizing the plave passed the intersection for which they are looking, jam on brakes and slid into boulevards or parked vehicles when roads are slippery. If dark corners were more prominently marked there would be little excuse for this condition. Life, limb, property and temper would remain a lot more intact.

Convert Kilts Into Skirts

(Edinburgh Scotsman)

Before buying discarded army kilts in Gordon tartan for conversion into skirts for 36 girls in the WRAC in the Keith area, Huntley Wilson, the Banffshire Territorial and Auxiliary Association have decided to have the cloth tested by the Scottish Army Associations.

Outlining the plan, the secretary, Lieutenant Colonel W. D. H. Duke said it was hoped in time to buy new "tailor-made" kilts which could be converted into skirts at a cost of £1 each, compared with the £4 minimum cost of a skirt.

Opposing the suggested conversion, Lieutenant Colonel G. B. Kynoch, Keith and Dufftown, said the girls should be provided with proper Gordon tartan skirts to give them a coverted kilt, he said, would be "awful."

Lieutenant Colonel R. W. Ferrie, Keith, said he was not prepared to say that a Gordon tartan skirt would gain more volunteers, but he did not think that a Jock's kilt made into a tartan skirt was the answer. "The girls should get something decent rather than a cheese-paring and dealing in second-hand stuff."

Cementing Friendships

(Saskatoon-Star-Phoenix Record)

Nothing cements a friendship like having a number of common enemies.

Lucky to Be Disliked

(By Kenneth Love in the New York Times Magazine)

War clouds, near far beyond the horizon, are gathering again over Jerusalem's landscape, hallowed by 2,000 years of religious strife and pilgrimage. The storm that threaten have assumed a new and frightening aspect as the Russians enter the Palestine conflict, making the knotty Arab-Israeli dispute the focus of a clash of interests between the superpowers.

The presidents of keeping the truce remain the same. It is the consequences of failure that have assumed new dimensions. The small Canadian general who looks out from this area from his command in the tower of Government House.

Major-General Edson Louis Millard Burns, Chief of Staff of the UN Truce Supervision Organization, has no solution for the Palestine problem nor, in his more than 14 months here, has he been able to arrest the decline in the effectiveness and prestige of the truce organization.

He has not prevented increasingly outrageous violations as the armistice structure by Jews and Arabs alike. And he has not prevented Russia, Israel and Egypt on several occasions.

Despite all this, he has won the respect of both sides for his truthfulness, impartiality, his fair dealings and abuse. Neither side will say publicly, however, that for fear of jeopardizing his relations with the other. But public criticism runs no risks.

The important thing is that criticism come in equal measure from both sides and, for General Burns, it has.

When he arrived on Aug. 19 last year, General Burns found a country that he would probably be hospitably ambushed on one side or the other within six months. It has not happened yet.

The history of the Palestine problem indicates that is extremely uncommon for a commander to be one of the world's most jealously partisan conflicts to succeed in the middle.

Frank Debate Not Quarrel

(Winnipeg Free Press)

In a speech last week to the Canadian Club of Montreal, Mr. Vincent Massey, Canada's Governor General, examined "The Good Canadian." Mr. Canadians seem to like this word but this to say to Canadians to take not only towards matters that concern Canada but also towards this country's relationship with other nations. It is particularly true of matters of mutual concern to Canada and the United States. Mr. Massey and Mr. Massey commented: "Our American friends are ready to put forward a point of view and are not too polite. But we no one can be too polite. But we should about it. We are not too timid to argue. We are not too polite."

If Mr. Massey is correct in his appraisal of what Americans think of us, it is high time we did something about it. We have a point to argue. We have a point to make. We have a point to argue. We are not too timid. We are not too polite. But we are not too timid.

November Fairly Pleasant Month Statistics Show

Temperatures were a bit cooler, but on the whole November was a fairly pleasant month according to weather statistics kept at the city water filtration plant.

For instance there was very little rain—just 1.14 inches, and only 1.8 inch of snow for a total precipitation of 1.32 inch. High temperatures recorded was 55 degrees with a low often above. All this added up to a mean temperature of 35.1 degrees, slightly cooler than the average November.

In November last year the high temperature was 59 degrees with a low of 26. The mean temperature was 38.5. The rainfall was 3.05 and snowfall 4.7 inches with the total precipitation 4.13.

The average rainfall during November of the past ten years was 2.45 inches and the average snowfall was four inches. The average mean temperature for the past decade was 37.8 inches.

So weatherwise November was not a bad month after all.

Mrs. Irene Aman Honored On High Post Appointment

One of the largest and most colorful gatherings known to be held in the Odd Fellows' hall, assembled last Saturday evening, when over 300 met to do honor to Mrs. Irene Aman, who has recently been installed as president of the department association of Ontario, Ladies' Auxiliaries Patriarchs Militant IOOF.

A guard of honor composed of Bellville Canton, No. 5, Belleville Auxiliary No. 8 and Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133, was formed through which the gentleman guests of honor escorted the ladies of fellows: Brigadier- General Earl Fox, Senior Warden of the Grand Encampment of Ontario with the Lady of the evening, Mrs. Aman; Major Gordon Miller with Mrs. Edith Hall of Kingston, past president of the Dept. Ladies' Auxiliary and past president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario; Mr. Newton Foster Kingston, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, IOOF, with Mrs. Miller Storms, president of the Belleville Auxiliary; Lieut. Colonel Miller Storms, with Mrs. Myrtle Willson, Cobourg, past president of Department Auxiliary; Mr. John Nesbitt, Noble Grand of Belleville Lodge No. 133 with Mrs. Grace Clenaham, president of Kingston Auxiliary No. 6, and Brigadier General Clarence Cobourg with Mrs. June Carruthers, Noble Grand of Quintena Rebekah Lodge.

MANY DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Other distinguished guests were Col. Ralph Hubbs, Picton; Lt.-Col. Harry Bentley, Rebekah Major Howie all of Kingston, and Lt.- Col. George McDonald, Capt. Douglas Simpson, Capt. Larry Pollitt, Capt. Niels Jensen and Lieut. Wynn Wilson, all of Trenton.

Lady Hall, past president Department Association, gave the short address outlining the work of LAPM comparing the order to the Biblethrow to the trunk of a tree from which had sprung its branches known as the Canton and its Auxiliary the LAPM. She stressed that only by supporting and giving the best to the trunk could the branches be kept alive and active.

SPEAKS OF WORK

Brother Foster, Past Grand Master, also spoke of the importance of Odd Fellowship and the great work it is doing to assist mankind.

He mentioned the year that lay ahead of Lady Aman, of the trials and joys out of which would come the joy of new friendships and the knowledge of a job well-done and the pride of belonging to this great order.

Following these addresses were two very impressive drills, one by Kingston Aux. No. 8 and the other by Kingston Canton No. 5 both looking very smart —the Canton in their military uniforms and the Auxiliary also in their uniforms and caps of white with purple capes lined with gold. In both these drills not only was the marching perfect but the several difficult moves were made the most beautiful of which was formed by a cross.

The years as school inspector.

The guests were entertained in the home economics room at the school. Mr. T. J. Flurey, secretary-treasurer of the Board, spoke eloquently about Mr. Matthew's scholastic achievements and his outstanding professional career. Mention was also made of his family, the members of which are making excellent use of the educational facilities placed at their disposal by Mr. and Mrs. Matthews.

Mr. Matthews thanked those present and expressed his appreciation of the opportunities for service, and of the co-operation, help, and friendship which had characterized the associations of his 25 years in his inspectorate.

Eskimo, Arctic, Discussed At Study Club

"The Arctic and the Eskimo," was the topic of discussion at the November meeting of the Women's Study Guild, held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. G. Wilson, Front Road.

The president, Mrs. Seldon, reminded the members of the coming municipal election and urged everyone to vote. Mrs. Buck was appointed Guild representative to the Film Council.

The worship service, conducted by Mrs. Wells, was on the subject—"I Arctic Missions," and included a reading by Mrs. Clark 18: 9-20.

Mrs. Mayhee, Mrs. Wylie and Mrs. Seldon, who were in charge of the program, discussed the Canadian Arctic and its Eskimo inhabitants.

Mrs. Mayhee described the geography of the north and outlined the part played by the early explorers and the Hudson's Bay Co. in mapping and developing the huge land mass between Alaska and the Atlantic.

Mrs. Wylie dealt with the Eskimos and their way of life. She also explained that there are two types of Eskimo culture: that of the inland Eskimos, who live in the tundra region of the interior largely on caribou, and that of the coastal Eskimos, depending on the seal for their existence.

Mrs. Seldon discussed the problems arising from the present day development of Arctic resources and the role of the Eskimo way of life with modern civilization.

Former neglect of the Arctic and its people has given rise to a serious native problem which the newly created Department of Northern Affairs is now beginning to investigate.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the Women's Hospital Aux. Presents Report

"Is there a man in the house? If so, has he a hat with which he can part? This is the plea from the Opportunity Shop. Hats and more hats are being asked for by the conveners at the shop. When men's and children's hats are needed too, also dolls and toys. In fact, anything you can spare will be welcome," said Mrs. L. B. Fonger at the recent Hospital Auxiliary meeting which was held in the cheery living room of the Bridge Memorial Hall.

This room has been made even more attractive lately by the re-upholstering and repairing of the chesterfield and several chairs through the Hospital Auxiliary, under the convenership of Mrs. J. H. Forrester and her committee.

This committee was authorized at a previous meeting, to consider the needs of the nurses' residences. The report of the committee published at this time is distinctly satisfactory. Mrs. J. A. Smith, the president, stated that the members of the board of the hospital were well pleased with the effort being put forth.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. Dallas, reported favorably on the coffee-snack bar and the Opportunity Shop.

Miss Ivy Dickens and her committee have kindly consented to attend to the laundering of Christmas plans for the hospital- patients, Smith announced.

The delegate's report to the convention of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliaries of Ontario, held in Toronto in October, was given, demonstrating the benefits derived from the various auxiliaries of the province sharing their experiences and plans of past and future, as they meet the beginner- ition with the Ontario Hospital Association.

SEASONAL PROGRAM

The second report of the "Shadow Program" wherein a member of the auxiliary shadows the head of a department in the hospital, to describe the latter "learnings" to the group, was given by Mrs. J. E. Pugh. Her description a day in the admitting department emphasized that the workers there are thoughtfully and wisely chosen, and that they are highly trained by the efficiency of the department.

"The superb organization of the admitting department," Mrs. Pugh said, "was a day-long delight, full of appreciation of its benefit to the smooth running of Belleville General Hospital. Were it not for the hospital again in some other department I would probably depart as I did that day certain that I had found "the" essential key to the smooth operation of our hospital.

"In truth there are probably many such keys, all with the same accurate attention to every detail and all as essential as the admitting office and, what is more, all working together to provide Belleville citizens with an admirable institution in which we may take pride, our Belleville General Hospital."

On Tuesday evening, under the sponsorship of the local Youth for Christ, the noted Dr. Bob Pierce of Korean fame, was welcomed to the city by approximately six hundred people, who gathered in Bridge Street United church, to hear him.

A 24-voice choir under the leadership of the Rev. Eric Strain, opened the service with the singing of "O Jesus Christ, I Bow to the world, even so I have sent them into the world." Matthew: 28:18-20 "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Christian, you are a sent one.

DO SOMETHING FOR GOD

He urged Christians to get busy and to do something now for God. "A year from now may be too late. Jesus said in John 4.35 "Say not ye, there are yet four months and then cometh the harvest. Behold, I say unto you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." Jesus said, "don't say we have four months to do something for God. Now! is your harvest-time! Every minute, man, teenager, middle age and older person. Now, you must be the pioneer for Christ. The Apostle Paul began his life as a persecuting missionary at the age of 45 years. God too, can fill your soul with a heart burning with love and compassion for lost mankind."

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU CAN HELP YOURSELF OVERCOME YOUR SHYNESS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am almost 15 and the oldest one in my class is school.

Everyone talks about boy friends and dating, and they ask me about it. When they do, I feel funny, because I haven't ever been to a date in my life. There are a few boys I like, and some of them prefer and interest me, but I have never been asked for a date. I am very quiet in crowds or any place where there are many people even among my classmates.

How can I solve these problems, and how can I attract boys so I can date like the rest? — Karen D.

Dear Karen:

It is hard, I know, to feel left out when other girls are having dates and good times. But I feel sure that you can help yourself to overcome your shyness if you will try, as it is the right way.

For example, look around you at school and see if there aren't some other girls who seem to have the same trouble that you do. Shyness is a very common complaint, and no matter how you may feel at times, I know you aren't the only girl in school who feels shy and out of things. So make it your business to look out for such girls and become friends with them. This will not only give you the opportunity to enjoy friendships, but it will give you practice in the art of making friends.

Another thing I would suggest is that you pick out some activity in school, outside your studies, at which you could become good. Everybody admires and wants to know anyone who is expert at sports, or in dramatics, or in any other activity which boys and girls enjoy in their school days.

Are you a good dancer? If not, see if you can't learn to be. Do you belong to any clubs? If not, pick out one or two and join them.

You might like to have my list of suggestions on how to be popular, together with the names of some books written to help teenagers solve many of the same problems that you have. If you will send me a stamped self-addressed envelope so I would know where you would like these lists to be sent, I will be very glad to forward them to you.

GIVE FRAGRANCE FOR CHRISTMAS

Perfume is a traditional Christmas gift. And, no wonder! After all, there is nothing like perfume to make a woman feel utterly, utterly glamorous. But, even if you can't afford to give your feminine friends the exquisite perfumes you'd like to give them, you can still make them happy by giving enchanting gifts of fragrance in plenty.

Practically all of the perfume houses have colognes and toilet waters in the same scent as their precious essences and any woman would be delighted with them. Then, too, there are the lovely perfume and cologne sticks which are not only as wonderfully fragrant as the bottled variety but which can be used many times during the day with refreshing results.

Fragrance for the bath also make lovely Christmas presents. There are bath oils, crystals and salts to make your best girl friend feel as glamorous as a movie star. The cosmetic counters are also showing lovely sets of guest soaps which can be color-keyed to suit the bathroom decor. And, of course, there's talcum, in lovely boxes, accompanied by huge and luxurious puffs, they make inexpensive but glamorous gifts.

Lipsticks, too, make nice Christmas presents and some of them now come in the most beautiful cases you've ever seen. One firm has recently got out a group of cases which were designed by an international famous jeweler and which use, what the manufacturer calls "revived stick" refills. The cases are priced from $1.25 up, depending upon the materials used, but what materials! There's one, for instance, in hand engraved sterling silver, with poinsettias etched in gold. Another, in cox-black enamel, is encircled with a gilt wedding band. There's one of gilt brocade, crowned with make-believe diamonds; and still another is a shaft of golden lame-type gilt. All in all, there are a dozen of these cases to choose from.

The refills are really easy to use, too. First you remove the plastic top, then press the entire refill, metal base and all, into your lipstick case. You hear it "lock in place" and then you swivel up the lipstick. It's ready to use in a matter of seconds and your fingers never touch the lipstick itself.

(If you would like further information about any of the above-mentioned products, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Qui Vive, in care of this newspaper.)

WHO PAYS FOR THE FLOWERS FOR THE WEDDING?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our daughter is to be married soon. Who pays for the flowers for the wedding and for the attendants' flowers? — Mother

It is the responsibility of the bride's family to pay for the flowers for the church (or wherever the ceremony is to be performed), and the flowers for the reception. The bride's family usually provides the flowers for the bridal attendants (honor attendant or attendants, bridesmaids, flower girl if any.) since these flowers are planned as part of the decorative scheme and color-scheme of the wedding. However, in some communities, the groom pays for the bridal attendants' flowers.

The groom pays for his bride's bouquet and for her going-away corsage (often the corsage is the center of the bridal bouquet). He also pays for the corsages of "the mothers," his bride's mother and his own mother. And boutonnieres for the best man, ushers, and for both fathers.

TEEN - AGERS' TASTELESS PLAN FOR BRIDAL SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My daughter, 13-½ years old, has been asked in be a bridesmaid at her cousin's wedding. The bride-to-be is 21. The maid of honor is 30 years old. There are to be three other bridesmaids, the oldest 16 years of age. My problem is concerning giving a shower. I wanted very much to give a shower in our home for about 20 guests, but I was told all the bridesmaids are supposed to get together to give a shower for the bride-to-be. Also that all the bridesmaids chip in to hire a hall, invite whomever they wish to, and each guest pays about $1.50 per person. To me this seems a bit too commercialized teenage girls, as none of them work, and I know the parents have not a moderate means, just as we do. However if you say it is being done, then I'll have to do it. — D.

Peg never heard of such a backward plan for a shower, and it certainly doesn't abide by the customary and charming idea of inviting only the bride's intimate friends to a happily-informal intimate party. It is true, of course, that very often the bride's attendants do get together to give a shower for the bride, and this is a delightful idea. But for four such very-young girls to take part in the hiring of a hall, inviting anyone they wish to who has $1.50 to pay to cover (plus a few over-ups Joh. When dinner's over, dampen them for effective wipe-offs.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

...if I don't see anything else in the paper I take time for the birth notices and your column. . . when did Marianne get back to Canada? Recent talk on food budgets interested me. . . we have three girls, 7, 4, and 2 with good appetites . . . food bill never runs over $70 month. I used to try to cut our food budget by serving the proper foods in minimum quantities considered necessary for a balanced diet. We were healthy . . . but changed my policy to serving maximum quantities of basic foods. My monthly bill went up only $8. . . . I'm sure our protein-plus diet has helped. We buy (skim milk powder) in 10 lb. tins, which works out to 7 1-3 quart. We use a tin a month . . . I hate to think of the size of our milk bill otherwise. We use cheaper cuts of meat which brings up my first question. I usually get a short rib roast of beef, put it in a 300 deg. oven, covered with tenderizer and a little water for 3 or 4 hours, and it tastes very good. I tried a pot roast the way you described but ended up with about 3 cups of liquid cooked out of a 4-lb. roast. Cooked in pressure cooker without pressure at "simmer" for 4 1-2 hours. Have you a recipe for an apple tapioca pudding made something like a soft custard. . . . I use your skim milk ice cream recipe often and wonder if you have one with a custard base. . . . I am in doubt about the food value of egg yolks and whites . . . can you tell me why hard-cooked eggs sometimes don't peel easily?—Audrey F.

ANSWERS:

The juice on a pot roast has to be cooked down, uncovered Audrey, and meat turned frequently.

APPLE JUICE PUDDING

Two cups hot canned apple juice, 4 tablespoons cornstarch (3 tablespoons only if egg is used), 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-0 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup cold water or apple juice, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt with cold water or apple juice. Add slowly to hot apple juice in double boiler. Cook constantly until thick. Cover and cook 20 minutes stirring four times. (If desired stir in beaten egg at this point.) Remove from heat, add flavoring and chill.

VANILLA ICE CREAM

(Custard base.)

(Audrey you can adjust this to skim milk powder if you do you can omit cream and replace with extra-rich modified skim milk.)

One cup milk, 1 egg, 1-2 cup sugar or honey, shake of salt, 2 cups cream, 1 to 2 teaspoon vanilla. Cook first four ingredients as soft custard in top of double boiler stirring until they coat spoon. Cool, add cream and vanilla; freeze.

An egg white has 20 calories and a small amount of Vitamin G. An egg yolk has 65 calories; large amount of vitamin A, fair amount of D, lesser amounts of B, and G. Hard cooked eggs don't peel freely when they are new laid. I'll answer balance of your letter later.

Many Attend Holy Rosary Christmas Festival Bazaar

A prettily decorated Christmas tree a-gleam with shining globes of gold, blue, rose and green, stood sentinel at the entrance to the spacious assembly room of Holy Rosary Parish Hall, last evening, for the Christmas festival and bazaar, sponsored by Holy Rosary parish. Parallel with the walls, and like an inverted "U" were the red and green trimmed booths with their enticing displays of fine articles which would fill many a Christmas want, and solve many a $64 question which is plaguing more than one at this festive season.

Greeting the guests were the president, Mrs. A. Ewes, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. Bradden, whose cheery smiles were but an introduction to the gaiety and happy camaradie which prevailed among the many visiting the various booths, and looking forward to the moment when the big drum, containing the lucky tickets for the drawing of the prizes would begin. These included a Christmas cake; a turkey; a lovely, baby-size bassinette in soft pink and white complete with a lovely doll; a steam iron made by a well known electric company, and pop-up toaster.

QUARTET TABLES

At one side were the little, quartet guests tables in grey, each with its white cloth, centred by a spray of balsam topped with a silver star, tinsel direct mas-cards which did duty for Seena cards; little salts and peppers of little Bambies, pink flamingoes, trumpeting elephants, little chickadee birds, Donald Ducks, a cock and his hen with blue tails, and a pair of two-faced little people. There was no need for tea table as delicious refreshments were served direct from kitchen nearby, under the convenership of Mrs. W. Smith, assisted by Mrs. S. Haley, Mrs. J. Colligan, Mrs. L. Farrell, Mrs. W. Guay, Mrs. R. Beadle, Mrs. Connell, Mrs. Trumpour, Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Laing.

At the 'post office' and 'country store', there were several packages, prettily tied with Christmas wrappings; some with tiny Christmas trees, and others in plain red trappings; there were also cellophane bags containing tasty Northern Spy apples; cans of soups and jellies; washcloth dogs in blue and others, all conversed by Mrs. E. Snider, assisted by Mrs. J. Hogan.

PRETTY NOVELTIES

At the fancy work and novelties were some prettily embroidered luncheon cloths; set of plastic table mats; table cloth with blue border and floral design; green-edged, frilly doily, lovely, knitted baby set of booties, sacque and bonnet, dresser scarfs, baby slips and soft, white flannelette nighties; plaid pot holders; boys' shirts in green, and plaids; mitts in three colors; costume jewellery; china sugar and cream sets; cups and saucers, and satin cushion and cushion tops. This was convened by Mrs. L. Donovan, assisted by Mrs. J. Darling-ton and Mrs. G. Tugnett.

Attractive aprons held a prominent place, and those which overflowed the booth were seen to advantage on a rack at the back. There were pretty pale green aprons in combination of plain and floral effect, both for mother and daughter; some in pink, others in floral backgrounds; pretty prints, with frills, and in plain styles; one in brown organdy with white trim; an embossed crystalette with plain panels, lace-edged. Nearly all were in the favorite half apron style. Mrs. Loveless, assisted by Mrs. F. Daley were in charge of these.

RELIGIOUS

The religious booth was conversed by Mrs. M. Walsh, assisted by Mrs. J. Barrett and Mrs. J. O'Grady. This booth was centred by a tiny Christmas tree surrounded by boxes of sacred Christmas cards, prayer books, crucifix, statues of the Virgin, plastic rosary cases, lovely white first communion prayer and rosary purses, bracelets, angel Christmas stickers, colored pictures of the Lord in Gethsemane, and holy water bottles adorned with the cross.

The home cooking was daintily displayed consisting of a superb angel cake with mounds of boiled icing jutting out in little peaks and sprinkled over with tiny silver balls, and topped with a colorful Santa Claus. This particular cake would become the property of the lucky ticket holder. Other cakes included nut-topped loaf cakes, marbled layer cakes, mince pies, taffy tarts, fruit relishes, pineapple marmalade, pickled cucumbers, nut-filled hermits, and apple jelly. Mrs. M. Waller, assisted by Mrs. V. Baker, Mrs. A. Huffman and Mrs. G. O. Carroll.

DOLL'S HOUSE

The doll booth, with its multitude of little dresses, dressed dolls in suits of stockings with little pom-poms in pretty colors, dolls in fancy party dresses, and in the centre of this array was a beautiful doll's house, completely furnished and having a garage and roof garden which would become the prize of the lucky ticket holder, was convened by Mrs. J. Eiland, assisted by Mrs. T. Morrison and Mrs. F. M. Sagriff. In addition to the above there was a carriage set of pink satin with blue rose design, of a pillow, robe, and dress, bed ornament in tufeted blanket, a knit, yellow elephant, Peter rabbit with baby rabbit, and blue flannel crib quilt and cushion lace trimmed.

The candy booth was centred with an ornamental Christmas tree, and completely surrounded by little red, vallies and silver boxes, filled with fudges, fondants, creams, cocoanut creams, and other tasty toothsome sweeties. These were in charge of Mrs. Ed. Schneider, assisted by Mrs. Brennan.

A fish pond, every child's delight, not to mention some which never grow up, afforded some exciting 'fish' of various kinds, many most tasty, while others were of the toy variety.

A cent bingo was in charge of Mrs. H. Brown and Mrs. A. Eves, Mr. N. Guay, Mr. F. Daley and Mr. E. McGuigan.

From seven to eight, old Santa Claus appeared and presented to each little one, from the pretty Christmas tree, candies which were much appreciated.

SPECIAL DRAWS

Those winning the special draws were: the doll's bassinette and doll, Miss Nellie Burns, Montreal; the steam iron, Mrs. Meeks, Brassey Street; the pop-up toaster, Mrs. F. Doran, Orchard Drive; the Christmas cake, Miss Lorraine Golden, Camnifton, and the Christmas turkey, Mrs. Doris Thompson, Orchard Drive. The door prize of an oval braided green and white rug, Mrs. Clapper, City; the sealfreeze, Miss J. Sagriffe, City; the chicken, Mr. Peter Hay, City; and the satin cushion, Mrs. Don Fiskle, City.

An exceedingly fine Christmas festival, and dainty tea, especially pleasing to its over-all convenor, Mrs. H. Brown, for its successful conclusion, and to all the willing helpers who worked so faithfully.

Vatican Declines To Comment On Paper Report

The magazine does not give the child's name, or the date of the cure, but says the child was "a little boy or girl blind since birth, who, embraced by the pontiff while he (the pontiff) prayed, suddenly recovered sight."

Epoca says news of the child's recovery was obtained from prelates at the Vatican. Vatican sources declined to comment.

Save Your High Moments

By ROY L. SMITH

The story is told of M. Daguerre, the father of modern photography, that he came to believe he could imprison an image on a sensitized plate. Confident that it could be done he constructed a crude camera, used a tin plate coated with a chemical emulsion, and exposed it to the light. But nothing happened.

Then came new plates, new emulsions, and improved cameras. At length, after seven hundred experiments, he drew a plate from a camera and there! To his delight there was the perfect image. But it only lasted a few seconds, and then it faded away.

"All I have to do now," the great scientist exclaimed, "is to make it permanent!"

HIGH MOMENTS COMMON

The Apostle Peter, on the mountain of transfiguration, had passed through the greatest experience of his life. He had seen Moses and Elijah and Jesus together, and he had heard them talk together. No man could ever go through such an hour and ever be the same again, and in the excitement of the moment Peter proposed what seems now just a little foolish. He wanted to build three small shrines to commemorate the occasion. But the old fisherman was not so foolish after all. He was trying to save the greatest experience of his life.

All of us have our high moments—those times when we dream of the great lives we could live, the great things we could do, the magnificent persons we could be. Such moments usually come upon us unaware. We are seldom expecting them. They take us by surprise, and we wish we could save them.

ACCEPT WHAT THEY ARE

One of the great mistakes we make in connection with our high moments is in thinking of them as being so more than "psychic reactions," "momentary delusions," or "a funny feeling."

Actually they are the tremors that go through us when God comes very near. Something deep stirs within us because something divine has moved a little nearer to us.

Let any man who has had such an experience believe in it, trust it, and reverence it. Sooner or later it will become for him a guiding light that leads to a glorious life.

Treat your high moments as though they were glimpses of the Divine, intimations of immortality, and evidences of the divine image in which you were born.

GO BACK TO MOUNTAIN

In the event that you have lost your high moment—that it no longer thrills and inspires you—go back to that hour when it first came upon you. Pray again the prayers you prayed then. Renew the promises you made to God on that holy occasion. Surrender your spirit to the same upward call that seemed so personal and so insistent then.

There are those circumstances in which it is event wise to actually go back to the identical spot where the vision first occurred—to the little country church where you first met the Holy God, to some communion altar, confessional, or humble place of prayer in the woods, perhaps.

Recreate the exalted mood in which you met God and came to an understanding with him. Try to see yourself once again as you appeared to yourself that unforgettable day. Feel about yourself, and about God, as you felt that day. And see if the Divine Spirit does not come back.

"If with all your heart ye truly seek Him, ye shall surely ever find Him. Thus saith your God."

Lower Butter Prices To Consumers Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Lower butter prices to consumers without reducing current government support prices to the producer were advocated Thursday by Grant M. Carlyle, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada.

In a speech at the annual meeting of the Ontario Creamery Association, he did not state who would absorb the decrease from the present price to the consumer of about 8 cents a pound. The support price now is 58 cents a pound.

The present method of price support, he said, is reducing domestic markets for butter. It was wrong rigidly to tie consumer prices to the support price paid for surplus butter.

Mr. Carlyle said he has never urged lower consumer prices at the expense of lower support prices.

"May I repeat again that I have never said anything of the sort," he said. "The present level should continue to be paid if the government feels that it is the best available means of maintaining farm income.

"I do subscribe to the view that the national welfare requires a satisfactory income for agricultural producers, but I may think that the welfare of the producers is being sacrificed when the method of support adopted is discriminating against the consumption of a product of such an important industry as dairying."

"We have put this industry into the straight-jacket of an unvarying price at an artificial level to consumers, and refuse to admit that any allowance should be made to adjust ourselves to changes which we cannot predict but which continue to occur, and which we can do nothing as dairymen to alter," he said.

"There is a very real danger that placing the sole emphasis on maintaining the present support price will conceal from our producers the real dangers of the present situation. The extent to which our domestic market is being reduced may not be apparent for some time until employment and income are not so buoyant as today.

"We need to emphasize the fact that dairying in Canada must receive protection comparable to most industries if it is to survive. Such protection does not exist today."

MARKETS CURTAILED

The damage being done to the dairy industry "is the sacrifice of its markets to alternative products which can be bought cheaper than the artificially supported price for dairy foods." The present policy of price support "is holding an umbrella over the heads of other producers at the expense of the dairy business by curtailing its markets in Canada."

Oriental Lotharios On Horseback In Remote Soviet Kirghizia Are Scourge of Communist Party

By RICHARD O'MALLEY

MOSCOW (AP)—In remote Soviet Kirghizia, ortinial Lotharios on horseback swoop down on girls, fling them over their saddles and carry their kicking, screaming prey off to become brides at feudal wedding parties.

This is enough in itself to disturb the Communist party. But worst of all, a young Communist district secretary turned out to be a villain in one of these rustic melodramas.

In the last year, says a report from Dzhalal-Abad in the Kirghiz republic of Central Asia, 20 young girls have thus become more or less unwilling brides. But the case that blew the lid off the situation was described by the youth paper Komsomolskaya Pravda in this: fashion:

"The sixth-grade schoolgirl Gulsar Dzholdoshabyeva was on her way home when the thunder of beating hooves reached her ears.

MOIDUN'S HIDEAWAY

"Gulsar covered aside, but strong arms lifted her from the ground and swung her across the saddle. Gulsar tried to scream for help, but the rider stuffed a handkerchief in her mouth and she lost consciousness . . . .

The culprit was a galloping Don Juan named Moidun Mirmamatov. He took her off to his hideaway and there introduced her to what passes for wooing in that part of the world. The report continued:

"Gulsar came to in a spacious room. Her head ached and she was bruised on the arms and legs. Moidun Mirmamatov entered the room. The girl ran toward the door, but Moidun blocked her way. She screamed.

"Another man came into the room, smiling. Gulsar could not believe her eyes. Facing her stood the secretary of the district committee of the Komsomol (Young Communist League) Shamamatov. He walked up to her, patted her softly, and said: 'Calm yourself. Everything will be all right. You must be obedient. From now on Moidun will be your husband.'"

Komsomolskaya Pravda said the kidnapping of brides is a survival of feudalism and must be stopped. As for a Communist secretary playing cupid, he is in for it.

"Shamamatov continues to spread dirty survivals of the past among youth and supports those who do not take Soviet law into consideration," thundered the paper, mindful of the Communist party campaign to wipe out survivals of the past in the far-off republics.

Redevelopment Plan Proposed By Toronto Firm

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto real-estate firm has proposed a $12,000,000 redevelopment scheme in the downtown section of the city to provide low-cost apartment accommodation.

Jack B. Bedder, of the firm of Brethour and Morris, filed an outline of the plan with city council Thursday.

The plan includes 1,400 suites in nine or 10 seventeen-storey blocks and should net the city about $190,000 a year in land rent and taxes, he said. Construction could start next spring if the plan is approved by council. Rents would start at $75 a month for a bachelor apartment and range up to $105 for a two-bedroom suite.

Some Firms Raise Mortgage Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. is aware that some banks and insurance companies have increased interest rates on National Housing Act mortgage loans to 5½ per cent, maximum permitted under federal legislation.

However, an official of the corporation said Thursday CMHC does not know which lending institutions have boosted their rates to the maximum.

"There is nothing to prevent lending institutions charging 5½ per cent," he said. "It is not necessary for them to advise the corporation if they decide to charge this rate."

RCAF Aircrew Leaving Because Of Poor Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — RCAF officers are saying privately that many aircrew are leaving or want to leave the air force because of low flying pay.

One said recently that it is silly to spend $63,000 to train a pilot and then let him go because of low flying pay. Both the RAF and United States Air Force have already learned this lesson, he said.

Lucrative civilian flying jobs, paying as high as $1,000 a month, can be had by RCAF aircrew who get out of the service. Officials say that there will be plenty of work in coming years for Canadian airlines supplying northern radar networks.

BASIC PAY

An RCAF flying officer receives basic pay of $220 a month compared with $260 for a 1st lieutenant, the equivalent rank, in the USAF. A 1st lieutenant in the USAF with six years in that rank makes $331 a month basic. In the RCAF, the only basic pay increase is achieved by promotion.

The difference is greater between the RCAF and USAF when it comes to flying pay, extra to basic pay. A flying officer on an RCAF operational squadron receives $30 a month flying pay compared to about $160 for a USAF 1st lieutenant.

The RAF also does better than the RCAF in flying pay, though the basic wage in the RAF is much lower. An RAF flying officer gets flying pay of eight shillings a day—about $1.12. And this amount is expected to be boosted considerably soon.

The defence department now is studying closely the possibility of a general wage increase for the armed forces but nothing definite has been decided. The last increase came two years ago.

Official figures on the number of aircrew being taken on or let out of the air force are generally not made public.

TEACHERS STRIKE

ROME (AP)—Italian high school students streamed happily out of their classrooms Thursday as last-minute government efforts failed to avert a three-day teachers' strike. The cabinet will meet to consider demands for salary increases up to 65 per cent by 60,000 teachers.

Deny Charge Law on Patents Lends Itself to Monopoly

OTTAWA (CP)—A denial of the charge that Canada's patent law lends itself to monopolistic practices in industry has been placed before the royal commission on patents and copyright.

The submission was made Thursday by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in reply to a previous brief by two Canadian newspapers, the Regina Leader-Post and the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix. The newspapers had urged sweeping changes in the patent law to prevent control of industry, trade and even prices through the power afforded by pooling of patents.

The CMA said that Judge Thurman Arnold, former U.S assistant attorney-general who made the newspapers' main submission, had painted "a picture of vicious monopoly practices under the cover of patents which bears no relation to the facts."

It said many of his submissions were insufficiently documented and should not be accepted as evidence.

In other cases, the CMA said, there was a remedy in existing Canadian law of which Judge Arnold seemed unaware.

The association said in its opinion the newspapers' submission was more like a "publicity stunt than a serious submission on patent law."

The commission, under the chairmanship of Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia, also heard briefs Thursday from the Patent Institute of Canada—an association of patent lawyers—and the Chemical Institute of Canada. Both organizations took exception to some recommendations made by the newspapers.

The hearing was the last the commission will hold this year. Its study of Canada's patent, copyright, trade mark and industrial design law began last year and it has been presented with a mountain of material arguing for and against changes in these laws. Its report probably won't be ready until late in 1956.

81 Candidates Run for Office In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A mayoralty contest between a lawyer and a plumbing executive top the annual election scramble for municipal office in Canada's second-largest city.

Thirty-seven offices, including the job of mayor, are open. Four seats on board of control, 18, on council and 14 on board of education.

Toronto's first Jewish mayor, lawyer Nathan Phillips is opposing for re-election by controller Roy Belyea, president of a local plumbing firm. A resignation and a retirement on the board of control attracted 12 candidates.

Keenest competition is for the 11 aldermanic seats—two from each of the nine wards. Forty-five candidates have entered, five of them women.

Twenty-four persons are contesting 14 vacancies on the 18-member board of education. Four seats went by acclamation, one of them to a woman. Three women are contesting the other seats.

Eleven Labor-Progressive (Communist) party candidates seek election. One is a candidate for board of control, five are contesting aldermanic seats and five are attempting to get on the board of education.

The city's 344,421 eligible voters will be asked to approve two proposals on the ballot when the 1,012 polls open Monday morning. The questions deal with a two-year term for elected officials and a proposed $20,000,000 city hall. The polls open at 10 a.m. EST and close at 10 p.m.

Interest in civic elections here is notoriously low. Since Toronto chose its first mayor in 1834 — William Lyon Mackenzie—the total vote has never reached 50 per cent of those eligible to cast a ballot. Last year's vote was 35 per cent. City officials said the highest vote recorded was 46 per cent in 1931. The lowest was 19 per cent in 1942.

REPORTER WANTS TO STAY

LEGHORN, Italy (AP) — Josef Fahdy, Hungarian sports writer, has asked political asylum in Italy. Fahdy came to Leghorn to cover a soccer match between Italian and Hungarian national teams.

Refuses to Force Stores to Close

TORONTO (CP)—The Supreme Court of Ontario Thursday refused to grant an injunction forcing six Ottawa stores to remain closed evenings.

The stores, part of the suburban Billings Bridge shopping plaza, had been remaining open Thursday and Friday nights until nine o'clock to catch late shoppers.

The city sought an interim injunction under a by-law passed in 1919 to keep the stores closed. Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan dismissed the city's application Thursday night after hearing arguments by counsel for both sides.

OPENED AFTER

Within an hour of when the judgment was handed down, it was reported all stores were open for business. The merchants had locked their front doors early but remained in their stores with the lights on ready to reopen. A phone call from Toronto told them of the outcome.

A. S. Pattillo of Toronto, counsel for the stores, argued the by-law was in restraint of trade. He said it was invalid because it applied only to the city as it existed prior to 1950. The portion of the city in which the shopping centre is located did not become part of Ottawa until it was annexed in 1950, Mr. Pattillo said.

TRENTON — St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. observed "family night" on Friday evening when the members and their families met in the Sunday school room at 8:00 and were served a delightful lunch supper.

Following the supper, the meeting was held in the church auditorium with 1st vice-president, Mrs. Harold Thompson presiding.

The program opened with the singing of "Jesus Shall Reign," followed by prayer and by the Rev. W. H. V. Walker. The Scripture lesson, Luke 11, was read by Mrs. Donald Hegarty. The Mission Band sang "We Are One Family."

The offering was presented by Mrs. John McIlroy. Mrs. William Holmes read a duet by Mr. Walker, who also introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Arnold Wannamaker of Stirling.

"Love Stories of the Bible", was the subject of Mr. Wannamaker's address with particular reference to the story of David and Jonathan. "The Bible says 'Love not in word, but in deed, and in truth.' Here we find love in action. Yet all the great love stories pale in insignificance when we think of the love of Christ. We have a wonderful Saviour and a wonderful Gospel.

"Christianity is an inward thing, a thing of the heart. You cannot hide love; many waters cannot quench it. Is there anything we need more than love in our hearts, for God and our fellowmen?"

Mrs. John Wallace, on behalf of the W.M.S. members, thanked Mr. Wannamaker for his Gospel message.

The program closed by singing "The Morning Light is Breaking" and the Mizpah.

Traffic Deaths In U.S. Higher Than Last Year

CHICAGO —(AP)— United States traffic deaths on Safe Driving (SD) Day, with all counting toll by the late hours Thursday night, surpassed last year's American toll of 31 by more than 25 per cent.

Although final figures were not expected until late today, an Associated Press survey for the 36-hour period showed that at least 65 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents in the U.S. Thursday.

The day's toll compared to 31 on the first observance of S-D Day last Dec. 3. It appeared likely that the figure would equal or pass the 69 traffic deaths counted in an AP survey Thursday, Nov. 17, made for comparison to the S-D Day toll.

NEARLY HALF

Although fatalities on the highways were higher this year than in 1954, it appeared that nearly half of the 48 states observed S-D day without a single traffic death.

The survey also disclosed that most of the major cities, including New York, Chicago and Detroit, had no fatalities.

The day's toll, however, brought

Two Israeli Soldiers Wounded

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Two Israeli soldiers were wounded in an exchange of fire between Israeli and Egyptian positions in the Kissufim area of the Gaza border strip Thursday, a military spokesman here said today.

He said firing lasted from this morning until sunset, with both sides using automatic weapons and heavy mortars.

Israeli spokesmen have reported clashes in the Kissufim area almost daily this week.

an expression of disappointment from Admiral H. D. Miller (Ret.), director of the president's committee for traffic safety, which sponsors S-D Day.

"There can be no real cause of elation on a day when the combined efforts of thousands of public officials and private citizens, and scores of agencies, fail to keep the nation's traffic toll below this figure," Miller said.

The day's toll compared to an average of 101 deaths daily in the U.S. during the first 10 months of 1955. The 10-month total was nearly 31,000.

Social Credit Asks Simpler Voting System

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Social Credit League has asked the provincial government to scrap the province's complicated voting system in favor of the simpler "X" ballot-marking method.

Delegates attending the league's 21st annual convention here voted overwhelmingly Thursday in favor of resolutions asking the provincial government to revert to the simple "X" system in rural constituencies and to divide the cities of Edmonton and Calgary into wards to simplify voting procedure.

Alberta has three different voting systems. In single member constituencies the single transferrable vote system is used; in the cities of Edmonton and Calgary members are elected by the proportional representation system and in federal and civic elections voters use the simple ballot. However, in Calgary civic elections the proportional representation system is used.

FOR A BETTER ORGANIZED BELLEVILLE
FOR MORE ECONOMICAL SPENDING FOR A BETTER BELLEVILLE

I AM SUBMITTING THIS LETTER TO THE CITIZENS AS A FOLLOW UP TO MY ORIGINAL LETTER STATING THE RIDICULOUS SPENDING OF COUNCIL.

At a meeting Wednesday evening it was quite apparent, if no one else read my statements, three of the council members now up for re-election read them, as I was met openly with criticism from them. One of their arguments was that only $1,500.00 was spent on painting the windows in city hall—my figures were taken from the local contractor's price of $1,300.00 for labour, plus approximately seven hundred dollars for paint. A statement that only a thousand dollars was paid is a typical example of certain council members only pointing out convenient facts.

Another statement was that only $4,500.00 was to be used for windows in the city hall—this is for only 30 windows and there are over fifty windows in the city hall to be replaced, also that the money was not from taxes but money given to the city to use as they see fit, by the government—but by using this money for windows it is taking it away from places that it could be used, such as parks, roads or any other tax expenditures. How gullible do they think we are? It's still taxes. It was also stated that $6,000.00 was not loaned to the hockey team, last year—there are minutes of January 18th on file in the city hall where the council loaned this amount to the arena commission to use for the hockey team, until gate receipts were taken in from the playoffs, it was also mentioned that this should not appear in publications. After the finals, council was informed by the same aldermen that the receipts were not great enough to pay it back—Naturally the cheque could not be made direct to the hockey team, but they still had it transferred to their account. These statements were all made on Wednesday but not one mention was made at this time as to why they had to have the windows painted before they tore them out, or why they used aluminum at $150.00 per window when they could have used wood storms, and windows, at a cost of $50.00 each, nor did they explain the other ridiculous expenditures.

Voters, these facts I mention are not rumors, I have attended 90 percent of the council meetings as a spectator in the past year and guarantee that the remarks I make on council affairs, I have heard at these meetings. It is near time a few changes were made in council, there are numerous other transactions such as I have listed, and if they are not curbed your taxes will soon be so high that the ordinary person will not be able to meet the payments. Remember every dollar spent foolishly is your dollar—your taxes—so this year vote—but think before you mark that ballot, vote for someone who will think ahead before he spends a dollar, by voting for

Re-Elect BEN SAFE

Alderman

ON MONDAY, DEC. 5th

TO THE ELECTORS OF BELLEVILLE:

I ask your support for Alderman in the coming Civic Election. I was born in Belleville in 1909, and am a life long resident of this city. My religion is Jewish, and I am a member of the Rotary Club. In City Council I have served as an alderman in 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1954 and 1955.

During the past year your City Council entrusted me with the Chairmanship of the Public Works Committee, and I would like to outline some of the work done by this committee under my direction.

New roads were installed in Bay View Heights, which included McDonald Gardens, Hastings Drive, Montgomery Drive, Edwards and Clarke Streets. We put in new asphalt paving on Church Street from Bridge to Dundas. Coleman Street was repaired, and new side walks were installed on West College Street to Quinte Secondary School. Approximately 2 miles of new roads and 1½ miles of new sidewalks were laid. Over 3,200 tons of asphalt was used, being approximately twice the amount used in recent years. Despite this, overhead costs in our works department are substantially lower with more work being done.

In the past year we had no scandal in Public Works, no trouble with contractors. The side walks built this year called for a bond by the contractors to ensure a proper job.

If I am re-elected I plan to have some money in the budget to replace faulty side walks built some years ago in Parkwood Heights, and our engineering Dept. is making plans now to resurface with asphalt at least two miles of our older pavements.

During my term as Councillor, I have not dodged any issues. I have always assumed my responsibility in Council on every question. I am a substantial taxpayer and have at all times opposed frivious and unnecessary expenditures but will not stand in the way of necessary civic improvements.

I hope that my past record merits your support, and I promise you that if I am re-elected I will endeavor to bring to council the same careful consideration of every question that I would give to my own business.

Sincerely,
BEN SAFE.

SEWAGE BY-LAW

The Belleville Utilities Commission feels that it should bring to the attention of the electors some points in connection with the By-law on the sewage system on which they are asked to express an opinion at the DECEMBER 5th election.

1. THE COMMISSION UNDERSTANDS IT IS THE INTENTION NOT TO PLACE THE MANAGEMENT OF THE STORM SEWER SYSTEM UNDER THE COMMISSION.

2. THE BY-LAW COULD COME INTO EFFECT WHEN THE SEWAGE SYSTEM INCLUDES THE DISPOSAL OR PURIFICATION OF SEWAGE BY FILTRATION OR OTHER ARTIFICIAL MEANS, IN OTHER WORDS, AFTER A MONEY BY-LAW HAS BEEN VOTED ON TO BUILD A SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT.

3. AN ESTIMATE OF THE PRESENT COST OF A SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT IS NOT AVAILABLE. THE LAST ESTIMATE MADE IN 1945 WAS $367,000. THE COST TODAY WOULD BE MUCH GREATER.

4. THE FINANCING OF THE ANNUAL COST OF OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF THE SEWER SYSTEM AND THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT WILL BE DONE BY A SEWER SERVICE CHARGE WHICH WILL BE MADE TO ALL USERS OF SEWER SERVICE.

MAYOR JACK BOTH

For Another Term

CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE:
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

In this talk, I propose to deal with some statements made by my opponent in radio broadcasts and reported in the press.

My opponent stated Belleville is a growing city. This is very true as you well know, and, would seem to amply contradict statements that we are bordering on chaotic conditions, as recent press reports would lead you to believe.

You are told the city issued approximately $1,-280,000 worth of new debentures. For your information the following statement of facts may be of value to you as taxpayers.

On assuming the office of Mayor January, 1954, the outstanding debentures and commitments were $4,149,076.74.

Further, it would be informative, I presume, to advise my opponent that on assuming the office as of January 1, 1954, I found the year 1953 had been operated with an overdraft of approximately $125,000.

It is true that I made the statement the tax rate would be reduced below 70 mills, and you will note, that after taking care of the 1953 overdraft and operating the city for 1954, my opponent tells you the surplus for 1954 operation amounts to one and one half mills. No other vindication or verification is required, as this is her open admission.

Now that I have been two years in office, our debenture debt is approximately $3,649,000.00, our debenture debt being reduced by approximately half a million dollars. These figures are in accordance with information received from our treasury department.

Although my opponent has painted you such a sad and deplorable condition, I consider the taxpayers business has had a very desirable improvement, and that with caution, experienced judgment and close attention to duty, your city business is improving in spite of the many adverse observations made by my opposition.

Do not be alarmed or depressed, sound business activities which are controlling your invested value, shall still, I hope have the opportunity to continue making your investment and mine more secure than ever.

The enumerated increases as catalogued by my opponent cannot be attributed to any particular individual, but must be faced by whom ever shall occupy the Mayor's chair, and if judgment and business experience are applied to the problems, when presented, I do not consider they are insurmountable.

In closing, permit me to absolutely repudiate the insinuation in my opponent's address, re juggling debentures. This is certainly an incorrect statement. My opponent was vice-chairman of the committee on finance, and if her chairman and committee, of which she was a member, did not requisition the required amount, and see that proper action was taken to have debentures ready for sale, I believe a full share of this responsibility must rest with my opponent.

Finally it is alarming that all these irregular practices are just now being aired for public information. Does my opponent want to bewilder and distract your attention at this opportune time, after remaining silent for the past ten months while sitting as one of your aldermen and guardians of your capital investment.

I believe our intelligent electorate will not be influenced by such tactics.

Company, Four Directors Fined For Tax Evasion

GODERICH (CP)—The Goderich Manufacturing Co. and four of its directors were fined a total of $23,200 on 30 charges of income tax evasion in court here Thursday.

The company pleaded guilty to charges of evasion and each of the four directors pleaded guilty to four charges of authorizing the falsifying of the income tax returns.

Each was fined $800 and costs on each, charge or in default three months in jail, the jail terms to be concurrent.

The company was fined $3,100 and costs on each of the four charges.

H. D. Urquhart of the Kitchener income tax office, in evidence, said that on the company $87,898 income tax which had been evaded the company also owes $16,644 interest, making a total of $104,500.

TO CHECK INCOMES

He told magistrate D. E. Holmes that the personal incomes of the four directors have yet to be checked to see if they owe personal taxes.

Mr. Urquhart said that he supervised the investigation of the company which began actively in May 1954. He said that income omitted from the tax returns came from sales made to customers whose money was deposited in concealed bank accounts.

These accounts were located in Sarnia, Stratford, Toronto and all branches of various banks in Goderich.

The accounts were used specifically for money withheld from income tax returns. The only other activity was small personal withdrawals made by the directors of the company. This money was used for their personal use.

CONCEALED ACCOUNT

One of the concealed accounts was in the bank where the company itself banks, but was marked "special account." All the money was withdrawn from this special account before the end of each fiscal year to evade detection by auditors and immediately after the auditors checked the account became active again.

Mr. Urquhart said that some months after the active investigation began the company's auditor visited the taxation office in Kitchener and presented documented evidence outlining the tax evasion which, the auditor said, had been given him by the four directors.

"We then suggested they pay us $100,000 to cover outstanding taxes and they did—but there is still a matter of $4,500 owing," he said.

Virus Will Kill Clothes Moths

LONDON (Reuters) — Wool authorities today announced the discovery of a disease which kills clothes moths.

It is a virus produced by scientists of the agricultural research council at Cambridge. The virus can be sprayed or dusted into clothing, carpets and other woollen material. It kills the grub but not the adult moth, the international wool secretariat said.

"So far industry has made no use of the discovery," Dr. Kenneth Smith, director of the council's plant virus research unit, told the secretariat. "It is available if required, but manufacturers seem to prefer chemical means of dealing with moths."

One disadvantage of the virus is that it will not stand up to dry-cleaning or washing, and clothes or fabrics so treated need a fresh application.

Policeman Acquitted On Charge of Perjury

Judge M. A. Miller told the jury it had not been proven that alleged perjurious statements made by suspended constable Ilor A. Feeley were made in a judicial proceeding.

Feeley was charged with perjuring himself in county court here last June when he denied having anything to do with Bruce Castle of Peterbrough. Castle had de-branches of various banks in Goderich. fence in his own defence that Feeley had carried a bribe offer to him.

Faure Expelled From His Party On Voting Issue

PARIS (Reuters)—Edgar Faure, the prime minister without a party, issued an official decree early today failing any attempt to interfere with his plans for a general election in France in the new year.

Faure was expelled from his own Radical Socialist party Thursday for dissolving the National Assembly following the defeat of his nine-month-old government.

The Radical Socialists and the Socialists, supported by some other deputies, tried to secure a meeting of the assembly for a last-minute attempt to reform France's electoral law in time for the poll.

The prime minister cut short these moves by publishing the decree announcing the dissolution of the assembly. It appears today in the official gazette.

His adversaries wanted to reform the present complicated election system—based on proportional representation—to single-member constituencies. They are powerless now to take further action.

Faure, whose government will remain in office until the elections, will appeal against his expulsion from the Radical group. Five of his ministers have resigned from the government as a protest against the dissolution of parliament.

The date of the election will be announced in a separate decree. This is understood to mean that the government hopes to find some legal loophole which would enable avoiding New Year's Day—now the indicated date—constitutionally.

The constitutional rule states that elections must take place on a Sunday not later than 30 days after the publication of the dissolution decree. Government lawyers are working overtime to find a way of reconciling this rule with holding elections on Jan. 8, a week later.

New Year's Day is an important family feast day in France, and government officials fear that confusing it with politics would not be popular.

NBC GETS RIGHTS ON FILM

LONDON (AP)—Sir Alexander Korda said Thursday night that the National Broadcasting Company of the United States has paid $500,000 for the right to televise his new movie, "Richard III." The film, in color.

Judge Refuses Application Of Candidate

SUDBURY (CP)—An application by Victor Auger to have his name placed on the ballot as a candidate for reeve in the combined suburban townships of Neelon and Garson was refused Thursday.

Judge J. M. Cooper, is believed to have conducted the first such hearing ever held in Canada.

Auger was nominated both for reeve and councillor last Friday. Section 79 of the Ontario Municipal Act says a person nominated for two offices must resign one nomination before 2 p. m. the same evening. In default the person is deemed nominated for the office for which he was first nominated

Auger contended he was first nominated for reeve. Neelon-Garson clerk Harold Bondett, nomination night returning office, argued that his first nomination was as councillor.

Judge Cooper said:

"It is with regret that the law is such that or these facts the right of the electors to select a candidate of their choice in a democratic manner to occupy the important position of reeve must be denied them.

"I would suggest that the facts of this case be brought to the attention of the proper authorities in Toronto with a view of considering a change of the Municipal Act, so that a similar situation could not in future recur."

Auger did not qualify for councillor, so his disqualification for the reeveship left him on the electoral slate. Reeve by acclamation is Donald Gillis, a five-year member of council. Neelon-Garson has a population of 10,100.

GEORGE De VUYST
FOR ALDERMAN

WHO SHOULD RUN OUR CITY— A MACHINE OR YOU CITIZENS?

My topic today is the proposed Reduction of Council.

During the past year I sat on council as an alderman after you were confident enough to elect me at the top of the poll.

During the past year I spent many hundreds of hours attending all regular and all special meetings of the council and the majority of council committee meetings. I attended the large majority of all meetings of committees whether I was a member of those committees or not. I did this to become more fully informed about the city's business so that I could do a better and more efficient job for you, the electors.

I attended more than 20 meetings of the executive and finance committee as its vice chairman. I attended all meetings of the industrial commission and seven of the 100 meetings of Board of Works, Welfare, Traffic, Fire and Property Committees. By managing my affairs in a systematic way and rationing my time, I have been able to plan time for my family as well as for the duties of the office.

The business of administering the city of Belleville's affairs is a continuing and complex job.

Each committee works all year round. In addition, during the year, there are many special committees of same of which I have been a member. These special committees are formed to inquire into special business which may arise from time to time in the city's affairs and its dealings with other municipalities and groups.

Chairmen of standing committees are elected by council. Members of standing committees are nominated by the mayor on recommendation of the committee chairmen concerned subject to the approval of council.

The chairmen and personnel of special committees are appointed by the mayor.

The 14 elected aldermen and the mayor are responsible for the carrying out of the entire program. As you can see, they have a heavy and busy schedule. For all the effort and time which conscientious aldermen must devote to the administration of your business they receive $400 a year.

I tell you all these monotonous details because on Monday, December 5th, you will be asked to express your opinion about a by-law calling for the reduction of council tax from 14 to eight aldermen and the extension of the mayor's term to two years.

This by-law was proposed by the present mayor.

Under present conditions I am definitely not in favor of a reduction in the number of aldermen or a two-year term for mayor.

The proposal which is being presented to you will not take effect until 1957. If adopted you will be asked to vote for only four aldermen in place of seven in the future.

With a mayor and eight aldermen it will only be necessary for a fraction to elect three aldermen one year and two the next to control your city council. A majority vote in council will only require five.

I think that such a proposal is dangerous. I believe there is safety in numbers.

Whom do you want to run Belleville—you citizens or a machine.

Reducing council from 14 to eight aldermen will greatly increase the amount of work each alderman will be called upon to do. Council duties in a growing city with a smaller council will become a burden which too few busy citizens will care to shoulder.

Reduction in the number of aldermen will also make it more difficult for council to adequately represent all the different groups and interests within the city.

With constructive and competent leadership a council of 14 conscientious aldermen can function efficiently and administer wisely because its members will have more time to work on committees, than will eight alderman trying to do the same job.

It is poor economy for a city to save $400 by eliminating a single and conscientious hard working councillor and at the same time overburden other aldermen with the routine and special work that must be done.

The mayor has not given his reasons for proposing to reduce the size of council. It may be that council, which opposed him so sadly on so many issues in the past two years, has left him with the impression that a smaller council would be easier to control.

So having had the concentrated experience of working as alderman, I feel that reduction in the size of council would be most unwise, and I oppose any such reduction under present conditions.

You as electors, are being given the opportunity on Monday next, to express your wish about reducing the size of council. I ask you to keep in mind when you cast your ballot that there is safety in numbers—and on Belleville city council the safer number is 14 not eight.

Just ask yourself when you vote on this question next Monday, whether you are in favor of having the citizens of Belleville through their fourteen elected representatives.

As your mayoralty candidate I am at present in favor of a council of fourteen conscientious aldermen and a mayor so that the broadest possible representation of all the people will be kept safe.

When you go to the polls on Monday, December 5, I humbly ask you to vote for Jane Forrester for mayor.

Coach Milt Schmidt May Return To Firing Line Of Lowly Beantowners

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carven, Sports Editor

THE "CHINA CLIPPER"

Ben Kwong Lim is Calgary, the only Chinese in Canadian professional football, he first a football player, and second, a "fiddler."

NORMIE KWONG

Interesting sidelights on this human football dynamo were revealed in an interview with a Vancouver columnist during the "Week of the Big Binge" on the Pacific side of the Rockies.

This "bull" from the China shop left nearly as much ground behind him last season as John Landy in that optimistic. Only it took him longer. He averaged 5.2 yards per try in 1550 times he went. That's western dirt-pawing deluxe. In fact nothing in Canada equalled it.

Kwong played his fifth national football final last Saturday. He's 28, five foot eight and as chunky as the rump of a prize beef steer. His hair is a natural crew-cut and as black as the product of Newcastle.

Believe it or not, Kwong got the "Normie" when his mother, who was a Dick Powell fan, discovered the movie star had a son by that name.

Football has done well by Kwong. Far better than a laundry or a restaurant. He makes $10,000 a year lugging a hunk of pig's pelt and with bonuses has scraped together $50,000 during last that. And he saved it all. Says he: "Give me three more years at this rate and I'll pack it in."

As was said Kwong is a great kidder. The Eskimos knew it—and love it. "He almost married a nice Chinese girl in Vancouver this year," said an Eskimo official. "Normie called it off though. She forgot to send him a photostatic copy of her bankbook."

On another occasion an Eskimo publicist met Kwong in a local drug store. He was wearing a brand new porkpie hat. "Nice hat you're wearing," commented the public relations fellow.

"I'm thinking of throwing it away," said the poker-faced Kwong. "It's a day old."

He wears thick eyeglasses when he's off the gridiron and contact lenses when he's in football action.

Kwong has done well by the Eskimos—and by the same token the Edmonton club has done well by Kwong. For his services they have paid him enough dollar, Canadian, to buy some real estate, a trucking business and a new home for his parents.

Coach "Pop" Ivy thinks the world of the chunky Chinese. He says the Eskys scored a ten-strike when they snared Kwong from the Calgary corral five years ago. "He hits that line hard—even without blocking," lauds Ivy. "He makes dirt faking work the way he drives even without the ball. He blocks better than a fat gal on a stairway."

Kwong kids all the Eskys, the coach included. During fall training in Edmonton, Ivy was visited by his brother. The pair of Ivys stood together talking one day. They look alike—both being tall and very bald.

"Which twin has the toni?"

Kwong's bull-doing drives in the Grey Cup classic got him reams of headlines. Hogtown's faithful will turn out in droves to see what this smashing back can do to the cream of the East's linemen at the "dream game" at Varsity Stadium on Saturday.

If he shreds the Eastern bulwarks like he ripped the Larks' forward wall in Vancouver, it should go a long way toward giving the western sun another halo of victory.

KINGSTON TONIGHT!

Mebbe Joe had something to do with it. Mebbe the fact that Art Casterton has renounced the black-and-white stripes of Patterson's piccolo-playing officials, and donned the managerial togs again provided a spark, but suffice it to say, according to Roddenchild reports, the revamped Goodyears came up with a display against the Brockville Maggies on Wednesday night that recalled the champions of old.

Joe, in case you're wondering, is Mr. and Mrs. Levandoski's little boy, a gaiect who has savvyed around baseball diamonds and professional hockey cubbins for quite a number of semesters. Baseball fans hereabouts will remember him when he played with the Kingston Monarchs in the now defunct COBL.

Anyway, Jo-Jo is now legally wearing a Goodies' uniform, and they tell me he tossed the torso around with more or less reckless abandon against the Maggies.

The revitalized Goodyears will be around tonight to joust with the TPT's in what should be a real old-time Kingston-Belleville battle with the Cousmen shavering for a victory after taking four defeats. Better be around. It should be good.

Hamilton Whips Barrie 7-4

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs climbed into a second-place tie with Kitchener Canucks in Ontario Hockey Association junior A standings Thursday night by defeating Barrie Flyers 7-4 before 1,404.

Brian Smith with two goals, Cummin Burton, Gary Sharpe, Guy James, Bill Binnie and Jack Hendrickson were the Cub marksmen.

Hamilton led 2-1 and 5-1 at the end of the first two periods and the visitors outscored Cubs 3 to 2 in the last period. Cubs got nine minor penalties and a misconduct while Flyers were assessed eight minor penalties and a misconduct by referee Jack Shropshire.

Canadiens Edge Bruins 2-1 As Rocket, Beliveau Score Two in Twenty Six Seconds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins are having so much scoring trouble in the National Hockey League that the old master himself—Milt Schmidt—is thinking of returning to the big time in a Bruin jersey.

Milt, 37-year-old Boston coach, figures he might help bolster the Bruin club, caught in a winless streak that has spread over nine games.

Milt, who quit as a Bruin player last December, voiced concern over his team Thursday night before the Bruins took on Montreal Canadiens. He wasn't any happier after the engagement. The beantowners were handed a 2-1 defeat by the league-leading Montrealers.

Canadiens' Jean Beliveau, a Boston nemesis, and Maurice Richard scored within a span of 26 seconds in the first period to take the decision. Lorne Ferguson was the Boston scorer—at 34:56 of the first period on a 35-foot blast.

Schmidt said he has no "notion I'm going to help boost our scoring, but I believe I could help lighten the defence, and perhaps be useful at the point on the power play." He would only play for short stretches.

The Bruins could have used Milt at Boston Thursday night. They missed a tying goal in the third period when centre Don McKenney was offside. Murray Costello's shot went into the net behind Montreal goaltender Jacques Plante but did not count.

The last-place Bruins were 8 man short on Vic Stasiuk's crucial checking penalty when Beliveau beat netminder Terry Sawchuk at 4:47 of the first period. Beliveau had entered the game leading the league's individual scoring race with 14 goals and 13 assists. It was his 10th goal of the season at Boston's expense.

Just 26 seconds later, Richard scored on a 25-footer that had Sawchuk beaten all the way. Stasiuk was off for that one, too. The Hab win moved them six points ahead of the second-place New York Rangers. They now have 13 victories and seven deadlocks in 24 games for 33 points.

It was the Bruins' 11th defeat of the 1955-56 campaign. They have managed only six victories and six ties in 23 starts. That's what makes Schmidt think he can help the club. When he retired, Milt had a record of 556 goals in 16 years as an NHL player with Boston.

"I'm not in bad shape," he said. "It wouldn't require too much work to prepare for the assignments I plan. About six or seven good workouts should do it."

Boston general manager Lynn Patrick was somewhat less enthusiastic. He said Schmidt will return to action "only call for the approval of the other five clubs and that at least one executive in the NHL agrees with him."

Major Leaguers Leave Convention For Bigger Conclave in Chicago

By JOE REICHLER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Even before the minor league convention came to an official close today, a majority of the major league executives and field managers had departed for Chicago where the club owners will hold their annual three-day winter meeting next Monday.

Except for the naming of former big league stars Phil Cavarretta and Eddie Stanky as managers of Buffalo and San Francisco, respectively, the action was mostly limited to parliamentary business. The minors voted on a number of amendments, passing some but rejecting those which carried more significance.

Among those rejected were the proposals to repeal the bonus rule, the unrestricted draft, first year players, the college rule which would have forbidden the signings of collegians after their freshmen year, the 25-player major league player limit on opening day and a 50-per-cent increase in draft prices.

RADIO MOVE

The minors made their annual move to bar commercial broadcasts of ball games on stations outside a club's "home" territory, defined as territory within a radius of 75 miles of the ball park. They also extend president George Trautman's term for another five years after it expires in December of 1956 and appointed an eight-man committee to negotiate with the majors for revival of the major-minor agreement which expires Jan. 12, 1957.

The minors also adopted an amendment that would make a returning serviceman count on the active list after 30 days. At present he can be carried as an extra man for a full season after his discharge.

National League officials, perhaps roused by the fact that their American League rivals were stealing the headlines by making all the important player trades this winter, attempted to get something going at the 11th hour before quitting this city.

Jockey Club Adds Tracks To Holdings

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Jockey Club Thursday added Dufferin and Long Branch race tracks and 10 racing charters to its existing holdings.

The $4,000,000 transaction was completed by a holding company, Toronto Racing Securities. The assets were immediately transferred to the OJC and the holding company was dissolved.

Industrialist E. P. Taylor of Toronto, OJC director, announced the deal. He said the jockey club will announce future racing plans today.

Dufferin and Long Branch tracks were owned by Fred Orpen of Toronto. Dufferin, known as Little Saratoga, is in west-central Toronto and Long Branch is just west of the city.

OWNS EVERY TRACK

The OJC now owns every major track in Ontario. Thursday's transaction was another major step in the club's plans to revitalize the sport in the province.

The OJC started three years ago by purchasing Thorncliffe, Hamilton and Fort Erie tracks. Thorncliffe and Hamilton were closed. They are being developed as real estate projects. Fort Erie was given a multi-million dollar renovating job.

The OJC will open its new Woodbine plant at nearby Malton next spring.

$100,000 Tab Placed On Syracuse Club

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A Representative of a Miami, Fla., syndicate interested in buying the Syracuse franchise of the International League, said Thursday owner Martin D. Haake has put a price of $100,000 on the club.

Sidney Salomon, Jr., of St. Louis who said he represents a group of Miami businessmen interested in transferring the club there, returned here Thursday after discussing the matter with Haake in Columbus, Ohio, for two days.

"Before we go beyond this point, we have to find out several things," Salomon said, "look at the Syracuse end and at the Miami end. We will have to know just what the $100,000 includes."

Salomon said he and Elliott Stein, his financial adviser, will fly to Miami Saturday night. "There we will confer with the owner of the stadium, the mayor, the hotel association, and other interested parties."

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, said in Columbus he is hopeful a deal can be made. He described Miami as a natural link to Havana," which is in the International League.

VICTORY IS SWEET B-UT OH SO PAINFUL!

Strong Legs for Weak Ones

Shriners Will Provide Color At East-West Dream Game

TORONTO (CP) — The football players the fans in the East and West consider the tops will meet Saturday in Canada's first all-star game that has this theme: "Strong legs will run so that weak legs may walk."

The strong legs will be those of the players on the East and West all-star teams whose combined efforts will contribute to the work by Canadian Shriners to bring help to the weak legs of Canada's crippled children.

The net proceeds of the game, Canadian counterpart of the annual Shrine Bowl game in San Francisco, will be divided between Canadian Shriners' hospitals for crippled children in Winnipeg and Montreal.

The game, expected to be an annual event, is the latest milestone in this country's football history and the Shriners hope to make it an attraction filled with glamor and only outrivalled by the Grey Cup final.

Big plans have been made for a glittering pre-game parade and a halftime demonstration in which the 1,200 Shriners in their colorful costumes will take part. They are coming from Calgary, Winnipeg, Montreal, Watertown, N.Y., Syracuse, Buffalo, Erie, Pa., London, Ont., and Toronto.

Ten crippled children—five boys and five girls—are to be honored guests and will head the parade in a special wheel chair coach.

The Shriners have distributed 150 Robin Hood hats to patients in the Hospital for Sick Children and the marchers will pause in front of the hospital for a few minutes.

Instead of an honorary kickoff two of the crippled children will be taken to the sidelines to present footballs to the captains of both teams and the referee.

The pre-game activities include a $10-a-plate dinner Friday night held by Toronto Beaches of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. The dinner is to raise money to pay off part of the Beaches' operating expenses this season.

Frank Tindall, coach of Queen's University of the senior Intercollegiate football League, and Annis Stukus, former coach of British Columbia Lions, will be the principal speakers at the dinner. The members of the all-star teams are expected to attend.

Apprentice Jockey Rides 'Joymaker' To $6,000 Record Daily Double

BALTIMORE (AP)—An ex-scrobat was something of a two-ring circus at Pimlico Thursday, providing 14 two-dollar bettors with the thrill of a wagering lifetime.

And, indirectly at least, he caused the hearts of, 18 other racing fans to beat faster a few minutes.

Jockey Bernie Sorenson, an apprentice, rode Joymaker (an apt name under the circumstances) to victory in the first race and Advice in the second for a $3,932.20 daily double—largest in Pimlico history.

Joymaker, winner by a neck, was a 20to 1 $2 bet and Advice, who came home ahead by a length, paid $100.80 for a $2 ticket.

The anxious moments came at the end of the second race when jockey Colin Shaw, aboard the third-place horse, lodged a foul claim against Sorenson.

After several minutes deliberation, the judges disallowed the claim and 15 people who had second place tickets that had combined with Joymaker on their dailydouble ducats sadly tore them up. Had the claim been allowed, they would have won $5,536.80.

The payoff, third largest in Maryland parimutuel history, probably was a record for one rider. Sorenson, a Dane, came to the U.S. four years ago with an acrobatic troupe. His parents had been killed by the Nazis in occupied Europe.

His daily double, however, was only about half the U.S. record—$12,100.80 for a $2 ticket in Washington Park. The Maryland record was $6,754.50 at Bowie in 1938.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Belair Stud's Nashua, second in winnings among American thoroughbreds, has been nominated for the Santa Anita Handicap.

Jim Fitzsimmons, Na s h u a's trainer, said Thursday he had asked that Nashua be nominated for the rich Santa Anita race "in case he is sold to anybody in California."

There have been several rumors that Nashua would be sold since his owner, William Woodward Jr., was fatally shot in his New York home last month. Fitzsimmons said he knows of no plans to sell Nashua.

Head Gear For Boxers Major Problem

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —The question of head gear for boxers bobbed up today as a major problem confronting the U.S Amateur Athletic Union.

The issue forces, arguing that the gear saves permanent injuries and even lives, went before the annual convention of the AAU to suggest mandatory regulations requiring such protection.

Others insisted that head gear added to the dangers.

Maj. A. W. Latta, head of the athletic section of the U.S Marine Corps in Washington and a member of the AAU boxing committee, was prepared to relate experiences of the armed forces since they adopted mandatory head gear.

PROTECTS IN FALL

"It services favor gear, he said, because, first of all, it protects the boxer who is hit a knockout blow. When the boxer falls backward, he said, his head hits the canvas. If he hits an unpadded spot, the unconscious might be death or an incurable injury. Head gear provided a foam rubber padding.

On the other side was John J. Scheehan of Boston, who said neuro-surgeons stick to the opinion that a boxer getting head gear when hit on the head, suffers the result of the blow throughout the head.

The answer, he insisted, is to provide boxing rings with foam rubber padding that will absorb the boxer's fall.

Should the AAU adopt mandatory head gear the rule most likely would apply to the Golden Gloves bouts and all other amateur fighting.

Ozone Not Pride

Former Canadian Advises Dutchies To Train for Olympics in Swiss Air

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP)—Here's a tip for Canada—if you want to win the world hockey title, come to Switzerland to train.

"I can show you just the spot," says cheerful Charley Gerst, a Swiss fan who has never been to Canada but knows all about it from hockey books.

Gerst's advice is that Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen should set up camp in Davos, the well-known winter sport area in the Grisons. That happens to be Charly's home town, but it's not just a matter of local pride. It's the thin air.

Davos, scene of Barbara Ann Scott's training for her figure-skating triumphs seven years ago, is at about 6,000 feet up in the Swiss Alps. The altitude is about the same at Cortina, in the Italian Alps, where the world championships are to be played early next year as part of the winter Olympics.

Russia, Canada's most formidable rival, is going to work out in Davos.

"So is our Swiss team," said Gerst. "Tell the Canadians they better come over, too."

Gerst is a hockey nut. He played defence against Canada's conquering RCAF team in 1948 and is on the committee that will pick the Swiss team in 1956. He is said to have been the first European to subscribe to Canadian hockey publications.

A reporter's reference to sauerkraut, or sauerkraut, brought a sample of Gerst's second-hand expertise.

"Choucroute — sauerkraut in French—has Kitchener and the Kraut line, Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Porky Dumart."

The playing coach in Davos is Stuart Robertson, 29-year-old transplanted Canadian from Edmonton and Vancouver. Robertson tried to remember the home town of a fellow Canadian coach in Arosa, Moe Fife.

"It's somewhat near Peterough," said Robertson, and Gerst supplied the answer: Hastings, Ont.

Robertson agrees with Gerst that it would be worth several goals to the Canadian train in Swiss air. "It would help them to get used to the air in Cortina."

TO MANAGE BISONS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Phil Cavarretta, former manager of Chicago Cubs and a major-league first baseman for 21 years, was signed Thursday to manage the Buffalo club of the International League.

Cavarretta will be a player-manager.

Cavarretta, 39, replaced Frankie Frisch as manager of Chicago Cubs in mid-1951, then was released before the 1954 season. He finishes 1954 as a player with Chicago White Sox and scouted for the Sox last year.

Wings' Coach Blows Top; May Cost $1,000

TORONTO (CP)—Jimmy Skinner coach of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, may be paying for saying.

Skinner Wednesday night charged NHL referee Red Storey with "prejudice" and having "no guts" after a 3-3 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

National Hockey League bosks say it's worth $1,000 to criticize an official. What burned Skinner up was that a goal in the second period wasn't allowed. Earl Reibel fired a shot that caromed off Ted Lindsay's foot and trickled between the legs of goalie Harry Lumley.

As Skinner saw it, referee Storey was going to allow the goal but changed his mind when intimidated by a charging Lumley.

Had the goal been allowed, and the scoring remained the same, Red Wings would have risen to fourth place in league standings, leaving Leafs in fifth.

Babe Zaharias Leaves Hospital

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Babe Didrikson Zaharias' doctor Thursday said the pain which sent the famous athlete to John Sealy Hospital here has disappeared and she may leave the hospital and go on an out patient basis next week.

Dr. Robert Moore said that from what he can observe, there has been no change in her condition since she was discharged from the hospital here last September after her second series of treatments for cancer. He will not know for certain until sometime this weekend, when results of exhaustive tests will be available.

SUIT DISMISSED

CHICAGO (AP)—A $300,000 civil suit filed by Barney Felker, Cincinnati Boxing promoter, against the International Boxing Club was dismissed Thursday by the U.S. Appeals Court.

In addition to the commission the suit also named the club's president, James D. Norris, and boxers Ezzard Charles and Ray Robinson. Felker charged the commission with monopolistic practices in connection with championship contests.

Boston Radio Station Woos Public With Free Records

By CHARLES MERCER

wouldn't know if the television and radio industry didn't hire press agents:

Radio station WHDH in Boston is offering free phonograph records to owners of auto record-players in an effort to woo them back to radio.

Art Baker of "You Asked For It" (ABC-TV), will be happy to talk to a newspaper man about things he hasn't been able to provide his audience. Example: Every mail brings at least one request from somebody for a nude bathing-

"Monitor," NBC radio's 40-hour weekend program, will report this weekend that President Eisenhower saves 15 minutes daily by deciding the night before what he's going to wear the next day. Former president Harry S. Truman figure he saves 18 minutes daily by using three-in-one continuous-vision glasses—a step beyond bifocals.

The NBC Opera Theatre presents the longest television opera in history Sunday when Elaine Malbin sings the title role in "Madame Butterfly"—3½ hours of opera in English.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus will present an hour of the greatest show on earth over CBS-TV live from Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 9.

For the first time in history a Canadian ballet company will appear on American television when the National Ballet Company of Canada does a number on Sunday on "Wide Wide World" (NBC-TV, 5 p. m. EST).

Hubbie Controls Working Wife For 8 Hours Daily Anyway

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Dick Powell is in the position, enviable to some husbands, of being able to tell his wife what to do for eight hours each day.

Powell is producing and directing a new, musical version of "It Happened One Night." The stars are Jack Lemmon and June Allyson, who happens to be Mrs. Powell. That means that Powell is her boss during studio hours. Afterwards? Well, that's another matter.

So far, the experience seems to be going quite fine, despite the show June occasionally puts on to titillate the onlookers. When he raises his voice to give directions in a scene, she'll snap:

"Don't shout at me. We're not at home, you know."

ADMIRES BOSS

But foolishness aside, she expresses admiration for her daytime boss.

"He's as talented," she rhapsodizes. "He can do everything better than we can. He can act better, he can sing better. The only thing he can't do is dance better. That's his weak suit."

She gave some insight on what he can do for an actress. As one of MGM's top stars she led a rather sheltered life on the set. But not on "It Happened One Night."

She enumerated her injuries: sprained neck, torn leg muscles, scraped leg. These and other aches and pains were acquired from sliding down haystacks, doing strenuous dances, etc.

"When I got up this morning I coughed hard a couple of times and pulled a muscle in my back," she related. "I was in tremendous pain. Richard had me on the floor in a flash, applying heat and electric massage. He wasn't going to have me miss a day's work, no sir."

NO OVERTIME

There was one place where she drew the line: Working overtime. She has a clause in her contract that prohibits the studio from making her work after 6 p. m.

AT THE BELLE—Mister Roberts has brought more laughs to Belleville this week than any film in recent years. James Cagney is seen with Henry Fonda, Jack Lemmon, Bill Hickman, Henry Fonda, plays Mister Roberts, William Powell and Jack Lemon are co-starred. Mister Roberts" is continuing Today and Saturday at the Belle Theatre.

Powell is filled with admiration for his wife."You should see some of the things she has done in this picture," he said in amazement. "Most leading ladies wouldn't think of doing some of the rough stuff she has done."

He confided that he finds more satisfaction in directing than he ever has in acting. Does this mean he might give up the grease paint?

"I'd like to," he said, "but it's hard to do. The money is too good This is an actor's market today; the producers need stars and they'll pay anything. How can you pass that up?"

Commuter Train Hits Standing Freight

BARNES, England (AP) — A train packed with homeward-bound theatregoers crashed into a standing freight train in this London suburb Friday night and burst into a searing mass of flames. Twelve persons were burned to death and more than 50 others were injured.

Two of the dead were young children. Twenty-seven of the injured were reported in serious condition today.

The electric train carrying 150 passengers from London's west end to their homes in the Thames valley hedge burst into the rear of the freight train just outside Barnes station, eight miles west of central London.

The first coach overturned and dug a deep ditch as an embankment before stopping. The collision aborted the car's power circuit. There was a moment's silence, and then the crumpled coach exploded into flames.

SOUGHT TO GIVE AID

The screams of the trapped and injured sounded above the roar of the fire as dazed passengers from the next coach began to give what aid.

Railroad workers and uninjured passengers tore at the wreckage with their bare hands. They hurried the injured so they could remove to houses along the tracks.

The accident occurred below a highway bridge. Firemen fought the flames through the heart of the wreck scene. The fire melted the asphalt roadway surface about the firemen and heated the steel bridge girders to a glowing red.

Police Superintendent Bruce Gray, 45, hacked his way into the engineer's cab and pulled out the trapped engineer, Bill Flanders. Passengers at the side of the track screamed at Oliver clambering in the intense heat, but cheered and nodded as they saw him rise and drag Flanders out.

Royal Commission to Look At Canadian Radio and TV

By BERNARD DUPRENNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian broadcasting by both public and private interests will be given a searching study by a new royal commission.

The commission was appointed Friday and given sweeping power to study the whole field of radio and television and make recommendations on the licensing of private stations, the financing and programming of the publicly-owned CBC and other related questions.

Robert Fowler, 49 next Dec., of Montreal, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, will be the chairman.

The members are: Edmond Turcotte, 57, former newspaper man and now Canadian ambassador to Colombia, and James Stewart, 61, of Toronto, Scottish-born president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Although the commission's terms of reference are broad they do not specifically include a request for a study and recommendations on the question of a separate regulatory body.

That is one thing that has been sought repeatedly by the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, which represents 136 radio and 25 television stations. The CBC now regulates broadcasting.

However, T. J. Allard of Ottawa, executive vice-president of CARTB, said his group is "gratified that the terms of reference are sufficiently large to permit full-scale investigation into and report upon the structure of broadcasting in Canada."

The terms of reference, outlined in an order-in-council setting up the commission, asked for recommendations on:

1. Television broadcasting policies to be followed by the CBC and their relation to the corporation's finances.

2. Measures necessary to ensure an adequate proportion of Canadian programs in public and private television broadcasting.

3. Financial requirements of the CBC in the light of its TV programming conditions.

4. Financial requirements of the CBC for radio broadcasting in the light of its television needs.

5. Management and source of the CBC's finances.

6. Licensing and control of private radio and TV stations.

7. Any other matter the commissioners may choose in reporting to the government.

SEAWAY PROJECT AWARDS MILLIONS IN CONTRACTS

Welland Ship Canal Will Be Deepened

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of $59,000,000 in Canadian contracts has been let so far for the St. Lawrence seaway project and in dollar value they stand about 15 per cent completed.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority made this known as it announced Friday night three new contract awards totalling more than $1,000,000. They are for the deepening of the Welland ship canal in the area between Port Colborne, Ont., and Merrittton, Ont., which will get ships past Niagara falls.

The Welland canal, which affords a 25-foot depth, is to be deepened to the 27-foot requirement of the St. Lawrence seaway standards. The work is to be completed by June, 1958.

FREEZE-UP PAUSE

The authority said winter freeze-up will halt most seaway work, such as deepening operations in Lake St. Louis and Lake St. Francis in the Montreal area. But most of the work, such as earth cuts at Iroquois, Ont., and Cornwall, St. Catherine, Que., will continue through the winter.

Reporting on the year's operations, the authority said construction of the foundations of its new headquarters building at Cornwall is underway and periodic consultations continue with the authorities of the countryside on St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

The part of Canadian authority officials, headed by authority president Hon. Lionel Chevrier, will go to Washington for talks with U.S. authority officials Dec. 9-8. Tolls to be charged when the giant seaway gives deep-sea ships access to the Great Lakes, will be discussed.

The total cost of the seaway-hydro development will be some $900,000,000 and Canada and the United States will share equally the costs.

The mid-January officials of both the Canadian and U.S. Seaway authorities will visit the Panama canal and study the method of operations there and the system of tolls employed.

Announcing the Welland ship canal contracts the authority said work between Lakes 1 and 2 will be carried out by the McNamara Construction Company of Toronto at a cost of $339,755.

The Swanee Construction Company Ltd., Toronto, made a successful bid of $689,260 for work between Lakes 2 and 3. Another contract was let to Aiken and MacLachlan, Ltd., St. Catharines, Ontario, contractors for $104,000 for work on the canal between Locks 3 and 4.

The canal construction work will be carried out during the navigation seasons of 1955-56, 1956-57 and 1957-58.

The ceremony was performed by justice of the peace John Sarman in the Sands hotel. Witnesses included Actress Jennifer Jones, her husband, producer David O. Selznick; Mrs. Louis Jourdan, wife of the actor, and Litvak's agent, Charles Feldman. It is the second marriage for each.

Two Men Nabbed In Bank Holdups, Get Back $21,000

In One Robbery Manager Of Bank Presses Alarm

TORONTO (CP)—Two men tried lone-wolf bank robberies Friday. Loot totalled more than $21,000 but it didn't get far.

One man was tackled on a street after a bank accountant gave chase and $1,100 was recovered. The other man was arrested by police in the bank after the manager pushed an alarm buzzer. Recovered: $20,000.

Gordon Kelly, 30, was charged with robbery after accountant Howard Neal chased and grabbed a bandit fleeing from a downtown branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

IN SUBURB

Gaston Martin, 36, of Quebec City, was charged with the attempted $20,000 robbery of a branch of the Bank of Montreal in suburban North York.

Bank manager W. S. Elkins of the Bank of Montreal said a man came into the bank about 3 p. m., closing time, and asked about purchasing a bond.

When the bank closed, he said, the man produced a gun and demanded all the money. Mr. Elkins said he picked up several thousand dollars and handed it over. At the same time he stepped on the alarm button concealed in the floor.

Four constables arrived outside the bank minutes later. When they saw the bank manager being held at gun point they drew their own guns. The man surrendered.

PRETENDED HAD GUN

The other attempt occurred about an hour earlier. A man lowered the downtown bank and passed a note asking for money to Mrs. Ann Elsby, a teller. He was carrying some rolled up overalls and had a paisthrush shoved in his glove to give the impression he had a gun.

The note read:

"Don't sound the alarm or you'll be dead. Pass out all the bills. Give me a day of time or I'll get you later."

No Christmas Cheques For Wheat Farmers

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Cheques totalling $3,779,600, the final payment by the prairie wheat board on the 1954-55 oats crop, are going out in the mails Monday.

But there will be no Christmas cheque in sight for the Canadian wheat farmer whose storage bins are groaning with unmarketable grain.

And if the wheat board follows the pattern of past years, it will be some time before there is any further payment on last year's crop. Both opposition and some in the limited deliveries so far made from this year's crop probably will be later still.

J. G. Sanderson, Lacombe, president of the Interprovincial Farm Union Council, predicted Thursday that the initial price is all the farmer will get on this year's crop.

HAVE NO COMMENT

Wheat board officials here said they had "no comment" to make on Mr. Sanderson's view. Nor would they comment on the prospects for further payments on last year's crop.

Canada has a tremendous backlog of wheat for the result of four bumper crops over a five-year period, increased competition and a shrinking world market.

The board closed out the 1953-54 crop April 30 after 21 months in which 548,000,000 bushels of wheat, valued at 1,000,000,000 was sold.

Not all the wheat in that pool had been sold. The board transferred the remaining 100,000,000 bushels to the 1954-55 pool. How close the 1954-55 crop has been sold is not known.

BEGINS AUG. 1

The wheat board's crop year begins Aug. 1 and it is usually after that date it makes an initial payment to the farmer for wheat delivered to country elevators.

The initial payment is based on the Lakehead price of $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 Northern, Canada's topgrade wheat. Because of the huge backlog in storage, farm delivery has been restricted by a delivery quota. The wheat board does not pay the farmer for grain delivered on his farm—only for what he delivers to the elevator.

The wheat board usually pays the farmer an adjustment or interim payment during the pool. Then, when it has a fairly good general market picture as forecast by the government, a payment is usually made when the board closes out the pool.

Husband Held for Questioning After Wife, Hired Man Slain

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — A 32-year-old farmer is being held by provincial police for questioning about the shooting Friday night of his wife and hired man.

Mrs. Edna Rass, 36, and Hendrick Werkhoudt, 51, were shot dead in Rass' South Norwick township farm home four miles east of here.

Police were called by the dead woman's husband, Gerhard Rass, now held in custody. A .2-calibre rifle was found in the living room of the home.

Daniel Murray Rass, son of the dead woman, was outside the house at the time, police said.

Ottawa Prepares New Legal Fight To Close Stores

OTTAWA (CP)—The city of Ottawa Friday prepared new legal moves in its fight to enforce an early closing by-law against the stores in the south-side Billings Bridge shopping plaza. Meanwhile the dispute spread to a second shopping centre—this one in west Ottawa.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton said the city intends to lay police court charges "to the legal limit open to us" against stores which stay open evenings contrary to the by-law.

This followed Thursday's rejection by the Supreme Court of Ontario in Toronto of the city's bid for a temporary injunction against the six Billings Bridge stores. They have been open Thursday and Friday nights until 9 p.m. The by-law specifies 7 p.m. closing for food stores and 6 p.m. for other shops.

TO MAKE TOURS

Friday the majority of stores in the Westgate shopping centre decided to match the action of the Billings Bridge stores, starting Friday night until after Christmas.

The situation has already meant a considerable loss to merchants here to Westgate and something had to be done about it," said Peter Durette, Westgate administrator.

Downtown stores are sliding by the by-law, as is the Westgate branch of a downtown department store.

The shopping centre stores maintain their area's breaking the by-law. They say it was passed in 1919 and does not apply to them because they are in areas annexed in 1950.

The city, balked in its attempt for an interim injunction, will seek a permanent injunction at sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario early next year.

WEEKEND GUESTS

ROMSEY—ENGLAND (Reuter)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are spending this weekend as guests of Earl and Countess Mountbatten at their home here, where the royal couple spent their honeymoon.

Former Tennis Star Found Dead in Garage

OTTAWA (CP) — Miss Phyllis S. Rykert, 55, one-time tennis and badminton champion, was found dead in a garage behind her home Friday and an autopsy was ordered to determine cause of death.

Police found Miss Rykert slumped beside the car in the garage. The ignition key was turned on but the motor was not running. Police said the woman had been dead for some days.

Officers said they found a note by her house, where she lived alone, saying she was feeling well and was going to hospital for a check up.

Born in Montreal, she was active in tennis and badminton circles for many years and captured a number of national and provincial titles.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Under the strong southeastward push of a large high pressure area moving out of Manitoba into Ontario this morning very cold air has covered northern Ontario and threatens southern sections today. The extensive fog which is prevalent over southern Ontario will clear with the invasion of the cold air and temperatures will rise to crop sharply resulting in a very cold night throughout the province.

Football Stars Charged With Assault

HAMILTON (CP) — Two western Canada football stars have been accused of punching and kicking a man in a downtown bar where they had gone for a few drinks.

Halfback Johnny Bright, 25, and linebacker Ray Willsey, 28, both with the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos, were charged Friday with common assault. They were released on $100 bail and are to play in the East-West all-star classic in Toronto today.

Bright and Willsey were ordered to appear in court Monday. The charges were laid after a complaint by Kenneth Ayden, 25, who said he was punched and kicked at the bar Thursday night.

Bright and Willsey, two western players, who were practising here for the all-star engagement, had gone to the tavern "for a few drinks."

"We were sitting at a table when a fellow kept coming over and bothering us," said Bright. "Both evidently he turned and took a poke at (Edmonton quarterback) Jackie Parker. Then he hit me. I barely really we don't have to take that sort of thing."

Tugs and Men Battle to Keep Lachine Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Scores of men and three ice-breaking tugs worked against time and the weatherman today to keep the Lachine canal open until some 50 ships carrying grain could get by and crips back from the Great Lakes.

The vessels were inching along through the ice and slush when navigation tried to chop the ice away with a powerful load of explosives. Six vessels—all lakeboats—arrived in Montreal Friday but the ocean vessels, threatened with being trapped inland for the winter season, were still trying to reach Montreal and the open St. Lawrence river before the canal is closed.

The department of transport announced Thursday that the canal would be kept open until Dec. 10 but Hamish Lorrain, district superintendent of canals, says the date may have to be advanced if cold weather continues. All the canal with ice.

CAN CLOSE MILLIONS

Shipping officials said they stand to lose millions of dollars if the 20 ocean-going ships are stranded above Montreal.

Eight ships, bound for Montreal were waiting in the Welland section of Lachine canal while three tugs moved back and forth, trying to break up the ice. Another eight lakeboats heading for the Great Lakes were waiting in the eastern here.

Mr. Barcelo said workers were doing everything possible to get the ships moving but "without a spell of decent temperature, our efforts may not be enough."

There was little hope of warmer weather for the weekend, with the weatherman predicting a high of 30 for today and no change Sunday.

True Parents Lose Fight To Win Babies

TORONTO (CP)—The true parents of twin boys born in Toronto Maat have lost their fight to win the babies from the childless couple who have cared for them since birth.

A motion for the return of the 17-month-old twins was denied Friday in a Supreme Court of Ontario judgment which placed unceasing affection of the foster parents above the claims of the natural mother and father.

It is ruling that the twins should remain with the adoptive parents. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bruce, 39, Cookville, Ont., instead of being returned to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maat, a Dutch immigrant couple, Mr. Justice H. W. Treleaven said: "It is the love and care placed upon birth, the Heptons have had the children. They have learned to love them dearly. The children on the other hand have known no other parents. They are walking and beginning to talk and I have no hesitation in concluding to love their foster parents."

SYMPATHY FOR PARENTS

The decision, he said, was made "not without a very sympathetic consideration for the claims of the natural parents."

The twins were born June 25, 1954. The Dutch-immigrant couple said they gave the boys up for adoption because of financial and other circumstances. They said later relations by had done the wrong thing and sought to get the twins back.

Mrs. Maat was shocked when she heard the decision.

"I can't believe it," she said. "I won't believe it." she said.

The Maats replied that the sees they will be able to keep the boys.

Calgary Mayor Digs Spurs Into Toronto Critics

TORONTO (CP)—A dyed-in-the-wool westerner, Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, Friday dug his spurs into the critics of Toronto's eastern-style antics of the Grey Cup football game.

The mayor, in a letter to Toronto newspapers, promised "sharp rations to the critics if they ever "take their thoughts westward."

The letter came from a committee of Toronto church and temperance groups after Mayor Phillip Gray of Board of Trade entered in the preGame parade in Vancouver last Saturday.

"I consider it unfortunate and quite decidedly unfair," he said, "to have people give of time, effort, enthusiasm . . . only to have everything they worked for held up to ridicule.

"Those who criticize may enjoy climbing up in the saddle and riding back to the rear of the parade."

Mrs. Maat was shocked when she heard the decision.

"I can't believe it," she said. "I won't believe it." she said.

The Maats replied that the sees they will be able to keep the boys.

RCAF Transport Plane Crashes In France, 6 Canadians Are Killed

MONTMEDY, France (CP)—Six Canadian airmen were killed and eight injured, one critically, when an RCAF transport plane crashed just short of the runway at Marville air base today.

The plane was believed to have been flying from there to Marville air base, home field of a Canadian fighter wing, and was reported to have been a Bristol from a Canadian air base in England.

The plane fell two miles south of here after taking off from the big Canadian field at Cpus Tenquin, near Metz, at 10:45 a. m. It had been expected to land at Marville to pick up more passengers. The plane was destroyed.

Garrison Ball Highlight Of Social Season

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The capital's red carpet social life Friday night To four debutantes it was the longest carpet in the world.

It was rolled out for nearly 1,000 guests, including Governor-General Massey and other chiefs of state, at the annual Garrison Ball.

The Chateau Laurier ballroom was a rainbow whirl of billowing evening gowns and be-medalled military uniforms as the cream of the social-military muster of the season.

It was an event announced by the fanfare of six RCAF coronation trumpeters and six pipers. Dinner was served to the tune of military music played by the band of HMCS Stadacona from Halifax and punctuated by officers rising while their toasts to royalty were played.

The Garrison Ball has become a tradition in Ottawa and a highlight of the social season.

Nationalist China Could Block 'Package Deal' Proposed by Canada

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The hopes of 18 applicants for admission to the United Nations today appeared to hinge on the attitude of Nationalist Chinese opposition to the Canadian - sponsored proposal that would grant them membership.

As a permanent member of the Security Council Nationalist China has the power of the veto, which could block the "package deal" under article 27 of the charter. It is sponsored by the West and five by the East — would swell the ranks of the UN's present 60 members.

The Canadian proposal, backed by 23 co-sponsoring countries, was bitterly assailed Friday by Chinese delegate T. F. Tsiang, who told the assembly's political committee it had been conceived in the interests of expediency.

Tsiang was most vehement in his opposition to the admission of Outer Mongolia, a Soviet republic which he said is a Chinese territory. But he also spoke against the membership bids of the other Russian - backed states — Albania, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary.

Tsiang did not mention the veto, although there have been previous hints by Nationalist Chinese spokesmen that it would be employed in the Security Council meets to consider any membership applications. UN diplomats still hope that Chiang Kai-shek's government can be persuaded to take a less drastic stand on the issue.

Other UN members, including the United States, have expressed reservations concerning the qualifications of Outer Mongolia for membership. But Russian spokesmen, while favoring the resolution covering all 18 applicants, have insisted that Outer Mongolia must be included.

Adult Buck Deer Born In Zoo Released

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) An adult deer from the local zoo, born in captivity, was released into nature today. The measure is expected to help officials try to reduce the herd at Bellevue park's deer enclosure.

Park superintendent Hugh Ingram said deer have previously been transferred to other parks, but this is the first time one has been railed in captivity has been born in the park and given a Great Lakes passage in the province.

The island's name is being withheld to reduce temptation to illegal hunters.

Application Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC board of governors recommended approval Friday of an application for an experimental television station on Channel 10 at Belleville, made by Stewart-Warner Electronics of Chicago Ltd. The recommendation was made for a licence subject to cancellation when a TV station starts daytime operations in that area.

The CBC said the Belleville licence is desirable, with power limits provided the station is used only for receiving antenna design and development tests of the Stewart-Warner factory.

The board recommended deferment on a second CBC TV request by CFRA for an experimental television station at Almonte, Ont., to extend the range of its broadcasts.

SEAWAY PROJECT AWARDS MILLIONS IN CONTRACTS

Welland Ship Canal Will Be Deepened

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of $30,000,000 in Canadian contracts has been let so far for the St. Lawrence seaway project and in dollar value they stand about 15 per cent completed.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority made this known as it announced Friday night three new contract awards totalling more than $1,000,000. They are for the deepening of the Welland ship canal in the area between Port Weller, Ont., and Merritton, Ont., which will get ships past Niagara falls.

The Welland canal, which affords a 25-foot depth, is to be deepened to the 27-foot requirement of the St. Lawrence seaway standards. The work is to be completed by June, 1958.

FREEZE-UP PAUSE

The authority said winter freeze-up will halt the seaway work, such as deepening operations in Lake St. Clair and Lake St. Francis in the Montreal area. But most of the work, such as earth cuts at Iroquois, Ont., and Cote St.-Catherine, Que., will continue through the winter.

Reporting on the year's operations, the authority said construction of the foundations of its new headquarters building at Cornwall is underway and periodic progress relations continue with the authorities of Massena, opposite St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

A party of Canadian authority officials, headed by authority president Lt.-Gen. Leonard Cavelle, will go to Washington for talks with U.S. authority officials Dec. 8-9. Tolls to be charged when the giant seaway gives deep-sea ships access to the Great Lakes, will be discussed.

The total cost of the seaway-hydro development will be some $100,000,000 and Canada and the United States are splitting the costs.

The mid-January officials of both the Canadian and U.S. Seaway groups will visit the Panama canal and study the locking operations there and the system of tolls collection.

Announcing the Welland ship canal contracts the authority said work between Locks 1 and 2 will be carried out by the McNamara Construction Company of Toronto at a cost of $339,755.

The Swansea Construction Company Ltd., Toronto, made a successful bid of $689,200 for work between locks 3 and 4 at Allanburg, Aiken and MacLachlan, Ltd., St. Catharines, was successful bid of $104,000 for work on the canal between locks 4 and 5.

Two Men Nabbed In Bank Holdups, Get Back $21,000

In One Robbery Manager Of Bank Presses Alarm

TORONTO (CP)—Two men tried lone-wolf bank robberies Friday. Loot totalled more than $21,000 but it didn't get far.

One man was tackled on a street after a bank accountant gave chase and $1,100 was recovered. The other man was arrested by police in the bank after the manager pushed an alarm buzzer. Recovered: $20,000.

Gordon Blair, 30, was charged with robbery after accountant Howard Neal chased and grabbed for a bandit fleeing from a downtown branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

IN SUBURB

Gaston Martin, 26, of Quebec City, was charged with the attempted $20,000 robbery of a branch of the Bank of Montreal in suburban North York.

Bank manager W. S. Elkins of the Bank of Montreal said a man came into the bank about 3 p. m., threatened him, and asked about purchasing a bond.

When the bank closed, he said, the man produced a gun and demanded all the money. Mr. Elkins said he locked up several thousand dollars and handed it over. At the same time he stepped on the alarm button under the floor.

Four constables arrived outside the bank minutes later. When they saw the bank manager being held up at gun point they drew their own guns. The man surrendered.

PRETENDED HAD GUNS

The other attempt occurred about an hour earlier. A man entered the downtown bank and passed a note asking for money to Mrs. Ann Elsby, a teller. He was carrying some rolled up overalls and had a paintbrush shoved in his glove to give the impression he had a gun.

The note read:

"Don't scream the alarm or you'll be dead. Pass out all the bills. Make me lots of time or I'll get you later."

No Christmas Cheques For Wheat Farmers

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Cheques totalling $3,779,600, the final payment by the Canadian Wheat Board on the 1954-55 oats crop, are going out in the mails Monday.

But there'll be no Christmas cheque in sight for the Canadian wheat farmer whose storage bins are groaning with unmarketable grain.

And if the wheat board follows the pattern of the 1954-55 crop, it will be some time before three is any further payment on last year's crop. Subsequent payments are then limited deliveries so far made from this year's crop probably will be later still.

In Saskatoon, Jake Schulz, president of the Interprovincial Farm Union Council, predicted Thursday that the initial price is all the farmer will get on this year's wheat crop.

HAVE NO COMMENT

Wheat board officials here said they had "no comment" to make on the 1955-56 crop. They said they would they comment on the prospects for further payments on last year's crop.

Canada has a tremendous backlog of wheat as the result of four bumper crops over a five-year period, increased competition and a shrinking world market.

The board closed out the 1953-54 crop April 30 after 21 months in which 548,000,000 bushels of wheat, valued at $1,000,000,000 were sold.

Not all the wheat in that pool had been sold. The board transferred the remaining 164,000,000 bushels to the 1954-55 pool. How much of that quantity has been sold is not known.

The wheat board's crop year begins Aug. 1 every year and after that date it makes an initial payment in the form of a cheque delivered to country elevators.

The initial payment is based on a basket price of $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 Northern, Canada's top-grade wheat. Because of the heavy backlog in storage, farmers elsewhere have been restricted by a delivery quota. The wheat board does not pay the farmer for grain delivered on his farm—only for what duce the herd at Bellevue park's dairy colony.

The superintendent Hugh Hazlitt said deer have previously been transferred to other parks, but this is the first time one was raised in captivity has been put back into the wilds, and given the Great Lakes passage in the process.

The island's name is being withheld to reduce temptation to illegal hunters.

Nationalist China Could Block 'Package Deal' Proposed by Canada

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The hopes of 18 applicants for admission to the United Nations today appeared to hinge on the exchanging Nationalist Chinese opposition to the Canadian - sponsored proposals that would grant them UN membership.

As a permanent member of the powerful Security Council, Nationalist China has the power of the veto, which could block any recommendation by under which the 18 countries — 13 sponsored by the West and five by the East — would enroll the members.

The Canadian proposal, backed by 23 co-sponsoring countries, was bitterly assailed Friday by Chinese delegate T. F. Tsiang, who told the UN General Assembly's special committee it had been conceived in the interests of expediency.

Tsiang was most vehement in his opposition to the admission of Outer Mongolia, a Soviet republic which once was Chinese territory. But he also spoke against the membership bids of the other Russian - backed states — Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

Tsiang did not mention the veto, although there have been previous hints. A National Chinese spokesman that it would be employed when the Security Council meets to consider new members. Diplomats still hope that Chiang Kai-shek's government can be persuaded to take a less drastic stand on the issue.

Other UN members, including the United States, have expressed reservations concerning the qualifications of Outer Mongolia for membership. But Russian spokesmen, while favouring the resolution in principle, have repeatedly have insisted that Outer Mongolia must be included.

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — A 32-year-old farmer is being held by provincial police for questioning about the shooting Friday night of his wife and hired man.

Mrs. Edna Rees, 36, and Hendrick Werkhoven, 23, were shot dead in the Rees' South Norwich township farm home four miles east of here.

Police were called by the dead woman's husband, Gerrard Rees, now held in custody. A .2-calibre rifle was found in the living room of the home.

Daniel Murray Rees, son of the dead woman, was outside the house at the time, police said.

Ottawa Prepares New Legal Fight To Close Stores

OTTAWA (CP)—The city of Ottawa Friday prepared new legal moves in its fight to enforce an early-closing by-law against six stores in the south-side Billings Bridge shopping plaza. Meanwhile the dispute spread to a second shopping centre—this one in west Ottawa.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton said the city will proceed to lay police court charges "to the legal limit open to us" against stores which stay open evenings contrary to the by-law.

This followed Thursday's rejection by the Supreme Court of Ontario in Toronto of the city's bid for a temporary injunction against the six Billings Bridge stores. They have been open Thursday and Friday nights until 9 p.m. The by-law requires 6 p.m. closing for food stores and 6 p.m. for other shops.

TO MATCH HOURS

Friday the majority of stores in the Westgate shopping centre decided to match the hours of the Billings Bridge stores, starting Friday night until 9 o'clock, Herman Mast, a Dutch immigrant couple, Mr. Justice D. M. Treleaven said:

"The situation has already meant a considerable loss to merchants here to Westgate and something had to be done about it," said Mrs. Whitton. "It is nothing short of traitor.

Downtown stores are abiding by the by-law, as is the Westgate branch of a downtown department store.

The shopping centre stores maintain they aren't breaking the by-law. They say it was passed in 1919 and does not apply to them because they are in areas annexed in 1950.

The city, balked in its attempt for an interim injunction, will seek a permanent injunction at sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario early next year.

TORONTO (CP)—The true parents of twin boys have suffered a third blow as their last fight to win the babies from the childless couple who have cared for them since birth.

In ruling that the twins should remain with the adoptive parents, Mr. Justice D. W. Treleaven said: Cooksville, Ont., instead of being awarded to the Rev. and Mrs. Herman Mast, a Dutch immigrant couple, Mr. Justice D. W. Treleaven said:

"In the 17 months since their birth, the Heptons have had the opportunity to learn and to love them dearly. The children on their part, they have come to love their parents. They are walking and beginning to talk and I have no doubt that they consider and love their foster parents."

Calgary Mayor Digs Spurs Into Toronto Critics

TORONTO (CP)—A dyed-in-the-wool westerner, Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, Friday night put spurs into the critics of Toronto's preparations for the Grey Cup football game.

The mayor, in a letter to Toronto newspapers, prominent organizations to the critics if hey ever take their fellow Canadians seriously.

The reference was to criticism by Toronto church and temperance groups of the Grey Cup game. The Board of Trade entered in the pre-game picture. In Vancouver last Saturday.

"I consider it unfortunate and most decidedly unfair," he said, "to have people give of time, effort, enthusiasm . . . and money over something they worked for held up to ridicule.

"Those who criticize may enjoy climbing up in the saddle and riding hard [illegible] from the ranks of people, young and old, who tried to do a job for the queen city of Toronto."

ON GROUNDS OF TASTE

Main criticism of the floats was that they were in bad taste. One clergyman said they were "like a dirty joke."

Board of Trade officials said the floats were meant as a gag—"aimed at poking a little fun at ourselves."

To any criticism of the goodwill train that visited Toronto for the game, the mayor said he, himself, was on the train that took Calgary fans to Toronto for the 1948 Grey Cup classic.

The first cup parade was held that year.

"We found out you are people who are as essentially human, friendly co-operative . . . and as firmly dedicated to Canadian goals will as any like group of people within this nation," the mayor said.

Bright and Willsey were ordered to appear in court Monday. The charges were laid after a complaint by Bert Snyder, 45, Hamilton, who said he was punched and kicked at the bar Thursday night.

Bright and eight other western players, who were practising here for the all-star engagement, had gone to the tavern for a few drinks.

"We were sitting at a table when a fellow kept coming over and bothering us," Bright said. "He was evidently he turned and took a poke at Edmonton quarterback Jackie Parker. Then he hit me. Naturally we don't have to take that sort of thing."

For and Against the By-Laws

When they go to the polls Monday, Belleville citizens will not only have to elect a mayor, aldermen, public utilities commissioner and school trustees but will also have to provide the answers to three questions.

Two of these questions are general, involving no expenditure of money. On these two questions every municipal elector has a vote.

One of the questions involves the expenditure of money and on this only property owners may vote.

The first question is:

"Are you in favor of reducing the present council consisting of 14 aldermen and the mayor to a council consisting of eight aldermen and the mayor, four aldermen to be elected alternately for a term of two years?"

That question requires little explanation. If the voters give an affirmative answer, Belleville would change to a nine-member council, consisting of the mayor, elected annually, and eight aldermen, four of whom would be elected each year for two-year terms.

One of the main arguments of those supporting this change is the contention that a reduction in the size of the council would lessen the time spent in debate and that this would speed council's work. It is also contended that with a smaller council there would be a greater likelihood that all the members would be highly capable men or women.

Opponents fear that a reduction in the size of council would make it easier for a "clique" to assume control. The argument has also been advanced that eight aldermen could not possibly do as much work in all its branches as fourteen and that a smaller council would make adoption of the city manager form of municipal government essential.

"Are you in favor of the passage of a by-law for placing the management of the sewage system of the City of Belleville under the Public Utilities Commission of Belleville established under the Public Utilities Act when the sewage system includes the disposal or purification of sewage by filtration or other artificial means?"

Main reason for the proposed change would appear to be the feeling that payment of the cost of a sewage disposal plant out of general taxes would not be equitable. Transfer of control of sewers and sewage disposal problems to utilities commissions has been advocated in many Ontario communities. It is argued that those who use sewerage should pay for its disposal. Generally speaking, the amount of sewage which is created by any individual, organization or group is in direct proportion to the amount of water purchased. Therefore, it is argued, the cost of sewage disposal plants should be paid for by a sewer service charge, which would be applied to water purchased. Only those few exceptions to the general rule where water is used is not later emptied into sewers.

Opponents of the charge argue that this would create two engineering departments, since engineers are busy laying up and repairing city streets and sidewalks, since sewers run under these streets and sidewalks. Among those citizens who plan to vote in the negative are some who agree with the argument that sewage disposal costs should be paid for through a sewer service charge, rather than out of general taxes, but who contend that too little information has yet been given the public on this matter. Also, it is argued, a decision is not required at the present time and that there ought to be a way of obtaining the benefits of relating sewage disposal cost to water consumption without at the same time creating dual engineering departments.

There is some thought, as well, there is too little information available on this question and that the whole matter should be delayed another year at least. In that time the proposal could be put in such concrete form that the public would have no trouble assessing its true worth.

The third question, on which property owners only vote, is:

"Are you in favor of the City of Belleville constructing a retaining wall approximately 12 feet high along the east bank of the Moira River from the foot of Chesterfield Avenue northerly 250 feet, filling in, surfacing and metering same to provide a municipal parking lot for approximately 234 cars at an estimated cost of $15,0017"

The proposed parking lot would be on the bank of the Moira River, at the rear of the stores from the footbridge to Foley's Foundry.

Supporters of the plan maintain that the parking problem in Belleville is acute, that vigorous action is necessary and that delay will not only make the problem more difficult but will probably make eventual solution more costly. The project, it is argued, would pay for itself through parking fees.

Most opponents base their stand on the question of cost, whether the city can afford such an expenditure, whether it would receive full value for the money spent. There have, however, been some suggestions that the provision of adequate parking space for shoppers is not rightly a duty of the municipality, but rather a matter for action by the merchants in the down-town area, either individually or co-operatively.

It is well to keep in mind that, in the event the question is approved by the electors, there are some obstacles which must be overcome. It is not known that much of the river-side property is owned by private interests the city council cannot spend funds on the proposed development without—

(1) Approval of the Municipal Board.

(2) Obtaining a quit claim or long lease from each property owner along the river area.

(3) Permission of Federal and Provincial Governments.

The above is a safeguard in the interests of the taxpayer.

In view of the outlined requirements, opponents of the question believe that further delay is necessary until a plan is developed to the point where it may be dealt with in a businesslike manner.

Federal Govt. Pays First Instalment on Hospital Fund

The Department of National Health and Welfare has announced that it has approved payment of the first instalment of its grant toward the cost of construction of the new addition to the Belleville General Hospital.

Frank S. Maxwell, M. P. for South Hastings, made the announcement today following receipt of information from the Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare.

First payment which has been announced will be approximately $32,080. This amount is 25 per cent of the federal government's total grant of approximately $128,320.

The sum was received by Mr. Fallwell and dated Nov. 23rd, 1955, in as follows:

"Dear Frank:

"I thought you might be interested in learning that we have recently approved a federal health grant toward the cost of in addition to the Belleville General Hospital.

"Under the provisions of the Orders in Council governing hospital construction grants federal aid is paid in instalments depending on the rate at which construction progresses and the last instalment is payable when the additional facilities are completed and in operation. For the Belleville General Hospital project the initial federal grant will be approximately $128,320, with the first instalment being about one-quarter of that amount.

"I trust that this substantial contribution on the part of the federal government will aid in ensuring more adequate hospital facilities for the people of Belleville."

Yours sincerely,
Paul Martin.

In ancient India the name for tuberculosis was Rajrog, which means king of diseases, and it was thought that to cure it was beyond even the power of the gods. Today thousands of patients are cured in India as in other lands, though deaths in the world as a whole are still about 15,000 daily. The objective now is to prevent the disease. The Christmas Seal Sale being conducted at present is to raise funds for a preventive program.

Planning Minister to Inspect Site of College Street Dam

The Hon. W. N. Nickle, Minister of Planning and Development for the Ontario Government, will be invited to attend the January meeting of the Moira River Conservation Authority early next year and to inspect the site of the proposed College Street dam.

This was decided at the final meeting of the Authority for 1955 held Friday afternoon at Shire Hall in Belleville. Construction of the College Street dam is proposed as an ice control measure aimed at the elimination of spring floods at Belleville.

Nineteen Authority members and six visitors attended the meeting presided over by Alderman Ernie Smith, chairman of the Authority. W. E. Sandercock, M.P.P. for Hastings West, was appointed vice-chairman.

The meeting adopted the financial report of Mrs. Cress, Col. R. Vanderwater and instructed him to employ the services of the C. A. McFadden Company to audit the 1955 accounts.

Lorne Forster and E. Edwards presented the reforestation report and recommended the purchase of an additional 432 acres in Hungerford and Elzevir townships at a cost of $2,500 to be used for reforestation purposes.

Earl Sage gave a report on the restoration of the O'Hara Mill Property in Madoc township and along with Mr. K. Crowe was complimented by Mr. A. H. Richardson, conservation engineer for the Department of Planning and Development.

The meeting decided to accept the Lingham Lake property from the Department of Lands and Forests. This body of water is a man-made lake covering nine square miles with a shoreline of approximately 128 miles.

INACCESSIBLE BY ROAD

Located in the northern part of Grimsthorpe township, the lake property is inaccessible by road and the expenditure on the lake can be used to impound water to assist in maintaining a steady summer flow of water in the Moira River and in Stoco Lake.

The Authority recommended to the budget committee that the same levy be raised for 1956 as for this year.

Mr. Michael Chubb, field officer for the Authority, was introduced to the meeting by the chairman and rendered his report.

Beginning in the New Year, Mr. Chubb will be available to show slides and films on the work of the Authority to service clubs, Women's Institutes, primary and secondary schools and farm organizations.

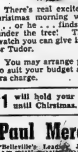
Three District Youths Held For Break-Ins

Provincial police have arrested three Belleville district youths on a charge of breaking and entering and theft at the Pascoe General Store at Melrose where a quantity of men's wear was stolen earlier in the week.



Arrested and charged with the offence are George McFarland, 19, of Prince Edward County; Glen McCue, and Jim Georgy, both 18, of Thurlow township.

In addition to the Melrose offence, Jim George is also charged with entering Gurnick's store at the intersection of No. 2 Highway and the Point Anne lane. Approximately $100 worth of merchandise was stolen at Gurnick's, all of which has been recovered.

Approximately 95 per cent of the goods stolen at Melrose has also been recovered.

The three youths will appear in county magistrate's court next Thursday.

IN MEMORIAM

EMPEY. — In loving memory of our dear daughter, Pte. Ina Mae Empey, who died December 4th, 1954.
Sadly missed by the shock severe,
A little thought and she was near;
A little while we sat and wept,
Then kissed her lips and left her asleep.
To those who think of her today
A little prayer is all we say.
That they who took her for the best,
Christ bless, heal, and comfort.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Dad.

EMPEY. — In loving memory of our dear daughter, Ina Mae, who died December 4th, 1954.
Beautiful memories are all we have of Ina.
Of her will power and heart of truest;
Her loving smile and happy face.
In broken hearts she left a void
Sad was the parting no one can tell.
Memories are treasures no one can steal.
Death's cruel hand our loss could can heal.
Only those who have lost are able to tell.
The pain of our hearts of not saying farewell.
—Sadly missed by mother, dad, sisters and brothers.

EMPEY. — In loving memory of a dear sister, Pte. Ina Mae Empey, who died December 4th, 1954, and was buried at Stirling, Ontario, two days later.
The one we loved was called away,
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
—Lovingly remembered by brother Art and Betty Empey.

HARRISON. — In memory of a dear friend, Orville, who died on December 4th, 1954.
Why happy days of love we share
When happy hours we spend
Why happy hearts are we
To hear her voice and see her smile,
But memories are sweet.
—Ever remembered by Pearl.

STRONG. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, William Strong, who died very December 3rd, 1933.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps his memory ever dear;
Time cannot heal the wound we feel,
But memory keeps it fresh and green.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Alice and family.

STORMS. — In loving memory of our father, William Storms, who died December 3rd, 1953.
Dear Dad, we loved you best so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Peaceful is the heart that's at rest,
But not too far for thought to reach.
A heart that's true to you we knew,
And when through absent, lives on memory.
—Ever remembered by son Bill and daughter-in-law Marjorie.

Hurting Others

By NANCY CLEAVER

Have you ever gone to the window to see how your junior and his small neighbor Tommy are playing together in the sand pile, just in time to see Junior hit his little shovel and give the unsuspecting Tommy a vigorous bat over the head? What have you done about it?

A mother is usually annoyed and dismayed when she sees her child hurt another child. Her usual reaction is to rush to the scene of action, comfort the sobbing victim, and scold her youngster for his cruel behavior. Her son certainly must not grow up to be a little savage!

Perhaps he didn't realize that he was inflicting much pain to Tommy. Junior may have been experimenting. He wanted to see what Tommy would do if he gave him a wallop. Or Tommy may have been in his way. Junior had told him a couple of times to get out of the road of the tunnel he was digging. Tommy had acted as if he didn't hear. So this was Junior's method of making Tommy, who was smaller than him, do as he was told.

Mother may find the weeping Tommy insists on going home to mother. She will do well to take her Junior indoors, remove his shovel from him, and tell him firmly, "You cannot hurt Tommy. Mother will put your shovel away until you can play with it in the sand and not hit another child over the head!"

ONE WAY TO CURE

Likely Junior will learn this lesson that he cannot harm others without severe punishment. Some parents think that if their child shows his hostility to another by hitting, or worse still, by pulling hair, or kicking or biting or scratching, that they will cure him by treating him in the same way. A mother may boast, "I made him know what it feels like—and then I stood over him and forced him to apologize". This punishment method may seem to work, but it doesn't remove the cause of the child's behaviour.

Why has he hurt his companion? Children have reasons for their reactions. It is natural for a mother to want to excuse her youngster. If, as she soothes the hurt child she says of her own boy, "Junior didn't mean he was going to hurt you so much!" or "I guess Junior is getting tired and that's why he gave you a bang. It is time he came indoors and had a little rest before his meal."

It is true that a very young child may hurt another unintentionally. Junior may be so absorbed in having his turn to go whizzing down a slide that he never stops to consider that he may land on Ann. She is rather slow-moving and is still sitting on the ground at the bottom of the slide right in his way. If she gets knocked over and bruised, Junior just figures it is her fault. She should have gotten out of the road.

SUPERVISION NEEDED

This kind of hurting is an accident. But the slide for small children must be supervised until Junior learns that he cannot take his turn until the way is clear. Mother may try to impress on him that he must take care in his play not to hurt another child. Responsibility for another's safety rests lightly on the shoulders of a member of the family of 3.

But it is quite possible he knew what he was doing. If a child often hurts another child, and seems to get pleasure in this anti-social action, then the mother is indeed concerned. She can do a lot indirectly by sufficient supervision, that the aggressive hurting action is avoided. When Junior is annoyed at Tommy's refusal to move, mother can give an "assist" in carrying out this reasonable request, or she may divert the children's attention by suggesting another play activity.

Perhaps Junior is bursting with energy and needs more physical outlets for his aggressiveness. If he is occupied with climbing equipment, a swing, a big ball to kick, or pounding board, he is not so likely to be pushing his chums around hurting them. Satisfaction in these activities may prevent him from indulging in getting his fun out of hurting others.

No parent wants his child to grow into a sadistic adult who gets pleasure in making others squirm. Grown-ups do not clout another over the head. But by the weapons of ridicule and sarcasm, they do reveal inner hostility and the desire to harm another. Be sure you save your child from forming the habit of inflicting pain on another and getting a kick out of it!

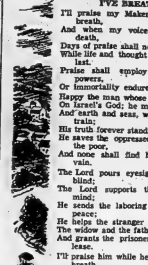
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

I'LL PRAISE MY MAKER WHILE I'VE BREATH



I'll praise my Maker while I've breath,
And when my voice is lost in death,
Praise shall employ my nobler powers,
My days of praise shall ne'er be past,
While life and thought and being last,
Or immortality endures.

Happy the man whose hopes repose
On Israel's God; he made the sky
And earth and seas, with all their forms;

He holds the truth forever stands secure;
He saves the oppressed, he feeds the poor,
And none shall find his promise vain.

The Lord pours eyesight on the blind;
The Lord supports the fainting mind;
He sends the laboring conscience peace;
He helps the stranger in distress,
The widow and the fatherless,
And grants the prisoner sweet release.

I'll praise him while he lends me breath,
And when my voice is lost in death,
Praise shall employ my nobler powers;
My days of praise shall ne'er be past,
While life and thought and being last,
Or immortality endures.

The psalmist, for his own part, promises that "while I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have my being".

Dr. Isaac Watts has put the Bible words into modern verses, cited above. When he published his hymn in 1719 he gave it the title, "Praise To God For His Goodness And Truth". Nineteen years later, the song was carried from England to America by John Wesley, founder of Methodism, when he and his brother, Charles, crossed the Atlantic for a missionary crusade.

John Wesley loved Watts' hymn of praise all his life. It is said that he asked that it be sung one February night in 1791 just before he preached his last sermon at the City Road Chapel in London. Less than a week later he was stricken with the illness from which he never rallied and shortly before his death he amazed his family and friends by singing the entire first verse of the song. Later, he tried to sing it again, but could only give expression to the first two words, "I'll Praise". He repeated these over and over just before he slipped away into the glory land.

A Lift For Living

Keeping Spiritual Balance

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

The late Reverend "Dick" Shepard, so long the beloved minister of Saint Martins-in-the-Field, London, said that he never bet on a horse race but once. And that occasion was just after he had talked with a rural pharmic old lady, who so r a n t e d against the evils of gambling that in reaction he went at once to the race track and placed his bet.

Doctor Sheppard went on to say that if we wish to win youth to Christian ideals, we ought not to call the words which he read on some English match boxes. The words are these, "Play Hard Fair."

I think we all see his point. Sometimes, even in trying to improve people, when we "rub it in" too hard, we rub it out. We can so push our zeal in a good cause that we become fanatics or zealots and spoil our influence. Almost any virtue when carried to extremes verges toward a vice.

Prudence, for example, is a virtue most valuable in keeping us from recklessness. But prudence can be carried to the point of timidity, even paralysis.

Amiability is a charming virtue in helping us get along tactfully with others. But a person can be so amiable as to be weak and pliable

REAL THRIFT

Thrift is a virtue certainly needed in our time when there is a popular tendency to let the government take care of our future "rainy days". Yet thrift can be pushed to the point of niggardliness, meanness and avarice. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" is a good proverb; but if we got all the birds in our hands there would be singing in the bushes.

Such thoughts help us to understand why the Second Epistle of Peter counsels us, "Add to knowledge, temperance."

When we hear the word 'temperance" we think first of all of restraint, of bodily desires in. We are born into this world as little bundles of desires. These desires reach out in all directions, and if we proceed on the principle of doing just what comes naturally, we grow like a wild bush, irregular and unkept. The temperate person is one whose life is trained and pruned into shapeliness and fruitage.

IMPERIOUS TYRANTS

The body, as given to us by our Creator, is normally a beautiful instrument. Look at the athletic young fellow using his body with such skillable and careful grace. But it we pamper our bodies, give them their fill in any direction, they become imperious tyrants and we become their slaves.

The appetites awake in us before our reason does. Hence-it is natural that the Ten Commandments should be so largely "Thou shalt nots." Self-control begins with self-restraint.

But keeping our balance requires more than negative restraints. A balanced personality is not a mere middle-of-the-roader. Consider the Perfect Man of Nazareth, whose birthday we are approaching.

Jesus loved the quiet - hours alone, yet He was no recluse. His was a Master mind, yet He loved to talk with little children. He was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," yet he was also a giver of good cheer. He was so indifferent to money that His biographers ignore the subject of His possessions, yet He never appeared poverty-stricken.

There was such balance about Jesus that while He gave His life for the world, He never lost His head.

ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS

Balance is one of the essential elements which make for the mastery of living. How much we need and admire persons who can keep their balance, who are not bowled over by the sudden tackle of temptation or swept off their feet by the gusts of novelty and surprise; balanced persons who can see both sides of a question sufficiently to do justice to each and yet not straddle the issue, thereby doing good to neither; balanced persons who can laugh at themselves without becoming laughable and be serious without being somber; healthy balanced persons who can play without becoming victims of their pleasures and can work hard without becoming slaves to their jobs.

How gracefully the rider of a bicycle keeps his balance as he speeds along the street or swings around a corner. But did you ever try to balance yourself on a bicycle standing still?

Two simple suggestions for keeping our balance in these excitable times: Keep going steadily toward a great purpose, and keep your head.

DIVIDENDS DEMANDED

That low rumbling sound heard in the west the other day was no unseasonable thunder. It was Bible Bill Aberhart rolling privately in his grave.

Reason for the uneasiness of Alberta's first Social Credit premier is a statement by Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman, who is supposed to be within the folds of the prophet's mantle which Premier Aberhart dropped around the shoulders of his protege, E. C. Manning, the present premier of the province.

In the days when Mr. Aberhart was preaching his Social Credit gospel, when Alberta's chief claim to fame were the Rockies and wheat, he used to talk quite freely about a $25 monthly social dividend for all. This, according to the theories of Major Douglas, father of Social Credit, was not merely possible under a Social Credit regime, but necessary, the essential device by means of which the people would have sufficient purchasing power to acquire the goods which they produced. For it was Major Douglas' belief that the real cause for the depression, which then gripped not merely Alberta but most of the world, was the inability of people to consume all they produced, an inability caused solely by financial, rather than physical, shortages.

In the interval Alberta, having struck oil, has managed to act almost like a land in which Social Credit theories were working, with high expenditures and low taxes.

Now, however, the rank and file members of the province's Social Credit party have urged the government to pay Alberta residents "individual participation dividends" instead of increasing grants to municipalities.

Provincial treasurer Hinman has replied that funds for payment could come only through taxes, borrowing or revenue from natural resources.

Of course he added that these limitations only applied until Social Credit monetary policies were introduced. Whether this would appease Mr. Aberhart's ghost may be questionable. In the days when he was converting Albertans to Social Credit he did not hint that introduction of his policies would take so long.

Perhaps, though, he would just blame the delay on the Federal Government, the courts, the banks or the Jews.

By why go on?

DEFICIT FINANCING

The Vancouver and District Trades and Labor Council has urged full employment of Federal funds and deficit financing as a means of achieving full employment and tripling Canada's national production by 1975.

Hon. W. E. Harris, minister of finance, utilities, "deficit financing" is the first budget last spring. Whether or not the employment of this device was the reason for the upswing in business activity may be questionable, but certainly such an upswing has occurred. "Nearly all the accepted indications of economic activity in Canada continue to show an upward movement and point toward a strong position in the months ahead," says the Canadian Bank of Commerce in the current issue of its "Commercial Letter."

The Vancouver Labor Council, however, is certainly right in saying that its proposals will meet bitter opposition. The Council's stress on the desirability of raising Canada's national production is to be admired and, if deficit financing seems the best way to achieve the results it predicts, a twenty-year gamble might almost be worth the risk. Accurate prophecy, however, has never been one of the strong points of economic planning. Most men are generally differ so widely that some of them can-hardly help but be right. Until such a time, however, as somebody develops a workable system for measuring the prophetic powers of whichever economist chances to be speaking, there will be some of us who will continue to feel that in prosperous times a man ought to spend less than he makes, rather than more, and these are prosperous times.

A return to the earlier policy of reducing the size of the national debt would appear to many to be in order. Otherwise, we may face a period when deficit financing is not only unquestionably desirable but unavoidable, but a large national debt makes it more difficult or even dangerous, than might have been the case.

PEACOCK CLOTHES FOR MEN

Amid the clamor of steel-making and in feeling Winnipeg's thrill from being Parliament's air of unreality. At any rate it's out of our world, telling about peacock clothes for men.

A fashion show was staged by the French Master Tailor's Federation, with male models wearing beige dinner jackets and bottle green suits, amid a troupe of ballet dancers pirouetting in blue tights. The federation hired a theatre to present its ideas of what the well-dressed Frenchman should wear in 1956.

If Frenchmen want to dress in gee-gaws let them, but one doubts that many of them will. Opera stuff doesn't go with modern industry, but if the French want to revive the Three Musketeers it is a good show. (Sydney Post Record.)

FELLOWSHIP

The earth is warmed by the kindly sun,
But lives are warmed by the deeds we've done,
And their words of praise when for our best we've done,
And the parts that call we'll meet again.
The clouds may blanket the sky with gray
And the earth grow chill as the rain descends,
But he shall keep smiling along his way
Whose heart is warmed by the love of friends.

It's the glad "Hello" and the handclasp true,
The smile of joy on a friendly face
That means contentment for me and you
And makes of earth a happy place.

It isn't the gold that we strive to earn,
Nor the fame we struggle so long to win,
For these are glories we'd quickly spurn
If never a kind heart took us in.

The poorest man on this earth is he
Who has bartered his friendships for selfish gain,
Who has sought advantage by trickery
And seeks for a welcoming smile in vain.
For the earth is warmed by the kindly sun,
But lives are warmed by a higher plan,
And he shall be glad when his work is done
Who has kept the faith with his fellow man.

The roadway which was kept in fair condition at one time, was a favorite with some time ago for the boys and girls to sleigh ride on their individual sleds or on toboggans. The bicycle meets here years ago the hill was used in contest by racers on the high wheels. It was quite some climb.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GREATEST USE OF GIFTS

Some of the most famous bells have been made out of old discarded cannon. The courage of war would pass over a region and here and there would be abandoned and broken cannon And at last the cannon would find their way to the blacksmith's forge, melted and be recast as bells. The same iron constituted an instrument of death in one generation and in the next generation carried joyfully to the countryside to come and, worship and hear the good news of God's grace.

Things are not good or bad in themselves so much as they are good and bad in their use. Every power given us can be enlisted in the service of God, and every power or body, mind, and soul can be handed over to the service of the devil. Beauty leads some people into unhappiness; it puts some women at the center of a happy home and it leads others into lives of sin. Riches makes some men benefactors and other men sneers.

No Happiness In Being Idle

(Hamilton Spectator)

Here they are held up as a horrible example that illness does to people and they are at once open to long distance pontificating by editorial moralizers (like ourselves) without having too good a chance of getting back at them.

A band of psychologists, doctors and marriage counsellors in Johannesburg ganged up on them not long ago, and here is what they came up with:

The South African wife has all the material things that go to make a woman happy, yet she is the "most nagging, irresponsible, dissatisfied wife in the world."

The reason (Oh traitors!) is — idleness — servants to do. The South African wife, or the ubiquitous "average" wife down there, lives in a joyless climate of money, labor-saving devices and two or more native servants. Result: she gets to becomes bored and miserable.

Funny, or is it? We are so clever in this part of the world, and in this age, that we know the absolute truth about the human condition. Our experts who contend that because we have to work for people we have to work ten hours a day, it will be absolutely wonderful some years hence when they only have to work one.

Now in our population gets older and older, with people having actually ceased to be taught how to do with their spare time when they reach 65, we are faced with the possibility that there will be only way countless people can rest is by the "tranquilizing" drug or a sleeper — this when "security" is a fetish.

Some of the old-timers had a saying: "The devil finds work for idle hands to do." Maybe the occupation is not rest," wrote Cowper, "but labor that springs from mind distressed." Sleek phrased at the "insupportable labor of doing nothing," and Thomas Fuller snorted that "idleness is the refuge of weak minds and the devil's tool of fools." There are worse recipes or relaxation than that of Shakespeare's Prospero who counsels rest, "cramm'd with distressful bread."

In our wonderful wisdom we are trying to fill up the vacuum of spare time without the slightest idea of what we are going to do with it. Hence the popularity of Hope on TV and watch football games. This is the ingenious North American quest for happiness...while wretched levels of enjoyment (compared to those of many backward regions) to the belief that happiness is found in tantalizing and exclusive of all things idle. Maybe we're sure we're not to find it is by looking, rather than working for it.

Wants Films Without Love

(Ottawa Citizen)

Only a close student of the movies could produce a statistical record showing just what proportion of the entertainment they dispends wholly or mainly on "love interest." It would be found to be around 95 percent. Those fascinating statistics will be made public in the weekly television feature, "Movie Museum", indicate that Hollywood has not changed since the earliest days of the industry. Mary Pickford, the Gibson girl, doorsman, William S. Hart, whose main interest is obviously in his horse, is found to have paid little attention to a lady.

It is conceivable, of course, that all the world love a lover, and that the public is not to blame if director or more robust forms as depicted on the screen. It is not possible to hold the attention of an adult audience with a picture of as little as human interest that does not introduce love even as a by-product. Only in the silent days when it is possible in his remarkable series of Keystone Comedy films (for the courtships of his central characters have little relationship to the other events in the plot) do boy-meets-girl theme). And of course there is the account of the ascent of Everest.

One of the most striking of human characteristics is the interest yet put on celluloid has been established beyond doubt. Love has been sooner or eight years ago. This is the Treasure of the Sierra Madre", with Humphrey Boart and the late Walter Huston, and directed by John Huston. It is a tale of adventure — much of it violent — in Mexico, and of the effect gold has on men's characters. The man who most closely resembles conventional ideas of a handsome and high-minded young hero is the one who casts the lot deciding vote in favor of killing a

Defends City Grant To Albert College

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

It is not often I break into print, but when some of the aspiring, evidently uninformed aldermen attack the grant made to Albert College by the Council of 1955, I feel I should give the citizens of Belleville some of the facts.

Albert College has been an educational institution in Belleville for nearly 100 years, and many of the graduates have served with distinction in many parts of the world, and at present it has pupils from many countries in Canada.

Old Albert served Belleville and district for years with a large attendances of pupils. When it was partially destroyed by fire, unsuitable for further occupancy, it became necessary to erect new buildings.

In order to prevent the college from moving elsewhere, the late Mr. J. J. Graham and myself each gave $50,000 to keep the college in Belleville. Now the fine buildings worth about one and one-quarter million dollars, are the pride of the capital for which was provided outside the city of Belleville, a grant of $25,000 to help defray the cost. This was a very good business on the part of Belleville and district as the extra wards extra required buildings, when it means bringing it out to nature. James Fisher, whose books, radio broadcasts and lectures have widespread interest over there in wild life.

Patricia and Fisher are known each other for several years. Fisher had Fisher as his guide through the Whitah Lakes to the birds, animals, forests, moors, and the plants.

So Peterson invited Fisher to come and take a tour of a somewhat larger area — the whole of Newfoundland. And starting there, they would go by the Canadian and American Atlantic coast, across the Great Arctic and Subarctic to the Pacific coast to Alaska, they saw, in 100 days, a most fabulous count of birds and beasts, the whole length of the North American continent.

In 1954-55 Albert had about 35 day pupils, which the Board of Governors felt that Belleville have had to make provision for, if they did not go to Albert, thus relieving the taxpayers of more than the city grant.

The Albert Building—The city of Lakeland, Fla., where I spend some time each year, has a block close to the business section for a parking lot, which would accommodate 100 cars, with space for 108 cars.

This was unsatisfactory, that when I was there the past winter, they talked of doubling the capacity.

Is Pompeii Doomed Again?

(New York Times)

At 1 o'clock on the afternoon of Aug. 24, 79 A. D. Pliny the Younger saw something on the horizon near Misenum that would have seemed familiar to us in this Atomic Age. Pliny, a boy of 18 years, he said, "I cannot give you a more exact description than his figure than by comparing it to that of a pine tree, for it shot up a great height in a kind of trunk, which spread at the top into a sort of branches, I suppose that the eruption of Vesuvius that destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum.

Pompeii remained buried in a deep blanket of dust and ashes until modern times, and by far from uncovered completely even today. Yet it is now available to the eyes of all the ruins of the ancient world. And now our correspondent, Anatole Dauman, tells us that the ruins are in danger of disintegration and decay. Prof. Amedeo Maiuri, who has been in charge of the excavations since 1924, is the founding an "International Association of the Friends of Pompeii" to help save it.

Professor Maiuri's name has become synonymous with resurrection of Pompeii for a generation. The most bitter moment in his life was when he discovered the "Gladiator" Pompeii, believing there were Germans there and provided with the Italian campaign of World War II. The chief casualty was Dr. Maiuri, himself, who wounded in the leg and swalled the American liberators with kisses and hugs in ecstatic fire in his eyes.

He would be a small measure of justice for Americans now to be generous in their response to Professor Maiuri's appeal. How would the American tourist in Italy feel if he could not visit Pompeii? Professor Maiuri has made them come to life. The ruts worn deep in the rich, the humble dwellings of the poor, the shops, the bakeries, the wineshops, "the temples, the theatre, the fine amphitheatre through them we learn better than anywhere else how the ancient Romans lived.

It would be a sad irony of history if the very excavations that have brought from oblivion the life of ancient Pompeii, have, by being been brought from oblivion into the light of day, should now be threatening its decay. And this time irreparably — be consigned to oblivion. It would indeed be "The Last Days of Pompeii."

How To Flatten A Nail

When I was a kid in Canadagua you flattened nails, coins, etc. by putting them on the rail and letting engine or train run over them.

It is not so easy to flatten a nail on your toe. That takes several weeks.

But why should any one want to flatten a toe nail? To prevent it from growing in.

An ingrowing nail becomes excessively curved before it becomes painful, the edges, especially the inner edge, curving down and under so that it presses upon and actually cuts into the soft tissue as it grows.

To flatten such a nail, rub a small block of lavasione (a coarse pumice) across top middle part of nail until it is considerably thinner. This redirects growth so that the nail flattens out and pressure from the undergrowing edge is relieved. Some one kindly put me some lavastone, which I used with satisfaction, but inquiries directed to the firm that marketed it brought no reply, so I don't know whether it is now available.

If shoes always provided enough room for five toes ingrown nail would occur rarely if at all. Without any statistics on the subject I've nevertheless inclined to believe ingrown toe-nail is less frequent today than it was when we were not "in fit" unless we wore toothpick shoes.

To those interested in wild nature on this continent, everything that Roger Tory Peterson writes or illustrates is of importance. He is a man who has given us the two field guides to birds, eastern and western, and has directed the publication of other equally expert pocket field guides to the mammals, rocks and minerals, butterflies and animal tracks.

In Britain, they have an equally popular leader in the study of field nature, James Fisher, whose books, radio broadcasts and lectures have widespread interest over there in wild life.

Patricia and Fisher are known each other for several years. Fisher had Fisher as his guide through the Whitah Lakes to the birds, animals, forests, moors, and the plants.

GOD OVER ALL

Naturalists are among the most inspiring of all men who have devoted themselves to the study of Nature. Take the names of a few: Fabre, Audubon, Burbank, Burroughs, Audubon, Edwin Way Teale, John Muir, and a host of others. These great writers are not commercial. They are worshipful in their love and devotion to the magical and miraculous in all of the outdoor world. Contrast that to pay tribute to the God over all in Nature.

Science has to bow to the secrets of the earth from which men draw their knowledge, and it is the humble wonders and discover methods which are available to all of mankind with their research and inventions. This wonderful earth is filled with automatic natural laboratory in which these scientists of Nature work.

You don't have to wonder where God is and why. He's everywhere and over all. The imprint of his creative magic is in every leaf that falls in Autumn, in every snowflake, in every flower, no matter how small or humble, you will see the imprint of his Power and Wisdom. You will note that in every bird and beast is the whose brains and instincts their knowledge of and protection in plan evident. There is an angel for every star that shines—somewhere!

Everything in my home is the product of scientific research. The earth has grown or credited. I am amazed and humble in thought.

My faith and sense of wonder are constantly challenged by that is the matter with human intelligence that seems those who would make adesert of destruction out of all the means for life and happiness, primarily God's gift to all, even to the humblest?

Life is a precious and inherited honor. Why shouldn't we "praise God, from whom all blessings flow" and "the hills and valleys in song. Why shouldn't we do the same with a song from the heart?

New Uses For Borax

(Los Angeles Times)

In early days, when the 20 mule team hauled borax from Death valley, the stuff was good for softening water and soldering and cleaning pots.

Today borax has a brief, new technological future in modern Chemical Week. It is being researched for rocket fuels, flame retardants, ceramics, catalysts and steel alloying.

It has been found to possess promising electrical possibilities, and is becoming cheaper now that it may be useful as a neutron absorber in reactors.

Some of the borax research going on in Los Angeles is behind the security curtain.

London Taxi-Drivers And - Delectable Danish Food

(By MRS. LAVONIA STOCKELBACH)

Again a word about the London taxi driver. His efficiency is without a miracle nor mystery. In the first place it always seems to me that the driving of a taxi in London is considered a sort of game and must be played according to rules written on unwritten. It is a game of great skill and it must be played fair just as any game of cricket or tennis. It must also be a pleasure for you are not a passenger.

In other parts of the world all that seems to be required is the ability to drive a car and blow the horn and the patience to be guided personally by the passenger to the more distant and unknown parts of the city. No years of training for such bright young men — no pouring over maps or answering training school's riddles as to how to get from here to there in the shortest and speediest time; no cycling around the town, in pairs, on a bicycle built for two while double bars through a congested circle of streets and traffic.

Nor is there a fortnightly examination at the public carriage office at Scotland Yard. Before a driver is turned out a fully qualified man, when he considers a youngster ready take the same route so that your fare will be the more easy and when you can guess, allowing for congestion, the time it will take.

GETS A STARTER

A student driver gets a maintenance grant but so small that their wives have to go out to work while their husbands learn their trade but there is the happiness of never being under the eye of a foreman, boss or employer. There is also one of those tipping jobs that does not matter in a life more generosity than they expect, as a rule, from servicemen and from visitors, especially Americans, who either tip wildly or with a too careful sense of circumspection, the latter ratio predominating.

Yesterday there was a long and complicated ride and again it was to be noted that the number pedestrians were waved on, other cars given right of way where necessary for them to make way, and the disentangling of the thickest congestion given time to be seen without benefit of police. Chauffeurs look at their cars and "taxi" taxis, got out and did the necessary guiding although there was not a murmur sounded, not a voice was raised and presently lapes opened, the difficult manoeuvre effected and out and we were on our way. It was worth the delay to see how the City of the World could manage a problem that faces a crowded world on wheels.

We left the City of the World, (Llandon) for Copenhagen by the Scandinavian Air Line about four o'clock for a two-and-a-half hour flight. It is always a delight to travel by any Scandinavian line even if the hospitality is not bit overwhelming. assailed at the very beginning by a tray of small glasses of whiskey with rocks of ice afloat!

It was the tea hour and I could have used a cup of tea and perhaps for the best. But in minutes passed I could only recall Pope's "Man never is, but always to be, blest." As we went to arrive early dinner was served before air proceeded by offers of a choice of cocktails, and a list of the wines to be served.

The clever management of the tray tables was rather better than in former days in America when small pillow was placed on your lap and the tray on top of that. The ship-shape spacing of the various dishes was admirable. The dessert in one corner, the cheese and biscuits at the side with the little basket of bread and rolls near by.

After the soup a very good meal of meat and vegetables and salad was more or less consumed. The attractive look of the dessert appreciated and all of it enhanced by the beauty outside the window, high above the clouds with the setting sun giving a glorious effect to the clouds above and below us. It seemed a pity to refuse the cigarets and all that other refreshment offered, but there are limits to the healthiest appetite and thirst.

In a few hours we were over the lovely land of Denmark and after the usual stamping of passports we were in the usual bustle from the air port to the town. It is a small country but quite often one gets the effect of space as, for instance, here at the port where is the water of the Oresund stretching over to Sweden, and most of all was the meeting with some of the finest and most hospitable people not only hospitable with food but with generosity.

At the moment Copenhagen was so full of Mormons that we could not get a room in the hotel which is a favorite hotel and had to go some distance out to a very small, and also a very cheap place. But in this country one is always sure of good food and good and quick service so it hardly matters where you go, and always flowers are on the table. Flowers are on the tables in the "beverage" rooms; flowers you get in the little square huge pots of lovely flowers; flowers you get in your room. We enter a home and plants are at every window and seemingly with every kind of plant. It is remarkable in this northern land how fine and how abundant and plants placed in every point of vantage sometimes even decorative sign post with window boxes.

It was soon pleasant to go to bed after the first spate of home gossip had flowed freely and the anticipation of the morning tea and newspaper in bed in the usual rolls, something unknown on the other side of the Atlantic. They proved to be even better than one's recollection and really delayed the morning tea and the reading my pedestrian pen can offer. One seems to lose the freshness of the breezes blown over the fields, the faint aroma of the kind earth itself, the sight of the fields and hedges that nest safely with their young and wait before the harvester sets to work.

The milling of the flour does not wash out the nourishment and all the taste, requiring after-dinner "enrichment" of discarded vitamins. It sounds rather as if the Danes are a somewhat backward people slow to take up new ideas and especially the idea of "enriching" arsenic flour. One must not forget the black bread that chews so sweet—not the delicate pastry served with the morning tea. As for the coffee, it is different from the at-home quality that one prefers not to have any.

It was also pleasant to eat noon-day sandwiches at tables on the sidewalk under a wide verandah roof. It is not easy to choose from seventy-five kinds of fish but one remembered the plump sweet herring, the delicious little shrimp not more than three-quarters of an inch long, the smoked salmon with a little tarambola sauce. It must be remembered that these sandwiches are made with one slice of bread with the mystery of the filling often unsolved but are delicious to discover, to look at and eaten with knife and fork.

Speaking of sandwiches and while on the subject of food on which I am pleased to dwell twice every day of my life, I had a new experience on the Queen Mary when I found that one day was served Irish smoked salmon and the next Scotch. The Irish was smoked a bit more and was a deeper pink than the Scotch. It is very hard to say which and the difficulty was to remember accurately its taste in order to make a fair comparison. The difficulty was explained and as the Custard Line is assuming in its helpfulness both kinds were generously served at one meal and the decision, if necessary, was definitely in favor of the Irish. It will be interesting to have it in Ireland.

Going Places
Free Inducements to Travel

BY SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

One of the biggest jobs of the travel industry is to get people to travel in the first place, and one way it does this is by offering the consumer more free services than just about any business going.

Countless millions are spent each year by air, rail, bus, hotel, oil, automobile and chamber of commerce personnel in an effort to get more people to spend and enjoy their money away from home.

The list of valuable things and services you can get for nothing is almost endless, but for a starter, here are some that could mean the most to you:

The unsung and undiscovered hero of the common traveler is the travel agent. Short of paying for your trip, he'll do, for free, just about anything necessary for your journey. All he wants is the opportunity to make your carrier or hotel reservations for you.

The people who profit from your trip pay him a percentage. So, you don't shell out extra to make his living for him; rates are required by law to be the same whether you make your own reservations or work through an agent.

ENCYCLOPEDIA

The travel agent is an encyclopedia of travel know-how. If you're going abroad, he can tell you what papers and health precautions you need and how to get them; how to figure foreign exchanges; where it stay; what to see; what to travel on; and how much it will cost.

He'll lay out every detail of your trip, domestic or foreign, sell you your tickets and give you all the advice you can handle—all gratis.

Each airline, railroad, bus line, and steamship line is also a travel agency unto itself, and every one is equipped to perform many of these services.

If you're making an auto tour—travel agents don't stand to gain anything so they don't usually deal or with hem—all major oil companies have touring services second to none.

LAY OUT ROUTE

In addition to the fine maps they all produce, these services will lay out for you a route to and from anywhere you want to go, guiding you over the best roads and, if you desire, through the most appealing sightseeing areas.

Their maps usually contain a wealth of information, including such valuable items as detailed city street maps, natural wonders in the area, and local radio stations and their frequencies. Some of the oil companies also have started accommodation guides.

Your local filling station can provide you with a post card addressed to the company's touring service on which you can list details of the trip you want to make.

Every city or area worth visiting has a chamber of commerce just dying to get its hands on you. Most of these have available such free services as lists of every hotel, motel, tourist home and rooming house in the area, together with their locations, rates, number of accommodations, and facilities.

The chambers also serve as clearing houses for all those gorgeous color folders telling you why you should visit where and how to get there. Write for suggestions and they'll send you enough reading matter to last until your next trip.

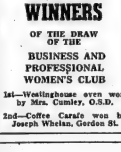
TRADED SERVICES

Hotels have traded on their free services for years. Some of the better known ones—ice baggage porting, checking, arranging transportation, and finding you some elsewhere—usually require a tip.

But not all free services and aid is really free. A majority of hotels today are on a mutual reservations telecype circuit and can save the guests and non - guests alike exasperation by letting the nearest hotel call when you want an out-of-town room.

Most state governments have some organization dedicated to promoting travel. These can supply you at no cost with really useful items such as state parks, campsites and sightseeing attractions.

Another unsung hero of the travelling public is the worthy chamber of commerce secretary. Over the years he has helped countless lost, infirm, stranded, or broke travelers get something when cash to a simple helping hand through a crowded terminal.



FINANCE COSTS NO MORE

The various state police forces and highway patrols have saved unreckoned lives and perhaps other services no one else could. Looking for lawyers wanted a man home in an emergency and speeding them through traffic with an escort; changing tires and rescuing travelers in broken-down cars from back roads; saving sick and stranded wayfarers in remote country; delivering impatient kids to the hotel "day" ends usually at six or seven p.m.

And don't forget the little things

This - - - and That

(By HARRIETT STEVENS)

The vote. What's in a vote? Why bother?

Women have had the right to vote for only a few years, and men won the franchise not much longer, so we consider the immensity of time. Our "X" on election day is a rare time when the common hands of men and women wields an equal power. One man's "X" is powerful as another. The privilege to vote is a personal responsibility and should be considered a duty to society. Don't be one of those who let society down by ignoring the precious freedom the secret ballot protects. Vote for the candidate of your choice but Vote—Vote—Vote!

Our thought for the weekend: Very few have such refined and delicate palates

And then when someone terrible is elected,

They say: There, that's just what I expected!"—Ogden Nash.

There are folk who are convinced we are going to the dogs on a toboggan slide. Well, maybe, but if it were possible to watch each of the women's groups in our city that is devoting itself to the welfare of the Canadian people we could not help being persuaded that people, most people, are kind. And when kindness is in the ascendancy then there is great hope for man. I wish that it could report on all the wonderful work being carried out but since that is impossible let me tell you about one group and then multiply it over and over content.

At a Christmas pot-luck supper meeting of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary, every member brought two tins or jars of canned food to go towards the Christmas baskets which are to be distributed. These families will be assured of the good things in our land of plenty. Then the ladies are giving a Christmas party for the girls of the sewing class which the Auxiliary sponsor every Tuesday afternoon. Each year the Kiwanians give a Christmas party at the Home for the Aged.

The sponsor of the annual party depends in large part on the assistance and refreshments provided by the ladies of the Auxiliary. Besides all this, there were cash donations for other worthy causes. Over and above all these splendid endeavors, these ladies cannot neglect the spirit of Christmas and the multitude of duties in their own homes. It was a privilege to be their guest and to witness the Christmas Spirit in action. One tribute to the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary is a tribute to all the women's clubs and groups in the city.

This seems to be the day for pats-on-the-back but it was a fine thing to hear a tribute given our city by a new citizen, who had come to live here. He found out that if she had the necessary energy, a woman could be busy every day of the week with outside activities. Then, when she turned her energies to the city recently, spontaneously endorsed the above and they all agreed that Belleville certainly lived-up to its reputation for being "the Friendly City." There now, isn't that worth passing on?

'Rocks of Hastings-Haliburton' Interesting Topic at Q.F.N.

The November meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists was held in the conference room of the new Entomology Laboratory on Dundas Street East.

Mr. James welcomed the members to the new building. A letter was read from Dr. Harkness in reply to one sent by the club in regard to the open season for the shooting of mourning doves. In it he stated that as these birds become game birds as soon as they cross the border into the U. S. A. and do not suffer too much harm, and as Ontario farmers prefer shooting ducks and geese it was felt that they would not be likely to suffer too much from the open season.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. James introduced the speaker, Mr. Frank Baalim of Madoc. Mr. Baalim who is a barrister, but whose hobby is collecting samples of mineral ores, has a huge collection from all over the world at his office in Madoc. His talk "Rocks of Hastings and Haliburton Counties" proved so interesting that many of the members were seized with a desire to purchase a geiger counter and set out at once in search of radio-active ore.

Of the more than 1,600 kinds of rocks in the area Hastings-Coungty has over 1,200, from the lime-stones of the Belleville area to the radio-active ores of Faraday township.

ORE SAMPLES

Samples of ore shown from Hastings and neighboring areas were: Zephaline from Lakefield used in making glassware; feldspar for glazing pottery; titanite from Monteagle; tourmaline crystal from Enterprise; crystal from north of Kingston; beautiful garnet quartz from Madoc; and samples of radio-active ore from Madoc; pitchblende from Little Ireland near Fort Stewart; red fluorspar from Monteagle and magnetite from Faraday township.

Also in his collection were many samples of rocks from other parts of the world; moonstone in the rough; celanite from an Aztec cave, in Yucatan; beautiful cabochon from Mexico; copper pyrites from Mexico, and native copper from Michigan; canary yellow carnotite from New Hampshire; amethyst from Nova Scotia; Utah agates, and moss agates from Mexico; crystal from the Ural Mountains; chalcedony from Florida and California; cinnabar (mercury ore); transparent quartz from Brazil and quartz crystal from Herkimer near Niagara Falls.

LIKE JEWELS

Shown under the light of an ultraviolet ray lamp, the rocks glowed like precious jewels; beautiful shades of red, yellow, blue, green and pink.

Rocks, finely cut by hand, are now cut by a diamond-toothed saw which cuts much more slowly than a wood saw. Jewelry may be cut from fluorspar in this way. Cut too quickly, the stone becomes overheated and loses color.

Very interesting, too, was the demonstration of the geiger counter showing its reaction to radio-active ores.

Miss Lillian Hart thanked the speaker and coffee and cookies were served by the refreshment committee.

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

What was the name of the prophet who centuries before the birth of Christ, foretold this event in beautiful, poetic lines? He said, "The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light; those who dwelt in a land of deep darkness, on them has it shined." Then he mentioned what a happy occasion this would be when men would rejoice "as with the joy of harvest," and as men when they divide the spoil" (of war). Then he spoke the words which inspired Handel to compose the beautiful flowing music of the Christmas section of the Messiah. "For to us a child is born; to us a son is given; and the government will be upon His shoulder, and His name will be called

"Wonderful Counselor,
Mighty God,
Everlasting Father,
Prince of Peace."

Of the increase of His government and of peace, There will be no end."

Find this prophet's name and read the rest of his message in the 9th chapter of Isaiah.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THIS ISN'T IN MY FIELD, SIR

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Would you please try to help me?

I would like to buy two chinchillas, male and female, and breed them for profit. Do you think I will pay, or will I lose my money? I've seen so much in the papers about the profit that raising these precious animals can bring that I would like to give it a try. I own my own home and have all the accomodations for such a project. — V.B.

Dear V.B.:

I am afraid that I will not be able to answer your question as you have asked me something about which I have no knowledge whatever.

I suggest, however, that you send a letter to the United States Department of Agriculture a n d ask for information about such a project. I am sure that your letter will be handed over to whatever division of his department that can answer it best.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

HOW TO CHANGE LIP CONTOUR

In applying lipstick, the general rule is, of course, to follow the natural contour of the mouth since it harmonizes with the curves of the face. Many women, however, are completely dissatisfied with the shape of the lips which Mother Nature provided and seek constantly to improve them. They complain that lips are too thin, or too wide or that the lower lip is too full. There are dozens of such complaints and, while it is true that, with lipstick, you can change the outlines of your lips, it must be done expertly or the result will be complete distortion.

If you feel that your lips are too wide, for instance, you can correct this "defect" by concentrating the application of lipstick toward the center of the mouth, accenting this area with more color, and using less at the corners where a little extra powder can also help to make them less visible. This technique decreases the apparent width considerably.

If, on the other hand, you are convicted that your lips are too thin, you can create the illusion of greater thickness by applying lipstick generously over the entire surface of the lip and beyond, so that the outer and colorless ridges just above the upper lip and below the lower one are completely covered. You must, however, be sure to follow the natural contour and proportion of the lips to keep your mouth in harmony with your face.

If your lower lip is too heavy, you can minimize its size by using a lighter, brighter shade of color on the upper lip. This makes it appear fuller and detracts attention from the heavier lower lip.

Regardless of the shape or size of your lips, however, there are certain rules for application of lipstick which must always be followed. Never make an exaggerated "Cupid's Bow" and don't strive for the "bee stung" effect on the upper lip, where the corners of your mouth are concerned. Remember them without lipstick and conversely, do not apply too much there or you will achieve a smeared effect.

To increase the staying powers of lipstick, apply it carefully, let it "set" for a few moments, then powder your whole mouth. Let powder remain on for another few moments, brush excess off a n d then re-apply the lipstick with the same care you used the first time. You'll be surprised at how much longer your lip make-up remains intact.

HOW TO ADDRESS ENVELOPE TO MINISTER AND WIFE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

How should I address a Christmas card to our minister and his wife? — Ellen M.

If the minister has no degree (D.D., for example), address the envelope to:

The Reverend and Mrs. Paul Goode

If the minister has a degree, address the envelope to:

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Paul Goode

Note 2: If there is room enough on the line, spell "Reverend" in full.

Note 3: It is also correct to address a minister and his wife by this more formal form (and some people prefer this):

The Rev. Paul Goode and Mrs. Goode

or

The Rev. Dr. Paul Goode and Mrs. Goode

QUESTION:

We are asked to cater to a wedding reception—60 guests will sit. The bride wants hors oeuvres. Do we serve tomato juice with this at table? Have you a recipe for hors d'oeuvres? Chicken Patties? What do you serve with them. How many chickens to serve 60?—Mrs. R. J.

ANSWER:

I am mailing to you several releases referring to weddings which have appeared here. They will help you. Hors d'oeuvres may be any variety of a hundred things but are usually salty, tart or crisp pieces. A popular selection is choice large shrimp and/or tiny hot sausages on colourful toothpicks; large ripe olives, imported sardines on tiny strip of toasted bread to fit it; small rounds of toasted bread (latter two are called canapes); tiny celery hearts or short cheese-stuffed celery sticks; radish roses. Those six items would be plenty. They are served with a beverage in reception room before guests sit down.

CREAMED CHICKEN
(60 4 oz. servings.)

Three cups chopped green pepper, 10 level tablespoons butter, 11 tins (10 1-2 oz.) undiluted condensed cream of mushroom soup, 3 cups milk, 8 1-2 to 3 lbs. diced pure chicken meat. Gently saute (fry) green pepper in butter, until limp only, stir in soup and milk, fold in chicken, heat but do not boil. Serve in 60 patty shells. Other additions are chopped pimento, sliced hard-cooked egg, chopped parsley.

Governors Mansions

By LEONARD L. KNOT

Illustrated by David Ramson

As every Canadian schoolboy knows, Canada's Governor-General lives in a fine big house in Ottawa called Rideau Hall. From there, on the day that Parliament opens, he drives in an open carriage drawn by a team of handsome horses to Parliament Hill to read the Speech from the Throne.

Canada's Governors have not always lived in Rideau Hall, however. In Montreal, there are two much older buildings which were once the homes of the King's representatives in Canada. The first called Chateau de Ramezay is one of the oldest and most historic buildings in Canada. The other is called Monklands and is a stately mansion on a great estate which when it was the Governor's residence was far out in the fields outside Montreal but which is now right in the city. Both buildings are still standing; the first is a museum, the second is the main building of a convent.

The Chateau de Ramezay was built during the French regime and was the home of the Marquis de Vaudreuil, the last French Governor of New France. Benjamin Franklin lived there when he came to Montreal in 1776 to try to persuade French Canadians to join the Thirteen Colonies in the revolt against Britain. The first British Governors lived there also but, in 1844, when the capital of the two provinces of Canada was moved to Montreal, the ancient Chateau was too small to be used as Government House.

RENTED HOME

For a while a large private home near the Chateau was rented for the Governor. Then, the Government secured the much larger and finer house called Monklands, in honor of its first owner, Sir James Monk who had built it back in the 1790's. The home was not entirely new to Canadian Governors for Sir James Monk, as Chief Justice of Canada had entertained the King's representatives there and had for a brief time served as Governor himself while Canada was awaiting the arrival of a new Governor from England.

Baron Metcalfe of Fern Hall was the first real Governor to live at Monklands. Earl Cathcart was the second and Lord Elgin was the third and last. Metcalfe and Cathcart lived there quietly, but Elgin's days ended in rioting and threats to destroy the building itself. When he left, the capital was moved, too, and Montreal never became the national capital again.

Elgin was not to blame for the trouble. On the advice of the government, he signed a bill called the Rebellion Losses Bill, which was intended to pay those who had suffered in the Rebellion of 1837 for their losses. Many people object to this bill because it helped the rebels as well as loyal families, and Lord Elgin's carriage was pelted with stones and rotten eggs as he drove home from the Parliament buildings.

Twice, Lord Elgin was attacked by mobs. Then he decided to remain at Monklands. Meanwhile, the mob burned the Parliament Buildings, and members of the Government decided to move the capital to another city. Monklands became a popular hotel and then was sold to an order of nuns who opened a convent there.

YOUR CAR

Temperature Affects Car Battery

By EUGENE MILMOE

If you can't seem to get your engine started on very cold mornings, your trouble may lie with a weak battery.

As the weather grows colder, car batteries lose some of their cranking efficiency. For example, a fully charged battery with 100 per cent cranking power during high temperatures will only be two-thirds as effective when the mercury reading falls to 32 degrees F.

But, at the same time, we know that the colder an engine is, the more battery power is needed to start it. Obviously then, it is most important during cold weather to keep the battery as nearly fully charged as possible, and hold the demands on it from heater, radio, lights, etc., to a minimum.

B.P. asks: "I bought a new thermostat for my cooling system and notice that it is marked 160 degrees. Does this mean the thermostat is fully open at this temperature?"

(A) The thermostat you have will start to open between 150 and 160 degrees, and it will be fully open when the water temperature reaches approximately 180 degrees.

OIL PRESSURE LOW

From A.S.: "My 1937 car is in pretty fair condition but the oil pressure is always very low. What has to be done to increase the pressure?

(A) It depends on the cause. However, on a car such as yours which has seen considerable service, low oil pressure is usually due to wear on the rod, main and/or crankshaft bearings. If your car also uses too much oil, you can be fairly certain that this is your trouble.

M.K. writes: "I just purchased a 1952 used car, and after having new plugs and points installed and the timing set, gas mileage is still poor. Why? The mechanic seems to think a carburetor overhaul or replacement might cure the trouble, but I wonder if that would do any good."

(A) If dirt and wear are hurting carburetor efficiency, an overhaul or replacement should certainly help gas mileage. However, you must remember there is quite a long list of other conditions, including poor driving habits, which can also cause high fuel consumption.

CLEAN OIL PASSAGES

(A) The usual method is to flush them with fresh oil under pressure.

J.M. writes "The engine on my 1952 car starts perfectly when cold, but after running for a while it tends to overheat and is very difficult to re-start if I stop for a few minutes. Cooling system, carburetor, automatic choke, fuel pump and lines have been inspected more than once, but the source of trouble has yet to be found. Can you offer a suggestion?"

(A) Sometimes the manifold heat control valve is overlooked. If it is stuck in a closed position, the troubles you describe will result.

Stormy Windsor Strike Settled

WINDSOR (CP)—A stormy six-day labor dispute which saw court orders issued and damage suits threatened, windows broken and tires flattened, has ended quietly in a lawyer's office.

Representatives of United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) and Chrysler Corporation of Canada signed a five - point agreement Thursday night for resumption of work today at suburban LaSalle's biggest industry after one of the most turbulent recent industrial conflicts in this area.

The plant, which produces automobile and electrical components, has been idle since a walkout followed laying off half its 100 workers a week ago.

The agreement, signed Thursday night in the office of Donald F. Brown, Liberal member of Parliament for Essex West, called for bargaining and negotiation between the company and union to begin Monday and re-instatement of a laid - off prospective bargaining committeeman.

The company agreed in return to abandon a Supreme Court of Ontario action against six employees and four UAW officials for an injunction and $25,000 damages.

UPHOLD PRINCIPAL

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons decided Wednesday night by a vote of 371 to 136 to uphold the principle of a limit on radio discussion of topics due to come up in Parliament, but decided to set up a select committee to consider the present 14-day ban on such discussion.

Re-Elect BEN SAFE

Alderman

ON MONDAY, DEC. 5th

TO THE ELECTORS OF BELLEVILLE:

I ask your support for Alderman in the coming Civic Election. I was born in Belleville in 1909, and am a life long resident of this city. My religion is Jewish, and I am a member of the Rotary Club. In City Council I have served as an alderman in 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1954 and 1955.

During the past year your City Council entrusted me with the Chairmanship of the Public Works Committee, and I would like to outline some of the work done by this committee under my direction.

New roads were installed in Bay View Heights, which included McDonald Gardens, Hastings Drive, Montgomery Drive, Edwards and Clarke Streets. We put in new asphalt paving on Church Street from Bridge to Dundas. Coleman Street was repaired, and new side walks were installed on West College Street to Quinte Secondary School. Approximately 2 miles of new roads and 1½ miles of new sidewalks were laid. Over 3,200 tons of asphalt was used, being approximately twice the amount used in recent years. Despite this, overhead costs in our works department are substantially lower with more work being done.

In the past year we had no scandal in Public Works, no trouble with contractors. The side walks built this year called for a bond by the contractors to ensure a proper job.

If I am re-elected I plan to have some money in the budget to replace faulty side walks built some years ago in Parkwood Heights, and our engineering Dept. is making plans now to resurface with asphalt at least two miles of our older pavements.

During my term as Councillor, I have not dodged any issues. I have always assumed my responsibility in Council on every question. I am a substantial taxpayer and have at all times opposed frivious and unnecessary expenditures but will not stand in the way of necessary civic improvements.

I hope that my past record merits your support, and I promise you that if I am re-elected I will endeavor to bring to council the same careful consideration of every question that I would give to my own business.

Sincerely,
BEN SAFE.

Municipal Elections in Many Ontario Cities on Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two-year term of municipal office, in effect in 16 Ontario cities, comes up for decision Monday in local elections in four more centres which now elect their mayors and councils annually.

Voters in Toronto who have previously rejected it, Brantford, Sudbury and North Bay will vote on the longer term.

Although most Ontario cities and scores of smaller municipalities are voting next Monday, others have different dates. St. Catharines and some Toronto suburbs went to the polls today. Timmins, Ontario's largest town, will vote Dec. 7 and Owen Sound Dec. 10. Hundreds of towns, villages and townships will vote on Jan. 2.

Toronto has the biggest money by-law at stake—a $20,000,000 city hall. Stratford is voting on an $800,000 addition to its collegiate institute and Sudbury on an $800,000 railway underpass and a $50,000 bridge. Belleville will decide on a $115,000 off-street parking lot. Welland on a $388,000 city hall.

REJECTED PREVIOUSLY

Sault Ste. Marie is voting on a new $200,000 police building, rejected twice before by its ratepayers. The police force now has its quarters in the Ontario government court house, but was asked to move three years ago. The two negative votes on the new building left the police with no place to go.

This is an off-year, under the two-year term plan, for such cities as Ottawa, Kingston, Hamilton and Windsor.

Following is the election lineup by cities:

Brantford — Howard Winter, mayor from 1950 to 1953, is seeking the office again in a two-man race with Dick Beckett. Mayor Reg Cooper is retiring after two years in office. There are 27,000 eligible voters.

Guelph—Three men are seeking the support of the 16,525 voters for the mayoralty, left a wide-open race by retirement of H. Worton, who was elected to the Ontario legislature last June 9. Fred W. Dixon, retired Guelph collegiate teacher who was born at Markham near Toronto; Gordon Kemp, 50, native of Gladstone, Man., Harold L. Sulther, born on a farm and now with United Co-operatives Ltd.

Kitchener—Two aldermen are contesting the mayoralty, Fred Dreger and Fred Weber. Each is 43. Mr. Dreger is a lawyer with nine years' council service, Mr. Weber a realtor with four years on council and four on the school board.

North Bay—Besides the two-year term, the 9,877 voters will decide whether fluorine will be added to the city water supply.

Oshawa—Mayor Norman Down is opposed in his bid for re-election by former mayor John Naylor and former alderman A. Hayward Murdock. City officials have carried on an intensive campaign to get a good turnout among the 25,300 voters.

Peterborough—With Mayor John A. Dewart given a second term by acclamation, the 22,00 voters will elect five aldermen from nine candidates, two of them women. There has been little interest in the campaign and at one meeting, candidats outnumber electors two to one.

St. Catharines — Mayor John Smith, 62-year-old building contractor, was re-elected by acclamation for a third term. There are two by-law votes, on fixed assessments for two industries.

Sarnia—Mayor W. C. Nelson was elected last year for a two-year term and only voting is for other offices, with 11 candidates for four vacant council seats.

Sault Ste. Marie—Mayor C. Herb Smale, 53-year-old locomotive engineer, was elected by acclamation for a seventh consecutive term. It was the fourth acclamation for the native of Teeswater, Ont., who has been with the Canadian Pacific Railway for 40 years.

Stratford—Mayor W. P. Gregory, 63-year-old lawyer and Stratford native, was returned by acclamation for a second term. A veteran of the Second World War, he is president of the Ontario Liberal Association.

Sudbury—Leo Landreville, 45-year-old native of Ottawa, got an acclamation for his second term. Three aldermen also were elected without opposition, Sudbury's first aldermanic acclamation in 15 years. J. D. McInnes, who has been on the hydro commission since it was formed, went back for a two-year term by acclamation—his 20th and 21st years of service.

Bulletins From Birdland

MOVEMENT

As can well be understood, birds follow the food supply, and for that reason about 25 per cent live in the tropics where meals are always available. Birds that nest in Canada are divided into two groups: those whose feeding habits allow them to remain throughout our cold season in the land of their birth, and those that are obliged to move south until they find the nourishment they require.

But even our Canadian citizens move about. Some come from the far north nearer to civilization, others retreat from high altitudes to lower ground. Sea birds off our coasts, as auks, fulmars, and kittiwakes, follow schools of fish, many preying upon capelin. All these movements can be accounted for by studying diets.

Occasionally, however, birds are found far from home when it is evident that food has nothing to do with the change of locality. They are probably either ones that have been moved by man, or victims of storms.

From time to time, man has moved birds bodily. A society in Hawaii introduced mynas from India, cardinals from the United States, doves from Asia, weavers from Australia, skylarks from Europe, and titmice from Japan.

MOST PROLIFIC BIRDS

Here, we owe the presence of our two most prolific birds to people who brought English sparrows and starlings to America. Then there are birds that have been carried afar for purposes of experiment. Pigeons in abundance, but even frigate birds and sea gulls, have been used to discover whether or not they could find their way home. Many could not return "on their own".

These man-moved birds are extremely few in comparison to storm-moved ones. Last spring the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service was notified that 26 birds, carrying U. S. bands on their legs, had been shot down over Russia: One songbird, the rest waterfowl, and all dated at least two years back. In mid-summer bands from two pintails put on at Puget Sound, were returned by the head of Russia's national parks and game management system. On the other hand, not long ago a bird native to Siberia was picked up in Rhode Island. Surely all these birds had been storm tossed!

A Caspian tern banded near Lake Michigan was found dead in England 12 years later. Four hundred miles from Canada's coast an owl was discovered. And several years ago a horned owl travelled in an air duct of a T.C.A. aircraft's wing. The feathered passenger had gone fare - free from Gander to Dorval airport.

THE FACTS...
ABOUT YOUR MONEY!

The Mayor has said that is good at figures.

The Mayor has stated that there was an overdraft of $155,000 when he came into office. This is a normal state of affairs every year. It is a routine bookkeeping procedure until all taxes are collected.

THE OVERDRAFT HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH THE CITY'S TRUE FINANCIAL PICTURE.

THERE WAS AN ACTUAL SURPLUS OF $25,000 WHEN HE CAME INTO OFFICE CARRIED OVER FROM THE YEAR BEFORE AND THIS HELPED TO HOLD THE MILL RATE AT 70 MILLS IN 1954.

There was a surplus from 1954 of $43,855 or better than two mills which was applied to the 1955 tax rate and helped to keep the 1955 tax rate at 71 mills. This amount included the sale of the fire hall and city lots, capital assets which are gone and should never have been applied to general rates.

A surplus in the budget for a year is not necessarily an evidence of sound management. It represents work which was supposed to be done — and for which you were taxed — and which was not done. It is possible there may be a one mill surplus from this year to apply to the 1956 tax rate.

I would like to make it perfectly clear as vice chairman of the finance committee this year — all debentures were sold — including those which should have been sold in 1954 and were not.

HERE ARE THE FACTS ABOUT THE TRUE DEBENTURE POSITION OF BELLEVILLE.

At the end of 1953 outstanding debentures totalled $2,842,780.58. The Ontario Municipal Board had given approval debenture position of $4,149,398.74.

At the end of 1954 the outstanding debenture debt totalled $2,702,214.37. Municipal Board approval had been obtained for sale of $1,502,223.20 worth of new debentures, for a total debenture position of $4,262,643.67. The majority of these approved debentures were a carry-over from the previous year.

Despite approval of the Ontario Municipal Board for sale of $1,502,223.20 worth of debentures in 1954, only debentures worth $157,615.40 were issued.

A debenture totalling $744,500 was sold in 1954 for the Quinte Secondary School but the debenture by-law January 2nd, 1955 so that its sale did not appear on 1954 figures. First payments on the principal of this debenture are due in 1956.

IN 1955 OUTSTANDING DEBENTURES TOTALLED $3,640,437.15 OR A RISE SINCE 1953 OF $796,717.01 WORTH OF OUTSTANDING DEBENTURES.

In 1955 the Ontario Municipal Board gave approval for $334,367.47 Worth of debentures. Again, the majority of these approved debentures were a carry-over from the previous year.

The Board gave no new approval for debentures of any size in 1955.

Therefore, in 1955, outstanding and approved debentures totalled $3,883,804.62.

The decrease of $155,592.12 in the 1955 over-all debenture picture from 1953 was due to retirement of principal in 1955.

The Face On The Stamp

The Painter of Spanish Glory

By NICHOLAS MIKA
(Article II)

In one of the world's largest art museums, the Prado in Madrid, hangs the famous painting "Maja Nude." It is one of the most visited, most admired and at the same time most criticized masterpieces of art. It unveils the feminine beauty to those who know how to appreciate it and it stirs the emotions as well as the protests of others. When the Spanish post office dared to reproduce this painting on a stamp, it aroused one of the greatest uproars in postal history. But in spite of the dispute all over the world Spain found herself compelled to print millions more stamps in order to meet the request.

The picture was painted about one hundred and sixty years ago by a Spanish painter. He was an unusual man with two remarkable gifts of nature. The ability to paint magnificent pictures and a charm that fascinated beautiful senoras and senoritas. The first gift led him to the royal palace, the second one to duels and flight from persecution. Twice he was sentenced to death and twice he was saved by a woman who adored him, the Queen of Spain.

While he was in Rome he found time between painting and bold adventures to fall in love with a young girl. However, since he did not possess anything save some colorful canvasses and a bad reputation, her parents opposed the marriage and sent their daughter to a cloister. Perhaps they knew their daughter, but they certainly did not know the painter's temper. Without hesitating he climbed the wall of the nunnery and tried to kidnap his sweetheart. But instead of going with her to the altar, he went to jail to cool his feelings.

Back in Madrid the Queen forgave his escapades and made him a court painter. While he enjoyed the favors of the Queen he fell passionately in love with the Duchess of Alba. He cruelly revealed the ugliness of the Queen in his paintings, but he created the Duchess of Alba in her captivating beauty.

When the Duchess once visited him without the usual escort he painted a picture of her that made him famous forever. It was the "Maja Nude". Resting on a silk pillow with her arms crossed behind her head, her eyes seem to be lost in a dream yet at the same time revealing the knowledge of her power.

Needless to say the Duke of Alba was furious when he heard rumors about the painting. But the artist knew how to protect himself as well as the reputation of his sweetheart. Shortly before the Duke arrived at his house, he finished a second painting in which the Duchess was gowned in transparent white silk. And he even succeeded in convincing the Duke that there was no other portrait of his wife in existence.

Yet what satisfied the Duke was not enough for the Queen of Spain. She banished the Duchess from Madrid and the story goes that she had her poisoned when her lover followed her.

In Spain people are proud to possess the mysterious "Maja Nude" and when they point out the portrait to some one they say: This was painted by our great Francisco Goya.

Garden Notes

Growing Versatile Pot-Herbs

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

"The wise housewife knew precisely which herb would draw out her husband's gentleness and love, which would sooth and cure."

Since time began people have believed certain qualities were held by various plants. Herbs have been used to brew love potions, preserve a food, flavor bland foods and cover the strong taste of overspiced meat and to perfume the body, linen and leather.

If you have a herb garden of your own you may take up a plant of two, from each kind and pot them up for the kitchen window. If not, you may buy the seed and make a project of it this winter, thus providing yourself with an interesting new hobby and the cook with flavor and garnishes.

Seed catalogues list herb seeds and growing. You may have to look in several to find the ones you want, but that too will add interest to the collection. Garden magazines will furnish growers names.

Parsley seeds are slow to germinate, but they will sprout in about 21 days if the soil is kept slightly damp and cool. This makes a most attractive foliage plant while the leaves add flavor and color to creamed dishes and to salads.

CHIVES

Chives, that miniature form of green onions are always welcome in cottage cheese, omelettes and salads. Coriander has a long history, having been used in the bread of Egypt. It is used in vinegar for meat sauce. You may think dill is only for pickles, but grow some in a pot and pinch off a leaf, chop it fine and add to salad dressing. You also may sprinkle the cut leaves on sliced apples before you add the top crust to the pie.

Anise is for cake or candy. It is an old favorite being in the same class as horehound and licorice. For fish sauces, or for stew, grow basil. Borage is one of the most attractive of the herbs; both leaves and flowers are pretty. It will give a lift to a salad and is said to make the heart merry. Baked apples are greatly improved by a pinch of caraway seed, or a little of the chopped leaves.

The mints are a large family. There is lemon mint, spearmint, apple mint and pepper mint. These four are especially suitable for the window box, or pot. Use mint with pineapple, lamb, cream, or cottage cheese. Chop a few leaves fine and add to cream cheese and candied ginger for an unusual tea sandwich, or rub the sandwich plate with a mint leaf, just before serving time.

HARDY PLANTS

They are hardy plants and will welcome a good blow from and open window on a sunny winter day at noon. Coe-to-two-hour periods are not too long, if the weather is mild. On cold nights move the plants away from the window. Provide a shade to temper the cold, or lack several layers of paper between the plants and the window pane.

Glazed pots, plastic planters, or painted tin cans have proved to be the best containers for herb plants. Make several holes just above the bottom for drainage. Red-clay pots permit too rapid drying of the soil. Herbs prefer a cool room, 60 degrees, or as near that as possible. Also, the humidity provided by boiling water, and food makes a difference in the best rooms for growing herbs.

Good soil and plant food will encourage lush greenery, but slow growth in poor soil improves the richness and flavor of herbs. They must have good drainage, allow no water to stand in the saucer. Pick the outside and older leaves; this constant pruning will encourage the plant to send out new leaves and makes a compact plant.

If you have any of these plants in your garden cut back the tops at time of writing. Keep them watered and, within a week or two, new growth will start.

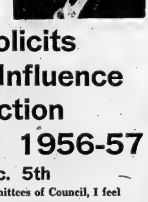
I AM SUBMITTING THIS LETTER TO THE CITIZENS AS A FOLLOW UP TO MY ORIGINAL LETTER STATING THE RIDICULOUS SPENDING OF COUNCIL.



At a meeting Wednesday evening it was quite apparent, if no one else read my statements, three of the council members now up for re-election read them, as I was met openly with criticism from them. One of their arguments was that only $1,000.00 was spent on painting the windows in city hall—my figures were taken from the local contractor's price of $1,300.00 for labour, plus approximately seven hundred dollars for paint. A statement that only a thousand dollars was paid is a typical example of certain council members only pointing out convenient facts.

Another statement was that only $4,500.00 was to be used for windows in the city hall—this is for only 30 windows and there are over fifty windows in the city hall to be replaced, also that the money was not from taxes but money given to the city to use as they see fit, by the government—but by using this money for windows it is taking it away from places that it could be used, such as parks, roads or any other tax expenditure. How gullible do they think we are? It's still taxes. It was also stated that $6,000.00 was not loaned to the hockey team, last year—there are minutes of January 18th on file in the city hall where the council loaned this amount to the arena commission to use for the hockey team, that gate receipts were taken in from the playoffs, it was also mentioned that this should not appear in publications. After the finals, council was informed by the same aldermen that the receipts were not great enough to pay it back.—Naturally the cheque could not be made direct to the hockey team, but they still had it transferred to their account. These statements were all made on Wednesday but not one mention was made at this time as to why they had to have windows painted before the snow flies out, or why they used aluminum at $150.00 per window when they could have used wood storms, and windows, at a cost of $50.00 each, nor did they explain the other ridiculous expenditures.

Voters, these facts I mention are not rumors, I have attended 90 percent of the council meetings as a spectator in the past year and guarantee that the remarks I make on council affairs, I have heard at these meetings. It is near time a few changes were made in council, there are numerous other transactions such as I have listed, and if they are not curbed your taxes will soon be so high that the ordinary person will not be able to meet the payments. Remember every dollar spent foolishly is your dollar—your taxes—so this year vote—but think before you mark that ballot, vote for someone who will think ahead before he spends a dollar, by voting for

of Interest to Every Citizen!
Belleville Needs
MAYOR JACK BOTH
For Another Term

MY PRE-ELECTION MESSAGE TO THE ELECTORS:

The election campaign for the office of Mayor is all but over. In fact this is my final address of the campaign.

I have outlined the financial position of your city from the time I took office in January 1954 until the present time. There has been a reduction of approximately one half a million dollars or $500,000 in your debenture debt during that period.

During the time of setting the budget, organized resistance in council against lowering the mill rate in 1954 made it so, that I was unable to get support to lower the mill rate below 70 mills, already set in 1953, when it could have as well been 68 mills, which I suggested. We did end the year of 1954 with a surplus as verified by my opponent. This was met with the same kind of resistance in 1955, and I have been informed we will end with a surplus this year.

It is hard to believe, that any individual with all their mental faculties, and purporting to be intelligent, would try to shift the responsibility of fourteen aldermen, representing the city of Belleville, onto one member of their council, named by my opponent as the "Mayor," when each elected representative must assume equal responsibility and equal authority.

The kind of statements made in the broadcasts of my opponent, can only be considered an easy way of shirking the obligations made to the citizens of Belleville, when she took the oath of office. Knowing that the majority rules in council, as in any democratic way of government, she now makes misleading accusations that the mayor has done as all wrong, and, that she has saved the day by resigning and running for the office of mayor.

Sound criticism, is beneficial and appreciated, in this fair democratic country of ours, but idle chatter as stated in her broadcasts, can only be looked upon as a sinister malicious attitude with no foundation whatsoever to back it up.

It is my opinion that my opponent has not the ability, experience or the business knowledge to attempt to lead any council, or body of representatives successfully, nor in any degree of efficiency necessary to accomplish a minor measure of success, let alone a corporation the size of Belleville.

To say nothing of her unreliability! That was demonstrated by her very own words, and I refer to her honor vote, when the attempt was made to hire a city manager, when a recorded vote was taken, later when a second vote was taken she changed her vote. Why? I quote her words, "The mayor had no right to ask that the vote be on the honor of councillors." unquote. Now I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, if any individual, when placed on their honor, break faith, would you ever place confidence in that individual again? I do not believe you would, no more than I. Is this the kind of person you would want to head your fair city of Belleville?

Is my opinion, should she ever become head of this municipality, she would be so only in name, as it is my humble opinion she is nothing short of a front for some one group—or—could it be that she wishes to cover up something or somebody. Look deep into this angle, analyze it well, there may be more to it than the eye can see.

Remember I have worked untiringly in the past two years, so you could enjoy a controlled mill rate. This was done against organized resistance of which my opponent was party to the part, and now, she tells you how much she will spend.

"How high will your taxes go? There is no telling if my opponent is elected.

Will you enjoy the privilege of attending council meetings in the evening and know what is going on, or will it be left to a small committee to be held in the afternoon, when the working man cannot take time off to attend.

Will council meetings be held and controlled by a clique?

You have all heard about our hospital. My opponent has mentioned it in her broadcasts, but you have not heard about the cost of the fund raising campaign, and how many pledges there are yet to come in. These are the facts you would like to know, but have you any way of finding out?

On December the 5th vote to elect seven Aldermen, good and true, that are willing to support continuous sound administration.

"KEEP OUT OF THE CLIQUE" — MAKE THINGS TICK.

Eisenhower Administration Trying to Shut Off Criticism Of Foreign Policies in Campaign

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Eisenhower administration, beset by diplomatic setbacks on the German question, in the Middle East and in the United Nations, is trying to shut off criticism of its foreign policies a the 1956 presidential campaign.

The move isn't likely to succeed.

Republican leaders have quickly jumped on a routine statement by Senator Walter George, Democratic chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, as a springboard from which to call for a truce on foreign policy in campaign speeches.

George, who originated the idea of the Big Four "summit" meeting, issued a statement a few days ago saying the U.S. "must assure the world that we are capable of having a non-partisan foreign policy and that regardless of who wins or loses in 1956 our foreign program will go on substantially as it is."

Administration leaders, including President Eisenhower and Vice-President Nixon, promptly endorsed this statement on the basis of their own interpretation—that George was suggesting debate on foreign policy be removed from the 1956 campaign.

George subsequently said he was not barring "constructive criticism or legitimate debate" and expressed doubt any agreement could be reached to ward off campaign discussion of critical foreign policy issues.

State Secretary John Foster Dulles, the man most likely to come under campaign fire, quickly moved in with a call of his own for the "same bipartisan unity which in the past has given "authority, vitality and much success to our foreign policies."

Dulles told a press conference that he, for one, would avoid any "politicking" on foreign affairs and immediately put that policy into effect by refusing to comment on recent criticisms by Adlai Stevenson, leading candidate for the Democratic nomination next year.

Dulles said he has nothing against " "constructive" criticism but he again sidestepped the issue when a reporter asked whether he himself had been constructive in his 1952 campaign charge that the Democrats were "dancing to whatever tune the Soviets chose to play."

Dulles suggested that statement, when read in full, did have a constructive "quality."

At the root of the administration's desire for a truce, apart from domestic embarrassment in the campaign, is a fear of the effect election criticism may have on American allies—and on its diplomatic foes—abroad. State department experts fear that the appearance of a divided front at home might undermine the American position in other countries. They realize that the hurly - burly of American politics, with its public washing of dirty political linen, is not easily understood in other lands.

Dulles himself put his finger on this point when he told his press conference that campaign politics "is not as fully discounted abroad as it is discounted by the good sense of the American people."

But the Democrats, still angered at the Republican tactics in 1952 of making the Korean war the chief campaign issue, aren't likely to keep silent in the 1956 contest. Also, many Democrats charged with responsibility in Congress for foreign policy feel the campaign is the proper place to give an airing to the administration's weaknesses in the foreign field

Editor-in-Chief Of London Free Press Honored

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Arthur R. Ford, editor - in - chief of the London Free Press for the last 33 years, was honored Friday by the Kiwanis Club of London, of which he is a charter member.

Mr. Ford was presented with a "dummy" Free Press front page made up of stories taken from the newspaper's files on his news-making experience in many parts of the world.

The representative stories illustrated leadership in the fields of civic service, journalism, education, health, and service club work.

A congratulatory message from Howard Ellis of Kansas State College, a former Kiwanis International president, described Mr. Ford as a "superior human being —most modest — but with an aura of distinction."

Pearson Warns Canadians On Freedom Concept

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson has warned Canadians not to let their concept of freedom degenerate into "luxury, laziness and licence."

In the years ahead as Canada more than ever will need stability, unity and moral strength if it is to achieve peace in "competitive co-existence" with Russia.

The minister, recently returned from a 20,000-mile tour of Russia and Asia, spoke at commencement exercises in Waterford district high school near this community.

"I'm not sure these Russians are not hoping our freedom can be used against us—that our freedom can lead to luxury, laziness and licence.

BUILD UP UNITY

"It seems to me that in the days ahead we must concentrate not only on military defence but build up our unity, patience and political strength. We must above all realize we're going to have to live with this situation for a long time."

Mr. Pearson said he felt the Russian leaders believe that in a period of relaxed tension their system would triumph over what they consider weaker democracies.

"Their people are much more patient, more disciplined and more used to deprivation than are we."

The greatest menaces to peace in the world today were fear, ignorance and misunderstanding, and "totalitarian despotism," he said.

FELT MENACE

Mr. Pearson said the menace of fear was felt not only in Russia but also in Canada.

"Fear is the father of armaments," he said. "Fear is abroad in their land and in this, otherwise we wouldn't be spending millions on armaments."

"You'll never remove it by statements issued from Moscow about peaceful co-existence. A desire for peace is not enough unless it can express itself in governmental policies. Those policies are locked up behind the Iron Curtain, in the hearts and minds of a few men."

14 FINAL TOLL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department today placed at 14 the final death toll in Wednesday's jet plane crash at Fairbanks, Alaska. In addition to 11 dead previously reported, the army also identified three deaths among dependents of servicemen stationed at Elelson air force base, where an F-84 jet fighter plunged into a military housing area Nov. 29.

HAIRCUTS BOOSTED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The price of haircuts in Greater Philadelphia will go up to $1.50 next Thursday. The 25-cent boost was approved Friday night at a meeting of representatives of three leading barber organizations. Shaves will go up to 85 cents, a 20-cent increase from the present rate of 65 cents, and manicures will be $1.50, a 25-cent boost.

Utilities Commissioner
9 MONTHS' EXPERIENCE. APPOINTED BY CITY COUNCIL MARCH 14th, 1955, TO COMPLETE THE UNEXPIRED TERM OF THE LATE SANDY LUMMISS.

During the period I have served you as a commissioner I have come to realize what an important part the utilities play in the every day life of each of us and how necessary it is that those who serve you as commissioners should be well informed on utility problems. This cannot be accomplished if you change each election those who serve you. The success of utility operation depends on the continuity of those who conduct the business and one of the reasons for successful operation of utilities by commissions is the continuance in office for lengthy terms of the commissioners.

I submit you would be well advised not to change your commissioner at this time but vote on Monday for JOHN WEESE, who will continue the policy of sound and experienced business administration of your Public Utilities.

A STATEMENT OF FACT . . . .
Regarding The Hospital Building Fund

Friday evening, Mayor J. Bolt, in a radio broadcast, charged that there was little information available on the Hospital Building Fund. Those who heard his talk were led to believe there was a sinister cloak of secrecy over the whole project. On the contrary, however, the opposite has been the case as is demonstrated in the talk I gave later in the evening over CJBQ. My statement follows:

Good Evening Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have listened to His Worship Mayor Bolt on his final campaign broadcast this evening when he made some reference about the Belleville General Hospital Campaign Fund to which I had the honor to be appointed Chairman at your Mayor at that time. He asked you the voting public whether or not there had been anything said about the hospital Campaign Fund and about the cost of the campaign and in particular about the shortage of pledges. He has been asking "Why" but my friends there is no "Why" in any public activity to which I devote myself.

Our original hospital objective was $1,250,000. The Campaign earned almost $600,000 by private and corporate subscription. Contributions are still coming in and we still hope that we will be able to reach our original objective. At the present time we are only a few thousand dollars short of our original objective.

His Worship said something about the cost of our Hospital Campaign. Ladies and Gentlemen there is not news, and there has been no secret about that. Right from the moment we commenced the campaign during the summer of 1953 we openly and unashamedly acknowledged that we had professional fund raising counsel. There is nothing unusual about that. Since that time the Archdiocese of Kingston, Roman Catholic, have conducted a campaign, Holloway Street Church, Bridge Church of Canada has had a campaign and so has Christ Church, the Church of England, Belleville — all of whom have had professional fund raising counsel and advice.

Ladies and gentlemen, is there anything wrong in that? If we are sick of body, we go to a doctor. If we are sick of soul, we go to our minister. As far as I know, when we need help of any kind, we go to those qualified to help us.

There is no secret about the cost of our Hospital Campaign. It cost us about $48,000 or about three per-cent of our total objective of $1,250,000. If you wish to eliminate the government, city and county contributions, and rely only on the public part of the total, which is $400,000, the cost would be a little less than seven percent. I understand that our Community Chest Campaign cost us more than that. But, Ladies and Gentlemen, please do not forget that, had it not been for the generosity of the public, we could not now look forward to the beautiful new wing which is now being built, and which, within a year, will be ready and equipped to look after those of us who may be unfortunate enough to require its services.

There has also been a reference to the fact that many of the Pledges to the Hospital Building Fund have been disappointing. Those of us who have worked so hard and so long to make the new wing of the hospital possible with as little expense as possible to the taxpayers of the City of Belleville could get discouraged but we're not, we are still working and every now and again we get encouraged by an additional contribution.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I have frequently informed the Board of Governors of Hospital of our concern about pledges which have not yet been paid. At the present time this shortage amounts to less than two percent of our public contributions as of October 15th last—or in other words about $12,000. This be within our estimate on this account. Please do not forget, that we have His Worship, the Mayor, and one alderman on the Hospital Board, and if they do not know these facts, either they have not been at the meetings or they have failed to inform the council and yourselves.

I made a public statement in this connection to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary this Fall when that organization presented me, on behalf of the Building Fund with a cheque for $1,000.00 for our Building Fund.

Ladies and Gentlemen — this is not a political broadcast — I decided to speak to you earlier listening to His Worship's remarks at 7.30 tonight.

Please do not be misled. You are getting a wonderful hospital which sooner or later we may all need and at very little cost to us, the taxpayers. Your Hospital may be your best friend, please do not pay any attention to those who would detract from the one institution which is our greatest friend.

A. McLean Haig
Chairman Belleville General Hospital Building Fund.

SEWAGE BY-LAW

The Belleville Utilities Commission feels that it should bring to the attention of the electors some points in connection with the By-law on the sewage system on which they are asked to express an opinion at the DECEMBER 5th election.

1. THE COMMISSION UNDERSTANDS IT IS THE INTENTION NOT TO PLACE THE MANAGEMENT OF THE STORM SEWER SYSTEM UNDER THE COMMISSION.

2. THE BY-LAW COULD COME INTO EFFECT WHEN THE SEWAGE SYSTEM INCLUDES THE DISPOSAL OR PURIFICATION OF SEWAGE BY FILTRATION OR OTHER ARTIFICIAL MEANS. IN OTHER WORDS, AFTER A MONEY BY-LAW HAS BEEN VOTED ON TO BUILD A SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT.

3. AN ESTIMATE OF THE PRESENT COST OF A SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT IS NOT AVAILABLE. THE LAST ESTIMATE MADE IN 1945 WAS $367,000. THE COST TODAY WOULD BE MUCH GREATER.

4. THE FINANCING OF THE ANNUAL COST OF OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF THE SEWER SYSTEM AND THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT WILL BE DONE BY A SEWER SERVICE CHARGE WHICH WILL BE MADE TO ALL USERS OF SEWER SERVICE.

CAMPBELLFORD

Escapee From Mental Hospital Soon Recaptured

CAMPBELLFORD — Kew Fong, 33-year-old Chinese, who escaped late Wednesday afternoon along with two other inmates of the Ontario Hospital at Kingston, was recaptured shortly before 8 p.m. on Wednesday night in Campbellford. Fong walked into the arms of Constable Sam Baird of the Campbellford force, when he stepped from a taxi in front of a restaurant he formerly operated on Front Street.

Fong was committed to the Ontario Hospital last August, after he was convicted by Magistrate H. B. Baxter of charges of creating a disturbance and pointing an offensive weapon. The charges were laid after Fong was subdued by Campbellford police after he entered Sullman's Restaurant on Front Street, which he at one time operated. At that time, he apparently intended to take the place over by force, and was carrying an automatic pistol.

Police did not give the names of the other two escapees. Hospital authorities notified the OPP shortly after the trio made their escape, and the Lindsay OPP detachment alerted the Campbellford police, where Fong was a former resident.

Fong hired a taxi of the Modern Taxi Company in Kingston, only two blocks from the hospital. He ordered driver Ed. Flaherty to drive him to Campbellford, where he was picked up as soon as he stepped from the cab. He is being held in Campbellford cells awaiting his return to Kingston.

STIRLING

Returned Missionary Tells Of Africa's Great Needs

STIRLING.— On Monday evening, St. Paul's Women's Missionary Society and Young People's Union held a combined missionary meeting in the auditorium of St. Paul's United church, Stirling, with guests in attendance from various nearby points.

The organizations represented were Eggleton WMS; West Huntingdon WMS; River Valley WMS; Mount Pleasant Rawdon WMS; Wellman's WMS; Rawdon Circuit YPU; Carmel WA; and Springbrook WA.

Mrs. Earl Bailey and Mrs. Cecil Macklin welcomed the guests on behalf of the WMS.

Mrs. Robert Hulin officiated at the piano and Mrs. George Carlisle, president St. Paul's WMS, read a poem "My Hand to Thine." She also voiced welcome to all after which Mr. Bryce Philp, president St. Paul's YPU, took charge of the devotional and all sang "Zion's King Shall Reign Victorious".

Miss Donna Carlisle read the Bible lesson; Miss Doreen Thrasher offered a special prayer; Miss Marlene Moorcroft gave the meditation on "Who is My Neighbor?". Mr. Grant Richardson gave a special story on the theme, "Let No Day Be Lost," and all sang "From Greenland's Icy Mountains".

OFFERING DONATED

A special offering was gathered by Messrs. Bryce Philp and Grant Richardson and this was dedicated as a special gift to Mrs. Howse to use in any way she chooses when she returns to Africa next April. This was officially presented to her in the Fellowship Hour and amounted to $22.

Mrs. Walter Warren sang "O Lord Correct Me".

Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, president Belleville Presbyterial, introduced Miss Millicent Howse, home on furlough from Angola, Africa.

Miss Howse was born in Newfoundland. She was commissioned in 1925 and went to Angola in 1926.

TELLS OF AFRICA

Miss Howse congratulated the young people on their inspirational devotional service. She then compared the Africa of today with the dark Africa in 1925 and gave a vivid picture of the dark houses where people lived 23 years ago. Today the light is beginning to filter in and there are many improvements. In 1955 Angola celebrated 75 years of mission work.

By simple narratives the speaker emphasized the value of a bar of soap in Africa, and the great need to boil all the drinking water.

"Today the African people are travelling—two of them visited Canada and carried back impressions of their trip. Among other things they noted Canada's food abundance, and the large variety of Christian denominations. There is just "The Church of Christ" in Angola.

"The example of the Canadian people is a tremendous influence to the educated African and we here in this favored land have a great challenge to show these people the real meaning of brotherhood and sisterhood. The whole family of Christ should be willing to share with each other.

"Food is the uppermost thought of the African people and you can do a far better job if you have plenty to eat and do not have to worry over daily food problems.

SELF-SUPPORTING CHURCH

"Today the African church is self-supporting and self-governing. They have their own ordained ministers and teachers who have had three years' training; however to date, their academic standing is low. In spite of handicaps the church is doing a formidable piece of work and they hope to have a higher educational standing in a few years.

"The church in Africa has many responsibilities as they are in charge of education. Here in Canada the government has full charge of education, but in that land, as yet, there is no compulsory education.

"The church sponsors medical clinics, and they are linking up with the Portuguese government to give the African child the same schooling as the white child, and in the very near future, hope to have one mission high school.

"In the 75 years only one boy has been given a university training course.

AGRICULTURE MOST IMPORTANT

"Agricultural work is most important as the whole of Africa is undernourished. Special training is being given to produce better food from the soil. Girls are given courses in household economics and they are taught the value of soy bean, milk and peanut milk, as a substitute for cow's milk, which is scarce.

"A good hen lays 30 eggs per year, and a good cow gives a quart of milk per day, so there is a great opportunity for more and more agricultural missionaries to volunteer to serve Africa.

"Dondi hospital specializes in training men and women as nurses and the preventive side of medical work is being emphasized. The World Health Organization is giving assistance and such diseases as tuberculosis, leprosy and infant mortality are slowly becoming less numerous. There is a real program of mid-wife training, and thousands of people are receiving clinical assistance.

"The first claim is spiritual and Africa can count their church membership in the thousands. The missionary stresses the fellowship of a Christian community, and tries to give the people guidance.

TOMORROW'S LEADERS

"The leaders of tomorrow in Africa will be those who have been trained in the mission schools and have grown up in a good missionary environment. We must have a clear vision of the need to send more personnel to Africa to work with the natives in that land and give them a chance to better their own conditions and eventually to live like other people."

Miss Howse closed her address on the challenge that Canadian people prove their sincerity and thus share with Africa and help them to bring in a new day.

Mrs. Walter Elliott, voiced grateful thanks to the speaker and the service closed with John Oxenham's missionary hymn.

A Fellowship hour followed in the Sunday school rooms where light refreshments were served and all were able to speak to Miss Howse if they so desired.

Mrs. Roy Rush voiced thanks to St. Paul's groups for their hospitality and Miss Howse spoke briefly.

The evening was a decided success and the message most worthwhile.

Foxboro

FOXBORO—A quiet, but pretty wedding took place at the United church parsonage on Saturday, November 29, when the Rev. Robert F. Darke united in marriage Miss Hilda Welch and Thomas Grant, both of Delta, Ont.

Mr. Percy Reid was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Reid, Holloway.

Mr. Cameron Bunkard, Montreal, was a weekend guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bunkard.

Mrs. Lorne Brough spent Saturday in Thomasburg as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brough.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tupper and Helen, spent Saturday in Tweed guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rainsle.

Mrs. E. E. Follwell was a Tuesday guest of her mother, Mrs. Lorne Brough.

NO JUSTICE

Strongly reminiscent of the outstanding displays of goal-keeping turned in by Kingston Goodyear's Ken Johnson in those desperate games of last season, was his scintillating exhibition given 1100 fans last night in a typical Kingston-Belleville senior "B" clash.

The goalie was uncanny at times. How he kept that hunka rubber out of the net especially in the first period when our side outshot the foemen 18-2 is more than the news agents can decipher. He stopped 'em from all angles, kicked 'em out with his ears, eyes, eyebrows and dandruff and at other times held an arm, leg or a stick so the TPT's could hit it. He didn't strike out once.

The TPT's deserved a better fate. They held the margin of play as the shots on goal, 32-23 indicates, but it seemed fantastic how they could not get that rubber in the net until late in the third period. They came up with one of the best, if not the best, efforts of the season and taking all things into consideration should have toddled home with a 5-3 victory under their collective belts.

The TPT's are getting the run-around from Ole Lady Luck insofar as injuries are concerned. They have not been at full strength for the past five or six games due to Dame Misfortune dancing them with her smile. First it was "Smiler" McMaster out with a shoulder injury. Then Terry Jones got "crocked" with a rib hurt. Last night, in fact for the past two games Vern Goyer has been forced to ride it out on the sidelines. And then after a minute of play in last night's hassle, Keith MacDonald took an enforced rest when he suffered head and facial gashes after a collision with the Goodyears' Gabby Wilkie. Aside Coach Danny Cox was forced to juggle his offensive and defensive forces.

From our spot in the press box just a degree to port of the Kingston radio crew and its likeable commentator Maxie Johnson, who can be excused perhaps for having a distinct Goodyear complex, some boys looked awful good last night. Peter came up with a fine effort behind that blueline, while Davy sparkled with his stickhandling and offensive work. Sammy "The Man" roared both ways and was a TPT stalwart for the entire game.

It was a "Joe and Moe" night for the Goodies. Joe Levandoski must like Belleville. He looked at the arena for 23 minutes from the cozy comfort of the penalty box. We don't know what professional hockey rule governs benefits. If Levandoski's sometimes childish pranks are any criterion then they'd better start unwanted pros on the pension list.

Levandoski was no credit to the Kingston team—nor to senior "B" hockey last night. The fact that he played two hockey doesn't carry a grain of weight down thisaway. He can thump, stamp and sulk all he likes. He discovered last night that referees in allegro mood are not impressed by a lot of weight and plenty of thumb. We are not advising the Goodyears to get rid of Joe. Far from it. They should carry him if only for the penalties—and the laughs.

Irrepressible Bill (The Smiler) McMaster, who has been sidelined for some time with a shoulder injury was champing at the bit in the dressing room last night.

He coaxed, cajoled and used every other verbal method of trying to persuade Coach Danny Cox and Manager "Red" Doran to let him get into uniform.

But Red" shook his head. "No soap, Bill," he said, "I've seen those things before. That shoulder is liable to pop out again like toast out of a toaster. You rest it for a while yet."

The "Smiler" was plainly disappointed. "I'm fit as ever," he protested, but the boss-men were adamant. So Smiler took all his puck-chasing from the sidelines.

However the Smiler's loyalty to the team can't be questioned. Injury or no injury he has not missed a game at home or away. His rollicking good nature is always apparent and he is a decided dressing room asset.

Vern Goyer was not in uniform as the big fella was sidelined with what was reported to be torn ligaments in a foot. Jake Wade who has signed with TPT's was also laid up with a groin injury. The likeable Jake has yet to put in an appearance with TPT's in competitive play.

Davy Jones resurrected what is said to be one of hockey's lost arts when he put on a brilliant display of stickhandling behind the Kingston nets. The puck appeared glued to his stick and he had the Goodies' defenders, baffled for nearly a minute.

Andy Bathgate Hero of Piece In Blues Drive for Top; Trail Habs by Four Points

By the Canadian Press

Andy Bathgate is one National Hockey League player who probably would like to play all his games against Chicago Black Hawks.

The 23-year-old centre scored a goal and assisted on the other Friday night as New York Rangers stretched their undefeated streak to six games with a 2-1 victory over the Hawks at Chicago before 7,586 fans.

In five games against Chicago this season, Bathgate has scored four of his goals and 11 assists. His total points—23 from six goals and 15 assists—puts him fourth in the league's individual scoring race, along with Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens and Dave Creighton of Rangers. Bathgate and Creighton are New York's leading scorers.

The win put the Rangers 13th in 23 starts this season. They're four ties and six losers for 30 points, four behind the leading Canadiens. Chicago remained in third place, seven points behind Rangers and two ahead of Detroit Red Wings. Toronto Maple Leafs, deadlocked for fourth spot with 20 points each, Boston Bruins occupy the cellar.

Bathgate, a 20-goal man with the New Yorkers last season, opened the scoring with a goal at 13:06 of the first period after winning a boarding penalty at the time. A boarding penalty at the time at the 17:00 mark of the first period inflicted off a play with Bathgate and Don Raleigh of the Hawks. Chicago goaltender Al Rollins with a hard drive

The scoring was completed 46 seconds before the first session ended when Prentice cut in on goaltender Lorne Worsley and fired a waist-high shot. Nick Mickoski and Hec Lalande received assists.

'Savage' Tamed Guelph Hands St. Mikes 10-2 Lacing As St. Kitts Teepees Edge Barrie

By the Canadian Press

It just wasn't Bob Savage's night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Savage, goaltender for Toronto St. Michael's Majors, had a busy, but unsuccessful game at Guelph Friday night as the Biltmores laced the Majors 10-2. Savage was scored on more times in 60 minutes than he was in the previous 5 1-3 games he had played.

The loss knocked Majors from sole possession of first place as Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks climbed into a tie with them by defeating Toronto Marlboros 3-2 at Kitchener. St. Catharines Teepees went into fifth place as they took a 6-5 win over the Flyers at Barrie in the other OHA junior A game.

EACH HAVE 19

Canucks and Majors each have 19 points, two more than third-place Hamilton Cubs. Marlboros are in fourth with 18 points, one ahead of Teepees. Guelph and Barrie are tied for the cellar with 11 points.

Bill Sweeney and Billy Cleary were the most troublesome Biltmores to Savage. Each fired three goals. Bill Graham counted twice and Bob Forhan and Brian Webber scored one apiece. Noel Price and Gene Ubrace were the Majors' marksmen.

The Kitchener-Waterloo win, before 1,198 Kitchener fans, was Canucks' ninth of the season in 14 starts.

The winners rallied for two unanswered goals in the third period to take the decision after Marlboros led 3-1 at the end of the second.

SCORED BIG ONE

Kent Douglas, Canuck defenceman, scored the deciding goal midway through the final 20 minutes while two Marlboros were in the penalty box. Glen Gribbons and Ab Martin were the other Kitchener-Waterloo scorers. Ron Fernfield and Gary Collins scored for Marlboros. Each team received 10 penalties with Marlboros getting three majors and a misconduct.

A crowd of 1,000 at Barrie saw the Flyers take a 2-1 lead in the initial frame and hold a 3-2 margin after the second. Teepees won the game in the final period with four straight goals before Barrie counted twice in the final two minutes.

Dick Lafontaine, Bob Butler, Pat Kelly, Ab McDonald, Bob Hull and Mait Thompson counted for St. Catharines. Arnold Smith fired a pair of Barrie goals with singles going to John Chaszewski, Roy Partridge and George Razzini.

"I knew it was a mistake to beat up the ref last week. Look at the new one the league sent!"

Alouettes Sign 'Peahead' To New Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, apparently well-satisfied with their coaching despite two straight Grey-Cup setbacks, have signed Doug (Peahead) Walker to a new three-year contract.

The move was a surprise in that Walker still had a year to go on a two-year pact he signed at the end of the 1954 season. The new contract will expire in December, 1958. No terms were announced.

Leo Dandurand, president of the Alouettes, announced the signing of the contract from Toronto, where he will attend the East-West all-star game today. Walker is coach of the eastern all-stars.

AN INSTITUTION

Dandurand said Walker has become an institution with Montreal fans and "we are very happy over this week with the Alouettes." The new contract was an expression of confidence in the coach.

The contract was signed in Toronto at a meeting between Dandurand, Walker and Ted Workman, one of the club owners.

Walker came to Montreal from Yale, where he was assistant coach, in 1952. Taking over a shaky Alouette team, he coached it to a first-place tie in 1953 but lost out to Hamilton in the Grey Cup playoff.

In 1954, the Als topped the standings with 11 wins and three losses and whipped Hamilton in the post-season playoff. Montreal bowed 26-25 to Edmonton Eskimos in the Grey Cup game, however.

The Als also led the league this season and won their sudden-death playoff against Toronto. But Edmonton retained the Grey Cup, whipping Montreal 34-19 last Saturday in Vancouver.

Won't Permit Basilio To Fight Saxton

NEW YORK (AP) — The state athletic commission ruled Friday that welterweight champion Carmen Basilio will not be permitted to defend his title against Johnny Saxton in New York because of the unlicensed status and background of Saxton's manager, Frank (Blinky) Palermo.

Julius Helfand, chairman of the commission, rejected the plea of Syracuse, N.Y., promoter Norm Rothschild for permission to negotiate for such a match.

"Palermo does not have a license in New York and won't get one," said Helfand. "He is an ex-convict and not the kind of a person who should have a license." Helfand's decision means that the Saxton-Basilio title fight will go to Miami, Chicago, San Francisco or Los Angeles. Those were the sites in addition to New York Syracuse mentioned by Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club.

Russians Seek World Mastery In Athletes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A word of warning was passed around at the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union convention today: "The Russians are out to become world masters in athletic competition.

They hope, especially through the Olympics, to create a "master race" reputation, Clarence H. Johnson of Detroit told convention delegates.

Johnson is chairman of the AAU Weightlifting Federation. He returned recently from his second visit behind the Iron Curtain. Behind that curtain, Johnson said, is frenzied activity to develop the Russian athlete.

It's a government project, he said. The minister of athletics is a cabinet post; the accomplished athletes enjoy the best living conditions and the Russian athletic organization is one of the strongest such groups in the world.

Kingston Goodyears Edge TPT's 3-2 In Best Senior B Game Of Season

Foe Goalie Rises to Heights In Sensational Performance; Coxmen Deserved Better Fate

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

A playoff Nemesis reared its head in a typical Belleville-Kingston senior "B" thriller here last night as the second-place Goodyears snatched a 3-3 victory from the TPT's before nearly 1100 excited fans.

Ken Johnson, Goodyears net stalwart, rose to some sort of hockey heights in the best tray seen here this winter when he hurled back the desperate attacks of the win-hungry TPT's with a sensational display of puck-stopping.

The TPT's held the margin of play throughout the game, outshooting the Goodyears 33-23, firing 16 pucks at Johnson in the second period as against three counters. Effectiveness around the nets enabled the Goodyears to score single clean-cut goals in the first two periods and increase the lead to 3-0 early in the third frame. The TPT's finally broke the "egg" midway through the last and ran-mad home their second goal four minutes later. They narrowly missed the tying goal, then a last-second penalty to Mulholland ruined their chances of a stalemate or victory.

RUGGED BATTLE

It was a rugged hard-checking battle characterized of those between the two cities. Referees Maurice Walsh and Vern Buffie handed out 16 penalties, eleven going to the Goodyears including two misconducts and a game misconduct to Levandoski.

The Levandoski misconduct making his debut in Belleville, did the most of the penalty-handing. He was tabbed with four minors and two misconducts which brought him an automatic game misconduct. Excitement ran high when Referee Buffie handed Levandoski with his second misconduct. The Goodyears team protested and Buffie in protest to no avail. Levandoski served 38 minutes in the hoosegow.

The injury jinx continues to haunt the Coe-coached crew. Vern Goyer, Bill McMaster and Jake Wade were sidelined before last night's game and the TPTs lost the services of Keith MacDonald with a head injury and facial gashes that required stitching after colliding with Kingston's Gabby White, a minute after play started in the first period.

It was rugged, hard-hitting, heavy checking hockey from the start with the Goodyears drawing five of the six penalties handed out in the first period. The TPTs drove hard in a relentless attack, with Johnson kicking out the puck from all angles. They did everything but blast the rubber in the net.

Levandoski had returned from his first minor after seven minutes in the first period, when Toppazzini spearheaded a drive with Murray and Nicolucci circled in on the Belleville nets and blasting a high hard shot past Parisi from well out.

Play was evenly divided in the second period with the teams dividing sightseen shots on the home. Again Johnson turned aside the Belleville efforts while at the other end Tony Parisi thwarted lone attackers after they raced in on him on solo breakaways.

ONE THOUGHT IT WAS IN

Belleville scored what appeared to be the tying goal a minute later. The puck, stopped by Johnson, dropped to the ice and seemed to roll in the net. The light flashed on, but referee Walsh ruled it had not crossed the line.

The TPTs were tabbed with the three of the four penalties of the frame, Taylor got the goals and had just returned when the Goodyears climaxed a sustained offensive with the second goal of the night, Murray scoring on assists from Toppazzini and Levandoski on a pretty passing play.

Johnson maintained his shutout effort as the TPTs drove hard in a heavy-hitting third period. Kingston reached late in an all-out offensive and Parisi kicked out three shots from close-in limmie Samalenko fired the puck over his prostrate body for the Goodyears' third goal after eight minutes of play. The same player raced in on Parisi alone a minute later but the TPTs goalie outguessed the fleet Goodyears' forward.

Bob Wilson eventually "broke the TPT egg" after twelve minutes of hard and hard drive ripped into the net. White was given an assist.

Levandoski had just stepped on the ice from serving a minor when the TPTs hit the second payoff. Chum Fryia driving home Peter Jones' pass on a goalmouth frame. Came the near-thuarb when Levandoski threw the puck into the boards in protest of another penalty and he was promptly tabbed with his second misconduct.

A goal away, the Coxmen raced to the attack narrowly missing the equalizer on three occasions. Then came Mulholland's penalty and the TPTs offensive lost its sting.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the TPTs while the Goodyears strengthened their hold on second place. The teams clash again in Kingston tonight.

The teams:

Kingston — goal, Johnson; defence, Nicholson, Goodfellow, Sibley, Londry, Levandoski; forwards, Senior, White, Bellringer, Samalenko, Murray, Toppazzini, Douglas, Tinkess.

Belleville — goal, Parisi; defence, Wilson, Mulholland; forwards, Hall, Lunau, Lovejoy, MacDonald, D. Jones, Greenlaw, P. Jones, Gilmore, White, Taylor.

Dutchies Draw With Indians; Mercurys Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Things haven't changed much in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League after Friday night's two games.

It's still Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen in first place with a comfortable lead over the rest of the league.

The Dutchmen were held to a 4-4 tie by Stratford Indians at Stratford while Chatham Maroons got into the thick of the fight among the three other clubs with a 3-2 win over Owen Sound Mercurys at Owen Sound.

Dutchmen have 27 points. Windsor Bulldogs, Mercurys and Indians are all tied for second with 17 points. Chatham is in the cellar but only a point behind the other three clubs.

TIED THE SCORE

Jack McKenzie knotted the score for the Dutchmen at Stratford as he scored with less than five minutes left in regulation time. Neither player received a penalty during the session. Don Rope, Jim Logan and Ken Laufman were the goal scorers for Kitchener-Waterloo George Aitken, Johnny Murdoch, Bobby Mader and Pete Kowalchuk counted for Indians.

Ralph Cain's 11.50 powerful shot the Maroons-Mercurys game at Chatham, in which Lloyd Ferguson, playing his second game of the season for the Maroons, scored all three goals. Ken Green and Ralph Hosking were the scorers for Owen Sound.

Green gave the Mercurys a 1-0 lead at 6:06 of the first stanza but a pair of goals by Cain gave Chatham 14 seconds put Maroons ahead 2-1 as the period ended. Ferguson scored the only goal of the middle period and Hosking closed out the scoring at 16:18 of the final 20 minutes.

Worried Bruins Recruit Help

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins, who haven't won a game in their last nine National Hockey League encounters, Friday recalled two forward farmhands and optioned three players to that American Hockey League club.

Ordered to report here in time for tonight's game against Detroit Red Wings were Lionel Hetrioln, rugged 20-year-old defenceman, and Allan Johnston, 19-year-old left winger. Optioned to Hershey were three forwards, Eddie Panagabko, Lorne Davis and Orval Tessier.

Browns Meet Redskins Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland Browns can clinch their sixth straight divisional title in the National Football League Sunday.

They'll be trying for only a half-game with two more to play. Washington takes on New York Giants while Cleveland plays the hapless Pittsburgh Steelers.

The western division offers a tighter race. It's a three-way affair involving Los Angeles Rams, Chicago Bears and Baltimore Colts in that order. It also could end Sunday but more likely the decision will rest on the final regular-season games next week.

East Favored Over West 6-5 In Football's Dream Game

By WILF GRUBON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The East, favored at 6-to-5 or three points at even money, stacks its aerial power against the crushing ground power of the West in Canada's first all-star football game today.

The weather outlook was not too bright. Occasional light drizzle or snow was forecast with the temperature around the freezing mark. The game, starting at 1 p.m. MST, is being televised live by the CBC over its eastern Canada network. Poor weather would keep the crowd below Varsity Stadium's capacity of 27,000.

The first heavy snowfall of the season hit Toronto Friday but it had little effect on the field, covered with a tarpaulin since early in the week.

The East's prestige, at its lowest ebb in Canadian gridiron history after two successive Grey Cup losses, is riding on the arms of Sam Etcheverry, rifle-armed Montreal quarterback, and Tom Dublinski, Toronto Argonaut pivot who led the Big Four in passing this season.

TROUBLE FOR WEST

They could add up to double trouble for the West considering how Etcheverry passed so successfully, although in a losing effort, in completing 30 of 39 passes in Montreal Alouettes' 34-19 loss to Edmonton Eskimos in the Grey Cup game.

Dublinski, fourth in passing in the 1954 National Football League season when he played with Detroit Lions, edged out Etcheverry for passing honors in a slight margin in the Big Four this year. The Toronto quarter completed 251 out of 338 passes for a percentage completion of .580 and an average gain of 9.1 yards.

Etcheverry connected on 227 of 400 passes for a .567 percentage and an average gain of nine yards. He had 20 passes intercepted, seven less than Dublinski.

STONE STRICKEN

The eastern team ran into a bit of trouble Friday night. Avatus Stone, outstanding fullback with Ottawa Rough Riders, was stricken with influenza and will miss the game. Stone was to have handled the punting for the East.

Doug Wilkerson, East end, eastern coach, called in Cam Fraser, kicking expert from Hamilton Tiger-Cats, to take Stone's place.

Fraser led the Big Four in punting this season with an average of 47.4 yards a kick. Stone had an average of 43.8 yards.

The West's hopes are contained in the running power of the split-T attack, the formation Edmonton utilized for its two successive history-making Grey Cup victories over Montreal. The westerners, however, may also pass more than a team ordinarily does from the split-T since they have two brilliant receivers in Rollie Rosentiel of Calgary Stampeders and Stan Williams of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

GROUND POWER

Both teams have the manpower that coaches dream about for an overpowering ground offensive. The East's power runners include such halfbacks as Pat Abbruzzi of Montreal, Lou Kusserow of Hamilton, Tom Tracy of Ottawa and the speedy and tricky Hal Wagoner of Hamilton.

The West's shock troops along the ground include the first-string Edmonton backfield of Parker, fullbacks Johnny Bright and Normie Kwong and halfbacks Earl Lindley and Rollie Miles.

The game is being played to aid Canada's crippled children. The net proceeds will be divided between the Canadian Shriners' hospitals for crippled children in Winnipeg and Montreal.

Pre-Game Dinner Helps Pay For Beaches' Fun

TORONTO (CP)—Football men gathered around a dinner table Friday night. The talk, naturally, was all football.

The occasion was the first all-star game Sunday, held at the end of the East West all-star football game. The setting was much the same as the Grey Cup shindig; a get-together of the gridiron clan at $10 a plate.

A total of 741 persons turned out. Proceeds of the dinner will go toward reducing the large deficit under which Toronto Beaches operated in the Ontario Rugby Football Union this season. Beaches sponsored the football team.

The fans heard from several football experts. Among them were Annis Stukus, former coach of British Columbia Lions, and coaches Frank Tindall of Queen's University Golden Gaels, Doug Walker of Montreal Alouettes and Frank Ivy of the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos.

Tindall supplied the laughs. In his brief chat about the game, he slipped in remarks such as this:

"The difference between a professional coach and a college coach in a losing season is that the college coach can always say he was really interested in building character."

National Ballet to Present Classic 'The Nutcracker' on TV

TORONTO (CP)—For the first time in United States television history a Canadian ballet company will be featured on a coast-to-coast U.S. television show Dec. 4.

The National Ballet Company of Canada will present excerpts from the classic "The Nutcracker," specially choreographed by artistic director Celia Franca for NBC's "Wide, Wide, World' show as a pre-Christmas children's ballet.

The Canadian segment originates from the stage of Shea's theatre in downtown Toronto and will be produced by the CBC and fed to the U.S. network.

RUSSIAN MASTERPIECE

The presentation on television is 43 years almost to the day since the Russian masterwork first was produced at the famed Maryinsky theatre in former St. Petersburg Dec. 5, 1855. The music of Tchaikowsky and the original choreography of Lev Ivanov since has inspired many ballet companies to create their own versions following the spirit and story lines of the fantasy.

Sadlers Wells and the New York City Ballet Company also have revised and altered the ballet based on the legend which originated with the Alexander Dumas version of one of the tales of Hoffman, the story of the little girl who sees her Christmas toys come to life after midnight.

Sunday's television show presents scenes from two of the four acts. The finale of Act II has the child Clara rescuing the Nutcracker doll from the fierce army led by the king of the mice.

In gratitude the Nutcracker takes Clara to the land of snow which comprises Act III.

Prima Ballerina Lois Smith of Vancouver will be featured as the Snow Queen. David Adams, also Vancouver, principal male dancer, is the Nutcracker who becomes a handsome prince after defeating the army of mice.

Judith Hamilton, 14 the youngest dancer in the company, plays Clara. Ray Moller of Victoria is the King of Mice.

On the following Sunday, Dec. 11, the National Ballet will be presented on the CBC's "Folio" television program. They will perform "Lilac Garden," and "Offenbach In The Underworld," two ballets by the choreographer Antony Tudor of London and New York.

At The Capitol

"Three Coins in The Fountain"

With six stars heading the cast and the historical beauty of Rome and Venice as a background, "Three Coins in the Fountain," one of Twentieth Century-Fox's major efforts in the new CinemaScope form, comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday. Clifton Webb, Dorothy McGuire, Jean Peters, Louis Jourdan, Maggie McNamara and Rossano Brazzi head the principal roles in this triple love story from John H. Secondari's best-selling novel and to give the picture added dramatic power John Patrick, author of the current Broadway Drama Critics and Pulitzer Prize hit, "The Tea-house of the August Moon," transposed the story to film.

Producer Sol C. Siegel and Director Jean Negulesco took their stars and a large crew of technicians to Italy for all the exterior scenes. For the first time audiences will see in beautiful color by DeLuxe and through the expanded power of CinemaScope, which encompasses three broad vistas, such wonders as St. Peter's, the Colisseum and Forum, the Villa Madama, the Spanish Steps and the Fountain di Trevi in Rome, in Venice the Palazzo di Doges in the Grand Canal were filmed as background for important sequences in the story. Much of the Italian countryside also came into the range of the CinemaScope cameras as well as the natural grandeur of the Italian Alps which stand as a magnificent backdrop for the little village of Merano where scenes were filmed.

The story deals with the romantic yearnings of three American secretaries working in Rome. Wearying of the fruits of unrequited affection for Clifton Webb, an American author who is in Italy researching a book, Miss Peters, who is of going home, Finding Italian economics an insurmountable barrier to marriage, Miss Peters also decides to return to the U.S., until Rossano Brazzi, in the role of a young translator in the U.S. Distribution Agency in Rome, changes her mind. Miss McNamara is the new arrival who dreams of capturing Louis Jourdan, an Italian prince, but finds him extremely elusive. The girls, each in her own way, manage their romances gives the story its poignancy.

Author Secondari got the title "Three Coins in the Fountain" from the Rouan legend that he who tosses a coin into the beautiful Trevi fountain and wishes to will return to Rome. The picture ends with the three girls and their prospective husbands at the fountain, which is one of the show spots of Rome.

ADDED FEATURE

"Las Vegas Lied as Film Locale

Nevada's famous resort city and its fabulous hotel-casinos were used as settings for Allied Artists' "Las Vegas Shakedown", starring Dennis O'Keefe, Coleen Gray, Charles Winniger and Thomas Gomez. The film is the second hit at the Capitol theatre, with O'Keefe in the role as the owner-operator of one of the larger luxury spots.

Appearing prominently in featured supporting roles are Elizabeth Patterson, Robert Armstrong, Mary Beche Hughes and James Millican.

LONDON AREA FARMER SHOT IN PIG-STY

Eden, Macmillan To Visit Canada, U.S. Early In '56

Eisenhower's Invitation Shows He Is Recovering

RECOVERS LaPRENSA

'Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz waves as he leaves prison in New York for Buenos Aires, Argentina, where he will again take over the publication of his newspaper, "La Prensa." He was accompanied by his wife. The paper was ordered returned to Dr. Paz by the Argentine Provisional Government. He has been in exile for more than four years. Dr. Paz recently said that "La Prensa" would once again be free, independent and honest.

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Macmillan will travel to the United States and Canada at the end of January for talks with government leaders in Washington and Ottawa, it was announced today.

A White House announcement said the British leaders will arrive in Washington Jan. 30 at the invitation of President Eisenhower. They will spend "a few days" there.

Eden told the Commons today he and Macmillan are going to Ottawa for discussion with Canadian leaders.

"I should like also to inform the House that at the invitation of the prime minister of Canada, the foreign secretary and I will visit Ottawa at the end of our visit to Washington," Eden said.

VISIT WELCOMED

Clement Attlee, Labor party leader, said:

"I am sure the House will welcome this announcement. I am sure I express the view of all of us when I say that we are glad the president of the United States is so improved that is a step the positive distinguished visitors from overseas."

President Eisenhower now is at his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., continuing his convalescence from his Sept. 24 heart attack.

The talks presumably will deal with Western strategy in the light of the recent failure of the Geneva "Big Four foreign ministers" conference on such matters as German reunification, European security and disarmament. The leaders are also expected to discuss the implications of belligerent speeches made by Soviet leaders on their visit to India and Burma and the new economic squeeze by the Communists on West Berlin.

ENGLISH TO ATTEND

State Secretary Dulles will participate in talks with the British leaders, Canadian and Macmillan represented their countries at the Geneva conference.

James Hagerty, White House press secretary, declined to give specific details of the subjects to be considered by the British and American leaders. He said one subject will encompass affairs of mutual interest to the two countries.

Asked whether Eden suggested the Washington visit, Hagerty said no—"this was an invitation on behalf of the president."

The announcement was perhaps the strongest indication yet that Eisenhower is getting ready to resume a full role in national and international affairs.

Eden's trip is seen here as part of the preparations he is making for the Soviet Communist leaders, Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Khrushchev, booked to visit Britain in the spring.

The British leaders, it is also said, would not wished to go into such talks without first closely consulting with President Eisenhower.

DREW SAYS PARTY WILL REVIVE HOUSE'S POWERS

Order-in-Council Form of Govt. to Go

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Hon. George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party says the Conservatives are pledged to restore the supremacy of Parliament in Canada.

Addressing the fourth centennial dinner to be held by the Conservatives this year, he said there must be an end to government by order-in-council.

"Instead of government by orders-in-council," he said, "we are pledged to bring the nation's business back into the House of Commons under the control of the people's representatives."

The Saturday night dinner host was attended by leading federal and provincial party officials and members from all provinces. It marked the entry of the party into its second century.

MASSES CONTROL

Mr. Drew said the Liberal administration's crown corporations are masking government control of the economy.

"We believe in free enterprise, but not licensed free enterprise.

The national leader's speech described the Progressive Conservative movement as the only strong national opposition.

"There's an old saying that a third party is just as unnecessary in politics as in love. We have seen the effect of multitude of parties. We must keep clear the fact that the vitality of our democracy depends on a two-party system and great attention of those parties, so there may be check on government from time to time."

HEES REPORTS

George Hees, president of the national Progressive Conservative Association, reported a growing strength and enthusiasm in the party across Canada. He paid tribute to Mr. Drew, saying he had proved himself "the most-outstanding statesman in Canada today."

Premier Frost of Ontario, once carried by Sir John A. Macdonald, founder of the party, was described as an historic symbol of success by Premier Frost of Ontario.

He said the cane was presented to him by Mrs. George Gooderham of Toronto shortly before the last Ontario provincial election.

"It was given as an omen of good fortune? In that election the spirit of old Sir John brought another victory to the party."

Leon Balcer, BC member of Parliament for Trois-Rivieres, said the people of Quebec "won't swallow any more Liberal propaganda."

He spoke in "anti-French and anti-Quebec."

SETS MARLIN RECORD

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) — A 30-pound striped marlin caught fish caught in the Bay of Plenty by Mrs. Martin Carkeek has been recognized as a world record by the International Game Fish Association. Mrs. Carkeek now holds the women's all-tackle record which formerly belonged to Mrs. Muriel Lerner for a 403-pound fish caught off Chile, in 1940.

Russia Next Month Will Publish First Post-Revolutionary Bible

TORONTO (CP) — A Russian Orthodox church here, visiting Canadian said today Russia's first post-revolution Bible is scheduled for publication next month.

Archbishop Boris, representative of Moscow Theological Seminary and the Patriarch Alexis Gorbatchov, seminary rector, reached Toronto Sunday night. They travelled by train from Montreal, where they arrived from Moscow by plane Sunday.

The conference was called by the United Church of Canada, head of the Protestant group, to meet the tour.

Rev. Dr. Ernest E. Long, United Church secretary, said the new edition of the Bible will involve only changes in spelling to get the Bible into line with contemporary Russian orthography.

The last edition was published in Russia in 1916 and has not easily been obtainable.

Through an interpreter the archbishop and seminary rector were questioned closely on the freedom of religion in Russia.

Both insisted its practice is free and that church services unless clergymen are invited to preach cannot be performed in construction.

Archbishop Boris said interest in religion is steadily increasing among the Russian people. "and it is a church of living people."

He had no figures of church membership but said he hoped to increase the roll-call in our churches."

At the conference was Rt. Rev. Dr. George Deary, moderator of the United Church of Canada, who introduced the Russians.

Use Berlin's Barge Traffic In Fight to Win Recognition

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany insisted today that the question of barge traffic to isolated West Berlin must be handled on a ministerial level by the West German government.

The Communists thus acknowledged that they hope to force recognition of their regime through the new crisis created by the waterway role. So far, West Germany has dealt with the Communists only on the level of "technical experts," something which does not imply recognition.

The future of barge traffic—a vital link to the lifeline of the Communist-surrounded city — was raised during the weekend by the disclosure that the Russians have given the East Germans power to coerce or deny applications for the operation of Western-owned barges.

The Russians to date have turned back 23 permit applications, saying these must be submitted to East German officials for processing.

The Soviet action raised the possibility the Communists might try to set up a total blockade by cutting off Western barge traffic through the denial of permits. About 24 per cent of West Berlin's heavy supplies, such as coal, are received in by waterway from West Germany, 110 miles distant from the city.

In another development, an East German government delegation headed by Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl left by air today for "friendship visits" to Red China, North Korea and Mongolia.

ADN, the East German news agency, said the delegation includes Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz and Maj.-Gen. Heinrich Dollweitzel of the staff of East Germany's militarized barracks police.

Three Russian Church Heads Side-Step Metropolit Question

MONTREAL (CP)—Three Russian church leaders embarked on the Ontario leg of their Canadian tour today after side-stepping a protest demonstration on their arrival in Montreal.

More than 30 persons were waiting for the visitors when they arrived at Dorval airport. They carried banners and distributed pamphlets calling Archbishop Boris, the delegation leader, a "self-described puppet and a subservient tool."

But the Russian Orthodox churchmen were whisked away immediately by officials and officials of the United Church of Canada, sponsors of the tour.

They arrived in Toronto Sunday night and were again taken to their hotel where hotel rooms without incident. A city detective was assigned to the group to prevent any disturbance.

The group—Archbishop Boris, who represents the Moscow patriarch in North and South America, the Archpriest Alexis Gorbatchov, Constantine Ruditsky, rector of Moscow Theological Seminary and Anatole Gorbatchov, a seminary layman whose position was unclear but who is not a university registrar.

At a press conference held shortly after their arrival, the 54-year-old black-bearded archbishop said through an interpreter that there is no ban on worship in Russia.

Any Russian could believe in God and practise his beliefs and "many persons so believe and practise."

He said there are 20,000 churches in Russia, about 35,000 priests, 20,000 monks and 5,000 nuns and "sisters."

He said "very few—less than 10%" of the orthodox churches are still under the jurisdiction of the Russian patriarch. Those which had broken away were considered "living" churches and reconciling attempts have proved unfeasible.

All three laughed when reporters asked if they were members of the Communist party. The archbishop said it would be impossible since party members are subsidized.

The delegation met at the airport by Dr. Ernest E. Long, general secretary of the council of the United Church of Canada, who said the purpose of the visit was "goodwill."

The aims are to promote understanding between the Soviet Union and the Christian world, and foster contacts between Canadian and Russian Christians.

The protesting group were a Ukrainian group body called the Organization of Patriots to Combat Communism and the separate Ukrainian group.

The churchmen will spend today in Toronto. From there they will go to Welland and Niagara Falls Wednesday and to Ottawa Saturday. They will return here before flying to Edmonton Dec. 15.

Annual Farmers' Parliament Finds Outlook Gloomy

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government believes the flow of cash to Canada's farmers will be much greater in 1956 than in 1955.

Despite the general rosy hue of the Canadian economy, grain farmers can look for little cash coming from the effects of food surpluses clogging world markets. The proportion of food products in world trade has declined.

The result has been a drop in prairie farm earnings and a scramble among governments and farm organizations to whether the federal administration might do more to boost Canadian grain sales.

These questions will be thrown open for debate at the farmers' Parliament—the annual federal-provincial conference on agriculture ministers—opening here Thursday. Chairman is A. M. Shaw, head of the federal prices support board.

Most conference likely will be given the opinion of federal government officials that the outlook for a rise in farm cash income next year is not bright; that the 1955 drop in farm net income will be followed by a sudden widespread drought, famine or war.

Yet . . . Trade in agricultural products is becoming a gradually decreasing part of world trade and opportunities for export is becoming a smaller sector of agricultural production, the federal agriculture department in a pre-conference review of the food situation.

Trade Minister Predicts Another Year of Expansion

VICTORIA (CP) — Preliminary surveys of the 1956 economic situation indicate another year of expansion, Trade Minister Howe said Saturday.

He told the Association of Professional Engineers of British Columbia:

"Evidence now at hand concerning next year's investment plans points to large capital expenditures by governments and business in every part of Canada. The total will probably higher, than for the current year, which is in itself a record year.

"There seems to be no lack of pioneering projects to be undertaken as opportunity offers. I am sure that the long-term growth and expansion is not limited to any one area, but seems to extend from coast to coast.

"Building activities during 1956 may be limited by the shortages of materials rather than by a shortage of available funds.

The remarks were included in a text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

SAFER FOR BIRDS

Powerful vertical light beams in the vicinity of airports which have caused thousands of birds to crash to earth are going to be filtered or turned off during the migrating period. Interior Secretary Douglas McKay announced Saturday that the air force, the weather bureau and numerous other groups are cooperating.

PLAYBOY SOUGHT IN 8 COUNTRIES HELD IN MONTREAL

R. Schlesinger Will Be Taken to N.Y.

MONTREAL (CP) — Playboy Robert Schlesinger, who pledged his love for street Linda Christian with $132,000 in jewels he allegedly bought with a swindled cheque, leaves here today for New York to answer eight counts of grand larceny.

Schlesinger, son of fabulously-rich Countess Mona Bismarck, was traced to Montreal Sunday by New York detectives who have been seeking him in eight countries for six months. He agreed to return "voluntarily," accompanied by Leonard Newman, Manhattan district attorney's assistant detective sergeant on the $330,000 swindle charges.

Manhattan district attorney Frank Hogan said Schlesinger would not be placed under arrest until his plane crossed the United States border. The more would be the 2nd rule of extradition proceedings to force him to return to New York.

OIL SCHEME

Schlesinger is accused of bilking Richard and John M. Hertzfeld of $100,000 in connection with Robert B. McCulloch of Los Angeles of $120,000 by promising investments in a Louisiana oil development.

Hogan said he told the men his mother, who inherited $100,000,000 when her second husband died, had invested $500,000 in the project and pledged to invest another $500,000.

McCulloch gave Schlesinger another cheque for $150,000 but it stopped payment on it when he became suspicious. Schlesinger allegedly used the cheque to buy $132,000 in jewelry from Van Cleef and Arpels, a Manhattan firm.

The jewels he loaned to Miss Christian, then the wife of actor Tyrone Power. Power divorced her after the cheque bounced, Van Cleef and Arpels asked to have her return the jewels but she refused.

She later changed her decision and returned all she was paid an "undisclosed sum" by the jewelry firm.

Hogan said the search for Schlesinger covered eight countries and included the following cities and provinces: Bogota, Colombia; Lima, Peru; Santiago, Chile; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Lisbon, Portugal; Paris, France; Montreal and Miami; and Halifax. Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Saskatchewan and New Brunswick.

He was finally traced to Frobisher, Que., where he was working for an airline company, and from there to Montreal.

Khrushchev Continues Blistering Attack on British Record in Burma

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MANDALAY, Burma (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev has continued his blistering public attacks on British colonial policy in Asia even during his visit to Burma with Russia's Premier Bulganin.

Khrushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, and Bulganin came here today from Taunggyi. There the party chief also lashed out at Britain, charging that the British authorities had been "sitting on the secession" movement there.

His all-out campaign on the colonial issue continued with caustic new denials of an anti-British statement attributed to him last week in Rangoon.

Khrushchev renewed his attack on British rule in a speech Sunday.

"The colonizers who have been here interfered with the development of the economy and the development of your culture," Khrushchev said. "They have tried to rule you and convince you that it was God who sent them to rule in Rangoon.

"They made profits while you lived in poverty. As representatives of a European nation, we are ashamed that there were those Europeans who did before. But not all Europeans think as did the colonizers. Many Europeans have reversed his point of view and condemn colonialism."

Khrushchev then reversed his speech last Friday in which he said Britain territorially gained the Burmese people as "savages and barbarians."

Notes of Western correspondents showed that—as translated by the official interpreter — Khrushchev made the statement. Moscow declined to say why Soviet newspapers said they couldn't remember anyone using those words.

Victim's Body Mutilated, By Pigs Before Found

Police said Mullins had been shot and his body was disfigured by pigs. They said the Mullins automobile apparently has been stolen.

A neighbor, Mrs. Gwendolyn Cunn, told police:

"Mrs. Mullins came banging at my door about 9 a. m. She said, 'Something terrible has happened at my place. You better go over and see.'"

Neighbors said Mrs. Mullins, the former Minnie Ashmore, moved to her son's farm, five miles southwest of Melbourne, last June after the death of her husband at Glencoe, Ont.

Cost of Living Stays Unchanged During October

OTTAWA (CP)—The cost of living in Canada remained unchanged in October for the first time in five months.

The bureau of statistics said today the prices index held steady at 116.9 between Oct. 1 and Nov. 1, as slight increase in prices for clothes, fuel oil and coal was offset by lower food costs, especially for beef and pork.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was still higher than a year previous however, when it stood at 116.8.

LONDON (Reuters) — Heavy fog covered much of south England during the night and halted shipping in the Thames estuary. Early today visibility at some spots north of the capital was down to five yards.

Slippery Roads Cause of Crashes

Slippery highway conditions were blamed indirectly irrespectable for two accidents Sunday morning which sent two autos into the ditch and into hydro poles. Both cars were badly damaged but the drivers in both instances escaped injury.

Raymond Quintin, College St., Toronto, was eastbound on No. 2 highway, when his car went out of control at the crowned intersection leading to the new truck road to Point Anne. His car skewed across the highway into the north ditch where it crashed through a hydro pole and ended up in Harry O'Neill's front yard.

The other accident took place on No. 37 highway shortly after midnight Saturday night. James MacInnes, North Park street, was northbound when his car skewed on the slippery pavement, went into the west ditch, rolled over and struck a hydro pole. Mac-Innes escaped with a minor cut on one finger.

Auto Transport Forced Into Ditch, $10,000 Damage

The accidental flicking of headlights which caused the smashing of an all-clear signal by a passing transport put an auto transport into the ditch on the Marysville flats Saturday night causing damage estimated at $10,000.

Police said that one auto transport was passing another, when one driver accidently touched the dimmer switch of his headlights. The second transport driver took this as a signal, that he was safely past the other transport and swung back into line forcing the other transport off the highway.

The big transport loaded with five new autos went into a five foot ditch on the south side of the highway, turned on its side flipping off two of the cars and then crashed through a hydro pole. Hydro service was cut for nearly two hours.

Jean Ouellet, Montreal, was cautioned with the auto transport with a friend Gerald Larocque of Cornwall following with another load of new cars. Larocque decided to pass, and flicking his lights swung out to pass, when he was almost past Ouellet accidentally flicked his lights and Larocque took this as an all clear signal. He swung back into the south lane and crowded the other transport off onto the shoulder where his wheels caught in the soft ground and pulled him into the ditch.

Highway Patrol who was hampered for several hours until wrecking crews were able to haul the damaged vehicles back onto the road Provincial Constable J. McNutt investigated.

Eastminster United Church Constituted in Solemn Service

Belleville now has a fourth United Church community.

It is Eastminster Church, which was officially constituted yesterday with solemn ceremony by the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church in the Masonic Temple.

The congregation of the new church, residents of the east side of the city, was first formed only a few months ago. It is probable it has set a record in Canada in being constituted within three months of its founding.

Yesterday, all 181 members, representing 72 families in the district were present to set that record, part of the crowd of 300 that attended the ceremonies, despite adverse weather conditions.

For the members the Masonic Temple was no strange place, for it is there they have been holding their services since first banding together in the Belleville's youngest parish. Their church probably will not be entirely completed for the next three to five years.

CONSENCE IN SPRING

It is planned to erect the church at the corner of Herchimer and Holloway Streets, the site now occupied being laid to commence in the Spring and have it built up by September. First job of the official board of the church now is the formulation of plans to that end begin its building fund.

To this end the Belleville Presbytery rendered first assistance yesterday with the presentation of a $1,000-cheque to the founders. And the indication is that more will follow.

The new parish was the conception of the Presbytery organization in the district. Apart from advice from the clergy it was entirely created through the efforts of the laity in that locality.

FIRST MODERATOR SPEAKER

Among the highlights of yesterday's ceremonies was an address by an outstanding churchman of the United Church of Canada.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Rev. Gordon Pidgeon, D.D., who was first moderator of the United Church in Canada.

In a sermon, aptly applied to the occasion, Very Rev. Pidgeon underlined to the assembly that God can only work through willing souls and proceeded by linking up that conception with the founding of the new church.

MANY CLERGYMEN PRESENT

Many clergymen from the Presbytery participated in the ceremonies.

Rev. S. E. Larman, Holloway St. United Church, read the scripture, the presentation of the names of charter members was given by Rev. H. M. Davis, Bridge St. United Church. Prayer of dedication was said by Rev. J. F. Lane while Rev. G. J. Mindlly gave the ratification of appointments.

Greetings were brought the new congregation by Rev. R. A. Rowley, on behalf of Belleville United Churches; Reverend C. D. McLellan, Napanee, on behalf of the Presbytery and by Rev. K. J. Woodford on behalf of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

The ceremonies closed with Benediction given by Dr. Pidgeon.

The following are the elders of the new church: Rev. J. F. Lane (honorary elder for life); Ross Boots, Hubert Farmer, Robert Gillan, Herbert Griffin, Edward Mac-Phail, Alexander Sorrows, John Murdock, Linton Read, Needham Throop, Eric Whitfield, Ralph Wightman and William van Sheburg.

The church also already has formed the usual affiliated organizations, Women's auxiliary club, its WA and a Sunday School.

Executive of the Men's Club, James Allen, president; John Burnham, secretary; Don Lamb, treasurer.

The Women's Association is headed by Mrs. N. Meldrum, president, with the following slate of officers: Mrs. J. Kuntze, vice-president; Mrs. R. Richardson, recording secretary and Mrs. G. Maybee, treasurer.

Missing Hunter, Harry Cowan, 60, Is Found Dead

PICTON— Missing since Friday, when he left for a hunting trip, the body of Harry Cowan, age 60, was discovered in a field at Salmon Point before noon today. A search was conducted by 200 members of the Army from Picton, and 75 farmers of the district, assisted by a plane from RCAF, Trenton, and one from Picton flying club.

The search was started after Mr. Cowan's car was found on a cross road where it had been standing for two days in the Salmon district about four miles from the village. Mr. Cowan was a widower, and lived alone. Provincial police were in charge of the search. It is thought he suffered a heart attack.

Tuberculosis is no longer the first cause of death among Canada's Indian population though it is still close to the top and takes a great toll in both death and sickness. However, with the combination of early diagnosis, prompt treatment and what has produced the ravages of tuberculosis among the native population as well as in the white popula-

IN MEMORIAM

REID. — In loving memory of our dear son, Francis Reid, who passed away December 5th, 1934.

So many things have happened since you left us,
So many changes we have seen,
But one thing stands out above them all,
We miss you more than ever.
If you were near to talk to,
And hear things to share with you,
In just the usual way;
Things that could be so much nicer,
If you were here today.
Sadly missed by mother, sister and brother.

But God has given us wonderful memories.
Of one we loved so much.
Always remembered by Mom and Dad.

GRANT. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Wesley Grant, who passed away December 5th, 1934.
Your last parting with
The world, dear husband,
And breathed in your ear
The word Eternity.
Then you knew and
Are able to tell;
The pain is the heart
At not saying farewell.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Ruth.

BRANT. — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away December 5th, 1934.
He is gone, but not forgotten.
His memory is dear
In our lonely hours of thinking.
Thoughts of him are always near,
And those who wish some friends may think of the wound is healed,
But they little know the concealed.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughters, sons-in-law, sons, daughter-in-law.

The family of the late Mrs. Hazel Reid wish to thank their many friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy, for floral tributes, beautiful pall-bearers, kind services rendered during her illness and for the use of their cars in the procession of a loving mother and sister.

Y's Men Hear Outline Of History of Club

International Y'sdom was the topic of an address heard by the Belleville Y's Men's Club on Thursday. Speaker was Robbie Clarke, past president and club member since 1945. He outlined the organization and functioning of the international organization for the benefit of new club members, and traced its history from the beginning in 1921.

It was in this year that clubs in Canada and the United States jointly formed an International body consisting of a President and a Secretary. Today this body represents 337 clubs in 22 countries and co-ordinates their many activities. A Canadian, Malcolm Bowman of Niagara Falls, is currently International president.

The speaker read excerpts from the International constitution in which it was stated that there was only one class of members ie. "active". He also read the motto of Y's men—"To acknowledge the duty that accompanies every right."

The speaker was introduced by Vern Flindall and thanked by Bert Hiles.

Gerry Hyde, district governor of the eastern Ontario district presented the club with a banner which is held by the club from whose membership the district governor has been elected.

Treasurer Don Booth presented a preliminary report on the results of Radio Auction in which returns appear to equal or better those of 1954.

Santa Claus Parade Colorful, Exciting, Thoroughly Enjoyed By Thousands of Residents

And little wonder — as anyone can tell you who stood amid the crowds to see this city's annual Santa Claus parade.

It was, over a score of floats, a myriad scattering of other parade vehicles, bands, cavalcades, clowns and all kinds of parade what-have-you to take the old boy to town and it's the entire effect took the Christmas cake.

Here was color — in the costumes of the cowgirls, cowboys, Indian chiefs. Here was merriment in the antics of the clowns and the supposedly circus animals, the marionettes. Here was dash and smartness — in the high steps of the prancing majorettes and the bands.

Watching the procession wend its way down the main thoroughfares of the city inspired more than good cheer and merriment in the onlookers — it also imparted a kind of awe at the bigness of the thing and pride that Belleville could have achieved such a festival scale, even in the festival season of the year.

As one onlooker quipped after the panorama had passed: "Maybe we'll get the Grey Cup down here yet!"

STARTED AT FAIRGROUNDS

The parade, which formed and dispersed at the Fair Grounds, commenced unwinding its kaleidoscope of brilliant and imaginative pictures in the main street after 11 a.m. in all it took over quickly, too quickly for some, taking over a half-hour to pass. There were few stoppages in its progress, thanks to the smooth direction of highway traffic by city police.

Crowds began to gather on city streets along the route of the parade long before 11 a.m. All available police were marshalled on duty to keep streets clear of traffic and straying pedestrians, as parade-time drew near. Some 2,000 children of all ages and adults formed solid walls against the ropes that were flowed onto the streets.

Office and shop windows, any place that provided a vantage point of the route, were manned by eager, expectant faces, while down on the streets, under greyish clouds, the crowds grew bigger. Small boys skewed impatiently as the moments passed.

Suddenly, sometime after 11 a.m. with a crash of drums and trumpets from the Royal Canadian Artillery band of Picton, the vanguard entered Front St. across the Upper Bridge.

FIRE CHIEF IN FRONT

Ahead of the procession could be seen a pair of flashing redlights as it was the car of fire chief Gerald Vance, who as chairman of the parade committee supervised all the shoulders put to the wheels of the procession, preceding the marchers to announce the parade.

Behind him, flanked by an escort of scouts and motor-cycle police came the colors of the service and the RCA band.

The first of the big floats struck a fitting keynote to entire event. It was a setting of the First Christmas, constructed by the Quinte Secondary School pupils.

Maintaining a cheery balance on the following float, was a giant snowman, who returned the waves of the crowds.

Next came a stream of Indian braves, scabs and clowns, to be followed by a giant merry-go-round the Hickory-Dickory-Dock nursery theme and entered by the Belleville Jewellery Association and Stroud's.

A live exhibition of precision marching followed immediately with 8-RD band from Trenton RCAF station. Behind it was heard-ecstasy turnout in shape of a wild bull, continuously evading the attempts of doubty caballeros to capture it.

Two other nursery-rhyme settings, as beautiful as they were imaginative, followed with a "Goldilocks" float, entered by the Dog Hospital and "The Old Lady in a Shoe", constructed by the Ontario Schol for the Deaf pupils.

The Belleville Kinsmen unit, responsible for a main part of the float construction, also had the name on several of the parade pieces. Probably the most eye-catching was the "Fairy Princess" display, next in order on the route. The princess herself was provided by the trumpets and drums of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, preceding the CNRAA float, "Red Riding Hood."

A fireman's hat was the shape of things to come came just then with Belleville's own fire street car, a large rocket ship, complete with pilot in a futuristic costume.

RETURN TO FANTASY

A return to fantasy was given that section of the procession by the "Cinderella Fire" float, entered by Jack Both Limited, which drew gasps of delight from the watching crowds.

Next was one of the most colorful entries in the parade—a float entered by the local Cubs' association, its edges flanked by the colors of all the area troops.

Another up-to-the-moment seasonal touch was given the atmosphere with a huge "Merry Christmas" greeting, sent out by Northern Electric while a second industry located here, Moreh Manufacturing, caused admiration with its "Humpty Dumpty" float.

More music was the immediate order of the day, this time it was the Quinte Pipe Band lending an air to the proceedings.

Probably the most novel entry was a Disney fantasy, sponsored by Men's Clothing, which had tiny puppets waving greetings to the throng. The city police not only had their hands full during the event, but also lent a hand to help fill the parade with their contribution of a float underlining safety on the roads.

By far the most ambitious piece of the day was that built by the Quinte Sea Cadets. Mounted on a trailer the cadets had a huge Viking sailing ship, complete with helmeted, cloaked warriors.

A blast of safety was showered on the crowds by the clown band, garbed in safety suits and up to the spirits of the throng with their playing.

A second snowman put in an appearance, entered by one of the parade's most active workers, Carson Elliott, while immediately behind was the BCIVS pupils' float, "Hansel and Gretel."

The fire department's name came up again with the passing of the "Rocket," the winner dog, depicted here by a large, live Alsatian.

The return of the parade's theme came with "Old King Cole," complete with fiddlers three, entered by the Variety Stores, followed by an Odd Fellow-Rebekah-sponsored float advertising the fight against cancer, tuberculosis and polio.

Preceded by the Kinsmen's boys band was the liveliest unit of the event, a trampoline complete with acrobat, entered by the local YMCA.

The horse-and-buggy days complete with horse, buggy and period couple were recalled in the local dairy entry, followed by a Hastings Tuberculosis Association float.

Then, with a fanfare from the trumpets of the South Station band of RCAF, Trenton, came the biggest, most colorful float of them all.

Ensconced on a sleigh, behind prancing reindeer, came the Grand Old Man of Christmas himself—Santa Claus. Bubbling over with good humor and hearty greetings, he drew the biggest cheer of all and the most attention. So much so, the police had their hands full of mopped-up, forward to greet the jovial gentleman, flocking around the float, battling to engage his individual attention.

They followed him down Front St. and up Pinnacle as the parade returned along its route to the Fair Grounds.

The entire parade, if anything, was almost a climax to Christmas itself in Belleville and was the talk of the town among the junior set. Santa Claus may come only once a year, but if popular opinion is an oracle, Belleville's Santa Claus parade is here to stay.

Survey Reveals Early Voting Same as 1954

An eleven o'clock survey of several of the city's election polls early Saturday by a weary vole despite weather that threatened snow.

The majority of the polls contacted by the Ontario Intelligencer revealed the vote to this time "about the same or a little better" than that of the equivalent time in 1954.

Last year the city electorate established an all-time record at the polls registering 6,310 votes, or 70 per cent of the voting population.

Eight voters registered at the advance polls. Last year's figure was 119.

Clothing, Cash Stolen at Madoc Monday Morning

CAPTURE SIX RUSSIANS

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese Nationalist commandos captured six Red Chinese Communist supply junks in Formosa Strait just off the mouth of the Min river last Friday, the Nationalist defence ministry said today. The supplies were confiscated and the crews taken to the nearby Matsu Islands for questioning, the ministry reported.

MADOC (Special) — Burglars broke into George West's men's and boys' furnishings store here some time early Monday morning and made off with an undisclosed amount of clothing and cash.

The front door of the store was forced sometime about 4.00 a.m. Albert Moore, who lives above the store, told Madoc Police Chief John Rankin, that he heard "one crash" about 4.00 a.m.

No one saw the burglars.

Apparently the burglars were more interested in clothing than in cash because neither the safe nor the cash register was broken into. A number of men's overcoats, size 40 to 44, and a suit of clothes, were taken.

Chief Rankin is conducting an investigation.

SANTA'S SPLENDID PARADE

Saturday's Santa Claus parade was splendid.

The world of make-believe was infinitely more beautiful and more desirable for half an hour Saturday morning, than the everyday world of commerce and confusion. Each child in last Saturday's parade was a small jewel that glittered and sparkled in the rough brick and asphalt setting of Belleville's main business street.

The 15,000 or 20,000 people who lined both sides of the parade route three and four deep were almost unanimous in acclaiming the city's second annual Santa Claus parade superior to the first last year, and one of the best parades of all kinds in the past 20 years.

Few failed to comment on some agreeable aspect of the spectacle. The more than two dozen floats were conceived with imagination, executed with skill and adorned with color. All of the seven bands in the parade were excellent in their own way and properly in tune with the season's lighter carols. There were few gaps in the procession which appeared remarkably close to the announced starting time. Dozens and dozens of walking personnel, colorfully portraying everything from medieval courtiers, Vikings, Indians, and assorted species of wild animals, contributed greatly to the success of the event.

One of the most heartening aspects of the parade was its emphasis of the real spirit of Christmas. The striking and beautiful float of "The First Christmas" executed by the Quinte Secondary School, which headed the parade, set a keynote for what followed that was not marred by any intrusion of excessive commercialism on the part of the many individuals and firms contributing floats.

Another feature of the entire parade was the emphasis on those things that delight children and especially the depictions of nursery rhyme characters and events. Mother Goose, the Wizard of Oz, Old King Cole, the Three Little Pigs, Humpty Dumpty, Riding Hood, the Witch in the Shoe, were all old friends of the young fry as well as such modern heroes as spacemen and cowboys and Indians and that eternal favorite, Santa Claus himself.

There can be no question that the parade was an outstanding community effort.

The committee in charge - - Fire Chief Gerald Vance, chairman; Carson Elliott, financial chairman; Deputy Chief Gordon Hall, parade marshal; and Publicity Director Robert Fair, in charge of floats - - did a remarkably good job. Their hard-working committees also share in congratulations as do the firemen who constructed many of the floats; the individuals, firms and schools who contributed floats; the policemen, all of whom were on duty to clear Front Street of parked cars and afterwards to unmanacle one of the biggest traffic jams in memory. Even the weatherman is to be applauded, albeit discreetly, for serving up a dry, not unbearably chilly day, while everywhere around and about us was subjected to sub-freezing temperatures or snow.

Everyone who had anything to do with preparation of the parade, or participation in it, is to be congratulated. A look of wonder and delight in the face of even one child would have made the whole effort worthwhile. That wonder and delight filled the hearts and eyes of thousands of children Saturday means that the reward of the parade workers was multiplied thousands of times.

On behalf of all onlookers it is a pleasure to say "Thanks" to everyone taking part in the Santa Claus parade last Saturday.

MODERN BUFFALO HUNT

A report from Lamont, Alberta, on plans for a twentieth-century buffalo hunt, and a comparison of the methods to be used with conditions when buffalo were slaughtered in the early days of the West, makes interesting reading.

The Alberta buffalo hunt is being conducted to reduce the Canadian government's herd in Elk Island National Park. The buffalo are now too numerous to be supported on the 75 miles of fenced area which is their boundaries. The hunt is therefore a conservation measure. The maximum use will be made, too, of the animals slaughtered. Buffalo steaks and roasts will be sold through normal trade channels.

This is a happy comparison to the wanton waste which, we are reminded, occurred when buffalo were slaughtered in their thousands in the early days of the white man's invasion of the great plains of the continent. The hide and tongue were taken and, in many cases, the rest of the animal left to rot.

Such waste is repugnant to our sense of thrift. There must have been many starving people in the world in those days, whose very lives could have been saved with the meat left to rot on the plains.

There was, also, no economic way in which the wasted meat could be transported to the hungry people. In those pioneer days we had a situation which, in its essence, differed not at all from our present-day problems of farm surpluses in a world in which many are hungry.

HEALTH

It's a dreary old world and a weary old world
When a toothache you happen to get,
Beyond any question, if you've Indigestion,
O'er trifles you're certain to fret.
And who can be happy, however so rich,
If his feet are afflicted with lumps?
You don't go to dinners or dances or shows
If neither into your Pumps.
A boil on your neck all life's pleasure can wreck,
And a touch of the grippe does the trick.
To get the full joy from a rose
You've got to smell it.
There isn't a doubt that you've got to be well.
It doesn't take much of an ache to destroy
The pleasure a fortune can bring.
If you've no appetite and you can't sleep at night,
You are deaf to the song birds that sing.
For the joys of the world are not glory or wealth;
It you want to be happy, take care of your health.

Mr. G. R. Miller of this city attended the Transport Convention banquet in Toronto on Saturday evening.

Miss E. Clagg was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Young People's Society in Bridge street United Church last evening. Her address, which was highly interesting and informative, was on Japan, China, Indo-China and India. Miss Clagg was introduced by Miss Marjorie Hill and the appreciation of the audience was expressed to Miss Stagg by Mr. Tom Montague.

The St. Ann's Club semi-annual bridge party Monday evening was a decided success. Forty tables were in play and everyone seemed to be having an enjoyable time. Prizes for bridge were won by the following: — Ladies' first, Mrs. Bowen and second Mrs. May; men's first, Mr. Coulby, and second Mr. Carruthers. Mrs. I. G. Hefkey won the draw for the delightful home cooking breakfast dishes and groceries.

Forty new members joined St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at the evening service on Sunday, twenty by certificate and twenty by profession of faith. The sermon was preached by the pastor, the Rev. R. A. St. Stewart, M.A.

Mr. Horace Spear of Oakville is visiting friends in the city and vicinity.

Mr. Everett Liddle, who has been living in Toronto for some time, has returned to this city and has taken a position in the office of John Sloan and Company, wholesale grocers.

The proceeds of the bazaar which was held at the Tabernacle Church amounted to the handsome sum of $250.00. The ladies in charge of the affair deserve much credit for the success achieved.

Mr. Jack Fleming, Ann St., has accepted a position with a radio distributing company in Toronto.

It was just about this time of year, fifty Christmases ago, that I was coming back in the train through the forests of scorched wood, the young ladies of the family, artistically inclined, were getting busy with their pyrography outfits preparing Christmas gifts. Pyrography was one of the wonders of the electrical age. For a few dollars you bought a sort of electric pen. You plugged its cord into the nearest socket, usually a light socket overhead, and the tip of the pen became instantly red-hot. Bright red.

With this, you burned or scorched designs on dainty wooden pincushions, calendar pads, pipe trays, small bracket shelves to attach to the wall to hold more of the pincushions knick-knacks and photograph brac with which the first few years of this century abounded. In deference to her late majesty, Queen Victoria, the symbol of the Victorian age.

Yes, sir, burnt wood was the incense that greeted the dawn of the mighty twentieth century.

Wherever electricity was installed which was in most of the cities and many of the towns of Canada—though illuminating gas still stood fast against the new invader—the young ladies in pompadour and high-necked blouses bent over the dining room tables of the homes with wood smoke and their eyes with tears and their noses with sniffles as they etched out, in little dibs and dabs of the pyrography pen, the brown designs on the wooden objets d'art. The shops were full of them, pincushions, picture frames, brackets, trays, napkin rings and boxes. The designs were already sketched in faint ink. All the artist had to do was shape the design with the pen and not

Napoleon's Propaganda

(Edmonton Journal)

One of the peculiar features about historical tradition is the way in which certain legends linger on, even though they have no factual foundation, and are not accepted by historians. One of these is the idea that it was the terrible winter which destroyed Napoleon's army in his invasion of Russia in 1812, and eventually brought about his power's downfall. This is so universally taken for granted that any denial of the news story told of a group of American scientists who have started a research project designed to link Napoleon's disaster, and the unprecedented cold supposed to have caused it, with changes in the temperature of sea water in the Atlantic.

Yet, in fact, all historians of the period seem to know that the winter of 1812 in Russia was actually late and relatively mild. According to the Napoleonic chronicles, really cold weather did not set in until after December 6, by which time the great French Army was already largely destroyed. In fact, nearly half the army died from casualties by the middle of September, through battle, wounds, disease, starvation and desertion. Only 100,000 men out of 600,000 had been primarily due not to cold and storms but to the stubborn resistance of the Russians, the lack of food and other supplies in a devastated countryside, and the lack of discipline among the soldiers, who were mostly unwilling conscripts who were a decided success. Forty tables were in play and everyone seemed to be having an enjoyable time. Prizes for bridge were won by the following: — Ladies' first, Mrs. Bowen and second Mrs. May; men's first, Mr. Coulby, and second Mr. Carruthers. Mrs. I. G. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Ah, there were beautiful things! In fact, for several Christmases in a row, back in the early decade, you got more darn pyrography than you knew anything could be. On my tenth Christmas, I got two pincushions, one napkin ring and one set of book ends with the words Shakespeare elegantly outlined in scorched wood on both of them, and a tie rack of sombre sepia shaped wood and brass wire—from all my female cousins. It is my my earliest recollection of feeling grown up and not liking it. However, I got even with my pyrography cousins the following Christmas by giving them fishing tackle, all of which I got back from them by summer.

Khrushchev's View of France

(Detroit Free Press)

It makes us uncomfortable to be in agreement with Nikita Khrushchev on any point whatever, but that's where we find ourselves in a Moscow party where Khrushchev was being cordial, a reporter asked him about France.

Communism's boss answered that he hates capitalism and unemployment. "The French," he said "cannot work for themselves."

The reporter reminded Khrushchev that France is holding an election for that very purpose. "That won't change anything," Khrushchev answered. "They still won't know what they want."

As we remarked, it's uncomfortable to be in agreement from paying taxes. Today it's the bookmakers who are tax free.

Lakes Have Life Cycle

(Providence, R.I., Bulletin)

Lakes, like people, have a life cycle, according to scientists who study them. They proceed in the usual order of youth, maturity and old age, and die when they become filled in with silt and turn into swamps. A swamp is the corpse of a lake.

The arresting part of the tragedy is that old lakes inevitably die through the process of man's commands. Young lakes have lean and hungry faces, are productive and unusually contain trout which thrive in their oxygen rich waters. As time passes and sediment is fed into a lake by streams, the bottom becomes smothered by nourishing deposits that support plankton. The plankton feeds a variety of small animals, which serve as fish food. Oxygen content diminishes, and the trout give way to bass and pike.

Gradually the lake fills in with organic material, grows shallower, duller polluted. The diet changes from mud appears above water, and shortly afterward the lake is gone.

The Swiss, being a people fond-er of lakes than anybody else we can else, claim to have succeeded in preventing the decline of ailing lakes by pumping in fresh supplies of oxygen. The oxygen is administered through pipes which also possess the organic matter on the bottom.

But the treatment is in time, the silt recedes; trout appear; the people's livelihoods improve; and for returns. Ultimately what was once a deathbed scene is transformed into a living celebration, with regattas of small boats and happy trout fishing parties.

Gondolas Motorized

(Christian Science Monitor)

Well, it was a matter of the day s smug-looking British family first paraded past Runnymede in a punt with a motor attachment. From this point on Thames to Cambridge's Backs, the punt was the only craft to ar a plane flies. And what in the way of miscalled progress can happen to a punt, the Thames' long-looking bridges can happen anywhere, even in Venice.

And it has. Yes, they are motorized gondolas, and Venetian boatmen have inspired Gilbert and Sullivan to write dirges instead of those gay tunes that are one of the chief music famous operettas!

We're called gondolieri,

But that's a vaggy ...

Alas, more than ever a vaggy now that the gondoliers have to keep his song in time with a put-put-put of the motor boat engine.

Beware, you drivers of Victorias in the drive-yourself streets of Royal Parkwell, you camel drivers in Egypt and Morocco. If a gondola can be motorized, it is only a matter of time before you, and a few modern industrial designers, will be introducing into Mendelssohn's boat songs and Strauss's Lagoon Waltz. Call it decay if you will, but we are having our mandolin wired for color television!

Bacon, Eggs Good for Baby

(New York Herald Tribune)

If nine-week-old babies could read they would probably be overjoyed at today's news, which is that breasts of fat are now entitled to bacon and eggs.

Dr. Frederick Stare brings tidings to a Miami pediatrician reporting to the annual convention of the Southern Medical Association. Under experimenting with 700 babies, the pediatrician has arrived at the conclusion that babies are best off when they get solid foods almost as early as they can be taken off formula a day at the age of 10 weeks. Dr. Stare says that straight bottled is nearly.

The next things for the doctors to attack are certain other related problems such as how to induce baby to eat his spinach and the dread of spreading them around his face or throwing them on the floor.

Prosperity Yardstick

(Financial Post)

Production of canned dog and cat food rose to 54,521 tons last year.

In view of the continued rise in family income, there is little reason to believe that what Leacock used to call "small boy-dog cat-ch" is being well maintained.

That's gratifying evidence of the prosperity which is the envy of the world.

Of course, the rise could stem from other causes, as well. This tends to boost pups into the canned-food bracket and out of the table-leavings bracket rapidly enough same way it boosts humans out of the Chevy to the Cadillac bracket.

Taken together, these trends suggest that the baby-boom ratio is even closer to normal than the figures above indicate.

But the small girl-cat ratio, evidence is insufficient to permit comment.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

The Youngsters Don't Get A Fair Break

The facts of life are altogether too dull and drab for the children of our U. S. parents. No story the comic strip artist can dream up, no fantasy of fairyland, no moron-like, grisly, hideous nightmare dredged from a psychopathic imagination is too morbid for young children in Yankeeland.

The ultimate effects of such bad teaching are for psychologists and psychiatrists to consider. Here I am dealing with physical health, a field in which I make no bones of being an authority.

Now I think of all the fun we kids on Chapel Street in Canandaigua had during the long summer vacations, after school in the afternoons, and at recess on school days, without going anywhere or spending more than an occasional penny for a stick of candy or ice cream. And I feel sorry for the unfortunate, "underprivileged" children of well-to-do parents in urban communities today who are denied the greatest of all privileges, the freedom to play.

Today little mamby-pamby kids today have to play vicariously if at all. They can't imagine themselves Davy Crockett, Wild Bill Hickok, Hopalong Cassidy, Hiawatha's brothers, Two-Gun Sothern or any of the characters of the movies. They can squirm and wriggle in their seats in boredom and exhaustion in the cheering section at the high school varsity football game. When it comes to doing something themselves far too many of the physically confined engage in the drink. Observe the spurts of activity our liveliness shown by youngsters after each drink of pop and the prompt recurrence of fatigue and languor when the item can't even do forward rolls (somersaults, as young Bill's pa instructor in college says I should not call 'em). We Chapel Street kids did not have playing with springboards, trapezes, stilts etc., and other such artificial aids to physical (we says somersaults) on suitable lawns on our way to and from school—to the automobile, movies, radio, television, carbonated sweetened beverages and candies and the tasteless concoctions of beer, wine and liquor have doomed the present generation to vapid makebelieve.

I believe the weakness of the younger generation not just because I'm an old fuddy-duddy but because it portends the decline of America. Decadine is only a vague suggestion — the right word for it is degeneration, and remember, disease, I've been dealing with physical degeneration, as the term is defined by Webster and Stedman (medical dictionary).

The automobile keeps many of the present generation from getting the exercise youngsters formerly got walking and riding bicycles. The movies keep 'em sitting and dreaming of the glamorous and refined stars they should be doing something.

The brief refreshment the youngsters get from a bottle of carbonated colored, sweetened, flavored carbonated is the temporary and hectic stimulation of cerebrum, nerves, kidneys and heart by the caffeine contained in the beverage and partly by the energy yielded by quickly digested sugar and refined sugar in the drink. Observe the spurts of activity our liveliness shown by youngsters after each drink of pop and the prompt recurrence of fatigue and languor when the item can't even do forward rolls (sugar is burned up.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

THROUGH THE EYES OF GOD

Bishop Berkely, a high churchman, as his title indicates, and a philosopher who worked out a system which has been challenging men's minds for almost 200 years, once wrote about the world produced upon him as he saw a fly move on one of the pillars of St. Paul's Cathedral. The insect was so small and its comprehension so limited that it could see only one little part of the great pillar. Therefore, it could not see the roughness and irregularity of the pillar were unknown to the fly. Even to you and I at a distance, we encounter many things which tend to turn us against life: frequently it seems to be an unworthy conspiracy in which power often wins over right, and virtue seems de-

TODAY'S TALK

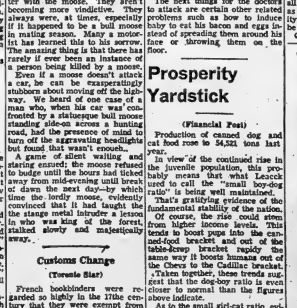
ADJUSTMENT

All life, to a very great degree, is a battle of adjustment. Success or failure runs somebody all the time. Misfortune in some way may compel us to change the order of our lives and readjust to new conditions. The successful marriage is nearly always one of constant adjustment. Likewise in business, where we are engaged with other workers. And the spiritual adjustments have to be made to suit the new conditions.

In our personal lives sorrow, with the loss of a beloved one, forces us to adjustment to be made. It may be a financial loss, or a failure in some new work undertaken. Adjustments are often not easy to make, but the sooner they are arranged the better. Adjustments had to be made in radical fashion when Abraham Lincoln arrived at his important and essential mode of travel. Our wars, and their aftermath of huge taxes, have compelled us all to adjust our manner of life so that we could meet responsibility. Great sacrifices have had to be made.



Quarrels between individuals, or nations compel them to come to a settlement by adjustment sooner or later. I once knew a retired minister who was the only one left of his family. He was a cheerful, friendly, but I never met him without being impressed by his calmness and good cheer. He earned very little money, though occasional preaching, but he always wanted to share that little with someone in need. He was also a brilliant Shakespeare scholar and I often sat with him for hours listening as him quote this noted bard. He had adjusted his life to the happiness of himself and others.

It is well to look ahead and plan for the future, but no matter what one's good fortune may be. If we are unable to adjust to things, the big adjustments will come about, ready for us to handle them, cheerfully and intelligently.

Bethlehem White Shrine Tea, Bazaar Glowingly Successful

Colorful Christmas decorations added an attractive note to an already fascinating assortment of enticing booths at the Yuletide bazaar and afternoon tea held Friday under the auspices of the Bethlehem White Shrine in the O.O.F. hall on Front St.

Receiving the guests were: Mrs. H. Sieveng, Worthy High Priestess and Mrs. T. Lloyd, while taking the tickets were: Mrs. J. Taylor, Mrs. C. Helms, Mrs. M. Moorman and Mrs. G. Lazenby.

Following the gracious reception and payment of dues, the guests wended their individual ways to the various booths, beginning with that of the fancy work and knitting under the convenorship of Mrs. John Armstrong and Mrs. M. Black, assisted by Miss P. Kerr, Mrs. A. McFaul, Mrs. M. Tugwell, Mrs. P. Shebell, Mrs. A. Moorman and Mrs. W. Ironside. This booth was decorated in red and green bands over white and centred by a cluster of poinsettias.

LOVELY ARTICLES

Here were lovely articles: a hand-crocheted centrepiece with ruffled edge trimmed with yellow; a luncheon cloth done in zig-zag cross-stitch in black on linen; a black and white knitting bag; fancy duffle; lace-edged handkerchiefs; little mitts; pot-holders; lacey doilies; a baby set in white consisting of toque, socks and jacket; prettily embroidered towels; bath towels in ecru and white, with matching wash cloth.

The apron booth, also in Christmas garb, had a fine showing of aprons in plaids; plastic aprons sprinkled over with colourful fruits, in red and white; aprons with black and white stripes; paisley aprons in green; pointed apron in grey and pink; pink cotton; pink and blue aprons with large checks; grey and mauve plaids and many, many others, all nicely made, and suitable for either heavy duty, or a pleasant afternoon tea preparation. Mrs. I. Grey was the convener, assisted by Mrs. C. Smith as co-convener and Mrs. O. Newton, Mrs. M. Niblock, Mrs. G. O'Neill, Mrs. A. McGee and Mrs. M. Silgerland as helpers.

The candy booth which was centred by tall, mauve candles rising from a grove of mauve-tinted buckleberry sprays among which two bronze deer were seen grazing, was further accented by a cluster of white, silver and crimson metallic globes and bells mingled with curling bronze ribbon.

Convening this were: Mrs. R. Black and Mrs. F. Fisher assisted by Mrs. G. Fingiboon, Mrs. L. Adams, Mrs. Jesse Reed, Mrs. C. Buck and Mrs. J. Thompson. Little cups held delicious fudge and delicious mixtures of nut-topped chocolate squares; dished puffs of maple creams; peanut brittle; coconut ice and tempting gum-drops. Cellophane bags and boxes also were temptingly arranged, as well as a box which will become the possession of the holder of the lucky ticket draw, who was Mrs. Edna Reid of Madoc.

HOMECOOKING

A basic grill and work and red archway of metallic green leaves and three tiered Christmas trees added a pretty tone to the delightfully arranged homecooking booth with its pies, angel cakes, taffy tarts, oatmeal jammies, walnut squares, tiny cup cakes, tea biscuits, mince pies, pickled beets, cucumbers, apple jelly and grape jelly, chocolate macaroons, mustard pickles and tomato relish. In charge of this alluring place were Mrs. R. Nelson, Mrs. A. Williamson, assisted by Mrs. Vera Lough, Mrs. A. Longhurst, Mrs. T. Kilpatrick, Mrs. W. J. Allen, Mrs. A. Archard, Mrs. N. Cathcart and Mrs. A. Stalker.

Other attractions included a gem of an angel cake resting in state under a cellophane cover. This was guarded by Mrs. M. Harris and Mrs. Mary Mc-Adams, ctsy: a lovely centrepiece was won by Mrs. M. Harris and a lucky chair by Mrs. Teresa Kilpatrick of Delora.

The tea booth, which was situated upstairs, was a delight to the eyes with its white picket gateway entwined with silver leaves and white poinsettia; the tall, glowing Christmas trees with colored lights and near by a jolly Santa Claus with silver leaves and colored globes in rose, green, blue and gold, and on the pastel grey-blue walls, sprays of metallic rose and green and silver poinsettias. Even the little quartet tables were centred by red candles rising from a cluster of simulated grapes in silver, rose, gold and green backed by silver leaves.

The tea table, appointed with white damask was centred by a novel arrangement of six simulated Christmas candy canes in glistening white, tied together by rose and silver ribbon centred by a tiny cluster of silver leaves and colored grapes. From each, upturned crook little choir songsters gave forth the Yuletide message, and on the top was seen a speeding reindeer. This was flanked by tall, red candles rising from clusters of silver leaves and tiny colored globes. Criss-crossed red ribbons also added their special touch.

Convening the tearoom were Mrs. Z. Darvel and Mrs. E. Griffin, while Mrs. M. Hick and Mrs. M. Coyle were the tea room hostesses.

Those who presided at the silver service were: Mrs. R. Sleeth and Mrs. C. Smith; Mrs. W. Grey and Mrs. C. Bird, while those replenishing: Mesdames H. McKay, W. Broad, R. Fleming, E. Duffin and M. Drummond. Those arranging platter: Mrs. A. Hall, Mrs. P. Weatherston, Mrs. M. Gill and Mrs. Calnan, while Mrs. William Adams was in charge of the tea making.

Those serving: Mesdames E. D. Mott, A. Alexander, F. McGuire, W. Bird, C. Bush, B. Quincey, F. Cole, P. Sloan, M. Harris, E. Brown and V. Bushell.

A most successful bazaar and tea bringing appreciative thanks to the conveners, Mrs. D. Elridge, P.W.H.P., and Mrs. M. Hick, and to all others who assisted in this venture.

Most Ontario Municipalities Voting Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This was election day in most Ontario municipalities.

The weather office forecast sunny periods in most localities and snowflurries in others and described expected cooler temperatures as seasonable.

Some cities, towns, townships and villages held elections during last week. Others will hold theirs within the next month. For the most part, however, the bulk of Ontario's aspirants to civic office will be decided today.

TORONTO BIGGEST

In the way of aldo issues, Toronto has the biggest money by-law at stake—a $20,000,000 city hall. Stratford is voting on an $800,000 collegiate institute addition, Sudbury on an $800,000 railway underpass and a $350,000 bridge. Belleville will decide on a $115,500 off-street parking lot, Welland on a $386,000 city hall.

Sault Marie is voting on a new $200,000 police building, rejected twice before by its ratepayers.

The two-year term of municipal office, in effect in 18 of Ontario's 24 cities, was up for decision today in three more centres which now elect their mayors and councils annually. There were ballots on this issue in Toronto, where it was previously rejected, Brantford and Sudbury. The two-year term is also on the ballot for North Bay's election Dec. 12.

This is an election, under the two-year-term plan, for such cities as Ottawa, Kingston, Hamilton and Windsor.

Cold and rain were partly to blame for a poor turnout of voters Saturday when elections were held in Toronto's suburban York township, Weston and Swansea.

Less than 22 per cent of 63,000 eligible voters turned out in York township, largest of the three municipalities. Only content for top municipal post was in York, and Reeve Fred Hall was returned in a fight with former deputy reeve Walter Saunders. York voters approved a two-year council term.

Four Children Burned to Death In Maritimes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four children burned to death in the Maritimes were among 19 persons who died violently in eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press count from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Sunday showed Quebec led in deaths with eight, Ontario had seven fatalities and Nova Scotia four.

Only children aged one to four, died in a fire that destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Arsenault of Hunter River, P. E. I. Mrs. Arsenault tried vainly to rescue the children.

Another person died in car accidents, four were shot to death, and one was severely burned. A man died after he was injured in a street fight and an 11-year-old boy was killed when a car knocked him off his bicycle.

Ontario deaths:

Mrs. Reginald Poole, 41, Hamilton, injuries suffered in a car accident.

Assault Charges Against 'Eskies' Are Dismissed

HAMILTON (CP)—A charge of common assault against Edmonton Eskimos football players was dismissed today by magistrate Beamer Hopkins.

Johnny Bright, 25, and Ray Willsey, 27, members of the Esks' all-star team that trained here prior to Saturday's East-West game, had been charged after a brawl in a local cocktail bar Friday.

Complainant Kenneth Aspden, 25, said the two players punched him, tore his coat and pushed him around. He also charged that Bright had kicked him.

Aspden said he was stopped by Willsey as he passed his table and was asked "who I was looking at" and was told that "he did not like people looking at him."

He went to the washroom and was punched and attacked by Bright and Willsey, he said, and Bright "got me down on the floor and kicked me."

Constable Earle Davies, called in when the fight started, said he saw Aspden on the floor and Bright kicking at him but he did not see any of the kicks connect.

Bright testified that when he came out of the washroom he found some players holding Willsey and some holding Aspden.

"Aspden seemed to be trying to take a swing at Willsey, and I got behind and pushed him. He pushed free and fell into the dining room, and there started to kick at me, so I kicked back."

Magistrate Hopkins: "Did you kick him?"

Witness: "No sir. One of the boys grabbed me by the leg."

Willsey said Aspden had been pushing him and down until he rose and walked toward the washroom.

As he passed, I stopped him and asked him whether my face was flushed, whether he objected to anything. One of the boys told him to move along, so I sat down."

Magistrate Hopkins said that the only important point was to decide whether anyone kicked anyone else. There was no doubt that Bright had kicked at Aspden, but none to establish whether or not the kicks connected save that of Aspden himself.

The magistrate said he was obliged to give the benefit of any doubt to the accused. "But," he emphasized "there had been any positive proof that someone had been kicked I would have taken a very serious view of the matter. Even in a brawl, let's have fair play."

Canadian Army War History First Volume Is Now Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — The first volume of the official history of the Canadian Army in the Second World War will be published later this month, army headquarters announced today.

The 620-page book is called "Six Years of War" and the author is Col. C. P. Stacey, director of the historical section of the general staff.

The volume deals with organization, training and home defence in Canada, the army in Britain 1939-45 and the war against Japan 1941-45.

The second volume, to be published early next year, will deal with the Canadian Army's campaign in Italy and the Mediterranean area. The third and final volume, now in preparation, will cover the northwest Europe campaign.

Col. Stacey said the aim of the three volumes is "to tell the Canadian citizen what his army accomplished in the Second World War and to provide him with means of forming an intelligent judgment on military issues that may confront him in the future."

The army said the three-volume history is intended more for the general reader than for the soldier or military student.

Volume I, published in 1948 contained the 534-page "The Canadian Army 1939-45." It was classed only as "an official historical summary" and the new history will contain much more detail. It was Col. Stacey the Governor - General's Award for academic non-fiction.

The army said the illustrated first volume will provide much greater detail than any previous account of the "important and controversial" operations at Hong Kong and Dieppe.

After telling the story of the raid on Dieppe, Col. Stacey devotes a chapter to details of losses, comments and aftermath of the August, 1942, operation.

Volume I is a cloth-bound book containing 32 black-and-white photographs and 14 maps, seven of them in color. It will be obtainable from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, at the postage-free price of $3.50.

Foreign Yuletide Usuages Told To Bridge St. C.C.

The Coronation club of Bridge Street United church met with the members of the Senior Women's Association for their joint November meeting.

Mrs. R. Booth and her group, which included Mrs. W. Craig, Mrs. J. Dickens, Mrs. D. McKinney, Mrs. R. S. Morphy, Mrs. J. Nelles and Mrs. J. Porter were in charge of the meeting.

Following brief business period of both groups, period of worship, the guest speaker, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon, was introduced by Mrs. Booth.

A graduate of the University of Toronto, Mrs. MacKinnon has been lecturing there to the first year honor graduates in Household Science.

CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS

Mrs. MacKinnon began by describing some of the various customs of the Christmas season which have come to Canada from other countries. For example, she said that the Polish people invite their guests to the Christmas dinner in odd numbers and set an extra place for a stranger who might happen along.

"The Russian Ukraine, after their Christmas Eve supper, leave a bowl of Kutya (made of wheat, poppy seeds, honey, walnuts and pecans and other spices) on the table surrounded by clean dishes for the departed spirits.

"The Dutch people celebrate their Christmas on December 6. In some parts of Canada their Christmas is complete with St. Nicholas entering town on a white charger followed by Black Peter, who tosses out Dutch pastries."

Mrs. MacKinnon continued her most interesting talk by suggesting a planned program for preparing Christmas dinner, with several novel ideas in making the preparation much more simple.

Ideas for parties and for decorating followed.

In her delightful manner, Mrs. MacKinnon illustrated her suggestions with a display of most attractive decorations, some of which could be made by children. Her talk was an inspiring one for this busy pre-Christmas season and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

Mrs. MacKinnon was thanked by Mrs. J. Dickens.

A social coffee hour brought the meeting to a close.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUNG PEOPLE GROW UP FASTER NOWADAYS THAN 15-YEAR-OLD BOY

An interesting letter from a boy of 15 lays it on the line about some of the things he and his friends of modern young people and their fathers. He declares that this is one of "the biggest problems in the United States today," and that he feels a great deal of other teenagers besides himself would like to have some discussion about it through this column.

Here in the way he states not only the general problem, but his own particular angle of it:

"When a father and a girl under 21 talk about getting married, the older person has to say 'you are too young. But don't they know that you don't have to be 21 to be in love with a person enough to marry her or him? Or do they think that's young people? Or are they just forgetful?

"Take my mother, for instance, as an example of what I mean.

"My mother doesn't realize that teen-agers like me are a new generation of people, and that in these times grown-ups must act faster than they used to. At 19, a boy is taken into the army for a year. He maybe gets sent to a foreign country. I have nothing against this, for I think it is his duty. But isn't he old enough to have a responsibility of this kind to vote, drive a car and be old enough to do other things he wants to do as long as he does not break the law? When a young fellow goes into the army, he never knows if he will live to marry and raise a family of his own, so why can't it be his privilege to decide for himself when he will get married?

"I am 18, soon to be 19, and I go with a girl of 17. She is the nicest girl I have ever known, and we have a very ideal set up together. We both go to school and both working.

"About a week ago I had to take my mother and my aunts on a trip, and I asked my girl to go along. Everything seemed to be all right until the day before we left when my mother came to me and told me what she thought of my girl, and it was not very nice. She said I was a member of my family thought she was very nice and sweet.

"I know my girl's parents, and we get along very well and they never say a word about our staying out late when we have dates, as long as I leave her home by 2 A.M. But my mother is angry every time when I don't get home before then. I try to talk sense to her, but she refuses to listen."

There is only one thing—perhaps a relatively minor point—on which I disagree with this young man, and that is in the matter of staying out until two o'clock in the morning. Whether teen-agers are in or out of school, and working or not, I just don't think it's a good idea for them to make a practice of staying out until any such hour. I'm quite sure this boy and his girl never would do anything that could be questioned. But if the neighbors see a girl coming home regularly in the early hours of the morning, they are going to question it anyway, and I don't think a boy who really cares about a girl wants to put her in any situation that might give rise to gossip. Besides which, too much staying out until 2 A.M. is not particularly good for anybody's health, least of all those who are still in their teens.

Having got that out of the way, let's now take up this boy's basic complaint, which is, he fathers, that he sees it, of the older generation to give the younger ones the privileges he believes should rightfully be theirs.

There is no question but that the induction of young men into the armed forces has introduced a wholly new element into the life of the modern teen-ager, and I most definitely think it is something that must be given serious consideration. I think it's more than the question of marriage. I believe that boys and girls in their late teens who have known each other a long time, and have either definitely planned, or taken it for granted, that some day they would be married should be free to marry if they wish before the young man goes into service. It goes without saying, however, that no such marriage is to be entered into impulsively by young people whose acquaintance has been short, as unfortunately happens all too often these days.

It may be that this particular young man's mother does not realize by disapprove of his girl, as

TREATMENT FOR TIRED FEET

A daily (or nightly) footbath provides relief for tired, aching feet.

Run ragged these days, what with Christmas shopping and all the other chores which precedes the happy holidays? Or are you on your feet practically processionating souls who put everything off to the last moment? In either case, you're practically bound to feel the strain in your feet eventually. So why not make up your mind right now that you'll give them a little pampering attention every night from now on. Then, the tired you go to serve, you'll feel your best and look your best, since nothing can mould a face quicker than weary, aching feet.

Take a bath at last once a day will help a lot. Whether you have it late in the afternoon or at night, just before retiring, doesn't matter, but do give your feet this special treat. Fill a basin with hot water and use lots of suds. Sit in a comfortable chair while your feet are soaking and just r-e-l-a-x. Let your body go limp and let those aches and pains in your feet float off into the soapy water. After the soaking, dry your feet gently but well, then with cold. Dry them thoroughly and dust them with foot powder, talcum or baking soda. Massage with cold cream is also good for the feet and so is a rub before applying the powder feels might good, too.

If you notice a corn or callus on either of your feet, take steps to remove them immediately. The best thing to do, of course, is to see a chiropodist and have him remove the offending growths. But, if this is impossible, there are a number of corn remedies on the market, and where calluses are concerned, you can do a great deal yourself to get rid of them. When taking your daily bath, use a soft brush, covered with suds, a n d brush the callloused parts gently but firmly. Keep a pumice stone handy and use it, wet, to go over them again. Done faithfully, this treatment will help to rid you of all but the most stubborn calluses. For one which has been long neglected and which defies both brushes and pumice, you'd better see your chiropodist.

Frequent changing of shoes is also helpful to tired feet. Try to change them during the day; if possible but, on no account, wear the same pair two days in succession. Daily changed not only rests your feet but make your shoes last longer.

Another help for aching feet is elevation. Propped up a 45-dree angle, on pillows, a hassock, or the back of a chair, while you lie down comfortably, not only relieves the weariness of the feet but stimulates the circulation and helps your nerves system, too.

has made him believe but that his parents are wrong in taking a serious interest in any girl at this time, and so puts her objections in the way she thinks may be most likely to influence them. Many times, of course, so reluctant to give their sons up to other women that they are sure any argument they can devise to rush those other women away.

Perhaps a talk between the parents on both sides and the young people themselves could bring about a compromise that would be a solution to this problem. That compromise might consist of the boy and the girl agreeing to postpone any marriage plans until the girl is at least 18, which seems to be only sensible. This would give the young people more time to be sure of themselves, and also to work out practical plans for organizing their future.

"All it should take to content each one who has a stake in this situation is the assurance that every other one will keep an open mind, and try to talk things over with reasonableness and understanding.

GOOD MANNERS

CONCERNING ENGAGEMENT PARTIES AND ENGAGEMENT PRESENTS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My brother has just become engaged, and he is to be an engagement party or dinner also. I thought an engagement party was for the immediate families. I also thought that at an engagement gift should be for the bride-to-be, but some say it should be something for the groom. Am I right or wrong about these two ideas? W.

The party to announce the engagement is, customarily, given by the parents of the bride-to-be, since it is their privilege and responsibility to announce their daughter's engagement. The engagement - announcement party may be any kind of party - from a dinner party for the parents of the couple, and perhaps sisters and brothers of the couple, to a reception which includes other relatives, a few or many friends. Or it may be a tea or dinner party for a few or many guests. (Of course it is quite in order to give any kind of party to announce an engagement.) As soon as the engagement (after it has been announced) may be given by any relative or friend who may wish to give it.

Generally, an engagement present is something for the bride-to-be herself, often an article for her personal trousseau, as a distinction from the wedding present, which is something for the new home.

YES, SHE SHOULD GIVE THEM CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I'm a 17-year-old girl, and I've been going steady with a fellow for a year and a half. Although we're not officially engaged, we have talked about getting married in about a year and a half.) Even though he's in the service, his mother invites me to their house every week, and his family and I have become good friends. Do you think I should give Christmas presents to his mother and his two brothers? — E.M.

Yes, indeed I do think you should give your friend's soldier-family mother a Christmas present. She has been wonderfully generous in her plans to have you come to her home, and I'm sure you would want to make some Christmas gesture to her. You might give her some stocking in the shade you observe she prefers, or one or two pairs of gloves, or some item or items in the world of cosmetics, or a daytime purse perhaps. And yes, of course, give a Christmas present to each of the two small brothers. Also, if you are invited to go to their home on Christmas Day or to New Year's Day you might take as a "family" present, a box of candy or other sweets, a box of assorted nuts, a small group of packages jars of jams and jellies, or something similar in the "eatables" line.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS . . . TO HUSBAND-AND-WIFE, FROM HUSBAND-AND-WIFE

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. When my husband and I plan to send a card to a married couple, is it proper to address it to both husband and wife, even though we know only one of them?

2. Both of our names should be signed to the card. Addressing cards to both husband and wife, and signing cards by both husband and wife are appropriate gestures, not "becoming" to the Greetings-in-the-Season!

Newfoundland Women Brush Up on Technique

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—More than 1,000 women are brushing up on their sickroom technique. In 20 of the 46 Red Cross centres across Newfoundland, they are taking how to become better nurses.

More than 1,000 volunteers, shop clerks, factory workers and stenographers are taking the course. If and 70 is eligible—have taken Red Cross courses since they began three years ago.

Some wish to be better equipped to look after their families, but many graduates devote their spare time to help the sick wherever they're needed. Their services are free, and they're always in demand.

As early as 1923 the Canadian Red Cross published a booklet called "Health, Home Nursing And Emergencies." Courses were offered but they attracted little interest.

QUICK BOOST

Then attentive Isobelle Button, director of Red Cross nursing services for Newfoundland, got busy here three years ago. The booklet quickly became popular. The current manual, "Home Nursing," was revised in 1954.

In St. John's a dozen lectures are packed up by 40 hours practical hospital work before students earn badges and certificates.

In some Newfoundland outports, where small cottage hospitals require an extra help, women taking the course get their practice by spending 20 hours nursing sick neighbors in their homes.

Miss Button says: "We are the only provinces in Canada where graduates go into the homes. After they have finished the course they wanted to earn pins, I decided if they wanted to offer to help in homes where there were no hospitals it would be a good idea.

She figures her home nursing graduates will give 5,000 voluntary sickroom hours a year, double last year's figure.

"They are the only of practical nurses," says Miss Button. "They are not professionals. They don't receive medals or anything like that."

PRAISED BY DOCTORS

She says doctors are all for the scheme and were quite a few letters of praise."

In St. John's, graduates spend their volunteer hours at the General Hospital, where there is such a demand other city hospitals can't be supplied. Graduates are entitled to wear white aprons, caps and cuffs.

There are also junior classes for girls. A whole troop of Girl Guides took it last year but they are too young to work in hospitals.

The course is open to men, but so far no Newfoundlander has attempted it.

Marie Dionne Needs a Rest

NORTH BAY (CP)—Quintuplet Marie Dionne, 21 in a Montreal hospital, is "steadily improving" and is expected to come to her home near Callander within the next few days, her father, Oliva Dionne, said today.

He gave this information following the return home of Mrs. Dionne who visited Marie in Montreal last weekend. Earlier in the month the 21-year-old girl left a cloistered convent in Quebec City where she was training to become a nun.

"The doctor told Mrs. Dionne that Marie's condition was never as serious as first reported," the father said. "She is not suffering from anaemia, as was first thought; rather, she is completely run down, tired and disappointed that she found it necessary to leave the convent.

"This information about Marie's condition was confirmed in a letter we received from her doctor today," Mr. Dionne added. "The letter told us there was absolutely nothing to be alarmed about. She is generally in good rest, which she is now getting in the hospital and we expect her home in a few weeks in order that she may continue to rest."

Homemade Scotch Broth

By Mary Moore

This desk and house are teeming with Christmas requests and happiness.

In the oven are 14 pounds of dark fruit cake batting, ready for which if all tasting eats agree) will be the one I will give you next November.

But in spite of the exciting pressure of Christmas I am taking time from my reader-friends who must stretch their budgets to keep their families well nourished and to have any money leftover for Christmas celebrations.

I made Scotch broth—a great big pot of meat-rich soup that is a budget-stretcher. With a pot of soup like this on hand you could use it for lunches or as a main course for supper. Serve whole wheat bread too and a large bowl of freshly cut cole-slaw. With it serve a dessert that is filling such as apple pie with cheese, or custard pie (see below).

HOMEMADE SCOTCH BROTH

I bought a breast of lamb with the foreleg on that weighed 2 1-2 lbs. and cost 70c. I cut off the leg and covered it with 7 1-2 cups cold water, and simmered both covered, for 3 1-2 hours, when most fell from bones. I chilled it and skimmed off the fat. (You need not do this for the fat is nourishing, but if it is not removed I would advise skimming off most of it, for nobody finds greasy-topped soup appetizing.) I added broth and meat into large sieve over soup pot. To strained broth add 3 tablespoons small-size barley and put on to cook again. With great care pick out all bones from meat with your fingers, but leave any soft gristle in and chop meat and vegetables all of it to broth. Add also four large thin carrots cut to water thin rounds (or diced); 4 or 6 outside stalks celery and leaves chopped finely, 1 medium onion chopped, 1 tablespoon salt, 1-6 to 1-4 teaspoon finely ground pepper and two more cups water. If desired add 2 or 3 teaspoons sugar and two finely rolled soda biscuit crushed crumbs and 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate. These last three ingredients give the soup the characteristic flavor of corner-pub-cozy-packed soup. I did not add them. Simmer until barley is just tender.

OLD-FASHIONED CUSTARD PIE

Four slightly beaten eggs, 1-3 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 1-2 cups milk (if you care to afford it use 1 cup cream instead of 1 cup milk), 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-6 teaspoon nutmeg. Line deep pie plate with rich plain pastry and with high-fluted edge. Mix ingredients in order and strain into unbaked pie shell, sprinkling top with more nutmeg if desired. Bake in hot oven, 10 minutes then reduce heat at once to 325 deg. for 35 minutes. When silver knife inserted at edge of pie comes out clean custard is done. Cool slightly and put centre but will finish setting after it is removed. Do not overbake or it may curdle.

Wife Preservers

To safeguard your family's health steaming is cold weather. If you haven't a good steaming utensil provided on hand, fold both sides of each glass with soapy fingers and then polish.

WALLBRIDGE FARM GALS

4TH SIDNEY—The girls of the Wallbridge Farm Gals club met at the home of their leader, Mrs. C. Woods, for their fourth meeting.

Marilyn Phillips, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. Discussions were held on their work book cover and type of cover to be used. It was finally decided to make paper covers and the size to be 11 1-2 by 10 1-2 inches.

A discussion was held on the different types of afternoon tea held, and how to serve them. An afternoon tea is usually served from 3.30 to 6 o'clock.

From 5 to 7 o'clock and the food served should be simple.

An informal tea is served to unexpected guests or callers, or one might invite a few friends informally, again keep food simple, so that more time can be spent with your friends.

At a formal tea of course, the invitations are sent ahead of time and arranged accordingly, also the serving is more formal. The girls then served and attended cocoa, after which a delightful luncheon was held with the many colored cup cakes and cocoa.

HOLLOWAY UNITED F.C.

The home of Mrs. L. Wilkes, 120 Catharine Street was the scene of the November meeting of the Fellowship Club of Holloway Street United Church, and there was a record attendance in spite of the inclement weather.

The president, Mrs. Earl White, opened the meeting. The secretary, Mrs. MacFarlane read a letter from Mr. Ron Jones, thanking the club for another donation to the Sunday school. An invitation was extended to all members from the Jubilee Auxiliary of Bridge Street church to attend a meeting in honor of Miss Howes, returned missionary.

During the brief business period a nominating committee was appointed to ascertain those who would be willing to hold office for the ensuing year. The president then turned the meeting over to Miss M. Moorcroft and her group, and as always they had a thought-provoking theme.

A fine dissertation on The Lord's Prayer was heard, with the explanatory talks on the various parts being given by Miss Moorcroft, Mesdames MacFarlane, Wrightmyer and White. This was followed by the lovely recorded solo, "I Walk Alone With God," by Constance Templeton.

Miss Moorcroft closed her program with a well chosen reading from the book "Faith to Live By," and the benediction.

A social half hour was spent and refreshments were served by the group.

ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.L.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League was held Monday evening in the school hall with 29 members present.

The Rev. J. J. Buckley opened the meeting, while the president, Mrs. H. Carr-Braint, presided in the chair.

The 1st vice-president reported the active membership to date as 66. An excerpt from the league magazine was read by Mrs. G. Williams on "The Youth of Canada."

Members were asked to donate gifts suitable for Christmas to be sent to the Mother House at Combermere.

The spiritual convener announced that the next study club will be the second Wednesday in January, the topic of discussion is "Social Justice."

Mrs. Kennedy reported 45 hospital calls made.

The draw on a Christmas cake donated by Mrs. Huck, will be raffled this month.

The next euchre is to be held later this month and will be convened by Mrs. C. O'Neill.

Because of the busy Christmas season, the December meeting will be held Monday December 19th with the exchange of small gifts.

Father Buckley led a question and answers series which was most interesting and enjoyed by all. The meeting was then adjourned and refreshments served by Mrs. O. Dufour and her committee.

Teacher Went To College Via The Post Office

By LORRAINE McGOWAN

NORTH BAY (CP)—Carruthers public school has a teacher who went to college via the post office while living in the wilds of the Northwest Territories.

She is Mrs. Ivan Clydale, whose three children also attend classes daily at Carruthers. Last Oct. 28 she received her bachelor of arts degree at the University of Western Ontario, London.

Since her marriage 10 years ago, Mrs. Clydale has lived for the most part on airports and in remote settlements. Her husband is a meteorologist with the department of transport.

Their first home was at Fort Harrison, Que., on the east coast of Hudson bay.

From 1946 until 1949 they lived at an airport seven miles from Prince George, B.C., where their second child was born Mrs. Clydale decided to study.

"It was a hobby, quite the same way other women have hobbies," the soft-spoken teacher from Petrolia said.

The couple moved to Fort Smith, N.W.T., in September, 1949, and Mrs. Clydale wrote to Western University for her assignments in history and geography.

The couple moved to Toronto in 1951 and Mrs. Clydale took extension lectures. Her course was completed at summer school last summer.

The Clydales came two years ago to North Bay, where her husband is on loan to the DOAF.

While he is at work each day the other four members of the family go to Dr. Carruthers public school where Mrs. Clydale teaches grade III and Marilyn, 9, Gordon, 7, and Donald, 5, attend classes.

CRASHLANDS BOMBER

TOKYO (AP)—A United States Air Force pilot safely crash-landed his big B-29 reconnaissance-bomber today after eight agonizing hours of circling Yokota air base until his fuel ran out. Two men parachuted. The others rode the big craft in as it screamed belly-down along a two-mile runway spread with fire-extinguishing foam to prevent an explosion.

ORIENTAL INFLUENCE

By VERA WINSTON

There's a suggestion of the all-pervading Oriental influence even in this softly tailored black broadcloth town suit. The suggestion is in the undefined figure line and the slit tunic jacket. The dropped shoulder is achieved through the medium of a shoulder yoke that terminates in shaped seaming to the slits. Two buttons close the top but the rest of the fastening is concealed. A good suit very much in the mode and mood of the moment.

Canadian Legion Auxiliary Sponsors Successful Bazaar

A most successful bazaar was held on Wednesday in the Legion Club Rooms, Coleman St., sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary Canadian Legion Branch 99.

The hall was a picture of loveliness, in colors or red and green, evergreens, entwined with metallic streamers and silver bells draped the doorway. The tables, with their snow white cloths with red and green streamers from end to end caught in the centre with a beautiful wreath of evergreens were pretty.

Mrs. Slater, the president, greeted the visitors at the door with a hearty handshake and Merry Christmas greeting.

The first table was the novelties, and such a lot of different things there were fancy work, dolls, pot holders, crocheted baskets, pillow slips, hand bags, shopping bags, clothes bags, and stuffed toys of every kind. This table was convened by Mrs. Terry and Mrs. Hodge.

VARIETY HOME COOKING

The home bake table was next and presented a fine display of home cooking; cakes of every description; cookies and pies, convened by Mrs. Bailey.

The candy table was next with its chocolates, fudge, maple creams, fondant, delicious peanut crisp and boxes of all mixtures, all convened by Mrs. Jack Young.

The Country Store table, convened by Mrs. Meeks, was loaded down with everything you would want for the pantry shelf.

The Elephant table, convened by Mrs. Daniels, was a great success with all kinds of odds and ends.

Mrs. W. Haley donated a Christmas cake, tickets were sold on it. The winner was Mrs. Jack Young.

A blanket was also raffled off and was won by Mrs. E. Davidson.

The end of the hall was set with small tea tables and a large one in the centre from which tea was poured by Mrs. Bradford and Mrs. Bean.

The centre of this table was adorned by a beautiful bouquet of mums donated by Mrs. Bradford and a silver candle at each end.

Also assisting in serving were: Mrs. Dehope, Mrs. Helm and Mrs. Legacy, Mrs. Beaumont, Mrs. Blair and Mrs. Slater.

Much credit is due to Mrs. Legacy, the convener for the success of the bazaar.

Jack Ames lives with progress!

As a Chief Test Engineer of Avro Aircraft Ltd., Jack Ames knows a lot about what lies behind the spectacular progress of the aircraft industry.

"Few people realize what a vast amount of engineering has gone into the development of jet planes," says Mr. Ames. "Improvements in heat-resistant alloys have made it possible to create engines of enormously greater power. Together with advances in airframe configuration and manufacturing techniques, they have brought supersonic speeds within range today — and will help us break the thermal barrier tomorrow.

As a family man, Mr. Ames has had experience with another "industry" that has advanced in modern times . . . life insurance.

Take the group insurance plan in which he shares, for example. Less than a generation ago such plans were almost unknown. Today their benefits are enjoyed by millions and provide a useful supplement to personal insurance programs.

Today, too, all forms of life insurance are more flexible. Result: people now use it for many other purposes than the basic one of protection for the family.

Moreover, life underwriters today are better trained to help people with the task of building tailor-made plans.

In these and other ways, the life insurance companies in Canada have progressed to meet the changing needs of people in all walks of life!

RAWDON

Adolphustown UEL Cemetery To Be Restored

RAWDON.— The Rawdon correspondent a member of the Toronto Branch of United Empire Loyalists, has received a special communication regarding the U.E.L. cemetery situated by the waterfront, Adolphustown, where the United Empire Loyalists first landed.

In the autumn, Col and Mrs. MacLaughlin of Oshawa, sponsored a tea and tour of their lovely gardens and over 400 people were in attendance. In November, the executive decided to sponsor "The Gay Nineties" Revue by Cliffcrest choir, at the Royal Ontario Museum to provide funds.

When the restoration of this old cemetery is completed at a cost of less than $1000 the government has decided to create a National Park, a U.E.L. museum and also to maintain the cemetery in future years.

Several people have given generous donations and this has been an incentive to get the work off to an early start.

It is understood the plot is 200 yards square and will be given a permanent clean-up and it will be surrounded by an iron fence with handsome wrought iron gates. There is to be a flagstone terrace and paths running parallel from the monument which was erected in 1884.

HISTORICAL

All the broken stone tablets will be placed in special stone wall several feet long; borders of flowering shrubs aromatic mint, and other flowers will be planted to this sacred spot, and two plaques will be erected with suitable inscriptions, that Canadians may remember the sacrifices of the loyalists to preserve the British heritage.

The executive in charge hope to have all in readiness for the ceremonies in June 1956 and if possible on the date of the anniversary of the landing of the Loyalists, June 16, 1784.

One of the main aims of the U.E.L. Association is to unite together, irrespective of creed, or political party, the descendants of those families who left their former homes during the American Revolutionary war of 1775-1785, to retain their loyalty to the British Crown.

CLAIMS CENSORSHIP

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Sun in a front-page article said Friday that censorship at police headquarters is keeping city crime news from the public. The newspaper charged that the censorship started in 1951 when orders were issued that only executive officers could release information to the press.

The latest gift shipments of '50' ale from John Labatt Limited are now on their way overseas for distribution during the Christmas season to Canadian armed services personnel.

Labatt's have recently sent 18,000 pints to the Army and another 18,000 pints to the Air Force in Europe, as well as shipments to troops serving in Korea and with the UN truce team in Indo-China. The latter, flown to its destination by the RCAF, was the first airlift movement in the Company's continuing gift shipments program.

The gifts were accepted from John P. Labatt, Assistant to the President, by Group Captain David Goldberg, 16 Wing RCAF, Hamilton, and Lt.-Col. J.E. Farnan, Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, Hamilton, at a Hamilton dockside prior to loading on board Captain Martin Rog's Orange Line M.S. Prins Frederick Willem.

With these shipments, Labatt's have contributed 540,000 pints of beer since the Company led the industry in inaugurating such gifts to Canadian servicemen on duty abroad.

Biography Shows Secretary Warned King Edward of His Position Before Storm Broke

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—New facts have emerged on the abdication of King Edward VIII, thereby behind the storm burst in 1936 his private secretary wrote this warning him of the danger of his position.

The king did not answer the letter—in writing or otherwise.

The existence of the letter to the king from his secretary—then Major Alexander Hardinge, now Lord Hardinge of Penshurst—comes to light in a newly published biography of the late Geoffrey Dawson, editor of The Times.

TERMS REVEALED

Since publication of the biography, by Sir Evelyn Wrench, Lord Hardinge himself has revealed the actual terms of his letter to the king in an article in The Times. The letter read:

"Nov. 13, 1936.

"Sir, with my humble duty. As Your Majesty's private secretary I feel it is my duty to bring to your notice the following facts which have come to my knowledge and which I know to be accurate:

"1. The British Government, the press on the subject of Your Majesty's friendship with Mrs. Simpson is not going to be maintained. It is probably only a matter of days before the outburst begins. Judging by the letters from British subjects living in foreign countries which the press has been outspoken, the effect will be calamitous.

"2. The prime minister (the late Stanley Baldwin) and senior members of the government are meeting today to discuss what action should be taken to deal with the serious situation which is developing. As Your Majesty should know, the resignation of the government will eventually be which can by no means be excluded—would result in Your Majesty having to send for the man capable of forming a government which would receive the support of the present House of Commons. I have reason to know that, in view of the feeling prevalent among members of the House of Commons of all parties, this is hardly within the realms of possibility. The only alternative remaining is a dissolution and a general election, in which Your Majesty's personal affairs would be the chief issue—and I cannot help feeling that even those who would sympathize with Your Majesty as an individual would deeply resent the damage which would inevitably be done to the crown, the cornerstone on which the whole empire rests.

ONE SOLUTION

"If Your Majesty will permit me to say so, there is only one step which holds out any prospect of avoiding this dangerous situation, and that is for Mrs. Simpson to go abroad without further delay, and I would beg Your Majesty to give this proposal your earnest consideration before the position has become irretrievable. Owing to the changing attitude of the press the matter has become one of great urgency.

The letter was written less than a month before the abdication which came Dec. 10.

Wrench, quoting from Dawson's diary, gives this reader's gasp:

"Nov. 14. Next day I paid another visit to Alec Hardinge at Buckingham Palace and he showed me, since I happened to be there, the draft of a letter to his Royal Master which he had felt impelled to write after a sleepless night. It was his first and only intervention—an admirable letter, respectful, considered and definite . . .

"He sent it off to Fort Belvedere that same Friday morning and has never had the slightest response or reference to it either in writing or by word of mouth."

EXPLAINS ROLE

Wrench, in his biography of Dawson, says his own record of the abdication "is merely an attempt to tell Geoffrey's part, perhaps only second in importance to that of Baldwin, in the abdication story."

He makes this personal comment:

"Is Geoffrey's letters and papers from 1913 onwards there "I nothing to show that he had anything but friendly feelings towards the heir to the throne, though in 1924 there are records of talks concerning certain episodes referred to by the American press and his lack of reticence in the case of a public character who had probably received more adulation than any prince in history, and had been referred to as the most universally popular personality in the world. The editor's first and only meeting with Mrs. Simpson was on April 24, 1936, at a luncheon party given by Lady Oxford; he commented, she seemed pleasant, quiet and sensible."

Hardinge, writing in The Times, denied an implication of some past accounts of the abdication that King Edward was the victim of a conspiracy on the part of a number of persons to remove him from the throne.

"Nothing could, in fact, be farther from the truth," he said, adding:

"The principal conspirators are alleged to be Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Geoffrey Dawson, the editor of The Times, and the Archbishop of Canterbury (the late Dr. Cosmo Lang). But so far not a shred of evidence has been forthcoming to sustain the charge against any of them, and in the case of Mr. Baldwin it is usually made under the auspices of those who had been politically hostile to him for many years."

Doorman Gives Up Job To Collect Fortune

BRIGHTON, Eng. (Reuters)—A 32-year-old theatre doorman gave his employer a smile Saturday night—to collect a fortune in London.

Solicitors had told him he had inherited a $260,000 fruit and canning business from an uncle in Toronto he met only once.

Next week "Paddy" — Charles Michael McMaster, from Ballybelly, County Londonderry—flies to Toronto where his uncle, also Charles Michael McMaster, died two months ago.

"My uncle went to Canada from Scotland 20 years ago with only a few pounds in his pocket," Paddy said Saturday. "He became one of the biggest canning men in the country. I only met him once when I was a lad."

Irate Dealers Face GM Heads At Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate anti-trust investigators today questioned high officers of General Motors Corp. with an angry Pontiac dealer who accused the GM command of making "pawns and vassals" of its 19,000 dealers.

President Harlow H. Curtice and board chairman Alfred P. Sloan Jr., took their places at the judiciary sub - committee's witness table supposing themselves to be the first witnesses of the day.

Instead, they were forced to sit silent while acting sub-committee chairman Joseph O'Mahoney (De., Wyo.) called up three complaining dealers summoned by subpoena.

Then, with the dealers seated across the table from the top men of the world's biggest manufacturing organization, O'Mahoney read into the record a letter from one of them, M. H. Yager, for 14 years a Pontiac dealer in Albany, N. Y., and an employee of GM for 16 previous years.

LOYALTY AND INDIGNITY

Yager wrote that "all the ethics, dignity and fun have gone out of the automobile business."

In a "wild" race for sales, Yager said, the GM officers have "adopted the policies of arrogant selfish dictators."

"(GM officials) have attempted to brainwash, first the wholesale organization of Pontiac dealers and second, the dealer body to their dogma of price and more production and wilder and wilder distribution methods which has resulted in complete chaos in the distribution end of this business.

"Their dictatorship of starving production is resulting in maldistribution, forced distribution and rampant bootlegging and has done irreparable and dangerous credit practices."

BLAMES TITANS

Yager blamed conditions on "a few men who are titans in our industry, namely General Motors, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corporation."

"All three are headed up by individuals who are in extremely strong positions, avowed and admitted enemies of each other, who are ruthlessly penalizing their own ambitions regardless of consequences."

CONVICTED OF MURDER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Graham, 24, was convicted Friday of murder in the kick-death of 21-year-old William Holman last Aug. 20. Graham was sentenced to be hanged Feb. 21. One witness testified Graham stamped on Holman's head five or six times as he lay on the ground.

Cyclone Kills 120 in India

MADRAS, India (Reuters) — At least 120 persons died in a tropical cyclone which struck the southeast coast of India last week, officials said here today.

Tidal waves hit some areas after winds up to 60 miles an hour lashed the coastline in a two-day storm Thursday and Friday. Floods destroyed crops, disrupted communications and caused damage to property estimated at 3,000,000 rupees (about $600,000).

The storm struck the Tajore and Ramnad districts on the Madras coast.

CLAIM KILLED SON

ROME (Reuters)—Police Saturday arrested Norberto Fulia, a 34-year-old tailor as he knelt by a hospital cot in which lay the dead body of his one-day-old baby son. Police said Fulia cried out: "I have strangled him because he has no hands." The father said he had resolved that his son should not endure a life of suffering and hardship.

TO END STRIKE

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Scranton Transit Co. bus drivers voted Sunday night to end an eight-month strike which halted all public transportation facilities in this anthracite city of 125,000. Employees voted 213 to 10 to accept a compromise offer by the company which inaugurates a co-operative revenue sharing plan.

English Mayor Expects to Ride Out Storm

DONCASTER, England (AP)—The mayor and his nude pictures in the industrial town mixed up today in a political controversy.

Mayor Alf Hall, whose hobby is nude figure photography, got caught up in the row when his 14-year-old son showed a few choice pictures to some friends. The mayor is confident of riding out the political storm — maintaining there's nothing immoral in his hobby.

A showdown may come at the municipal council meeting Tuesday, Councillor Kathleen Surfleet has threatened to propose a motion of "no confidence in our mayor."

CANNON AMAZED

Canon Hugh Herklots, the Anglican vicar of this Yorkshire industrial centre of 90,000, said he was "amazed by the disclosures and by the mayor's whole attitude to it."

"I shall have to consider my attitude before I meet him officially again," the vicar said.

Mayor Hall, who is in his 50s and a plasterer by trade, appears undisturbed by the whole commotion. He said:

"Photography is my life-long hobby, and the figure photography, with special light and shade effects, is one of my special interests."

Stores Well-Stocked, Waiting For Food Rush by Housewives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Housewives are preparing for the Christmas food rush.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows most stores throughout the country well-stocked and waiting with propellers beamed at the prospect of a record selling season. First reports indicate prices at about the same level as last year but turkeys are to be scarce and a little more expensive in some regions.

Montreal, Calgary, Edmonton and Regina all report shortages of the big bird, traditionally featured in the Christmas feast, and price increases of five to 10 cents a pound over last year are anticipated.

Turkeys are late-comers to poultry shelves in most centres, usually appearing in quantity about a week before Dec. 25. Prices are expected to parallel the Toronto figures of about 30 cents a pound for small birds—in the eight- to 10-pound range—and 45 to 50 cents a pound for larger specimens.

Chicken is in good supply in most parts of the country and prices run at about 35 cents a pound.

Some fore-runners predict a price-rise on all poultry shortly before Christmas, although Montreal shoppers are hoping for a drop turn to gift certificates for food.

Kenya Police Reserve Officer Thoroughly Enjoys Colony

NAIROBI (CP) — Tough, beefy Bob Henderson, 28-year-old University of Toronto graduate, dipped into his savings and bought a one-way air ticket to Kenya to join the Police Reserve.

Now, after six months' almost continuous service with a tracker combat team in the forests of Mount Kenya, he is toying with the idea of settling in the colony.

"For one thing, Canada is too cold," Bob confessed. He was quick to add that sleeping "hard" in tents high in the forests near the equator—was not the usual idea of life the tropics.

Bob—inspector Robert Henderson, to give him his full name and rank—comes from near Norwich, Ont. His parents have a farm there. In Nairobi he summed up his ambition in one sentence: "I became interested in the Mau Mau problem and decided to come out here for adventure.

A few weeks ago Bob almost persuaded his girl to join him in Kenya. A Kenya daughter, she's now a university graduate, too. Then she met with an accident while Mau Mau, riding, which set back their plans. Bob now feels he must return to Canada.

"But I am glad of my experiences in Kenya," he says, "and would like to come out here again."

Bob is quiet and unassuming, concerned only with getting on with the job in hand. He wouldn't say much about his service with the Kenya Police force.

But he did say this much: "The Africans who are with us are doing a very fine job. Without them there would be no tracker teams."

Henderson believes he is the only Canadian serving in the KPR. The regular Kenya police used to have a well-known senior officer from the Dominion, assistant commissioner Eric Watterman, who was formerly with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. But he left the Kenya force nearly two years ago.

Now Bob Henderson is leaving to be plain citizen Bob for a few months. Back in Ontario, no doubt, his girl will decide where to look next for adventure. Perhaps they will decide that Kenya can still offer it, Mau Mau or no Mau Mau.

Hope to Clear Forty Ships Through Ice-Clogged Canals As Weather Likely to Help

MONTREAL (CP)—Shipping officials here are hoping for an easist from the weather today in their attempt to clear some 40 vessels through the ice-clogged Lachine and Soulanges canals.

Temperatures which dipped well below freezing several days ago started the jam and threatened to lock some 50 vessels in the ice until spring.

The weather forecast today promises a low and high of 28 and 35 in the Montreal area. This, combined with the predicted 20-mile-an-hour winds, should be a big help to crews trying to clear the ships, shipping officials said.

Jean Barcelo, superintendent of the St. Lawrence canal system, said he thinks all the traffic will be able to get through "if weather conditions do not get worse."

The rain, which has fallen intermittently during the past 24 hours, is a help, Mr. Barcelo said.

WINDS HELP

J. Henri Juillet, superintendent of the canal, said that prevailing winds helped alleviate the situation in the Soulanges canal, about 30 miles west of Montreal. He said the ice was pushed away from the entrance of lock 1 today and boats were able to enter with little difficulty.

"If the weather will only remain in a few degrees below freezing one men shouldn't have too much trouble easing the boats through," Mr. Juillet said. "But if the temperature goes down to 15 like it did a few nights last week, the situation could become serious."

A team of men and tugs worked day and night and cleared 22 vessels up and down Saturday and Sunday. The transport department announced earlier that the Lachine canal would be kept open until Jan. 15. Severe weather would force an earlier closing, however. Shipping officials say they stand to lose millions of dollars if the ocean-going ships are trapped on the western entrance of the canal

Railway Denies Accusations Of Discrimination

MONTREAL (CP)—A Canadian Pacific Railway official Sunday denied accusations that the company is discriminating against Negroes in its hiring practices.

Sidney Blum, secretary of the Toronto Joint Committee for Human Rights, Saturday claimed the CPR had instituted aptitude tests as "a subtle discriminatory screening device" when considering job applicants.

A spokesman for the railway here said the aptitude tests are the same as those given junior clerks in the company who seek promotion and are of "a general and elementary nature." The tests are designed to measure the applicant's ability to read, write, add, subtract and multiply, he said.

Death of Three American Hunters in Gaspe Peninsula Most Widely Publicized Crime

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—In June, 1949, three American sports hunters in the mountainous Gaspe peninsula began to hunt bear. They death there was one of Canada's most widely publicized crimes.

Wilbert Coffin, 44, Gaspe power company employee at the time of the hunters, now is in a death cell at Montreal's Bordeaux jail. His execution is set for Feb. 10.

Tuesday, Canada's top court will be given an unusual review by the Supreme Court of Canada.

TO APPEAR CABINET

The cabinet, which has the final word on whether to interfere with a death sentence, has asked the three-judge court for advice on the case.

This is believed to be the first time the cabinet has referred a capital case to the court for such advice. The court's view will not be binding.

However, the cabinet presumably will rely on it in deciding whether to let the sentence be carried out, commute it to life—or a definite term of—imprisonment, or order a new trial.

The Quebec attorney general's department has attacked the cabinet's action as interference with the administration of justice. Lawyers for the attorney-general will ask the court to reject the federal reference as illegal, null and void.

Coffin was found guilty of murdering Nicholas Lindsay, 31, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., in what Quebec Provincial Police described as Quebec's most gruesome murder case.

Parts of Lindsay's beaten-and-wounded remains were found near an abandoned loggers' camp 35 miles west of the village of Gaspe. The dismembered bones of his companion—his father, Eugene Lindsay, 67, and Albert Clear, 30—were found in the same area.

SHOT TO DEATH

The crown claimed the younger Lindsay was shot to death in an ambush. A coroner's court jury ruled the three sportsmen died at the hands of a person or persons unknown. Police said Coffin did it.

Possession of articles belonging to the hunters and similar circumstantial evidence led to Coffin's conviction by Crawy at Perce, Que., in July, 1954. The conviction was confirmed unanimously by the Quebec Court of Appeals.

The Gaspe bushman applied to Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott of the Supreme Court for leave to appeal his conviction. Counsels of law-his lawyers argued he had not received a fair trial. The judge rejected the application Sept. 1.

Then, in the early hours of Sept. 6, Coffin made his way out of Quebec jail with a gun served from meals and painted with shoe blacking. Less than two hours later he gave himself up on the advice of his lawyer.

Coffin then asked the entire Supreme Court to grant him an appeal, but the court ruled it had no jurisdiction to overrule the decision of an associate (Mr. Justice Abbott) in the case.

About the same time, Coffin's lawyer rejected new evidence had been uncovered. Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin called on Justice Minister Garson to say some of his associates on the bench would have granted Coffin leave to appeal if they had heard the applications.

ASKED FOR OPINION

The cabinet, in an order-in-council Oct. 14, referred the case to the court for an opinion.

Specifically, it asked the court to say what its judgment would have been if it had heard the appeal.

Coffin's counsel called on Justice Minister Garson to say some of his associates on the bench would have granted Coffin leave to appeal.

The Lindsays and Clear travelled to Gaspe from Pennsylvania in a hiking truck. It was not the first time they had hunted Gaspe bear.

After purchasing provisions in Gaspe they entered the bush June 6, 1953. They drove some 40 miles along a winding, logging road through the mountains where only berry bushes and small vegetation grew.

Three weeks passed without word from the hunters. Finally friends and relatives in Philadelphia touched off a search by Quebec Provincial Police.

A truck and hunting equipment were found strewn in bushes on the roadside. Then Eugene Lindsay's remains were discovered about three miles away, near a logging camp. The two youths' remains were found near a second camp, about 1½ miles away.

MET THE HUNTERS

Coffin believed the last man to have seen the hunters alive, was away on a trip when the discoveries were made.

On his return to Gaspe he was questioned by police and also at a coroner's inquest.

He admitted meeting the hunters. He said the last time he saw them they were alive and in the company of two other American hunters travelling in a jeep.

His story of his encounter with the hunters was retold in a statement he issued to the press last Oct. 11 through one of his lawyers, Francois Gravel, in Quebec City.

Coffin said in his 8,000-word statement he maintained his innocence and complained he was not given a fair trial.

One reason for this complaint was elaborated before Mr. Justice Abbott by Arthur Maloney, Toronto lawyer who appeared for Coffin in Supreme Court.

Mr. Maloney said Coffin was denied a request at the 15-day trial that the jury be entirely English-speaking. The jury consisted of six English- and six French-speaking men.

SAY JURY MISDIRECTED

Counsel also argued that the trial judge, Mr. Justice Gerard Lacroix, misdirected the jury and admitted some irrelevant evidence.

Coffin said he saw the hunting party and their stalled truck June 16. He had driven young Lindsay to Gaspe to buy a new fuel pump. (The pump was not installed on the hunters' truck and was never found. However, police traced to Coffin a pump similar to the one Lindsay purchased in Gaspe.)

For his help, Coffin said he received a "Japanese hunting knife" and $40 in United States currency.

He said that when he left the Lindsays and Clear two other Americans in a jeep bearing Pennsylvania licence plates were with them.

Two days later he said he passed the same road. The Lindsay truck was at the same spot but there was no trace of the hunters. Coffin said he found a suitcase containing a pair of binoculars, two towels and a pair of pants.

His confession of theft was the first Coffin made. Some of the articles were found at the home of Coffin's common-law wife and mother of his son. They were identified at the trial as belonging to the hunters.

Miss Petrie's appearance on the stand, objected to by the defence, brought out the fact Coffin visited her a few days after the hunters entered the bush.

NEW EVIDENCE

When Mr. Gravel distributed Coffin's statement to the press in Quebec City he also described new evidence in the case.

The lawyer said he showed Coffin a photograph of an abandoned jeep found in New Brunswick, near Quebec border. Coffin said the jeep he saw in the bush was similar but he could not swear it was the same one.

A file submitted to the justice department by the lawyer contained a statement received earlier from Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of Toronto. They said they saw a jeep in Gaspe bearing U.S. license plates June 8, 1953, on a ferry crossing the St. Lawrence river some 350 miles from the scene of the hunt. The jeep's occupants were in their 30s or 40s and carried several guns.

Other statements from residents of Madeleine centre 40 miles from the scene of the slayings, also referred to a jeep with American license plates and two occupants.

An unidentified garage owner in Madeleine centre was quoted as saying the two men in the jeep asked whether he had seen the Lindsays and asked how to get into the Gaspe bush.

CROWN'S CONTENTION

The crown contended that Coffin killed the hunters for the elder Lindsay's money. He was said to be carrying upwards of $600 when he left Hollidaysburg. Lindsay's empty wallet was found near where his remains were discovered.

Witnesses testified at his trial that Coffin bought some beer in Gaspe on June 19 with a $20 U.S. bill and offered a big U.S. note to a hotel waitress.

Mr. Gravel told reporters when he turned over to the justice department new evidence showing Coffin received $230 in May and June, 1953, for Gaspe mining claims he sold. Some of the money he said, may have been in U.S. currency.

C. E. Cantin, deputy attorney-general of Quebec, said in a statement last month that the evidence introduced at the trial was all that was available at the time.

One sidelight that distracted attention from the Perce trial was the police claim that an employee of the defence told them the murder weapon had been found and tossed into the St. Lawrence river from the Quebec bridge.

Jean-Guy Hamel, 29, an ex-convict, later denied making the statement and was convicted and sentenced to two years in penitentiary for perjury. The river was dragged near the bridge but no weapon was found.

Biltmores Erupt in Scoring Spree Score Twenty Goals in Two Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores are making up for the games they lost by one goal earlier in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Biltmores laced Teepees 10-5 at St. Catharines Saturday. It was the second time in as many nights that Biltmores had counted 10 times in a game. Friday, they drubbed Toronto St. Michael's Majors 10-2.

A couple of close games in the Sunday doubleheader at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens completed the weekend activity in the league. Toronto Marlboros and Hamilton Cubs battled to a 1-1 tie in the opener while St. Michael's put on a scoring splurge late in the second game to nip Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks 4-3.

The Majors' win moved them back into the lead in league standings with 21 points, two ahead of second-place Kitchener - Waterloo. The deadlock left Hamilton in third place with 18 points, four more climbed onto the fifth rung with 13 points with St. Catharines trailing by a point and Barrie Flyers in the cellar with 11 points.

The Saturday game was one of the wildest seen in St. Catharines in several years. A total of 94 minutes in penalties was handed out by referee Vern Buffey of Toronto, who had his hands full during the third period. Teeps received 60 minutes of the total.

Matt Thompson had a pair of goals for the Teepees, Art Stratton, Bob Hull and Ab McDonald were the other marksmen.

The game threatened to get out of hand many times and in the final two minutes, Shack and McDonald started a wild swinging fight which spread to every player on the ice. Buffey handed out three misconducts—a match, game and majors in that frame.

In the Sunday game between the Majors and Canucks, St. Michael's took a 2-0 lead in the third period before Kitchener-Waterloo went out in front 3-2. With a little more than two minutes left to play, Dick Mattiussi and Frank Howarth scored for Majors to give the Toronto team its win.

Frank Mahovlich and Pat Hannigan were the other marksmen for St. Michael's. Canuck goals went to Bob Erkl, Tom Thurlby and Walt Bradley.

Marlboros opened the scoring in the first game when Bob Nevins counted on a pass from Ron Stewfield at 4:39. Gerry Sullivan tied it up with a point blank shot that fooled goaltender Jim Crockett midway through the second period. Both teams missed good scoring opportunities in the final 20 minutes.

Bulldogs Back In Second Spot; Mercs Lose Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs are back in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association.

The early season cellar-dwellers regained sole possession of the runner-up position when they defeated Owen Sound Mercurys 5-3 at Windsor Saturday.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen kept 10 points ahead of the other four teams by walloping Stratford Indians 7-1 at Kitchener in the other OHA Senior A game Saturday.

Dutchmen have 29 points, Owen Sound and Stratford are tied for third place with 17 points, one ahead of last-place Chatham Maroons.

A crowd of 3,379 fans at Windsor saw Owen Sound take a 1-0 lead in the first period before Paul Oliver gave the Bulldogs a 2-1 lead in the second with a pair of goals 17 seconds apart.

Mercurys went ahead 3-2 before the period ended but Windsor broke loose for three final-period goals to clinch the game.

ADDED A PAIR

Gord Haidy added a pair of markers for Windsor with Reg Abbott notching the other Bulldog goal. Bob Bergeron, Buck Forslund and Tommy Jamieson scored for Owen Sound.

Jack McKenzie, playing defence in place of injured Joe Schertzl, led Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to their 7-1 win over Stratford as he fired three goals. A total of 2,335 watched the rout.

Other Dutchmen goals went to Joe Scholes, Jim Logan, Paul Koon and Billy Colvin, Mickey Roth saved Indians from a shutout when he scored in the last minute of the second period.

Browns Thump Steelers 30-7, Redskins Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland Browns Sunday won their sixth straight title in the eastern division of the National Football League with a thumping 30-7 victory over Pittsburgh Steelers.

Meanwhile New York Giants shut the door on Washington Redskins 27-20. With only one game remaining, the Browns now have an 8-3-1 record and are beyond reach of the runner-up skins (7-4).

The Valley-starring Giants jumped into third place in the eastern division as Chicago Cardinals tumbled to a fourth-place tie with Philadelphia by losing to the Eagles 27-7.

In the western division, Los Angeles Rams (7-3-1) held off a late rally by Baltimore Colts to win 30-14 and retain their slim lead. Chicago Bears (7-4) held on to a title chance by edging Detroit Lions 21-20 in the final five minutes on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Ed Brown to Harlan Hill. Green Bay Packers scored three second-period touchdowns to whip San Francisco 28-7 and keep the 49ers in the division cellar.

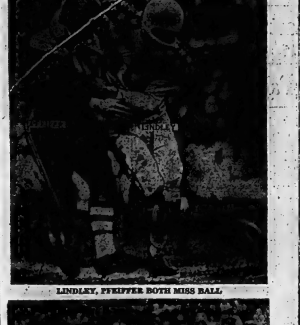
Detroit Lions Want Dublinski

DETROIT (AP)—Coach Buddy Parker of Detroit Lions makes no bones about his hopes for retrieving quarterback Tom Dublinski from the Canadian Big Four Football League.

But, Parker said Sunday night, the Lions intend to await the outcome of a suit to restrain Toronto Argonauts from using Dublinski's services before taking further action to bring him back to the United States.

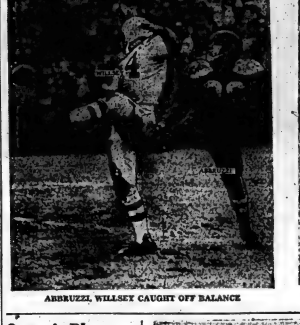
The suit is scheduled to come up in a Toronto court later this month.

Dublinski, understudy to quarterback Bobby Layne in 1952-53-54, jumped to the Canadian league at the end of last season and performed this year with the Argonauts, Harry Gilmer, former Alabama star, understudied Layne this season.

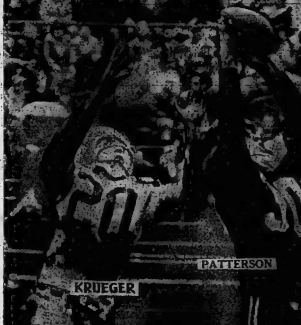


CLAIM UNDER CONTRACT

The Lions argue that Dublinski, former University of Utah player still is under contract with them under the National Football League "option clause" which gives an NFL team the right to negotiate exclusively with any of its players for the ensuing year.



Parker talked with Dublinski Nov. 24 during the Detroit-Green Bay game in Detroit. He declined to say whether Dublinski has agreed to play with Detroit next year, but said he "appeared interested."



"We want the boy back very much," Parker said. "We developed him and we're certainly interested in seeing him play for us next year."

Queen's Plate Will Be Worth $25,000

TORONTO (CP)—The 97th running of the Queen's Plate will be at the new Woodbine race track next June for a purse of $25,000 added, the Ontario Jockey Club announced Friday night.

The Plate, oldest continuously run stake race in North America, has been increased $5,000 in value and probably will be run the third Saturday in June.

The new track, being built in nearby Malton township, is expected to be ready for racing early in June, jockey club director E. F. Taylor of Toronto said.

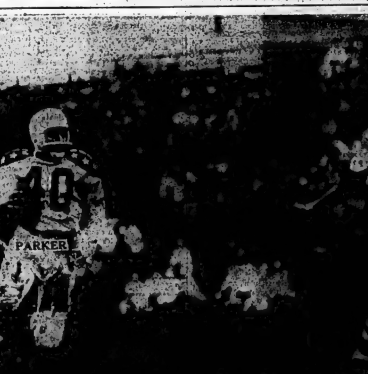
TROTS AT WOODBINE

Taylor, who announced the OJC plans at a press conference, also said the old Woodbine track will continue to operate in 1956 for flat racing and probably for several years as a harness racing strip. Earlier the OJC officials had announced discontinue flat racing at the old track, in east Toronto, and switch to the new plant.

Racing is expected to open at Fort Erie track in mid-April, swing to the old Woodbine early in May, then to the new Woodbine early in June, in mid-July, fair-racing will return to Fort Erie before moving to the old Woodbine again in the fall, ending September.

The final meeting of 1956 of OJC racing will be held at the new Woodbine starting at the end of September and continuing to mid-November. Exact dates were not announced.

RETAIN ONE RACE



The OJC, which Thursday completed a $4,000,000 deal to purchase the Dufferin track of Toronto and nearby Long Branch track from Fred Orpen, plans to retain at least one of Orpen's stake races—the Cup and Saucer.

"We're not certain whether the Canadian Championship will be continued," Taylor said. "We're going to have to add some new stakes for Fort Erie and the old Woodbine.

"The Long Branch track will be disposed of. It will not be used for racing again."

Cardinals Buy Ellis Kinder

CHICAGO (AP)—As expected, general manager Frank Lane of St. Louis Cardinals swung the first player deal of the major league meetings, purchasing veteran relief pitcher Ellis Kinder Sunday from Boston Red Sox for "a trifle over the $10,000 waiver price."

Lane thus had to go back to his old stand to consummate his first transaction as a National Leaguer.

"I've talked with every club in our league," Lane said, "and absolutely nothing has come of all the talks. We have another discussion scheduled with Roy Hamey and Mayo Smith of the Phillies later today and I hope we can come to some agreement but I'm not optimistic."

Cards and Phils have had several sessions concerning players of important stature but have refused to reveal the players' identity.

The 41-year-old Kinder spent 10 years in the American League, the last seven at Boston. Used strictly as a reliever last season, he appeared in 43 games and did well until September, then faded.

"I know Kinder will be 42 next July," said Lane, "but I'd take him if he was going on 52. All I know is the White Sox were after him and are disappointed in not getting him. . . . Kinder may be the oldest player in the majors but he's got a rubber arm and can pitch as long or two every day question scheduled with Roy Hamey

'Bobo' Olson Ready for 'Sugar'

CHICAGO (AP) — Middleweight champion Bobo Olson, who has sampled Sugar Ray Robinson's punches twice before, thinks he can duplicate the hit-and-run tactics the former king might try in seeking an early knockout victory in their title scrap Friday night.

"I was a green kid and Robinson was a great fighter back in 1950 when he got roe in the 12th round Olson said as he entered the final weeks of drills for the Chicago Stadium bout.

"But even then my style bothered Sunday when their car skidded him for 10 rounds. And when we through a pier's guard rail, met two years later I really gave him trouble before he took a split 15-round decision. We both know each other's styles and what to expect in this third fight.

"I look for Ray to try to knock me out early. Although reports are that he is in wonderful condition, the man still is 35 and must realize that he can't stand up under the pressure I'll give him through 15 rounds."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Daniel William Aase, 34, organizer of the 50-member North American Indian Brotherhood of Canada in 1916, will be buried at Cape Mudge, Quadra Island, Mr. Aase and a companion, William T. Petrie, died Sunday when their car skidded into a ditch and overturned.

Solmar Notes

Gleanings From All Outdoors

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables)

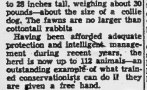
No doubt about it, the whooping grane has been having an increasingly tough time in its fight for survival. Last year, you will recall, there were 21 of these birds. This year the flock has increased to 36.

As though it were not bad enough to have the total population of these spectacular birds reduced to 21, some time ago the Strategic Air Command decided to take over the sole wintering grounds of the whooping crane—the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge which lives along the Gulf coast of Texas.

This decision resulted in a rather involved controversy with the Air Command on one side and the Canadian Government, the Department of the Interior and the general-public on the other. All but the Air Command took an exceedingly dim view of the plan to convert the Aransas Refuge into a photo flash bombing range.

Now word comes both from The Wildlife Management Institute and The Fish and Wildlife Service that the Air Command has seen the great light and has called off its plans to take over the Aransas Refuge. Moreover, Fish and wildlife tells us that 4,860 acres of land adjoining the refuge has been donated to hunting, this to give added protection both to the cranes and to our increasing goose concentration.

FLORIDA'S KEY DEER



Pleasant news comes from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. You may recall having seen newspaper accounts in past years, telling of the dwindling population of the little Florida Key Deer. In 1951 their total had been reduced to 32 animals.

The Key Deer is a diminutive form of the familiar white-tailed deer of our eastern forests. It is an appealing little animal. The average adult measures about 60 inches from nose to tail and is from 26 to 28 inches tall, weighing about 30 pounds—about the size of a collie dog. The fawns are no larger than cottontail rabbits

Having been afforded adequate protection and intelligent management the deer, once more, the herd is now up to 112 animals—an outstanding example of what trained conservationists can do if they are given a free hand.

Now we learn that 71 additional acres of public land in Monroe County, down in Florida, where this has been set aside for extra refuge for these little deer. It is hoped to bring the herd up to 200, which is considered a safe minimum to insure their survival.

FENCING OF TROUT STREAMS

Wisconsin tells us that soil conservation programs for next year include the new provision that farmers can add stream fencing to their farm improvement programs. In other words, a farmer who has a trout steam running through his land can now obtain enough federal aid to pay for the fencing of the section of that stream that lies within his property.

You who fish for trout know what cattle can do to a trout stream. A fence installed along the high-water mark would be of great benefit both to the stream and to the men who fish it.

Removing cattle from the mud willows that are bound to exist with constant use means cleaner milk for the farmers. Also, such an installation lessens the risk of having cattle diseases spread from farm to farm.

Sportsmen's groups should welcome this innovation as another important move in the sore problem of farmer-sportsman relations. If some of the boys would lend a hand in erecting these fences, there would be little risk of finding trespass signs along these banks, come spring.

GAME BIRD IMPORTATIONS

United States sportsmen who plan to shoot ducks either in Canada or Mexico should consult federal regulations before shipping home any of the birds they kill. In the absence of local information, often obtainable at your post office, write to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. An inquiry will bring you full information.

Several weeks ago, you may recall, this department called your attention to the fact that one of Idaho's favorite fish, the Kokanee salmon of Lake Pend Oreille, Idaho. This miniature salmon spawns along the shallow gravelly shore of the lake each year.

The construction of a dam by the Army Engineers at Albeni Falls permits regulation of the lake level, and the Engineers are the boys in charge of any lowering of that level. Knowing about the spawning habits of the Kokanee, the Engineers inquired of the state biologists concerning the permissible draw-down of that lake level. Figures for the maximum safe drawdown were given to the engineers quite promptly.

Time went on and the state encountered a season of generally poor water supply combined with increased demand for hydro-electric power. The Engineers continued to release water from the lake, well below the safe level set by the biologists.

Of course, the full effect of this disregard of recommendations can not be determined immediately. However, it is estimated that at least 50 per cent of the kokanee batch has been lost.

The kokanee spawns in its fourth year and then, like its seagoing relatives of the Pacific coast, dies shortly afterward. Hence this damage has been done to the kokanee supply will be all too evident to Idaho anglers for years hence.

Now Wildlife Management Institute reports that Idahoans are seeking payment for this loss of Kokanee at Lake Oreille. It will be interesting to learn the outcome of the argument.

Controversy Rages After East-West Mud Bath Ends In 6-All Stalemate

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

MONDAY CLOTHESLINE

"Here's mud in your eye," shouted the gladiators of the East and red "dream teams" as they frolicked in what should be the greatest goo-pack in gridiron history on Saturday. We could almost see the slop squeezering through the television screen as the boys plowed each other under the muck for a stalemate that effectually squelched the pre-game braggadocio of the more rabid supporters of the pig-skin Lochinvars from the shadows of the Rockies and the brinks of football's not-so-effete east.

They slithered, they slewed and they slipped. They made some grand plays and the muck and mire contributed to some of the weirdest plays in history. If you had gone to the kitchen for a quick one you would have missed the rare sight of the Regina youngster dribbling the ball down the entire sea of goo and muck. There were breath-taking exchanges of kicks, one of them saving the game for the cowboys. There was Hal Patterson's mud-bathed remarkable touchdown and equally sensational point-after when the Alouettes flash pinballed a pass to romp over for the single after the East's backfield had been nigh smothered.

And the boys who said the ground play of the West would outpoint the East's aerial artillery were not far off the mark. Dr. Dwight, Normie Kwong, Gerry Jones, Fuller and their nobles ripped off 262 yards through the goo while the best the east could tally was 64. Sam "The Rifle" Etcheverry had his breech clogged some of the time and could not get those high trajectory shots away and from our 35-yard spot on the "O.K." (Ark!) he was slightly outshone by his erstwhile rival, Tom Dublinski of the Toronto Argonauts.

However it was something different, and those of us who sit in the warm confort of living rooms feeling video do the carrying had a good afternoon. So did those grand crippled kids in the Montreal and Winnipeg Shrine Hospitals who benefited the most. The Shriners were out in force and staged a colorful show in the muck and mire both preceding the game and at half time.

Saturday was a good day for the stay-at-home sports fans if they were blessed with radio and television. You could see or hear football, football, football, basketball and a chunk of that "ole mother-in-law" lover, Jackie Gleason at night.

Montreal Canadiens came up with another performance to whip the Maple Leafs 3-1. And did you see that passing display in the second period in front of the Leafs net? Wow, what those Canajins didn't do with that puck except put it in the net was a miracle.

Meanwhile, in Kingston, east o' here, our TFT's came up with a gallant display only to run into another sterling performance by Ken Johnson, their Kingston Goodyears playoff Nemesis and lose by the odd goal in seven. Our side held the lead at the end of the first heat but the Goodies roared back effectively and the squads were tied three-all at the end of the second semester. The Goodies fired home the only goal of the final frame while our side battled desperately to pull it out of the fire. Vern Coyne and Keith MacDonald were back in harness for the fray.

The TFT's had a pretty tough schedule the past week—and it's not over yet. They played Sunday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday and tomorrow night they take on the Brockville Magedonas in Memorial Arena. The Maggies tied our side 2-2 in their last outing before trekking to Whitby and handing the pace-setters their only setback of the season.

The Maggies tied it again in their own backyard on Saturday night, but the potent Dunlops' power was too much and the Blairmen romped home with a 6-2 victory for their 11th of the season. They topped their 12th last night with a 6-3 win over the Cornwall Colts.

R.I.P. ANOTHER GRAND FELLOW

Sportsmen of the city and district in particular, and the community in general were shocked over the weekend at the news of the sudden passing of Harold "Twig" Woodley. We of the sports world have lost a staunch supporter, a true friend. The city has lost a resident whose type is only too few in the world of today. "Twig" as he was more familiarly known, carried high the banner of true sportsmanship in all his varied activities. His early love was baseball, a sport in which he partook and helped with all that dynamic quality that was his. As a baseball umpire he had few equals. With the late Bert Gallagher as one of best, most popular umpire duos this district has ever seen. Nor did his interest wane with the cessation of active participation. "Twig" was loyalty personified. His aided, abetted and encouraged sports with his time, money and effort. He was trustworthy, dependable and true to his word. This year he was one of the mainstays of the senior hockey club executive. Sport in this city and my place can ill afford to lose men of the calibre of "Twig" Woodley. He will be missed. This department joins the many sports organizations and individuals who knew "Twig" so well in extending heartfelt condolences to the family.

West Says East Smeared Ball To Deprive Them of Victory; Game Thrill-Packed in Goo

By Jack Sullivan
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A return to old-time Canadian football probably wouldn't stage a game in this day of streamlined play but its effectiveness as a game-saver and crowd pleaser can't be disputed. It turned Saturday's East-West all-star mud bath into a thriller.

The game ended in a 6-6 tie and the only winners of the country's first all-star contest were the crippled children of Canada who received the proceeds. The amount may not be known for a couple of days.

After it was all over the westerners claimed that an official's call and, ironically enough, a blob of mud on the already-soaked ball, robbed them of victory. The easterners said they had found a way to straighten out the West's grounds-eating split-T formation and that they would have won if the game had gone another five minutes.

"We could have won on a dry field," said coach Doug Waller of the eastern club after the game. "I'd like to meet them again on a nice day."

HIT BY WEATHER

But it was the weather more than anything else that put the damper on the game, underwritten by the Toronto Star Weekly. Shriners, who donated the proceeds for Shrine hospitals in Montreal and Winnipeg were out in their colorful costumes with bands and gags. The players were the choice of fans East and West, and they battled through the mud as if next year's contracts were on the line.

Three players came out of the game in bad shape. Lynn Bottoms of Calgary Stampeders received a black eye and a cut on the nose and when he was hit by Pat Abbruzzi's foot as he headed the Montreal Alouette player out of touch on a ground play.

Herb Trawick of the Als suffered torn muscles and ribs separation on the right side and Bill Albright of Toronto Argonauts received a leg injury when he was hit from behind.

Fans were gleamed up about the penalizing of the Grey Cup replay. Fourteen of the western all-stars were from Edmonton Eskimos and 12 on the east lineup were Alouettes, who bowed 34-19 in the cup final to the B.C. Lions at Vancouver just a week earlier.

But a mid-morning rain turned into a steady drizzle making the Varsity Stadium field a soggy mess and ruling out any of the high-geared aerial or ground offensive.

PUNT-RETURN GAME

These circumstances, plus a situation that could hardly be imagined, forced the old-style punt-return game back with a resounding whimp in the final minute that foiled both teams in their bids for victory with the score knotted at 6-all. The only visible fault in the crowd of 15,063 limp.

It came about on the controversial call by referee Harry Bowden of Toronto and the hunk of mud that stuck to the ball.

The westerners, sniffing a win in the final seconds, drove to the eastern 18, within range for the game-winning point. Then came a series of events that brought nostalgic memories to old-timers.

Returning from the huddle on third down after the ball had been cleaned off by Bowden, the westerners found it mud-smeared—one of those western guys did it—claimed Martin Ruby of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Ruby asked Bowden to clean it off again. While he was talking the referee called the Eskimos talking too long in the huddle and slapped on a 10-yard penalty. Bob Heydenfeldt hooked into the end zone to Cam Fraser, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' kicking star who had been rushed in as safety seconds previously. Fraser kicked it right back.

YELL ON BALL

Players at both clubs dashed in all directions. Heydenfeldt put the foot to it again, a mud-caked earner fell on the ball at the goal yard line and the West received a 15-yard penalty for not giving yards to the receiver.

Only two plays were left before the clock ran out. Tom Dublinski of Toronto Argonauts, who earlier in the game had booted Heydenfeldt's Hal Patterson for a touchdown, clicked on a 42-yarder to Al Pfeifer at the west 25 and this time the East was poised for victory.

Fraser kicked to Jackie Parker behind the West goal line. Eastern players charged in and Parker booted it out of danger as the gun sounded to end the game. The East was penalized for roughing but kicker and the West was given an additional play as the 10-yard line although time had expired. Parker from the ball.

Fans that wasn't all. Old-timers were in high glee just before half time when Cordie Sturridge of Saskatchewan Roughriders had the outstanding defensive player on the field, dribbled the ball 107 yards downfield, a play rarely seen in football.

Sturtridge, 1953 rookie of the year in the Western Union, batted down a pitchout by Dublinski, snuffing out an eastern bid for a touchdown from the West's own 7-yard line. He booted the ball to midfield, raced over the muddy field with several players in his suit and gave the bouncing ball another kick to the East's two-yard line where Hal Waggoner of Tiger-Cats roared in from nowhere to pounce on it.

Earlier in the quarter Sturtridge hit Sam Etcheverry of the Montreal Alouettes with a jarring tackle as the quarterback attempted to pass from his own end zone. The ball plopped out of his hands and the Roughrider fell on it for the touchdown that put the West ahead 5-0. The attempted convert was blocked.

The West increased the lead to 6-0 in the fourth quarter when Don Getty intercepted a Dublinski pass, paving the way for Heydenfeldt to kick a single.

Immediately after this play, Dublinski moved the eastern team 85 yards in seven plays for a touchdown, finishing off with a 15-yard goal-line pass to Pfeifer. The resulting convert point was a thriller.

CAUGHT ON THREES

The passout to Tom Tracy was high, giving him no chance for the place-kick. He started to run, was tackled, and flipped a short wobbly pass to Patterson who caught it on the three and stumbled over the line.

The westerners's muffed two good scoring chances in the first half. Patterson intercepted a pass in the east end zone in the first quarter and in the second quarter a third-down fumble by the east nine-yard line backfired when the westerners were short by about six inches.

The East straightened out somewhat the deceptive split-T formation in the last half when the western halves couldn't get traction for their fast-breaking plays and the mud prevented the team from using its option plays.

Players Split All-Star 'Take'

TORONTO (CP)—All players in the East-West all - star football game Saturday received $350.

The members of the winning team were originally slated to get $400 and the losers $300.

A spokesman for the Toronto Star Weekly, which sponsored the game with the net proceeds going to Canadian Shriners' hospitals for crippled children in Winnipeg and Montreal, said it was decided to give the 35 players an equal amount after the teams tied 6-6.

The tie game meant no difference to amounts received by the two head coaches and their assistants. Frank (Pop) Ivy of Edmonton Eskimos, head coach of the west-ern squad, and Doug (Peahead) Walker of Montreal Alouette, who directed the eastern team, each received $1,000.

Goodyears Edge TPTs 4-3; Coxmen Fail To Hold First Period 2-1 Lead

Score Tied End of Second 3-3 Winners Click in Last Frame Of Below-Par Senior Battle

KINGSTON, Dec. 4 (Special) — Belleville Mecos had no better luck in Kingston Saturday night than they did before their home fans on Friday, losing each night by one goal. The Goodyears made it two in a row Saturday when they won 4-3, coming from behind a 2-1 deficit at the end of the first period to tie up the game in the second and win it in the third.

For Kingston fans the game developed in the usual pattern, although the performances of both teams was below par. In a sloppy first period exhibition the visitors emerged with the lead, despite being outshot 18-8.

At that Kingston was fortunate to enter the first break only trailing by one counter as it wasn't until 16:42 that Jack White found a chink in the armour presented by Tony Pardel to beat the agile Belleville netminder.

The TPTs gave the local fans their usual first period chills when they fired two punks past Ken Johnston early in the game to erect a 2-0 lead. Bert Hill scored first when he tallied unassisted at 2:54. Just over a minute later Pete Jones beat Johnston cleanly after taking a relayed pass from Harvey Jones and Vern Goyer.

Many of the 2,466 fans in attendance missed the tying goal when George Samolenko netted in the best Pardel after only 34 seconds of the middle period had elapsed.

MACEY SCORED

Kingston's power corps, taking a turn up front because the Goodyears were short handed shot the locals into a 3-2 advantage at 14:50. Former Memo Hub Macey did the trick when he anchored himself outside Pardel's cage and deflected Ted Nicholson's blueline pass high into the upper left corner, giving the Belleville goaltender no chance to save.

Chummy Fyfe evened the game at 3-3 when he took Gus Leonard's pass in front of the net to beat Johnston at 15:39. The Belleville forward looked out on the play just as they capitalized on an inaccurate pass to quickly get into position for the score.

Kingston's finishing kick paid off again when Toppazzini, the top Kingston performer, combined with coach Les Douglas and Samolenko to beat Pardel at 1:53.

The best hockey in an otherwise drab evening followed. climaxed by a six-man attack by the TPTs in the last minute of play when they pulled their goaltender in an effort to get the equalizer.

But for the third period Kingston had a decisive edge on shots on goal. In-the second period Belleville's first shot came at 14:33 Kingston was assessed seven of the 11 penalties handed out including the game's only misconduct. It went to Bob Londry in the first period for precipitating a minor scrimmage. Bob Wilson picked up two of the four TPT penalties. The same two teams play again in Kingston next Wednesday.

Coach Les Douglas was glad of the two points but disappointed in the lineup he had to present to the home fans. Absence of winger Don Bellringer and centre Don Murrer broke up his two regular lines. Bellringer is out with an injured leg but is expected back next Wednesday.

The teams:

Belleville — goal Paris; defence White, Wilson; forwards, Leonard, wings, Fyvie, Greenlaw; alternates, Mulholland, Taylor, Goyer, Jones, Jones, McCulloch.

Walker Praises Soccer Play By Sturtridge

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Doug Walker, who coached the eastern team in Saturday's East-West all-star football game, says a United States player would have reacted differently than Gordon Sturtridge on the play in which the Saskatchewan defensive end dribbled the ball 107 yards downfield.

Walker, discussing the play several hours after the game, said a U.S. player would have fallen on the ball when the pitchout was knocked down. It would have been a 15-yard penalty if the ball was kicked on such a play in American football.

"Sturtridge must have played soccer before football," Walker said laconically as he praised the 25-year-old player's ability to boot the ball so accurately on the muddy field.

Northern Electric Hockey League

Two Northern Electric interdepartment hockey league games were played over the weekend with the Indians shading the Hornets 3-1 while the Barons won over the Rockets 4-2.

Kobeuka paced the Barons to victory with a hat trick goals, while Harry Wardhaugh fired a goal and assist. Creegan also scored while Barclay and Martin picked up one assist each. Barclay served time of four minutes alities handed out by referees D. Sayer and G. Graham. Fukanaki and Smith were the Flyer marksmen with Longhurst receiving two assists.

In the opening game, Totten, Jones and J. Semark each scored a goal for the Indians while York picked up an assist. James dented the Indians for the lone Hornet goal, a solo effort. Green drew a major penalty, the only penalty of the game.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe of Detroit picked up two goals and an assist in a pair of weekend games to move to within two points of National Hockey League scoring leader Ted Kennedy of Toronto.

Beliveau was held to one goal in two games, boosting his total to 18 points, still a lustre for the season. He is the top sniper in the league with more goals than Ted Kennedy of Detroit.

Howe, with 20 points, is one point up on both Andy Bathgate of New York and Bert Olmstead of Montreal. Bathgate got three scoring points Sunday to run his total to 19 in three games.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts.
Beliveau, Montreal	16	13	29
Howe, Detroit	15	5	20
Bathgate, New York	7	10	26
Olmstead, Montreal	7	10	26

GIVEN TROPHY

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Carpenter, Saskatchewan three-quarter halfback who led the Western Interprovincial Football Union in scoring this year with 90 points, Saturday was presented with the Jeff Nicklin memorial trophy as the most valuable player in the league.

Georgia Tech Will Play In Sugar Bowl

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Georgia Tech will probably keep its Jan. 2 Sugar Bowl football date with Pittsburgh despite the race issue raised by Governor Marvin Griffin which touched off an all-night riot by Tech students.

Shortly after Griffin was burned in effigy early Saturday for an athletic segregation proposal that would cancel Tech's fifth straight bowl appearance, a source close to him said "Georgia Tech will be allowed to play in the Sugar Bowl."

The student demonstration followed the governor's request Friday to the university system board of regents to bar state college teams from playing opponents with Negro players or in games where spectators are not racially segregated.

Pittsburgh has a Negro, Bobby Grier, a reserve back, on its football squad. And segregation will not be practised in sale of Pitt's bloc of tickets for the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, La.

STUDENTS MARCHED

The protest demonstration by Georgia Tech students began when a few students gathered to object to the governor's request. The crowd grew until about 2,500 marched to five points in downtown Atlanta, then to the state Capitol and finally to the governor's home.

Several students were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

The marchers carried signs proclaiming "We play anybody" and "Griffin ain't on his brains." They also sang "We'll hang old Marvin from a sour apple tree."

At the state Capitol, the demonstrators smashed two ground-floor doors.

Griffin took a light view of the campus demonstration.

"It was an orderly demonstration," he said. "They booted and hollered and hanged me from a sour apple tree, but it was just a bunch of college boys having a good time and I never get excited about that."

Big Four Agrees To Loops Union

TORONTO (CP)—The Big Four Sunday agreed to a limited interlocking schedule with the Western Interprovincial Union and set the stage for a new era in Canadian professional football.

The eastern league, at a closed meeting, also agreed to a combined draft and negotiation list with the West and abandoned the two leagues into a tentative Canadian Football League. The league would still retain their separate identities as the WIFU and the Big Four.

The Big Four thus formally ratified matters which had been tentatively agreed upon at an informal meeting of the country's nine professional clubs in Vancouver 10 days ago.

No action was taken on the subject of a commissioner for professional football. Ralph Cooper of Hamilton, Big Four president, reported to delegates on the Vancouver meeting and said the western clubs did not want a commissioner for the whole of Canada.

Rangers Keep Pace

Boston Bruins Blank Leafs To End 11-Game Loss Streak; Habs Win Two Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins finally ended their winless streak in the National Hockey League. How Toronto 1-0 Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks appear to be on the slide.

Bruins won their first game in 11 starts as they shut out Leafs 3-0 at Boston Sunday night. It was Leafs' second straight loss—they were beaten 3-1 at home Saturday by Montreal Canadiens—and their third game without a win.

The league - leading Canadiens took a 5-1 win over the Hawks at Chicago Sunday night. It was the Hawks' third loss in a row and their fourth in five contests.

Detroit Red Wings were the last team to beat Boston. They won 5-1 at Boston Saturday and then New York Rangers kept up their pace with Canadiens by shellacking the Wings 7-3 before 15,106 fans at New York Sunday night.

5 GAMES AHEAD

So today, the Habs, with 37 points, hold a three-game margin over the Rangers. Detroit and Chicago are tied for third place with 22 points, two ahead of Bruins and Leafs, who are tied for fifth.

The smallest Boston Garden crowd of the season — 4,670 — watched Fleming Mackell lead the Bruins out of their basement at the cellar Sunday with a pair of goals, his first of the season. Doug Mohns, Murray Costello and Vic Stasiuk counted the others.

Boston's five-goal total was one short of the number the Bruins had scored in their previous 10 starts. It was goalkeeper Don Sawchuk's fifth shutout of the season and tied him with Montreal's Jacques Plante for the league lead in that department.

Sawchuk made a few brilliant saves on the 23 shots fired at him but he never worked too hard. Harry Lumley handled 21 Boston drives.

Mohns opened the scoring at 2:48 of the first period while Leafs' Eric Nesterenko was doing a hooking penalty. The Bruins' forward split the 2-yard fence and beat Lumley with a low backhand shot which didn't leave him. Almost five minutes later, Mackell scored off Don McKenney's rebound.

14-FOOTER

Costello made it 3-0 at 4:44 of the middle frame with a 14-foot shot. Quartercoat Leo Boivin assisted. Stasiuk scored the fourth goal when he backhanded a shot past Lumley at 17:25 of the same period. Mackell wrapped up the scoring with his second goal at 4:15 of the final 20 minutes while Boston rookie Al Nicholson was serving a tripping penalty.

A crowd of 13,529 at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens saw Canadiens run their undefeated string to four games. Veteran right winger Floyd Curry, Bernie Geoffrion and Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard were the Montreal marksmen.

Curry's goal, at 16:36 of the first period, was his first on Toronto ice in eight seasons of NHL play. Geoffrion scored what proved to be the winning marker at 4:39 of the middle session while Leaf defenceman Hugh Bolton was sitting out a hooking penalty.

IN THIRD PERIOD

The Habs exploded for three third period goals to pull away from Hawks in the Sunday game, watched by 9,481 fans at Chicago. Tommy Gadsby fired a pair with singles going to Jean Beliveau, Maurice Richard and Curry. John Wilson was the Hawk scorer.

Beliveau opened the scoring at 2:30 of the first while Leaf Lee Fogolin was serving a Chicago boarding penalty. Bert Olmstead and Maurice Richard drew assists. The Rocket's goal came two minutes and 15 seconds later.

Wilson made it 2-1 at the 4:54-mark of the middle period as he completed a play with Hank Ciesla and Allan Stanley. Curry's goal was scored at 3:21 of the last 20 minutes with Mosdell and rookie Claude Provost receiving assists.

Mosdell turned the game into a rout with two goals, 27 seconds apart. Curry was credited with the assist on the goal scored 19:36 and 19:01. Rookie Glenn Hall racked up his fourth shutout before 9,374 fans. It was Hawks' sixth straight loss.

Detroit goals were scored on five different players, with Boston netminder Sawchuk having little chance on any of them.

Alex Delvecchio got the opening marker in the first period at 8:08 while Bruins were playing a man short. Metro Prystai, and Bill Dineen counted in the second with Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe scoring the two final-period goals.

Hall made a total of 25 stops while Sawchuk was successful on 24 Boston drives.

Rangers ran their undefeated streak to seven games as they cracked the Detroit defence for three goals within two minutes early in the last period.

Red Wings took a 1-0 lead in the first period but Rangers were ahead 2-1 at the end of the frame. It was tied 3-3 after 40 minutes. Five straight goals gave the Blueshirts a 7-3 lead before rookie Norm Ullman closed the scoring. Winner was Detroit goal at 14:15 of the last session.

Dave Creighton led the New York marksmen with a pair. Andy Bathgate, Ron Murphy, Dean Prentice, Danny Lewicki and rookie Andy Hebenton notched the others. Howe and Lindsay counted Wings' first two markers.

Murphy put the New Yorkers ahead 3-2 at 2:01 of the last period while Lindsay was in the penalty box. Before the Detroit captain returned to the ice Creighton made it 4-3 and at 3:56 Prentice added another goal for Rangers.

Not all bridge players get their just reward. Some exercise a burning desire to go game in no-trump without enough stuff. Now and then they come through without even being scorched.

A hot deal I am thinking of is the one shown here:

	NORTH
	♠8 3 2
	♥Q 8 5 3
	♦J 10 9 5 2
	♣8 6
WEST		EAST
♠5 3		♠J 10 9 6
♥Q 10 8 2		♥A 9 6 4
♦4		♦K Q
♣K Q 9 4		♣A 5 3 2
	SOUTH
	♠A K Q 4
	♥7 5 3
	♦8
	♣J 10 7

South became the declarer at a contract of three no-trump that was doubled by west. You would learn nothing from my explanations of why and how south got there because I do not understand it myself.

Opening lead from west was jack of diamonds. When east ran three diamond tops, south shuffled two hearts. He threw a spade from east was grabbed by south who ran four clubs, before east used his ace.

On the third and fourth clubs dummy shuffled two small hearts. A second spade return from east was collared by south who also cashed his third top spade. This left each player with three cards.

South was left with a tiny spade, small heart, and a club. The north dummy still held his ace and nine of hearts besides a diamond of small calibre. Now look at what west and east hung onto.

West must keep a diamond higher than the one in dummy. He also clung to queen and ten of hearts. East had to keep a spade against the declarer's ace in south. Also he had his king and jack of hearts.

Right here south led his fifth and last club. West dared not give up his diamond. So, he let go of a heart. Dummy small diamond was fired because its term of usefulness as a threat had expired.

Now look at the position east finds himself in. He dare not throw his spade because of the south spade. He gives up one of his hearts. All south had to do was lead his heart and take dummy's ace and nine.

As opponents you and I would have thrown off this spade on an earlier heart lead. Surprising what better guessers we are after we see the result. Like the Eisenhower landslide.

Amateur Status Sought By Intercounty Loop

GALT (CP) — The Intercounty Baseball League, which for five years has operated as a semi-professional loop, Sunday found steps to restore its amateur status.

A meeting of league officials and delegates adopted a slate of resolutions to limit imported United States players and give aid to district junior players.

The league operated last year with teams from Galt, Preston, St. Thomas, Kitchener, Oshawa and Brantford.

The new rules restrict each team to three United States college players and provide that of the 10 men each team is allowed, three must be junior. College players signed must not have had professional experience.

MIXED TOURNAMENTS

All players must be permanent residents of the franchise-holding city on or before Feb. 1, 1956.

Each team is delegated an area from which it may draw its players. The territories:

Galt, South Waterloo and Wentworth counties; London, Middlesex county; St. Thomas, Elgin, Essex and Kent counties; Brantford, Brant and Wentworth counties; Oshawa, Durham and Ontario counties; Kitchener, North Waterloo and Perth counties;

Territories also were allotted Guelph, Stratford and Waterloo should they decide to enter the loop.

Regulations also provide that each team be responsible for a junior team. Players from last year's teams, if eligible, belong to the same team again this year. Officials discussed a proposal to limit salaries but no action was taken.

OPENS HOME

MONTREAL (CP) — Commissioner W. Wycliffe Booth, territorial commander of the Salvation Army for Canada and Bermuda, Friday officially opened the army's new $1,000,000 Eventide Home for the Aged. The modern, red brick structure located on westend upper Lachine road will house 185 persons, including 80 women.

Russians Edge Brighton 2-1

PARIS (CP)—A Russian hockey team, composed largely of players who lost in the world championship to Canada last March, defeated a British team, Brighton Tigers, 2-1 in an exhibition game Saturday night. Johnny Quiley scored the only goal for the Tigers, most of whose players are Canadian. V. Yakushev and V. Schuvalov netted for the Russians.

In a Sunday game at the Hague, Holland, the Russian team continued its sweep of British and European groups with a 6-2 victory over a team of Canadian players from The Hague and Brighton, England.

Bisons Win Four in Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons, who got off to a slow start in American Hockey League competition this year, were only a step out of first place today on the strength of four straight victories.

The Bisons made it No. 4 Sunday night by edging Springfield 4-3 to move into a second place tie with the Pittsburgh Hornets, who were idle.

Buffalo and Pittsburgh are only two points behind the leading Providence Reds, who dropped a 4-3 verdict to the tail-end Hershey Bears.

The Bisons had a 3-0 lead on goals by Ezio Sclisizzi, Chuck Blair and Gordie Pennell before Doug Powell registered for Springfield in the third period. Veteran Ed Slowinski insured the Buffalo triumph with a goal at 16:24 of the final session.

Gordie Wilson was the top man in Hershey's triumph, scoring the winning tally two seconds before the end of the game. He found the range from close up after Dunc Fisher, who paced the Bears' attack with two goals, passed to him across the goalmouth.

Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The pace - setting Shawinigan Falls Cataracts moved into an eight-point lead in the Quebec Hockey League Sunday by defeating Trois-Rivieres Lions 7-3.

The second - place Montreal Royals, blanked 3-0 Saturday by third-place Chicoutimi Saguenens, suffered a 4-3 defeat in overtime Sunday as Quebec Aces snapped a three-game losing streak when rookie Jean-Marie Cossette scored three goals. The victory moved the Aces into a fourth-place tie with the Lions.

In the Dressing Rooms

By BOB SMYLIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—But for a blob of mud the West might have won Saturday's East-West all-star football game. Instead, they had to settle for a 6-6 tie.

Western players, said in their dressing room after the game that they were "robbed" and that an old pro trick of tossing a bit of mud on the ball cost them a sure single point in the last period. The quarter that would have given them a T-6 decision.

Martin Ruby of Saskatchewan Roughriders, and captain of the western team, explained it this way:

"One of those guys (an eastern player) threw some mud on the ball after the referee had cleaned it off and laid it on the ground. When we came back from the huddle, and saw the ball was covered with mud, I asked Bowden (referee Harry Bowden) to clean it off.

"He said, 'I already cleaned it,' and when I tried to tell him someone had thrown mud on it, he called us for talking so we could get the ball in play and gave us a 15-yard penalty."

HAD TO TRY

The West had possession on the east's 18-yard line at the time. "We could have kicked the ball into the stands for a sure single," said Ruby. "Instead, we had to kick 10 yards back and Cam Fraser was able to take it inside his own end zone and return it. That cost us a point and the ball game.

"Bowden thought we were stalling for time on the play. But why would we stall when we needed that point to win."

Aside from the mud incident, the westerners said they thought the game was well played.

"It was a good, clean ball game with plenty of spirit," said Lyon Bottoms of Calgary Stampeders. Bottoms was the West's only casualty with a deep cut over his right eye that needed six stitches. It's the seventh eye cut he's suffered this year.

"I enjoyed the game more than any I've played in many a year," said Ruby. "And it's the first time I wasn't as rough as Edmonton's.

"A good ball game," said quarterback Jackie Parker of Edmonton.

They changed their defensive set-up, and upset our blocking. We didn't have enough practice to compensate for it. But I feel we did pretty good for only three days' practice."

KWONG HAD TROUBLE

Halfback Normie Kwong of Edmonton said he had trouble on the muddy field. "I couldn't get decent footing and I really couldn't get going full out."

Art Sturtridge, Saskatchewan Roughrider end who drib-bled the ball from the West's two-yard line to the East's two in the second quarter, said it was the fourth or fifth time he's pulled that play this season.

"I try to kick it ahead and hope for a good bounce so I can pick it up."

'Mickey Mouse Club' Ousting Major Opponents on Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The comeback story of the year is a 20-year-old one - time has - been named Mickey Mouse.

The shy rodent has captured a new generation, this time 42-hour of the weekday ABC television hour, "The Mickey Mouse Club."

Mickey never had it so good. His mouse ears are popping up on the heads of kids all over the land; they're buying the mouse hats (29 to 98 cents at the rate of 24,000 a day. (Whatever happened to coonskins?). Two hundred other lines of merchandise connected with the club are being sold, and more are added daily.

The mouse has captured daytime TV ratings honors, sweeping under his major opponents, veterans Howdy Doody and Pinky Lee. A recent survey put the club's Nielsen rating advantage over the opposition in the eastern United States.

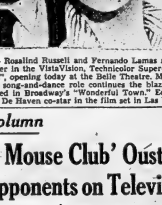
FOR AND AGAINST

Judging from the reaction of Walt Disney's studio, parents have mixed feelings about the show:

1. They are delighted to have a show that doesn't insult their children's intelligence.

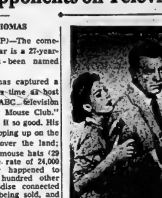
2. They are appalled by the amount of commercials.

As one of the captive audiences—our TV set is monopolized from 5 to 6 each weekday—I agree. The show is both entertaining and enlightening, done with as much taste and care as any adult program.



But the commercials! They're enough to drive you nuts. Not only are there three in every 15 minutes. The station also sneaks in three more every 15 minutes at the station break.

EXPECTS A CHANGE



The Disney people are just as upset as the parents. Walt apparently didn't foresee the excesses of the network. He thought that next year he'll have some control over such matters.

ABC has bragged that Mickey Mouse has brought in $15,000,000 from sponsors. Figures haven't been released, but it's rumored that Disney gets little more than a tenth of this to produce the films.

The studio continues to pour money into the series to maintain quality. The most successful part of the program appears to be the third quarter-hour. It has featured such serials as a boy and girl learning to be airline pilot and

Little Benny's Notebook

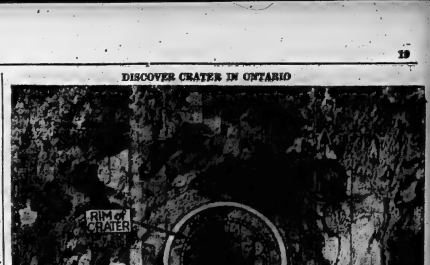
I woke up this morning and I was pop and mommy was gone. Sis and I thought, Oh boy, wouldn't they be surprized if I jumped up and got dressed without waiting to be called. G, they'd think it was the end of the world. I thought.

And I laid there thinking about the idea and wondering whether to actually do it or just keep on in loying thinking about it, and I thought, Oh boy, it would be the biggest sensation that ever happened. I wouldn't tell sis I was going to possible, they'd think they were seeing things in their dreems.

Seeming like a better idea the more I thought about it, and I thought, Oh boy, I'm going to do it, bet they wont be able to imagine their own eyes when they see me.

And I proceeded to figure out how to keep from going up too suddenly and then threw the covers off and pulled them back again a couple of times just to feel the difference, and then I got out of bed and started to get dressed lafting to myself and thinking. Oh boy this is going to be a good one, they'll almost faint.

Which just then I heard mo saying to pop, Goodness, William, it cant be possible that I think I heard Benny getting up without being been called and shaken for 6 times.



Well by golies if he can do it I guess he can do it every morning, the same as the rest of the family, I also said.

Me thinking, Heck, good night.

And I quick took some of my clothes off again and jumped back into bed with the rest still on and pulled the covers up just when sis looking in, saying, Oh, I might of known it was only my imagination.

Being one of the narrowest escapes I ever had.

DISCOVER CRATER IN ONTARIO

This is an aerial view showing a huge crater (inside white circle) discovered at Holleford, Ont., approximately 20 miles northwest of Kingston, by scientists of the Dominion Observatory. It was spotted along with a second crater near Frankstown, about 30 miles southwest of Ottawa, by the observatory scientists during examination of aerial photographs of Canada taken from RCAF planes at a height of 10,000 feet. The huge craters are believed caused by meteors plunging to earth some 500,000,000 years ago. Only trailed observers can spot such craters. In the Holleford and Frankstown cases, the observations were confirmed by surface examination. (CP Photo.)

Two Craters Believed Caused By Meteors Found at Ottawa

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Two huge craters believed caused by meteors plunging to earth some 500,000,000 years ago have been discovered within 100 miles of Canada's capital by the Dominion Observatory.

The pre-historic pockmarks, now filled with rock and earth, are near Frankstown, about 30 miles southwest of Ottawa, and Holleford, approximately 20 miles northwest of Kingston. The craters were spotted by the observatory during examination of aerial photographs of Canada taken from RCAF planes at a height of 10,000 feet.

The discoveries bring to five the known number of craters in Canada of meteoric origin.

BEST-KNOWN CRATER

The most famous is the Chubb crater, now known as the new Quebec crater, in northern Quebec about 150 miles south of Hudson strait. Others were found 40 miles west of the northern Labrador village of Hebron and in Algonquin national park outside of Brent, Ont., 30 miles east of North Bay.

The Holleford crater is about 1½ miles in diameter and has a depth of some 100 feet—big enough to swallow up the entire downtown area of a medium-sized city or a couple of hundred thousand people. Like the other craters of meteoric sediments, estimated to be at least 500,000,000 years old, which the meteor made most of its original shape.

Apart from its circular shape, the only other definite evidence that the crater is of meteoric origin is that the rocks are steeper than the outer and no volcanic activity has been found in this section of Canada.

"It appears that there is a definite possibility that this may be an ancient meteorite cavity nearly filled with sediments," C. S. Beals, Dominion astronomer, said in an interview. "Gravity observations tend to support the view that it is a depression of considerable depth filled in and covered with sediments."

VAGUE DEPRESSION

The Franktown crater is a vague, shallow depression with little topographical relief. However, it is circular with a diameter of three-quarters of a mile.

Dr. Beals said the Frankstown cavity also is covered with sediments which are at least 500,000,000 years old. However, the evidence of meteoric origin is not as strong as at Holleford.

The observatory's search for meteor craters represents an extension of its research efforts. Some 200,000 aerial photographs of parts of Ontario and Quebec now have been studied and the observatory plans to examine photographs covering all sections of the country.

Dr. Beals said the object of the study is to determine whether the earth at one time was bombarded by meteors. The information would assist astronomers in their studies of the universe.

"It is a well-known fact that the moon's surface is pitted with thousands of craters," he said. "While several theories have been put forward to explain their origin, the hypothesis which now is most generally favored is that they were caused by meteoric bombardment thousands of years ago.

EARTH BOMBARDMENT?

"It is because of the similarity of these lunar centers to ones on earth that astronomers are looking with interest to the possibility that at one time the earth may have been subjected to similar bombardment. The earth's atmosphere would introduce conditions causing earthly craters to be much more obliterated than their counterparts on the moon, and hence they have eluded detection."

The Chubb crater, discovered in 1951, is two miles in diameter and is believed to have been caused by a meteor which crashed to earth as recently as 50,000 years ago.

Very little is known about the crater near Hebron which was discovered in 1954. It is 175 yards in diameter and believed of meteoric origin.

The crater near Brent is two miles in diameter and was discovered in 1951. It is believed to have been caused by a meteor some 400,000,000 years ago.

The Brent, Frankstown and Holleford craters are filled with sediment. The Chubb crater and the small one near Hebron are not.

Mother Burned Trying to Save Four Children

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — Mrs. Emilien Arseneau, 36, was severely burned Sunday in a futile attempt to save her four children when flames destroyed their two-storey frame dwelling on the outskirts of Bathurst.

Dead are Michele, one, Gerard, two, Margaret Rose, three, and Nicolle, four. Two other children were in town when the fire broke out.

Mrs. Arseneau was visiting her mother next door when her brother noticed smoke rising around the chimney of her home. Mrs. Arseneau made a frantic attempt to enter the house but was beaten back by intense heat and smoke.

VISITOR AT KITIMAT

Bob Jamieson, of Ottawa, executive chef for the Aluminum Company of Canada, tempts a visitor to the Kitimat, B.C., project, with a nearly-empty tin of honey. Roaming Cook Now Executive Chef for Aluminum Company

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP)—A roving railroad and logging camp cook splashed ashore on a remote inlet 400 miles north of Vancouver on April 15, 1951.

As Bob Jamieson of Ottawa stepped off the barge, Kitimat, sprawling, burgeoning aluminum town, was born.

He cooked a meal of Irish stew, pork and beans and dried apple pie for a crew of 10 loggers who began cutting roads and clearing land for the stampede of construction which was to follow.

Nearly five years later, at 58, the roaming cook had become executive chef for the Aluminum Company of Canada, serving 5,000 meals a day.

RUGGED AT FIRST

"We were eating that kind of menu for a couple of months," he said in recalling early days. "The first meal I tried to cook, the stove collapsed."

The first help he got came when he hired two Indians to help in the kitchen, which was still the pebbled beach.

Today, he has 80 assistants—soup cooks, assistant chefs, butchers, bakers and pastry chefs. Where he used to make bread in a wash-tub, now he has an entire bakery.

The kettle slung over the campfire has given way to 100-gallon stock pots.

When he decided to stay, Bob brought out his family — "one daughter is teaching school here, another is a nurse and the other is a stenographer."

COCKTAILS FOR DUKE

When the first aluminum poured from the pothres in August, 1954, Bob set up a cocktail party for the guest of honor, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, visiting the site with some United States Army generals, dined on Bob's steaks.

This year, Earl Alexander, former governor-general of Canada, ate his Thanksgiving dinner of turkey and pumpkin pie.

"I served the lord mayor of London, too," Bob recalls. "He had breast of chicken"

Governor-General Vincent Massey's party also had steaks. "Mr. Massey himself had prime ribs of beef and Yorkshire pudding."

Bob's major problem now is one of personnel and the planning of 35,000 meals a week.

"Our biggest problem that first summer was fighting flies. And I had more fun that first year than I've ever had since."

JANE FORRESTER FIRST WOMAN MAYOR

Churchill Calls For Reconsidering Visit By Reds

Kremlin Chiefs' Asian Tour Caled 'Surprising Spectacle'

LONDON (AP) — The British-Russian word war over speeches by Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin in the Far East is continuing unabated.

Addressing a rally of young Conservatives at Woodford, England, his parliamentary constituency, the 81-year-old Churchill said he thinks the government should "seriously consider" cancelling the projected visit of Khrushchev and Bulganin to Britain in April. But he qualified this by saying Britain should not "take any violently rapid decision" on the question.

Referring to anti-British remarks by the two Russian leaders, Churchill termed their current Asian tour an "exhibition—there is no other word"

"SURPRISING SPECTACLE"

"It certainly has been a surprising spectacle and one which Her Majesty's government will no doubt study carefully before they allow it, with suitable variants, to be repeated here," the veteran statesman commented.

Khrushchev and Bulganin have accepted an invitation to visit Britain during the month of April, although specific dates have not been fixed. The invitation was extended by Prime Minister Eden at the "summit" conference in July.

Churchill cautioned his audience that the behavior of the Soviet leaders "must not lead us to suppose that Russian strength and capacity are not growing in many other directions."

In their swing across India and Burma, the Russian leaders have made numerous attacks on Britain, who formerly ruled those two countries. On one occasion Khrushchev said the British sat "on the necks" of the Burmese before Burma was granted independence.

In India, Khrushchev accused the British, French and Americans of unleashing the German attack on Russia in 1941.

LATE BLAZES

Comments by British officials on the Russians' remark have brought little blaze from Soviet quarters.

Nutting, chief British delegate to the United Nations and a leading spokesman on foreign affairs, called the Soviet leaders' remarks in Asia "an indiscreet harangue."

"Happily, I believe that the world is in the long run more interested in performance than propaganda," he said a meeting in New York of the Pilgrims of the United States of America, a British-American friendship organization.

From the Russian side, Pravda has blasted the British foreign office and press for making "independent sallies" against Bulganin and Khrushchev. Deputy editor Yuri Zhukov, writing from Burma, accused the American, British and French correspondents accompanying the two Russian leaders of "real intentions" in reporting their tour.

Surprise 'Operation Cracker Jack' Is Testing Pinetree Line Defences

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—Canadian and American air defences during the annual-summer exercise line were under a supreme winter test attack today in "Operation Cracker Jack."

All Canadian fighter units are involved, said a spokesman at RCAF air defence command headquarters here.

Most of the United States strategic air command are probing radar and fighter defences back to both countries, posing as the enemy.

The Canadian department of national defence and the United States defence department set off "Cracker Jack" at 5 p. m. Monday.

"We have no idea how long it will continue," said an RCAF spokesman. "It is a surprise operation and that bit of information is classified."

Main objective of "Cracker Jack" is to see how Canada's defences shape up under winter conditions. The line is the southern-most of three north defence lines and stretches across the country in the general area of the 49th parallel.

This is its first winter test, and one which was announced in October without giving away the vital time element.

The original announcement said Canadian naval forces would be involved, but there was no immediate confirmation at this nerve centre that the navy had gone into action. The Chiefs of the RCAF's ground observer corps have been called out for spotting duties.

The operation caught a number of American air national guard units by surprise in the Washington area, and a temporary nursery was established to handle children whose fathers had to abandon baby-sitting duties and get into the air fast.

Mayor-Elect Jane Forrester With Family

Mayor-elect Jane Forrester is shown with her family shortly after she thanked Belleville voters from the City Hall council chambers Monday night. Left to right are: Mrs. Arthur B. Mitchell, Mrs. Forrester's mother; Mayor-elect Forrester; Dr. James H. Forrester; Stephen Forrester, 10, and Anne Forrester, 17.

Defeats J. Both Seeking 3rd Term By 1163 Votes

Four Aldermen Re-elected, Newcomer Heads the Poll

Belleville's first woman mayor will guide the municipal destiny of the city in 1956.

Mrs. Jane Forrester, who led the polls in 1954 in her first bid for aldermanic honors, swept aside Mayor John Both's quest for a third term in decisive fashion in the civic elections on Monday.

From the time the advance polls, which gave mayor-elect Forrester a slight majority came in, the issue was never in doubt. Sweeping to her second decisive municipal success in a year that raced into an imgediate lead and was never headed. Mayor Both conceded the election in a radio broadcast from the city hall at 10.15 p.m.

Mayor-elect Forrester polled 3823 votes as against 2460, giving her a majority of 1163. She added further laurels to her feat of breaking records at municipal elections. Last year she led the polls with 3352 votes, the highest ever attained by an alderman. This year in her quest for the mayoralty she exceeded that mark, although falling short of the record established by Mayor A. McLean Haig (3,836) in the 1951 elections.

In the fourteen-entry dash for city council honors, four 1954-55 aldermen were re-elected; two ex-aldermen replaced those of the last term body, and a fewcomer to municipal government surprised all and sundry by not only getting elected but leading the field to the wire.

WEESE EASILY ELECTED

The battle for the seat on the public utilities commission was a more or less one-sided affair with the sitting commissioner hurling back the bid of his lone challenger by a substantial majority.

The electorate viewed with disfavor the question to reduce the council to eight members and the mayor, turning back the motion by a 1625 majority. It got the cold shoulder in decisive fashion in the by-law to provide a parking lot on the east bank of the Moira with a stunning 2330-947 setback.

But it pieced its approval on the question of a by-law placing the management of the sewage system of the city under the utilities commission with a 2,939 "yes" vote as against the "nays" of 2264.

While the vote Monday was comparatively speaking, a large one it did not quite equal the record established last year when 4,104 of the electorate went to the polls. This year some 600 less put their ballots in what was estimated by veteran political observers as 50 per cent of the voting public.

Re-elected to the seats of the aldermanic mighty were Alderman Clarence Gale, Arthur Keegan and William Argue. Successful in another quest for municipal fathers honors were ex-aldermen Robert Temple and Charles Dafoe. Councillor John Stock won his spurs in the municipal arena by polling being elected last leading the poll by a 324 majority over second-place Alderman Smith.

Indian Sought For Questioning In Sty Shooting

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A province-wide pickup order was issued today for a Muncey reserve Indian, wanted for questioning in the pigpen slaying of Daniel J. Mullins, a Melbourne farmer.

At the same time two other Indians from the reserve were taken into custody on liquor charges although it was learned they also were being questioned in the murder case.

The wanted Indian was identified as Edward Waucaush, 32, a strongly built man standing six feet tall.

Provincial Police officers did not disclose why they believed Waucaush might figure in the investigation.

Names of the other two Muncey men were not disclosed.

As the search for him was issued a widespread search was pressed for the car owned by the slain farmer and believed stolen by the killer or killers who raided his isolated Delaware farm early Sunday evening.

Mrs. Mary Mullins, 83-year-old mother of the farmer, was shot in the neck during the attack and remained in critical condition today at Victoria Hospital.

Comet Airliner Will Make Stop At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)— Montrealers will have a chance to see Britain's latest challenge for commercial airtransportation when a sleek, four-jet Comet III airliner lands here late this month.

A spokesman of the de Havilland Company, makers of the aircraft, said Monday the record-breaking jet will touch down here Dec. 20 in the last leg of its round-the-world tour.

The Comet III, successor to the ill-fated Comet I, was refused permission to land in New York because officials feared it would make too much noise. The company spokesman said actually the plane makes no more noise than Super Constellations.

Eisenhower, Eden Will Seek Accord In Middle East

U.S. and Britain Need To Co-ordinate Policies

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden undoubtedly will give top priority to arranging better co-operation in the critical Middle East during their January White House conference.

The British leader's acceptance of Eisenhower's invitation to visit Washington Jan. 30 was announced Monday. Eden, along with Foreign Secretary Macmillan, also will visit Ottawa during the North American trip.

British-American policies appear more in need of high-level discussion in the oil-rich Middle East region than in Europe and the Far East.

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Samuel McGregor, 68, whose skeleton was found in a shallow grave here, may have been buried by the driver of the car that killed him, police said Monday.

The skeleton was found Sunday and identified as McGregor, missing since last August.

"We have one witness who saw McGregor walking on the highway in that area the day he disappeared," RCMP said. The upper part of the skeleton was smashed and there were particles of clothes found on the ribs.

Dr. T. Golding, of Nanaimo said the skeleton appeared to have been hit by a heavy object, possibly a motor car.

Flin Flon Fire Destroys Hotel, Then Spreads

Blaze Out of Control For Over Four Hours

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — All available firemen in Flin Flon today were fighting a fierce blaze that destroyed a 32-room hotel and four business offices on the main street of this northwestern Manitoba town.

The fire was still out of control 10 a. m., four hours after it broke out, and was threatening the Hudson's Bay Company store, the largest store in Flin Flon.

More than 40 firemen, directed by fire chief Walter Redman, were fighting the flames in 20-below-zero weather.

The fire broke out in the three-storey Corona Hotel shortly after 5 a. m. All the guests managed to make their way to safety.

Flames swept through the hotel, one of the first buildings erected in this mining community of 11,000, then spread to an adjoining barber shop and grocery store. The fire moved north into a neighboring office building. Also razed through the Charon Gay fashion store located next to the Hudson's Bay Company store.

Crockford Is Defeated In Scarborough

TORONTO (CP)—Deputy Reeve Gus Harris Monday night ended Oliver Crockford's eight-year term as reeve of suburban Scarborough with a majority of nearly 4,000 votes.

Mr. Harris took over the reeve's chair with 14,304 votes. Mr. Crockford had 10,316.

A recent judicial inquiry into an alleged bribery attempt of four township officials heightened interest in the election. Judge Robert Forsythe found that Mr. Crockford had been imprudent in his method of buying a Cadillac car from a construction firm official.

CHARGE INTERFERENCE

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)Iran today accused the Soviet Union of interfering in her internal affairs. The Iranian charge replied to a Russian protest against the Tehran government's joining the Western backed Baghdad alliance of Iraq, Pakistan, Turkey and Britain. The Iranian note to the Soviet Union was couched in mild terms, however.

Women Sweep Skirts Triumphantly Through Municipal Elections Monday

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario women swept their skirts triumphantly through Monday's municipal elections.

A Chicago-born doctor's wife stepped in as mayor-elect of Niagara Falls and a Woodstock housewife was returned for a record fifth term as chief executive.

Other women candidates awaited varied civic posts.

Mrs. James Forrester, 45-year-old wife of an ear, eye, nose and throat specialist is the first woman to seek and win Belleville's mayoralty. Last year, in her first try for public office, she topped a field of 23 aldermanic candidates with a record vote. She resigned her two-year term in November to run for mayor.

Mayor Bernadette Smith of Woodstock sailed into office for her fifth term. No other mayor has held office for more than three years.

Mrs. Edna Ryerson, Conservative Labor-Progressive (Communist) and Mary McCarthy were elected by her 13th term on the board of education.

Three women won office in Peterborough. Mrs. Bernice Graham and Mrs. Ann Rowell took seats on the board of education.

Grace McFarland was elected mayor of Leamington and Mrs. Violet McCarthy reeve of Port Stanley. Wanda Miller was re-elected mayor of Gravenhurst.

One candidate was not so successful. Mrs. Lorna Cole was defeated in the 24th bid for public office in London.

POPULATION CLIMBS

TOKO (AP) — Tokyo's population has soared over the 8,000,000 mark, says an official of the government statistics bureau. He also said Japan's population has reached 88,320,000—fifth highest in the world. Only China, India, Russia and the United States have more people, and Tokyo trails only London and New York city.

Max Frehner of Thamesford Grand Champion Dairy Show

Max Frehner of Thamesford in Western Ontario, a comparative newcomer to exhibition competition, won the grand championship of the British Empire Dairy Show here this week.

Frehner's October cheese in the open classes was the top scoring cheese at the exhibition with a total of 98.50 points. It was the highest scoring cheese at the Belleville show in some years. Mr. Frehner also had the top scoring August cheese with a score of 98.45 matching that of T. S. Aicken of Belton whose July cheese won him the reserve championship.

Mr. Aicken who has won the championship at the Belleville show on several occasions this year was high in three of five months in the open classes with his Mr. Frehner showing the top cheese for the other two months.

It was the first time that Mr. Frehner had exhibited cheese at the Belleville show. He is the farmer at the J. E. Proctor cheese plant at Thamesford.

Jack M. Bain, chief dairy instructor for eastern Ontario and one of the judges at the exhibition, said the high general quality at the British Empire Dairy Show year was higher; also that there was more cheese entered.

He said that the top cheese was higher scoring than that of last year and was the highest for many years. "There was some really good cheese at the show and the general quality was higher," he said.

There were 90 entries of large cheese at the show, the balance of the 128 entries being made up of 20 pound cheddars and twins.

IN MEMORIAM

AYLESWORTH. — In loving memory of Sgt. G. Clay Aylesworth, who passed away December 6th, 1954.
Dearest G. Aylesworth, who passed away one year ago today.
Sweet memories, dear Clay, are plain,
Cause to weep 100 tears and more
Those who understood you best
Grieve in heaven with the blest.
Had I known how much it was to hurt,
I'd have set memory aside
Loving thoughts were all I'd hold
Could you remember and forget.
—Ever remembered by mother and brothers Edwin, Howard and Harold.

REID. — In loving memory of a dear husband and sister, Hilda Reid, who passed away December 6th, 1947.
Years have passed since that sad day,
Years that seem like a lifetime,
God took her home, it was His will,
But memories linger still.
—Husband, brother-in-law and sisters Cyrle, Gladys, Marion, Estella, Hazel and Andrew Clifford and Fletcher.

CROSSLEY. — In loving memory of Oscar Crossley, who passed away December 6th, 1953.
Nothing can ever take away
The love in a heart from you.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance always true.
—Sadly missed by wife and daughter Gertie and Grace.

UENS. — In loving memory of my husband, Albert Uens, who passed away December 6th, 1946.
Time has passed on like a river,
Sorrow has come with the years,
He had gone before we knew it,
And left us with sorrow and tears.
I'll never grow too old to dream
Of a husband kind and true,
His love I'll cherish in my heart
Until the end comes to me.
—Ever remembered by his wife.

Sentence Given Three Accused

Douglas Graves, 17, and Dennis Downes, 17, convicted of a charge of breaking and entering and theft, were sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court this morning.

"You both have been convicted of serious offences against the property and the liberties of other people," said Magistrate Wills. "You are at an age when you need someone to tell you something and have you do it. It is time you learned you cannot do anything you want to. I hope it (the six month sentence) will do you some good."

David Green, 17, convicted of indecent assault, was sentenced to five weeks in county jail with sentence to run from Nov. 18th.

In passing sentence Magistrate Wills said he was influenced by a psychiatrist's report "that you have learned a lesson and are not likely to do it again."

He told the accused that the crime usually received a substantial punishment.

"If you ever again in some-thing like this and come before me no reports will help you," he said.

Several other minor cases were enlarged or accused remanded for future sentencing.

Mayor Ross Burtt Defeats Opponent By 920 Majority

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Ross Burtt was returned here for the third time yesterday, when a record number of electors got out to the polls and voted.

First World War veteran and retired railroader, Burtt defeated Dr. J. W. Farley, running for the first time, by a majority of 920. Burtt polled 2018 against Farley's 1188.

Workers at the six polling divisions never experienced so much activity. Voters kept pouring in until closing time at 7.00 p.m., although the traffic was light at the start.

Mayor Burtt gained a majority in all polls. Two polling booths run out of ballots as the unexpected deluge of voters rushed to the polls in the last hours of voting.

The race for six council seats created almost as much excitement.

Claude V. Graham headed the council contests with a total of 2012. His victory was expected.

A new candidate, merchant George Brown surprised observers by giving veteran Graham a close run for top position. His total was 1924.

James MacDonald, slated for the bridge season, be shortened to co-incide with the deer hunting season.

WEED RULES TIGHTENED

County councillors were generally pleased with the recent tightening in weed seed regulations which call for less weed seeds being present in certified forage and grain seeds.

At the last session councillors had asked that certified seed offered for sale carry tags indicating what weed seeds were present in the sample. The county received a communication from the department indicating that seed regulations had been tightened and that yellow rocket was now listed as a primary obnoxious weed.

"Our resolution has at least brought some fruit," commented Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow township. "It seems that the weed seed allowed in certified seed has been reduced."

ENDORSE RESOLUTION

Council concurred in a Middlesex county resolution which asks

Open Final Session of Year Of Hastings County Council

Hastings county councillors convened Tuesday morning for their fourth and final session for 1955 with Warden James H. Sprackett welcoming members to the session. He said he hoped that council members had had a good summer and a good year.

A minute's silence was observed in honor of the late James Brennan, former reeve of Deseronto, who died a month ago. Mr. Fichett, a Deseronto council member, will serve out Mr. Brennan's term in county council.

The Hastings county council resolution of the last session asking for a closed partridge season for the next five years has met with mixed reception on the part of other counties in the province. Twelve counties concurred in the resolution while 13 were opposed.

A letter from Hon. C. Mapleodrum, Department of Lands and Forests, in answer to the county resolution regarding partridge indicated that a closed season for grouse might be both inadvisable and unpopular.

REFERS TO CTCA

He said that research by his department revealed that partridge went in a ten year cycle ranging from a period of plenty to one of scarcity. This appears to be the case regardless of whether there was an open season for hunting partridge.

The letter from the department was ordered filed without further comment as was a resolution from Renfrew asking that the bridge season be shortened to co-incide with the deer hunting season.

CLOSE FOR LAST PLACE

Possibly the closest contest in the whole election was between Vahn Lange and Jack Goldberg vying for the sixth seat. Lange, the third new candidate in the field, won out with a count of 1088 against 1032.

The other five candidates placed in the following succession: Vie Ryan 883; Eben James 729; Charles Hilton 726; Del Topping 652; Capt. Bernier 222.

With so much interest shown in the voting the campaigns of all contestants were exceedingly clean. And the tension mounted in the last three days pamphlets from both candidates for the mayoralty were distributed from door to door. Signs were displayed on fences and hydro poles. One side put up cards and the other had one fellow behind taking them down. However, in the final analysis the fight was kept on a high plane.

The people elected Clifford A. Baker to the Public Utilities Commission. His opponent, A. Mc-Neil, lost by over 900 votes. Mr. Baker polled 1924. Former commissioner S. O. Graham was unable to contest because of illness.

A by-law governing park lands was favoured with an overwhelming majority. For the by-law were 1950; against 732.

New Industry To be Located Within City

Belleville will have a new industry operating by next summer.

It will be the new $350,000 plant, built by Wilson Concrete Products limited on Joseph St. here, north of the Northern Electric property.

When completed the plant will have a productcd capacity more than 1,000 pieces of precast concrete block output of the company in its present Thurlow township plant. The present location will be closed down and used for storage.

Announcing his company's latest move president Charles I. Wilson said in its new location the firm will also be adding to its products. These will include light - weight concrete blocks, weeping tile, water meter boxes and other machine - made specialties. Precast and prestressed structural construction items such as beams, columns, joists, roof slabs and bridge sections will be included in the new production lists of the company.

It is expected the plant will employ about 25 persons.

Mr. Wilson said his company would have two things to sell — quality products and engineering know-how. Top standard equipment will be purchased to produce these products, he added.

Further features of the move will be the establishing of a quality - controlled laboratory which will be open to the public, a 200-ton compression testing machine, he said.

The new directors of the company will be D. K. Black, J. L. Ketcheson and L. Curzon.

Mr. Curzon will be manager of the company's precast and prestressed construction. Mr. Curzon comes to the firm with eight years of consulting engineering experience, covering a wide range of engineering projects. He is presently completing the entire structural design of the new plant.

It is expected the plant will go into production sometime next June.

36 to 40 Cents Pound Paid For Exhibition Cheese

Exhibition cheese on show at the British Empire Dairy Show have been sold to the Old Cheery Hill Cheese House of Brantford and the Oxford Farmers' Co-Operative of Woodstock, it was announced today by dairy show officials.

The price received for the exhibition cheese ranged between 36c and 40c per lb., it was stated.

Both the Ontario cheese firms purchased all cheese at the exhibition, including square cheese and stiltons. The grand champion-ship cheese exhibited by Max Frehner of Thamesford was also taken by the two above firms at premium prices.

Election Sidelights

Everybody is interested in an election.

Well, maybe not everybody. But enough people are sufficiently interested that their curiosity leads to spontaneous humor.

At five o'clock, Saturday afternoon a man called The Ontario Intelligencer and wanted to know how the election was going.

"Don't know yet," was the reply. "The polls don't close until 7.00 p.m."

"What about the mayoralty race?"

Again the same reply with the added comment that since the polls would not close until 7.00 p.m., the ballots could not be counted until then.

"Yes, but I thought you may have had some advance information," said the caller.

The Ontario intelligencer's special telephone service on the election started answering queries about the mayoralty race at 8.30, ten minutes before polls closed. First returns from the advance poll were received at 7.30 p.m.

Screams of anguish, whoops of joy, total silence and heartfelt sighs told an election story as the callers' emotions about the progress of voting for different offices.

Several parents, apparently glued to TV, had lisping and squeaky-voiced children on the phone trying to relay information. Early returns from Thurlow and Sidney and Ameliasburgh were received asking, "What place in this district isn't having an election today?"

Inquiry revealed that the caller wanted to locate a liquor store not closed by election by-law.

At 11.00 p.m. a man called and wanted to know if the new mayor had been "nominated" yet.

Another excited caller was only interested in the progress of one alderman and every ten minutes she brushed aside information about the mayoralty, public utilities and school trustee races to learn how this one alderman was doing. She never did indicate whether she wanted him elected or defeated.

"In proportion as the cheap production of aluminium becomes more and more an established fact, the more value shall find it entering into household uses—for travelling purposes, for instance, for which its lightness is no small merit."

Charles Dickens, 1857

While the author of Pickwick Papers was much impressed with the remarkable new light metal, it is doubtful that even he envisaged its great potentialities. Today transportation of all types, construction, chemicals, electrical goods and equipment, packaging and pharmaceuticals are but a few of the industries that depend more and more upon aluminum to weave the fabric of our expanding economy.

As a world leader in the primary production of this important metal, we believe that Aluminum Company of Canada, Limited, despite its rapid expansion in recent years, still has unusual growth possibilities. We recommend the 4¼% Cumulative Redeemable Sinking Fund Second Preferred Shares of this Company as a suitable medium for investment funds.

BELLEVILLE'S FIRST WOMAN MAYOR

Yesterday Belleville voters set a precedent.

The year 1956 will, for the first time in the city's history, see a woman occupying the chief magistrate's chair. Congratulations are in order to Mrs. Jane Forrester for achieving this distinction only one year after she and Ald. Effie McCabe broke another precedent by being the first women elected as aldermen. In heading the poll a year ago, Mrs. Forrester convincingly demonstrated her vote-getting ability and in defeat Mayor John Both has the consolation of knowing that he was facing a strong opponent.

The election for aldermen produced a lively race, with the order of the candidates being almost constantly shuffled, although the identity of most of the successful candidates could be confidently forecast fairly early in the process of counting the returns. Dr. John S. Stock, who headed the poll on his first bid for public office, has reason to be proud of his big win. He and the other men who were elected to serve two-year terms, four were members of the 1955 council and two were former aldermen. The re-elected aldermen, Ben Safe, William Angove, Arthur Keegan and Claude Tice, returns to their duties with the encouragement of an impressive vote of confidence from the electors. Returning to council are Robert Temple and Ald. Hyde, both of whom now have received assurance from the electors that their defeats in earlier mayoralty contests should not be interpreted as indicating that their fellow-citizens have any lack of faith in their ability.

The voting on the three questions referred by council to the electors was decisive in all cases, clearly indicating the wishes of citizens on these matters.

A LIFE SAVER

Christmas Seals help protect you against tuberculosis. The double-barred cross that is the symbol of the fight against TB is a double-bar of education and prevention that has produced a dramatic reduction in the incidence of this dread disease since it was first adopted in 1902.

Funds raised by the sale of Christmas Seals are used for mass chest X-ray surveys and education in health matters. In the past 25 years the TB death rate has been cut to 10.3 per 100,000—the lowest rate ever reached for this disease in Canada. This rate is less than a quarter of the rate 10 years ago.

However, the problem is still vast. In 1954 there were 9,523 first admissions to sanatoria in Canada bringing the total to the record population of 15,000.

No matter how good cures are, prevention is better and funds raised by Christmas Seals are used for purposes of prevention. Christmas Campaigns Consultant Service

X-ray survey was conducted of more than 18,000 persons—a dramatic local use of funds raised from the sale of Christmas Seals.

Early detection and a good preventive program can ward off TB.

The Christmas seal is a symbol, too, of the generosity of thousands upon thousands of people. Thanks to a lot of people we will never know, the fight against TB is being won.

Perhaps the contributions of strangers in years past has been responsible for your good health today. Who knows how much good your contribution will do or whom it may guard against the ravages of TB in the future?

Every day 30 new cases of TB are discovered in Canada.

Every five minutes there is a death from tuberculosis on the North American continent despite the fact that Canada and the United States have the third and fourth lowest TB death rate in the world.

TB can be detected by chest X-ray before symptoms warn of its presence. Early detection affords maximum chance of recovery for each victim and greatly reduces to a minimum the danger of spreading it to others.

Christmas Seals are a matter of life and death. Purchase of Christmas Seals is proven life insurance. With Christmas Seals the life you save can be your own.

UNMITIGATED GALL

The six New York City prison guards who have been accused of running a bribery racket should receive no quarter.

If they are punished, it will be for taking bribes. But there are some who will maintain that this is not their worst crime. There ought to be a penalty for sheer gall. This they must certainly have displayed in abundance.

If this was not proven by their operation of a bribery racket right on the home grounds of the law, consider their tariffs.

A quart of Scotch whisky cost $35, a steak sandwich $1, a stroll in the corridor 50 cents, a visit to another prisoner's cell $1. There will be many who will maintain that these fees are exorbitant. But they were what the traffic will bear they have discovered. Moreover, on the whole they appear to have struck a fair balance between luxuries, like whisky, and more essentials, like a steak sandwich. There is recognition of the universal human need for companionship in the comparatively low fee of $1 for visiting another prisoner and a prosecuting attorney's quote to the necessity for exercise in the small fee of 50 cents for a walk. The existence of an almost universal housing shortage is defence enough for the $40 fee for bunk quarters.

It is the fee for delivery of money from outside the jail which is robbery, barefaced and unashamed. To what use could these prisoners put their money? Obviously the purchase of whisky, steak sandwiches, strolls, visits to other prisoners and better cells. In other words, this money would be used to pay the guards for privileges. It would eventually find its way into their pockets. Yet they charged a $15 fee for transporting the money which was to pay their bribes. Talk about usury!

He came to teach us life is not
A useful thing and cold,
That more from living can be got
Than silver coins and gold.

He talked to them of richer things
Than pride and pomp and power,
Hinting that pedestrates and kings
Might not outlast their hour.

He talked of peace and brotherhood
Along the countryside,
But since He was misunderstood
They had Him crucified.

And yet because He talked that way
Around this troubled earth,
Millions will pause on Christmas Day
To celebrate His birth.

Should Mark Police Cars

(Kingston Free Press)

Without displaying any sympathy for the motorist who breaks the law, it seems reasonable to protest strongly against the move of the Ontario Provincial Police to patrol our highways in unmarked cars. This is an open invitation to criminals to masquerade as policemen.

In recent weeks police have opened a determined campaign against the wanton use of careless driver. This is all to the good, and every right-thinking person applaud and support any move to cut down this province's highway toll, whether by radar, charges or cruiser patrols.

But it seems the police are overzealous when they begin prowling the roads in cars that look like any others. Any motorist driving at night will be properly reluctant to stop on command from an unmarked car. The order may be coming from criminals bent on holdup or worse.

Just as the sight of a uniformed patrolman is a constant reminder that the law is about, so is the familiar black-and-white provincial police cruiser a powerful deterrent by its very presence on the highway.

Not only are the police losing the psychological value of identifiable cars, they are depriving the motorist of his right to know who is asking him to stop.

Millions Play Solitaire

(New York Times)

When 316-year-old Susan Eisenhower sent her ailing grandfather a birthday gift a book titled "150 Ways to Play Solitaire" and two packs of playing cards, she was providing him with the sure-cure-all he appears to have been the classic companion for generations of convalescents, travellers, service men, shut-ins, prisoners, retired people, as well as the gay and the lonely seeking relaxation from everyday tensions or an end to loneliness. Solitaire is believed to have been invented by a political prisoner in the Bastille about 1650. The most famous prisoner of all time, the Emperor Napoleon, played solitaire constantly during his last years at St. Helena. More recently, General Wainright found solitaire his principal relaxation while a wartime prisoner of the Japanese.

Better than 1,000 variations of solitaire are known, more than for all other card games combined — and new ones are suggested to card manufacturers at a rate of about half a dozen each year. Some are simple, some complex, while others require varying amounts of skill. Some are played with a single pack, others with two, still others with four or more. Solitaire is known as "Patience" in England, as "Fools" in Russia, as "Idiot's Delight" in Italy and by other countries. The pastime, basically the same in all which cards of alternating colors are laid upon ascending or descending "foundations" — that is, see all the aces to ten each suit. Players of other card games — notably poker, bridge and cribbage — have believed that solitaire helps their own favorites, to play when they cannot find opponents, and these too, are often called solitaire.

The names of two of the most popular variations, Klondike and Canfield, are American inventions named interchangeably. Klondike is a hangover, of course, from the days of the Alaska gold rush. Canfield was named for Dick Canfield, notorious gambler who operated casinos in New York, Saratoga and Newport, R. I., at the turn of the century, and retired in 1906 with a fortune of $12,000,000. Canfield himself never played the game, feeling the odds were so much against him. However, he introduced that enemy of the solitaire player, the bibliography of papers, who never interfered or offered suggestions but merely watched to see that players in his casino weren't cheating.

President Eisenhower is not the first president of the United States to have been a devotee. The variation Spider was a great favorite of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who laughed off all questions asking if he was. Somerset Maugham, on the other hand, an addict of the same variation, has admitted that "Wars and Peace" and "The Brothers Karamazov" Dostoevsky like Grushenka, mistress of the writer Maugham, turn to solitaire in an attempt to have suspenseful books pass quickly.

According to the most recent available survey, more Americans than men play solitaire, by a ratio of five to four. As a matter of fact, Felix Leland, author writing on solitaire, "Illustrated Games of Patience," was the first to do so man. Lady Adelaide Cadogan, in 1820. This same survey find that 80.2 per cent of all solitaire played cards, and that solitaire ranked fifth in popularity among indoor card game. The average solitaire game takes 20 minutes to complete a play. During W. P. A. days one player was paid to complete 5,000 games in order to study them and determine the chances of winning. Actually, the length of the lengthy time he spent on the job have been lost to history. Experts say a fast deck can be run off in under five forms of solitaire, and the slowest in about 45 minutes. Solitaire as a way to teach numbers and self discipline, and also a help in developing the art of concealing rainy days or when illness keeps them home from school.

Letter to the Editor

Wharf Street Debating Club Meeting Praised

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Behind the Iron Curtain it would be murder.

Any other place in the world it would be slander or libel.

But in the Wharf Street Debating Club, it is just pure and simple democracy.

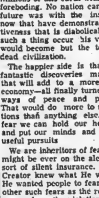
Where else in the world today, do civic officials take such a parting and cutting, and could such a panning take place, without fear of retaliation? Where else, indeed, should be very proud of the Wharf Street Debating Club; granted much of it is of a higher order, but the fact still remains that it is the only place left to interpret the original and true meaning of the word democracy, and that is the way it should be, at last losing sight of.

So on Wednesday night last, the annual back heel, presented a packed house those who are to remove the verdict of guilty. History was made, when the entire house rose in their feet and applauded the speaker, perhaps for the first time in the history of democracy. On Wednesday night last, both representatives were most conspicuous by their absence.

There were questions to be asked, but no one to answer them. The questions, I think, we should know: For example, why is the motor vehicle tax being raised at a time that our present government sees fit to contribute some $15,000,000 to a pipe line, along with the many other millions being contributed by the Federal Government. Since when has our government decided to set already healthy industries on their knees, when we the public will have to pick up the bill for the services?

Is the government contemplating a TV licence, at a time when we are being threatened with the loss of every four dollars, that it takes to operate a television receiver, and the C.B.C.? Are they going to be greedy and destroy the goose that lays the golden eggs? Since the C.B.C. be government controlled: two other men comparable to Mr. Diefenbaker, where they are now. How, therefore, can it be said that democracy in general is not originally included in the meaning of democracy. Let's not fool ourselves, Let's openly pull out so many bricks from a foundation until it collapses.

So more power to the Wharf Street Debating Club. There will be big, much of it may be in fun, you may never control the government, but next year, next decade, trots us, but God bless you, your democracy is safe, and that's more than others can say.



"A Citizen").

Adjourn Hearing On Rape Charges Against Youths

After a day long session Friday, the preliminary hearing of three Belleville youths charged with raping a 17-year-old girl last November 7th has been adjourned by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to December 19th.

Charged with rape are Ronald Sharpe, St. Paul Street; Gary Marriott and Guiseppe Ferraro, all about 18.

Six witnesses were called Friday by Acting Crown Attorney Ralph Graham, who at the conclusion of the day's session intimated he had still two more witnesse to call, including a biologist from Toronto.

Key witness for the Crown at yesterday's preliminary hearing was the 17-year-old complainant who told the court on the night the alleged offence took place she had been sitting at the wheel. Shortly after nine o'clock she had decided to go home and had been offered a ride by the three youths.

The car had been driven to Hillcrest where the boys attempted to find two other girls and failing this had driven down Dundas Street past the hospital and ultimately up a sideroad north of No. 2 Highway.

There the girl said the car had been stopped and improper advances were made to her.

She had tried to get out of the car but had been pulled back onto the seat where two of the boys had attacked her. She said that Sharpe and Marriott had forced sexual relations on her.

She was then able to get out of the car but two of the youths ran after her and she went back to the car where she passed out on the back seat. When she came to she found her clothes had again been torn off. She could not say whether Ferraro actually had relations with her.

Later she said the car had been driven back to Belleville and had stopped outside the Sharpe home on St. Paul Street where Ronald had left them.

She said she arrived home about 12.45 where after hearing her story her brother-in-law had phoned the police.

Other witnesses heard at the preliminary were Dr. Robert Alfore, who had examined the girl; Dr. A. N. Rota, pathologist at the Belleville General Hospital; Mr. Floyd Phillips, brother-in-law of the complainant; Mrs. Wilma Lee, sister of Mr. Phillips, and Provincial Constable Louis Pelissero, investigating officer.

Constable Pelissero told of arresting the three youths and of their denying they had been with the girl.

At the adjournment of the hearing bail for the three accused was renewed.

Ronald Cass, local solicitor, appeared for Ron Sharpe and Guiseppe Ferraro, while Kenneth C. M. Ross is representing Gary Marriott.

Decision Possible Next Year To Make Army Corps Airborne

OTTAWA (CP)—Army plans to make part of the 7,000-man Army Service Corps airborne may come up for government decision next year.

Lt.-Gen. Howard Graham, chief of the general staff, told a press conference Monday that the army will recommend to the government by next summer a plan for creation of its own air force.

Gen. Graham stressed that the army has no intention of forming a separate air force though he added he hoped it would be able to train its own pilots and look after minor maintenance.

Aircraft were "almost essential" to armies in the field for increased mobility and improved supply. Army planes would concentrate on short hauls of troops and supplies and not duplicate any long-range work done by the RCAF.

SMALL AT FIRST

Gen. Graham said army acquisition of planes and helicopters, if approved by cabinet, would be on a fairly small scale at first. Possibly only one of the army's 13 infantry battalions would be airlifted.

The question of an army air force has been discussed in the defence department for years—the 4,000 planes and 3,000 pilots but Gen. Graham's statement was the first indication that a decision on the matter might be comparatively near.

The army already has 16 light planes which it uses as artillery spotters. Even these are a sore plane, flown by army pilots, cost $16,000 apiece. A transport plane would probably cost at least 20 times more; a helicopter costs about $450,000.

TRAINED BY RCAF

Canadian Army pilots now are trained by the RCAF and air force ground crews look after maintenance.

Gen. Graham also said Canadian soldiers are being trained on guided missiles in Britain and the U.S. The army hoped to get missiles in the future but the general declined to forecast which arm of the services might control their operations.

Some 50 Canadian soldiers were trained a year or so ago on Nike, the U.S. Army's ground-to-air missile but Gen. Graham gave the first indication this is a continuing program and that it has been extended to Britain.

Crash Victim Known Here

Belleville district friends of FO Gerald St. Clair John Newman, who once lived in this city, will be startled, to learn he was among the seven victims in the weekend crash of an RCAF plane at Metz, France.

The 39-year-old flying officer had resided in Belleville some years ago. His widow, together with two young daughters lives at Stewiacke, N.S. FO. Newman was a medical secretary with the Canadian Joint staff in London. His mother, Mrs. M. E. Newman, lives at New Maulden, Surrey, England.

Several other speakers told of the work accomplished in the village.

There has been a continual rise in the use of electricity and a new line was erected to serve the new plants of the Elaine Shoe Company.

Norman Hartnell, Dressmaker To Royal Family, Tells Story

By MURIEL PEN

LONDON (Reuters)—The story of Norman Hartnell is a success story, mixed with queens and princesses and fairy-tale dresses.

Hartnell is dressmaker to Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra.

In his newly published autobiography, "Silver and Gold" (Evans Brothers, London), Hartnell tells of the rise from a struggling, unknown designer to the top rank he holds today.

A SICKLY CHILD

He tells how his own interest in fashion "began with a box of crayons." And explains: "Because I was a sickly child, forced to remain in bed for long periods, I would sit propped up with pillows, with a drawing block against my knees, drawing crude but fantastic designs . . .

"Soon I was given a box of water color paints; and with it I sketched my first dress design . . . That design, made up at the behest of a cousin, won the first prize at a New Year's Eve fancy dress ball.

As he grew older, his school books were covered with "doodled designs" of dresses and likenesses of all the leading actresses of the day.

WON PRAISE

The theatre soon became his passion and it was the praise of a woman journalist for the dresses he designed for a musical play while at Cambridge University which launched him upon a career destined to put London on the world fashion map.

After some months of working for others, he decided in 1923 to start out on his own. Gradually, women who had always looked to Paris to dress them well for special occasions, began to turn to Hartnell, Actresses like Gertrude Lawrence, Gladys Cooper, Vivien Leigh, Margaret Lockwood—even Mistinguett—and a host of others were dressed by him both on and off the stage.

But it was 11 years before he began to make any considerable financial profit.

After the announcement of the engagement of Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott to the Duke of Beccleuves, Hartnell wrote to Lady Alice asking to be allowed to submit designs for her wedding dress.

TURNING POINT

Recording that Lady Alice promised to visit his salon on her return to London, he adds: "I did not realize at the time that Lady Alice's promised visit was to mark the turning point in my career."

Hartnell received the order for the wedding dress—and with it that for the dresses of the bridesmaids who included the bride's young nieces — Sophie Dawnay, Rosemary and Princess Margaret.

That bridesmaids' dress was the first he made for the young princesses who was to become Queen.

Other royal orders followed. For the Duchess of York, the Duchess of Kent and Queen Mary.

SUDDEN FORTUNE

An unexpected turn of the wheel of fortune made him dressmaker to the Queen when the Duke of York succeeded King Edward VIII.

MADOC W.I.

Madoc W.I. held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Burnside with a good attendance.

Mrs. Ken Nicol gave a full report of the proceedings of the second day of the area convention held in Belleville, stressing the importance of girls' club work and the results.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. G. Hill and Mrs. Kernohan for the splendid work done by them in connection with the institute for the Blind.

Mrs. Forestell had charge of the program and gave a fine paper on "Agriculture and Canadian Industries". Two readings "A Banana Tree on the Prairies," and "A New Year Resolution" were given by Mrs. Albert Bailey. Mrs. George Allore gave a paper on "Bethlehem Steel", and the program closed with a contest by Mrs. Nathan Brennan.

The president closed the meeting.

A pleasant social half hour with the hostess and her assistants serving dainty refreshments followed the close of the meeting.

as King George VI.

From that time, Hartnell became more and more firmly established as the royal dressmaker, designing gowns for state visits, royal tours and all important events at home.

When his design for Princess Elizabeth's wedding dress was accepted, he thought he had reached the zenith of his career. But greater was to come. To Hartnell fell the task of submitting designs for the Queen's coronation dress. The Queen chose embroidered with the emblems of the countries of the Commonwealth, a magnificent dress which sparkled and glistened in the light.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HAPPINESS IS A DO-IT-YOUR-SELF PROJECT

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

A recent article you wrote in reply to a lonely widower might have been directed to me.

I, too, was happily married, and I was also more than five years ago that my husband died.

Since, then I have endeavored to neutralize loneliness by church and club activity, as much as time would allow, but obviously to no avail. My many friends strongly urge me to end this lonely way of life, but never have made any suggestions along this line.

I am a registered nurse. My work brings me face to face continually with illness and death. So I see hardly need for any social life in that direction. And if church and club's have nothing to offer, I'm afraid that I, too, like that lonely widower, can only feel that Fate is not with us. — Mrs. H.

DEAR MRS. H.:

Since you feel that your situation is so much like that of the lonely widower whose letter you read in my column, then I think you must also feel that the advice I gave him would be the advice you, too, should follow.

And the essence of that advice, as you may perhaps recall, was that the overcoming of loneliness is the individual's job. The happy and interesting life for a dull and frustrated one through which a person walks pretty much alone—depends largely on the person's own initiative and determination. Everyone, of course, has times of loneliness. That's life. So you and I mean no one—needs to go on being lonely day after day, week after week, month after month and year after year. And anyone who does feel that way is responsible for his—or her—own plight.

But this is a world in which one must usually create his own happiness, and the sooner one realizes that the sooner one will become a happy person. Once you accept the fact it is up to you to choose whether you will be happy or unhappy; that happiness is a do-it-yourself proposition which is interesting and exciting to work out, you'll find your way in time.

Here you are, living in the biggest city in the world. It has so many things to offer you, and so many friends willing to be made, that all you need do is to start by picking out some one activity your really enjoy and devote yourself to following it up in such free time as you can give to it.

Then, you'll find that, having opened the door to this new activity, there will be another door opening out of it—something else just as interesting, and before you know it, you'll find yourself deeply involved in many things you want to do that no day will be long enough for you. You say in your letter that your friends haven't done anything to help you find a more satisfactory life. That isn't up to your friends. It's up to you, and you can do it if you try.

SLOW DOWN THE CORRESPONDENCE, MARY - ETTA

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 16, and have just met the nicest boy I ever knew. He is 18. I saw him only once because he is in the army and we are being sent to some other station, but we have been corresponding.

Part of my problem is that when I write to him I get a quick answer, and then I write again quickly. I love to get quick answers, but I'm scared he will get tired hearing from me. It only takes one day for my letter to reach him.

If you were in my shoes how long would you take to write to him?

Then there is another part to my problem.

This boy has told me that he is coming here on leave next month, and I take it for granted that he will ask to take me out. My mother is strict with my sisters and me, and while she lets boys come to the house, they positively can't take us out. I think I am old enough to go out with this boy—to a movie or something—and come home at whatever time he says. Don't you think so? But I'm afraid if I tell her what I think, she will forbid me to see him, or even to write him, and I certainly don't want that to happen.

What shall I do? Tell this boy I can't go out with him, or tell my mother—what? Mary-etta

Dear Mary-etta:

My answer to your first question is that if you want this correspondence to continue, it would probably be better to slow it down a little. Otherwise this chap is likely to get tired of answering your letters so often, as you yourself suggest he might do. You might even get tired of writing so much yourself, so wouldn't it be better to try wailing four or five days, or even a week, before answering the next letter and see what happens? If he is really impatient to hear from you, he will probably write to find out why there's been no letter. If he does, just say you've been busy lately. Sorry, and tell him some of the things you've been doing. As to the problem about your mother, if you hear from this boy that he is coming to see you, write back to him and ask him if he would send a nice note to her, saying that he is coming and that he would like to see you and take you out. Tell him frankly that your mother is rather conservative about what you and your sisters do, and you think he would have a better chance of going out if he would write her in advance. It's easy for anyone to say No to a son or daughter, but not so easy to do the same to the parent of a nice boy who knows he is polite and considerate enough to consult the girl's parents if he wants to have a date with her.

IT WILL BE BETTER TO WAIT AWHILE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I have been dating a certain boy for four years and we love each other very much.

We have talked about marrying but, as he did not finish high school, he can't get a full-time job. We are both 21, and so feel we are old enough to marry now if he had a good job. Would you advise us to marry now, or wait until he finds a full-time job? — L.T.

Dear L.T.:

I certainly would advise you to wait for marriage until this young man is steadily employed. It makes enough to take care of you. And it can't understand why he can't get some kind of full-time job even though he has not had too much formal education.

I suggest that this chap go to your local high school and inquire what courses he could take that would prepare him for some type of work in which there would be a good chance of advancement. If he is doing any kind of work in the daytime right now, or even half time, he could continue with this, or perhaps it would be possible for him to get some kind of day work that would be along the lines that he was studying at night.

At any rate, a talk with the principal of the high school should set him on the way to solving his problem.

Then the two of you would be able to make definite plans as to when it would be wise for you to marry.

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

Please tell me how to acknowledge the wedding and reception invitations under the following circumstance. Briefly it is "Mr. and Mrs John Doe request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mary to Richard Smith, Saturday, the seventeenth of December, at four o'clock, Holy Quarter Church."

And the reception card:
Reception immediately following at the—Country Club

R.S.V.P.
123 Fourth Street

The parents of the bride, the Does, live in another state. The address for the R.S.V.P. is the groom's home. This would seem to indicate that they are giving the reception, although I really do not know who is giving the reception at the Country Club. However, do I address my reply to "Mr. and Mrs. John Doe" at 123 Fourth Street, or to "Mr. and Mrs Smith" at that address, or should the names of both families be written on the envelope of my reply? — Dorothy D.

Since it is Mr. and Mrs. John Doe who are inviting you, you should address your reply to them at the address that is given for you for your reply . . . 123 Fourth Street. Apparently there is some question of convention for the request that your reply be sent to the address which you happen to know is the groom's home address.

The invitation to the church ceremony does not require an answer. But the invitation to the reception is and a correct form for your acceptance is:

Mr. and Mrs. George Davis accept with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. John Doe
for Saturday, the seventeenth of December

Write this reply on the first page of double-sheet note-paper or letter-paper, and space the lines as I have indicated. Then address the envelope to:

Mr. and Mrs. John Doe
123 Fourth Street
Here
New York

(Do not write the names of the groom's parents on the envelope.)

GIVE A "HI! CHRISTMAS!" LIFT TO YOUR CHRISTMAS CARD SIGNATURES

Do it yourself . . . word your message - and - signature on your Christmas cards to your dearest friends so that these special cards will sing a happy little Christmas song, than just signing your own name in the same old way, why not make a bit of a debonaire bow to your friends? It's fun.

All you need are a few high-hearted words to greet Christmas with a cheer. For example: "Hi! Hellow! It's Christmas! And here come your loving friends Peter and Polly to sing joyously to you, 'May your Christmas be merry and bright!'" Or "Here come the Halls, happily saluting you at Christmas time, John and Ursula, and Joan and Johnnie too!" Or, "To our beloved friends there, Nancy and Dick, your loving friends here, Carol and Arthur, are singing 'Happy Christmas and Happy New Year!'" Or, "Every good wish for the Season's happiness to the Three Johnsons—Our dear Katherine and George and Kay—from the Williamsons. Phil and Sue, and Anne and Henry." P.S.: 'Lassie' wags a joyous wag to say, 'Me too, please!'" Or, "With a song in our hearts to you, dear friends at Christmas time. And our prayers that your New Year be bright with happy days and happy ways!"

FIRST CLASS TASTE: SEND CHRISTMAS CARDS FIRST CLASS MAIL

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

We're having a heated discussion concerning sending our Christmas cards. Will you please settle the discussion by answering this question for us: Is it considered good taste to send Christmas card envelopes unsealed, that is, not First Class mail?

The A—Family

It's considered first class taste to send Christmas card envelopes First Class mail. This gives them the right look to make the right first impression. If economy is the kick, it's in for better taste to buy less expensive cards and send them correctly.

Sending your cards First Class mail also has these advantages:

1. Your cards may carry written messages.

2. They are sorted and delivered first.

3. If necessary, they are forwarded to a new address.

4. If undeliverable, they are returned to the sender's return-address if this is on the envelope.

A Praiseworthy Pastry Cook

By Mary Moore

A good pastry cook is to be praised more than much fine gold —and Hilda Jones of Hamilton YWCA, is.

Yesterday I watched Hilda operate on her marble-topped counter for 1 1-3 hours while she made delicious desserts for the 125 women who eat at the "Y" cafeteria every noon.

Her fingers flew, her eyes were everywhere, her mind was on the oven where puff pastry was baking, and all the while I was questioning her, but she did not miss a beat.

Hilda served two years' apprenticeship in a "bakehouse" in Salford, England, two miles from Manchester, and subsequently baked in a day nursery in London England, for twelve years. From there she came with her husband to Canada. Mrs. Leonora Smith ("Smitty" to her inmates), who is YWCA cafeteria manager and dietitian, noticed and employed her sterling worth and got permission from the Hamilton Y's big, executive director, for me to interview her.

Sad to say for us ordinary housewives her puff pastry is beyond us, for she is supplied with special pastry shortening with a high melting point that cannot be bought on the outlets of civilized in the home, so I won't bother to say by describing the luscious 3-inch high lemon squares she made before my eyes. I'll give you her recipe though for

APPLE PIE WITH CHEESE CRUMB TOPPING

(Hilda weighed all her ingredients. I have reduced them to 1-4 of the amount so you will have enough to serve 6 or 8.)

One cup pastry flour 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup good quality shortening or margarine or butter, 1-2 teaspoon baking soda, 3-4 cup quick-cooking rolled oats, approximately 1-2 cup grated old Cheddar cheese, an unbaked pie shell and enough chopped Spy apples to fill shell—about three cups. Fill the unbaked shell with the apples and sprinkle with about 2 tablespoons each sugar and water. Mix together (by hand) in a bowl the flour, brown sugar, baking soda and oats, then rub in the shortening until all is crumbly. Spread 1-3 over apples, sprinkle half of the cheese over, then spread remaining half of crumb topping over and press down firmly. Sprinkle remaining cheese over. Bake at 400 or 425 deg. Fahr. for ten minutes then "drop" heat to 350 deg. baking it a good half hour altogether. This is served as a pie, not a pudding, so no cream or sauce is needed.

While four pies like that cooled a little Hilda toasted some desiccated cocoanut in the oven, then sprinkled it over a couple of dozen cocoanut puddings she had made earlier, topped each with a cherry, and whisked the trays to the cafeteria serving counter. Whoosh she was back, cutting the pies into serving pieces and in a swirl of starched skirts was gone with that trayload. Now I know why more and more of my friends are saying "Meet me at the Y.W. for lunch."

Bridge St. WMS Appoints 1956 Officers

A truly Christmas program was given by the group of Bridge St. W.M.S., whose leaders were: Mrs. Finkle and Miss M. Young at the regular December meeting.

A large picture depicting the Holy Babe, the Shepherds and the Wise Men near the Manger, stretched across the curtains, to form a background for the devotional.

Mrs. Denyes, the president, quoted a short poem and the hymn "As With Gladness, Men of Old", was the opening number.

After reports by the various secretaries Mrs. C. Hyde brought in the report from the nominating committee. The panel was thanked for accepting office and the retiring members for faithful service rendered.

Three good pieces add up to one excellent spectator sports outfit that fits neatly into the wardrobe of the college girl or career-ist. The blouse is of stripped jersey, green on taupe, with a drapable neckline and push-up sleeves. The slim skirt goes in for a minimum of waistband, preferring to rest snugly on the hipbones. Then, to top if off, there is a sleeveless jacket with rib knit at the armholes and neck, the fabric, taupe jersey. The skirt is lined to prevent sagging.

CONSULT ON PROPOSALS

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A diplomatic source here says the United States, Britain, France, Turkey and member governments of the Baghdad pact are consulting on proposals for settlement of the Palestine problem. The proposals will be presented to the Arab states and Israel by a neutral government, the source added. Members of the Baghdad pact in addition to Britain and Turkey are Iraq, Iran and Pakistan.

Chapter 55 E.O.S. Enjoys Yuletide Party

That Christmas is just around the corner was evidenced by the gay and pretty decorations which adorned the auditorium of the O.E.S. chapter room on Friday evening. Glistening colors of red and green predominated. The color scheme with the Christmas tree occupying a special setting radiated a colorful welcome to young and old.

Around the room were tables, laden with, bountiful good things and decorated in a most pleasing manner, bringing the spirit of Christmas forcibly to one and all.

The Worthy Matron, Mrs. Violet Slavin, and Worthy Patron, Mr. John Good, graciously welcomed all present. After all had partaken of the repast, all joined in the singing of Christmas carols.

The chairman, Mr. Good, introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. William McLean, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who gave a fine message on "No Room in the Inn."

Mrs. Beverley Shaw rendered several solos in her charming manner.

Mr. Dave Hollinger, on behalf of the Chapter, expressed the appreciation of all present to the speaker and soloist.

At this time Santa arrived (none other than Mr. E. H. Liddle) to distribute gifts from the tree to each, all bringing back the spirit of childhood days, causing many to remember "Turn backward, turn backward, O time in your flight, Make me a child again, just for tonight."

Santa made a special request for Mrs. Anne Davidson to sing for him, which she graciously did.

Mrs. Dorothy Sloan presided at the piano for the evening.

Much credit is due to the decorating and refreshment committee in charge.

District Film Council Holds Panel Debate

On November 24 the Belleville and District Film council held its November meeting in the Corby Library. A large number of members and friends were present. Mr. Charles Hyde, president presided.

Mrs. E. Risto, program convener, outlined the program for the evening, "Freedom to Learn". This took the form of a panel discussion led by Miss Olive Elson, with Mrs. A. Tooth, Mrs. E. Risto and Rev. K. Daniel as members of the panel.

FILM SHOWN

Mr. Bert Frink, showed a film from the National Film Board entitled "Freedom to Learn" This showed the modern secondary school board criticizing a teacher for her methods of teaching political science, as to how much and how should a teacher be allowed to teach of world events, and controversial subjects.

Miss Elson and her panel brought out all the pros and cons of the picture and of the dangers of teaching too little or too much to the teenager.

Refreshments were served.

Women Design Men's Apparel

NEW YORK (AP)—Men design women's clothes. And now some women are designing men's apparel.

One maker of men's suits has hired a woman to advise retail outlets to encourage women to shop for men's clothing, with the idea that it will boost sales volume.

A maker of men's hats has hired a woman to design its new spring line on the theory that a woman would know best how a man should look—so as not to clash with his wife's fashions.

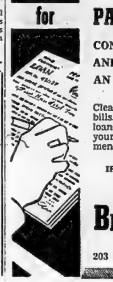
UNPAID CONSULTANTS

Many women have long been vocal about telling their men what they ought to wear. Many pick out the clothes on the theory the husband's taste can't be trusted. Others go along as unpaid but certainly not unheard consultants.

But a lot of men resent it and won't permit their wives to choose anything for them.

Merchants are as divided as many a household on the question: Is woman's place in the men's shop, or in the home?

Some merchants say the wife spurs the husband into spending more on his appearance than he would if he weren't nagged. They report 30 per cent of their sales of men's suits are made while the wife watches.



Others say that the wife just complicates sales, wastes clerk's time, and upsets other and unaccompanied males who may be there shopping.

Some men, who choose their own suits, are content to let the women do the shopping for shirts, underwear, socks, pajamas and the like, after establishing the fundamental rules of what the husband will stand for and what sizes and colors he demands. Merchants say 70 per cent of such items are bought by women.

safer driving reduces insurance costs

...that is why

...1956 rates will be lower

Ontario Drivers collectively set their own automobile insurance rates. It is the number and cost of automobile accidents which determine insurance rates. If accidents and their costs increase, then automobile insurance rates must inevitably increase. But, when greater care and caution on the part of motorists results in fewer, and less costly, accidents, automobile insurance rates can be reduced.

In 1956 most automobile insurance rates will be reduced —on the average six per cent for private passenger cars and 10 per cent for commercial vehicles, with decreases up to 20 per cent in some cases. The actual change will vary from area to area and between one class of insurance and another.

Effective January 1, 1956, motorists generally will benefit from the following changes:

- There will be many reductions in basic rates.
- Drivers qualifying for the three-year claims-free class will get 25 per cent discounts from basic rates as opposed to 20 per cent in 1955.
- A new two-year claims-free class will be established and drivers in this group will benefit by 15 per cent discounts from basic rates.
- Under-25 married car owners will be placed in a lower rating classification than formerly.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

GORDON R. BALL

ARTHUR C. JENSEN

CANADA'S BUSINESS RECOVERY SPECTACULAR SAYS B of M HEAD

Gordon Ball Suggests Free World Has Reached Turning Point in Economic History

ARTHUR JENSEN, GENERAL MANAGER, REPORTS RECORD DEPOSITS, LOANS, INVESTMENTS REFLECTING VIGOR OF CANADIAN ECONOMY

Montreal, Dec. 5—This country's recovery from the slight recession of 1954 has been "nothing short of spectacular and has exceeded even the most optimistic forecasts," Bank of Montreal president Gordon R. Ball told shareholders at the bank's 138th annual meeting here today. By the second quarter of this year, the president said, production of goods and services was running nearly ten per cent higher in overall terms than a year earlier.

Discussing developments abroad Mr. Ball said, "I find myself wondering whether we are approaching, or have already reached, a turning point in history, even though we may not recognize it until we see it later in the perspective of a complete chronicle of events. Now, ten years after the end of the war, postwar problems, as such, seem to be behind us. We have no lack of problems, but they are no longer those of a world struggling to its feet; rather are they the problems of a buoyant and dynamic world economy."

At the same meeting, Arthur C. Jensen, vice-president and general manager, reported to shareholders that the past year had seen new records set in the bank's total assets and deposits, with loans passing the billion dollar mark for the first time in the B of M's 138-year history.

Questions Raised by Problems of Competition

Referring to his recent business trip through Western Europe and the British Isles, Mr. Ball said that he saw widespread evidence of vigorous enterprise and a new degree of prosperity. Their production as a whole had now climbed to new record levels some 50 per cent greater than prewar, he said, and steady progress was being made towards convertibility of currencies and an enlarged area of multilateral trade.

"Perhaps the most basic change of all" the president stated, "is the growing realization that there is no tolerable alternative to peace."

It was only to be expected, Mr. Ball continued, that this kind of world would bring with it keener and more complex competition, presenting a challenge to Canadian producers to which they alone must respond. But, he said, in cases where the foreign competitor had subsidies, restricted markets or exchange manipulations in his favor, Canadian enterprise was placed at a disadvantage. While it was true that there had been some modification of artificial barriers and channels that divert the natural flow of commerce, progress in this respect had not proceeded as rapidly as we would wish.

The question is, therefore, being raised in many minds whether this country should be expected indefinitely to pursue its postwar policy of leading the way to greater freedom of international trade and exchange in a world in which many of the basic principles of multilateral and unhampered trade have been compromised."

Monetary Control and Stable Dollar

Turning to developments in the field of monetary control, Mr. Ball saw the respite from overt inflation as one of the most significant aspects of recent years. This has been the result of a determination both at home and abroad to curb inflationary pressures by various means of economic control.

Here in Canada the president continued, with retail sales, industrial production, residential construction, foreign trade, employment and income, all continuing to set new records — in short with business enjoying its best year in history — average prices of consumer goods and services are today no different and generally wholesale commodity prices are actually eight per cent lower than they were four years ago.

"Yet welcome as this has been in building confidence in the purchasing power of money, stabilities are not something that can be taken for granted. Price stability is one of the foundations of sound national growth and its safeguarding must at all times be a primary goal of national economic policy."

A Bank's Responsibility In Advancing Credit

It was something of a paradox, Mr. Ball remarked, that it was just such a time as this that commercial banking became particularly difficult. To the customer, he said, good banking was apt to be regarded as the kind that results in a cheerful "yes" to his credit application. Bankers like to have it that way too because, after all, they were in the business of lending money.

"But a banker doing business in an expanding economy needs above all else imagination — the kind of imagination that can not only see soundly based and legitimate growth but can also recognize a project that is the product of hopes and not dreams."

The important job of moderating the recurrent trends in business activity was not the sole responsibility of any one group in the country, Mr. Ball said. Business should and does exercise discretion in its policy and planning and, just as it abstained from alarm during last year's recession, so it is now incumbent on business to keep its head and not be carried away by boom psychology.

"No less it is a responsibility of labor to exercise moderation in its wage demands during what is essentially a short-term transitional period of abnormally rapid recovery.

"In short, it will require the concerted efforts of all Canadians if current expansionary forces are to be made the basis of a sound and lasting prosperity instead of bursting into a phase of boom and subsequent recession. If we meet the new challenges we shall have gone far towards demonstrating that the business cycle is capable of being tamed in both its downswing and upswing.

"It is against this background of challenge and change," Mr. Ball concluded, "that I reaffirm my conviction that we are at one of those milestones in time from which we may look forward with satisfaction on many difficulties surmounted and also look forward, if we have vision, to new tasks that may be no easier but may prove more rewarding in forging a better world, and an even better Canada."

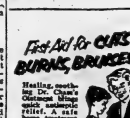
General Manager's Address

In presenting the bank's 138th annual statement, Mr. Jensen reported that, after provision for taxes of $7,043,000, net profits for the year amounted to $8,048,146. Of this amount $6,531,346 had been paid in dividends to shareholders, equivalent to $1.45 per share as compared to $1.40 per share in the previous year.

After provision for dividends, Mr. Jensen said, $1,520,800 was carried forward bringing the total of undivided profits to $4,154,218. "A sum of $2,000,000 was transferred to rest account, leaving the balance of undivided profits at $2,154,218.

Total Loans Reach New High Records

Commenting on the $154-million jump in loans which brought the bank's total loan figure to $1,057 million, Mr. Jensen said that the increase was fairly well spread through most types of loan classifications and reflected the higher level of business activity.



Discussing the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act passed earlier this year, Mr. Jensen said that the Act was designed to provide some support to fishermen in a similar manner available to farmers under the Farm Improvement Loans Act. Lending to fishermen under the new act will start as soon as the act is proclaimed and the regulations thereunder are established.

"From the middle of last month," the general manager said, "special lending facilities have been made available for loans to farmers in Western Canada on the security of grain held on the farm in anticipation of the pending passage of special legislation for farm assistance."

Reviews Business Scene During 1955

In reviewing the business scene during 1955, Mr. Jensen said that the past year had witnessed "that combination of expanding markets at home and abroad that has prevailed, with only minor interruptions, throughout the postwar period. Employment and income have climbed to new heights and spending by consumers in retail outlets has risen accordingly. Although shortages developed in a few lines, notably steel and cement there appears to have been little general tendency to purchase or produce materials over and above current requirements.

Mr. Jensen paid high tribute to the staff for their fine service during the year. "We are justly proud of the 11,500 men and women serving the bank and of their ability to take in their stride both change and growth and I extend to them one and all our thanks for their services in the year just ended."

At The Four Corners

DEFEATS J. BOTH

Alderman - elect Stock polled 2,175 votes becoming the fourth alderman in the city's history to be elected by acclamation. Mrs. Safe finished with 2,853. Then followed in order Alderman Bob Temple with 2,812; Alderman Keegan with 2,578; Alderman William Argue with 2,726; Alderman Tice with 2,438 and ex-Alderman Charles Hyde with 2,062.

Included in the defeated "half" of the field of fourteen candidates were Alderman Bruce Smith, 1,979; Alderman Don Thomas by a 1,677; Alderman Joe Moxam, 1,608; Patrick Halloran, 1,551; Frank Russon 1,296 and Geo. DeVyrst with 689.

The result of the fight for the public utilities was never in doubt. The present commissioner John Weese built up an early lead which gradually crescendoed as the returns came in, to turn back his opponent ex - Alderman Don Thomas by a 1,877 majority. Commissioner Weese polled 3,759 votes as against 2,082 for the opposition.

FIRST RETURNS EARLY

Only a skeleton few of the faithful were on hand in the city hall chambers at 7.20, when the first returns from the 38 polling divisions came in. Complete returns were not available until 12.15 this morning.

The first return gave the new mayor a slight lead and the next four returns indicated a close battle with Mrs. Forrester leading Mayor Both 311-304. The tide of battle was actually turned when the return from Samson 5 gave Mrs. Forrester 203 and the mayor 74. This was followed by Murney 2? which returned Mrs. Forrester 114 votes and the mayor 22.

From here in the mayor-elect's majority gradually crescendoed with the slight gains made by Mayor Both in five of the 38 polling divisions making but slight inroads on his opponent's margin. The majority continued to climb until the mayor conceded the election a few minutes after ten o'clock.

The city hall chambers were scarcely half-filled by nine o'clock with tabulators Dr. Metcalfe, Cliff Matthews and Adam Stalker who were pressed into action at a moment's notice, due to various circumstances, doing an exceptionally good job.

ALDERMANIC FIGHT FLUCTUATES

The aldermanic fight had its fluctuations and variations. Alderman Bob Temple at the start appeared to be headed for a repetition of his polls - leading feat a few years ago. He was pacing the pack with a slight majority followed by candidates Stock, Safe, Keegan, Tice, Argue and Hyde, whose positions changed intermittently.

Dr. Stock, who had been polling high figures throughout, took over the lead after fifteen polls were submitted and led the way from then to the final return. The fortunes of the rest fluctuated until late in the evening, when Alderman Safe took over the runner-up position from ex-Alderman Temple. Keegan, Keegan, Argue and Tice were steady and then developed a battle for seventh and last place in the honor parade.

With 30 polls in, the elections of Stock, Safe, Temple, Keegan and Tice were practically assured but the seventh position was in doubt with Alderman Bram Humphreys, Bruce Smith and Charles Hyde vying for the honor. It was not until the last returns were submitted and tabulated that the final result was known. Ex-Alderman Hyde came through with a majority of 53 votes over Alderman Humphreys for the coveted seventh position.

The fight for the public trusteeship of Samson ward between Melville Richards and James Ritchie was a close one with the issue clouded until the final returns. Ritchie nosed out Richards by a 20 majority, polling 442 votes as against 422 for his opponent.

Just as close was the election of a separate school trustee in Murney Ward, where Clarence Langabeer nosed out James Hamilton by a 61-54 vote. It was slightly different for the separate school trusteeship in Baldwin Ward where Godfrey Donoghue polled 111 votes to win easily over his opposition James Pulgier and George Wilson who recorded 39 and 18 votes respectively.

SOON FILLS UP

It was apparent the majority of those interested in the election in downtown Belleville had waited until the later returns had been submitted. By the 30 were "in", the city council chambers were filled to overflowing with a goodly number spilling out into the corridors. A large number of the distaff side was present and appeared to show considerable interest as the aldermanic fight narrowed down to the battle for seventh place.

However it was anti-climactic apparently for the mayor had been elected and six of the seven seats filled. By the time the final returns had been tabulated secretly a half dozen people outside of newspaper and radio men were around.

Earlier in the evening and herald by the fanfare of automobile horns, the mayor-elect was greeted by rounds of applause as she walked up the city hall stairway to the council chamber with her entourage.

She walked through the official offices entering the chamber by way of her newly-acquired headquarters of municipal business.

Radiant with victory and holding closely a beautiful bouquet of large white chrysanthemums, she stepped before radio microphone in the council chambers to the accompaniment of sustained applause.

"Ladies and gentlemen of Belleville, you have spoken," she said, "the victory is yours. It could only have been achieved through the way you all came out in such droves to work and vote.

"Now that the acrimony of the election is over, let us all join together as a family of citizens. Let us all join together as a family to make Belleville a place to be proud of."

She thanked her voters for the confidence placed in her and added she would not betray their confidence.

MAYOR THANKS ALL

Mayor Both conceded the election shortly before 10.20 p.m.

In a plain, straightforward speech he thanked all his workers and went on to say: "I will give my full co-operation in any way to Mayor Forrester and hope that she will receive all your help."

He paused a moment before ending his speech, then concluded it with: "To quote a famous man — "A strong press can do anything."

He then stepped back from the microphones to applause from the packed chamber, leaving the city hall shortly afterward, signifying the end of his two - year incumbency — terms that saw him first contest an election as a surprise candidate, and then the following year defeat by a heavy majority, two of his councillors battling for his position.

Next speaker, later in the evening was Dr. John Stock. With his position at the head of the aldermanic poll safely assured, the 32-year-old Belleville general practitioner was brief in his comment.

"I shall do everything in my power to merit the confidence you have shown in me," he told his audience.

Alderman Ben Safe, returned once more to his seat on council was the next speaker.

"I worked very hard during the past two years and I shall work just as hard in the next two years," he promised his listeners.

One of his aims during the coming term would be to secure enough money for the public works budget to replace sidewalks in Parkwood Heights, he said. Another of his intentions was to get two miles of permanent paving in Belleville, adding: "You can be sure I shall try to get council to do that."

The remaining successful aldermanic candidates also spoke through the evening, all of them veterans of council.

Said Robert Temple, placed third in the aldermanic poll: "I am proud and humble to be back in council and I will do my best at all times to represent the people."

Alderman Arthur Keegan fifth from the top for another term told his audience: "During my term of office in the next two years I will do the best I can for the citizens of Belleville."

Alderman Claude Tice, who took sixth place, recalled that would be his sixth two-year term as alderman.

"I have tried to do my best and will continue to do so in the next two years. I will try as hard as I know to serve you to the best of my ability," he promised.

Alderman William Argue, returned in fourth place for another term, told the packed council chamber: "I think during the time I have been on council, you have always known where I stood on every issue. "You will continue to know where I stand."

RETURNS TO COUNCIL

Last speaker; after his seventh place position was assured was veteran Alderman Charles Hyde, returning to council after a two-year absence.

Thanking his supporters he said: "My only ambition is to make this city a better place to live, to work and to play in."

John Weese, public utilities commission, said he was proud and humble of the opportunity afforded him to continue in office "and to continue the policy of sound business administration on utilities problems.

In keeping with the large vote, interest in the election was high. In the news rooms of the Ontario Intelligencer an augmented editorial staff and a battery of telephones quickly relayed the returns to the waiting public.

Veteran staff men were on hand in the city hall chambers tabulating the newspaper returns as they came in from the polling subdivisions. These were relayed to the news rooms by phone and messenger where lady members of the business staff assisted in giving them to the public.

Credit goes to the operators of the Bell Telephone Company who as in former years rendered invaluable service in their phase of imparting election news to a waiting citizenry.

Canadian Food Problem May Be Aggravated Next Year Ottawa Conference Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's surplus food problem, described by farm spokesmen as extremely serious, may be aggravated in 1956. Federal experts forecast a rise in farm production despite indications of some price declines.

The problem of finding markets for growing production of Canadian agricultural products was the biggest one facing the three-day 37th annual federal-provincial agricultural conference as it opened Monday.

H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said the world's farmers have attained the highest production level in history.

"Meanwhile, market demands have lagged far behind production" he said. "In short, the ability of world producers to produce has far outstripped the ability of world consumers to buy.

"Herein lies the crux of the serious world food and agriculture problems of today."

WOULD BE DISASTROUS

He said the position of Canadian agriculture would be disastrous if it were not for the high general level of economic and purchasing power on the domestic market, a measure of security provided by the government's farm price supports and orderly marketing through marketing boards, producer co-operatives and the Canadian wheat board. He urged all Canadian taxpayers to support the program necessary to keep the farmers in business.

Federal reports on 1956 prospects forecast a slight increase in grain and greater production of livestock and dairy products.

It was expected, however, that wheat exports would be fairly well maintained throughout the crop year ending next July 31, the reports said.

Carryover stocks of oats and barley likely would be slightly higher by the end of the crop year despite greater domestic requirements.

LIVESTOCK PICTURE

The picture was similar for livestock. The marketings in 1956 likely would exceed this year's total by a small margin. Prices were not expected to show much improvement.

The cattle outlook for next year was for heavier marketings, slightly lower prices, greater domestic demand for beef and not much change in export volume.

An increase of 450,000,000 pounds of milk production to 17,500,000 was forecast for 1956 while domestic consumption of milk and cream might rise about 300,000,000 pounds.

A forecast of slightly higher creamery butter production next year could result in greater stocks of government-supported surplus butter. Canada's current surplus butter stocks have been estimated at from 10,000,000 to 65,000,000 pounds.

NO EASY SOLUTIONS

Agriculture Minister Gardiner offered the provincial ministers, their deputies and officials of farm organizations no easy solutions to the surplus problems in his welcoming address.

He said the federal butter price support program likely will cost some $3,000,000 this year, principal the total outlay since it went into effect in 1949 to more than $6,600,000.

He said the government this year has exported about 8,000,000 pounds of butter bought under the plan at 58 cents a pound wholesale plus about three cents for handling charges. He apparently was referring to a recently reported sale of surplus stocks to a Dutch importer for resale to Communist East Germany at an estimated price of 37 cents a pound.

"We will export at least another 4,000,000 pounds—if we can find a market for it—and we may increase it to 7,000,000," Mr. Gardiner said. He gave no indication what countries might take the additional butter.

The Interprovincial Farm Union Council, which says it represents more than 100,000 farmers and their families, sounded the first sharply critical note of the conference. It said the government's plan to guarantee bank loans of up to $1,500 on farm-stored prairie grain has failed completely to meet farmers' needs.

It urged that the wheat board give farmers a cash advance of up to 70 cents a bushel on the farm-held grain.

It also proposed a two-price system under which Canadians would pay at least $2.05 a bushel for wheat while foreign buyers pay a minimum of $1.35 with federal subsidies making up any loss to farmers on foreign sales.

The council, made up of farm unions in the Prairies, British Columbia and Ontario, also demanded that the federal government incorporate credit and barter deals and acceptance of sterling currency in its attempts to sell surplus wheat.

U.S. and French Police Accused Of Plot by Red

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet architect Alexander V. Vlasov accused the U.S. and French police Monday of organizing a plot against him during his recent trip abroad. He also accused two American reporters in Moscow of distributing a recent Soviet government decree which criticized him.

Vlasov said there were demonstrations both in the United States and France urging him not to return home after reports were published that he was criticized by the party and government. The Soviet Union also has protested to Paris that French police tried to persuade Vlasov to seek asylum.

Vlasov was criticized in the preamble to the recent decree on architecture for permitting extravagances in building when he was head of the former Soviet Academy of Architecture. Vlasov heads a new academy of building and architecture.

HITS AP, TIMES

The architect singled out The Associated Press and the New York Times for criticism. He said their correspondents' dispatches "crudely distorted" the decree signed by Premier Bulganin and party secretary Khrushchev. He complained that they erroneously reported Vlasov had been deprived of his decorations and dismissed from his post.

After Vlasov's charges came out Monday, the Soviet foreign ministry's press department called in Richard K. O'Malley of The Associated Press and Welles Hangen, New York Times correspondent.

Leonid F. Ilyichev, head of the press department, complained the two wrote "gross distortions" in dispatches concerning the Vlasov case. He said they stated falsely that Vlasov had been fired and deprived of his medals.

He warned that if there are similar occurrences in the future "adequate measures" will be taken.

Stratford Will Build Permanent Festival Theatre

STRATFORD, (CP)—Plans for a permanent steel-frame theatre to replace the tent which has housed the Stratford Shakespearean Festival since it started in 1953 were announced Monday.

A. M. Bell, president of the festival board, said a country-wide appeal will be made for $1,000,000 to build the theatre. The fund drive will begin here, where the board hopes to collect $100,000 before starting a national campaign early in the new year.

The proposed theatre will be air-conditioned and soundproof. The basic structure of the stage and auditorium will not be changed but an additional balcony overlooking the stage will be built to increase the 1,900-seat capacity.

The board hopes to have it ready for 1957.

"Since the festival from the beginning has been national in scope, supported by Canadians across the country and employing actors from every province, we are hoping to develop our campaign on a national scale," Mr. Bell said. Committees will be set up in Toronto, Montreal and other large centres to canvass for funds for the theatre.

Amphibious Jeep Takes Couple 20,000 Miles

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Frank and Helen Schreider have checked into Santiago on a 20,000-mile run by amphibious jeep from Alaska to South America's lower tip.

In high spirits despite hardships in crossing rivers, jungles and swamps, the Schreiders of Valley Center, Calif, soon will start out on their final 3,000 miles to Tierra del Fuego.

Before reaching their goal they must cross the generally rough waters of Magellan straits—"and we are going to cross it, and not on the ferry," said Helen, 29.

SAVED FOR YEARS

Frank, 31, and his wife saved for eight years to buy and fit their jeep and finance their dream trip which started from Circle City, Alaska, in July, 1954.

Since then the Schreiders—and their German Shepherd dog Dinah—have crossed some 125 rivers, navigated 600 miles in the Pacific ocean, hacked their way through jungles and scooted ahead of sharks.

"The turtle," as they call their jeep, has a specially built cabin with a bed and an electrical system. They said their equipment and expenses will cost them about $10,000.

The worst going was in Central America. Frank said that from Tapachula, in Southern Mexico, on into Guatemala, "it is mile after mile of almost impassable jungles and swamps."

TO REJOIN BRUINS

BOSTON (CP)—Johnny Peirson, sharp-shooting Boston Bruin right-winger, announced Monday that he will rejoin the National Hockey League club for the last half of the season, ending a 1½-year retirement. The 30-year-old Winnipeg-born sniper is tentatively scheduled to rejoin the goal-hungry Bruins Dec. 31 when they play the Rangers in New York.

Peirson scored 20 goals or more in four of his six full seasons with the Bruins.

VICTIM OF STAG PARTY BRAWL

A stag party at the Stratford, Ont., armory ended in tragedy for Stanley Roberts, shown with his wife. Roberts, 30, died in hospital the day after the party as the result of injuries suffered in a fall. Another Stratford citizen, William Henry Weitzel, 24, has been charged with manslaughter. Police believe the fatality occurred during a fight among guests at the stag. (Central Press Canadian).

Prices in United States Continue Upward Trend

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices in the United States continue their upward trend. The increases are slight and so far consumers have scarcely noted them. The touch of inflation, in fact, tends to add to the glow of the business boom by swelling the dollar volume of production and sales.

The consumer hasn't minded much because the one price he worries most about—the price of food—hasn't been touched yet. But meat-prices may have about hit bottom now. Government forecasts stress that rising prices of livestock are to be expected as the season of heavy marketing ends.

Price advances have just been announced for shoes and carpets, for cement and some plastics, for some steel products, copper, tin and silver. Transit fares rise here and there.

STUDY PRICE RISE

The oil industry, although it has unused capacity, is debating whether a price rise in crude oil would be wise. A number of steel men stress that further rises in that basic commodity are in order.

In almost all instances the price increases have been blamed on rising costs of materials or labor or both.

Ontario Highway Deaths, Injuries Drop in November

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Roberts said Monday night 44 persons were killed on Ontario highways in November, 19 fewer than for the same month last year.

The number of accidents, however, was 261 more than that of November, 1954. The number of injuries last month was 754, 41 fewer than a year ago.

Mr. Roberts gave the figures for the first month of a 12-month safety campaign during an address on provincial affairs over a network of Ontario radio stations.

The text of his speech was released to the press before delivery.

He said 91 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Ontario last month, 63 on roads under supervision of the provincial police.

"We must attack our problem month by month with renewed determination," he said. "From December, 1954, 88 persons died on highways in Ontario."

Mr. Roberts reiterating his objective of a 50-per-cent reduction in highway fatalities during the campaign, said the December death toll should not exceed 44.

Howe Hints Government Aid May Be Extended to Farmers To Meet Grain Storage Cost

EDMONTON (CP)—Trade Minister Howe hinted Monday night that the federal government may introduce legislation at the next session of Parliament aimed at aiding farmers to meet storage and carrying costs on surplus grain.

Mr. Howe was answering one of a series of questions fired at him for more than 90 minutes following a speech to the Farmers' Union of Alberta annual convention.

A delegate wanted to know, "Why can't the government issue money to pay for storage and interest on loans to farmers?"

"PRINTING PRESS MONEY"

The trade minister stressed he was not in favor of issuance of "printing press money" and then, referring to storage and carrying charges on now burdening some farmers, said:

"They are receiving consideration and something may be done in the next session of Parliament."

Another delegate said that during the war farmers took a reduced price for their wheat with the promise that they would receive some kind of compensation later.

Mr. Howe said Canada had reaped a reward for this policy because Britain now buys more wheat from Canada than from all other countries combined.

"Would you favor parity prices?" a delegate asked.

"We have seen the result of parity prices in the U.S.," replied Mr. Howe The results have been unpleasant, he said.

BUTTER CONSUMPTION

Taking butter as an example, he said, giving farmers what was considered a reasonable price had resulted in over-production of butter.

He mentioned that Canada sold butter recently at a lower price than the government had paid for it.

"I have heard more screams about that since coming out than about the price situation," Mr. Howe remarked. "Parity prices distort the production pattern."

In his speech, Mr Howe, said that despite grain storage and marketing problems, "grain is moving in volume into domestic and export markets."

Since Aug. 1, he said, producers have marketed about 140,000,000 bushels of grain, much of it from the new crop. He contended prairie producers are going to market average or better quantities of grain during the present crop year. More than 110,000,000 bushels of the total marketed since Aug. 1 had been exported.

Better Be Good English Writer Warns Dutchies

LONDON (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are warned that they'd better "train like iron men" for the world hockey championship in Italy early next year.

The Evening Standard's hockey writer says Russia's players are fast—man for man, probably faster than the Canadians. He offers this advice to Canada after watching the Soviet players make a clean sweep of a three-game exhibition tour in Britain:

"I do not know how good the Kitchener team is, but I hope they are heeding the red light. They must train like iron men, for they will not retain the world title for Canada on reputation alone."

He says that if the Dutchmen are used to playing a fast game, then hockey brains and experience will be the telling factor. "It is here," the reporter adds, "that Canada should have the advantage."

Last winter Penticton Vs won the world crown in a deciding match with the Soviet Union. But on the basis of Russia's three victories in England, The Standard warns:

"The Russian steamroller now is jet-propelled."

First Offshore Radar Platform Is $20,000,000 Artificial Isle.

By DON QUY

TEXAS TOWER, Cape Cod Mass. (AP)—The first off-shore radar platform in a $20,000,000 artificial island standing on three legs in water 70 feet deep, 110 miles off Cape Cod.

The 150 officers and men assigned to this station have nearly everything except freedom. You can walk only 200 feet in any one direction on the 8,000-ton triangular platform.

It is an air-conditioned penthouse decorated in 20 different colors, lived at isolated as if it sat atop the North pole.

Boston, the nearest good harbor, is 130 miles away. Since the tower was towed to the shoal from Boston last fair people getting on or off have had to be swung in a bucket from the platform deck 81 feet above the water. In good weather the chances of the 110-ton crane handing you on the bow of a ship are excellent. In rougher weather many passengers have spilled over board and had to be fished out. In really rough weather, the manoeuvre is too hazardous to attempt.

PLAN 'COPTER SERVICE

As soon as present construction equipment is cleared away, the United States Air Force plans to service the tower by large helicopters from Cape Cod. Smaller helicopters could make a safer landing on the limited deck space, but they haven't the range to survive more than 100 miles from shore and return non-stop if they cannot find the tower in a fog.

The tower, nicknamed after oil-drilling rigs off the Texas coast, is a self-contained unit with rows of machinery below decks. The three legs, 1,000 tons each, are of two-inch steel, 10 feet in diameter and filled with stone and concrete. They are 200 feet long, 50 feet in the sandy bottom, 70 feet through water and 180 feet in and out through the double-decked tower platform.

George's bank, the fishing shoal where the tower is located, provided codfish for New England for two centuries. In stormy weather fishing vessels always run for deeper water rather than ride out a blow on the treacherous shoals. Some fishermen considered the fixed tower a slitting duck for the first big storm They are more inclined to think it's here to stay after it weathered a 24-hour blow with hurricane-force winds. At one time two 80-ton fenders broke loose and battered the tower legs for hours until they destroyed themselves. The third fender was never installed, and the idea—protection against collision from a ship—has gone back to the drawing boards.

OCEAN LINER LIVING

Living quarters are more like a modern ocean liner than the usual service quarters; there is no barracks atmosphere. The kitchen is a stainless steel all-electric housewife's dream. A big coffee urn is always handy for self-service by men coming below from the rugged weather outside. Meals by a skilled staff of chefs are served round the clock for men working night and day shifts.

Basic power comes from huge diesel generators. They provide enough power to furnish a small city. Fuel oil is the major item that must be brought to the tower by tanker ship and the unloading is much like refuelling between navy vessels in the open sea with a long hose brought aboard and fuel pumped from the ship far below.

Two separate installations pump up salt water and turn out 2,000 gallons each of fresh water a day. In addition, there are reserve tanks that can be filled from water barges in summer months.

The big radar tower is covered with an arctic dome, a huge plastic bubble maintaining its shape by air pressure. To enter and leave the dome you must pass through double doors making an air lock. Requiring no supports, the plastic dome eliminates the possibility of blind spots on the radar scopes.

Net result of the radar installation is that the fixed protective fence has been extended 100 miles offshore. As one officer here says: "You put up your $20,000,000 and you get 10 minutes' extra warning."

Three more radar towers are planned, one on nearby Nantucket shoals and two farther south also on the Continental shelf.

Heroic Rescuer Has Pneumonia

WINDERMERE, B. C. (CP)—RCMP constable H. D. Bowyer, who used his body to wedge back a sliding wall of gypsum and ice to save a miner's life, is in hospital with pneumonia. He is reported in good condition.

The pneumonia followed exposure the constable suffered during the rescue of Albert Portman last week.

Forty men worked to save Portman while the 32-year-old constable stood spread-eagled his body to hold back a crumbling wall of gypsum which threatened to crush the trapped man, superintendent of the Columbia gypsum quarry here.

Cpral. Bowyer formerly lived in North Bay, Ont.

Poor Handwriting Has Cost Many Firms Plenty of Money

By ARTHUR HIGGS

NEW YORK (AP)—In this typewriter-infested age few know, or care, about Platt R. Spencer any more.

And yet only a little over a year ago a band of pilgrims reverently made its way to Geneva, Ohio, and the tomb on which is written in neat script, "P. R. Spencer."

At a time when many a person can't make out his own handwriting after it cools, this trip to the cemetery may have been symbolic.

For Spencer, dead these 90 years, once influenced writing habits. "He wrote a fine Spencerian hand," an author would say, confident that any reader would realize from this one sentence that his hero was dependable, dignified and, probably, successful.

These remaining disciples, members of the International Association of Master Penmen and teachers of handwriting, had come to the place where Spencer first taught his system and later was buried.

A LOST ART?

They did not record their thoughts on this occasion. But it seems inevitable that a few disturbing questions would arise.

Is fine writing, like Spencer, to die and be almost forgotten?

Will handwriting soon be all but a lost art?

Naturally the 200 or so remaining professional penmen are gloomy on these questions. But other less prejudiced sources also believe we now have a lot of sorry writers

Let's look at a few examples:

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. lost $50,000 a year because its operators wrote so poorly no one could figure out who should be charged with the calls. It began a program other businesses are copying: It hired an instructor to teach its employees how to write.

Insurance executives complain they can't read policy forms turned in by their salesmen. Forty-seven per cent say wretched writing loses them money.

Physicians are notorious writers, and the magazine Medical Economics shows one tragic result. A Missouri medical man wrote a prescription calling for 10 grams of a certain drug. To the druggist it looked like 10 grains. The story in capsule: Stricken patient . . . big lawsuit . . . testimony . . . jurors pear at prescription . . . verdict for the plaintiff . . . doctor pays off.

COSTS BANK MONEY

A Dallas bank official says illegible handwriting, by customers and by clerks, costs his firm $5,000 a year.

No one can say for sure how much business loses each year due to shoddy handwriting, but one guess puts it as high as $70,000,000 a year.

A group of fountain pen manufacturers, apparently afraid their product might become a museum piece like the stylus or the goose quill, last year set up the non-profit Handwriting Foundation. It since has attracted many outside the pen industry who feel that handwriting needs every boost it can get.

Is the picture really so bleak? Should parents make a determined effort to get schools to concentrate on penmanship?

Most school men say the answer to both questions is no. They agree that penmanship isn't given the attention it once was, but they say the hours saved are better spent on other subjects. And they insist that while the average student may not write a picture-book hand, he does have a simple style useful enough for most purposes.

Almost any adult over 35 can recall the hours spent at penmanship, remember the endless lines of overlapping Os? Or the push-pull of the pen in an effort to form an unbroken picket line?

The date of the decline and fall of this type of penmanship varies with the school system.

Some, of course, still have it. But in most schools it faded fast in the 1920s and 1930s due largely to a conviction on the part of many educationists that penmanship, as then taught, wasted time.

If schools slight handwriting, it would be in line with what seems to be a widespread attitude. Many a business man, no matter how much he deplores poor handwriting in others, has a signature that is indecipherable. And many a doctor scorns scribes a most unladylike scrawl.

ROSLIN — Dr. and Mrs. J. Empam and Heather, left yesterday for Kentucky and Florida, where they will spend the next few weeks.

A number from here attended the Odd Fellow's "At Home" in Thomasburg, last evening.

HOMECOOKING

. . . To print your own, that is. The Bank of England has made the counterfeiter's lot an even unhappier one by pressing a thin strip of aluminum foil into the paper used for making bank notes. Seems the do-it-yourself enthusiasts find it virtually impossible to duplicate.

It is nice to think that there will probably be a little bit of Canada wherever this new paper currency circulates. Great Britain imports 80% of her aluminum from Canada, and in turn represents one of the major markets for Canadian aluminum.

Star Hunt Proves Cloudy For Sonshine

TORONTO (CP)—Team manager Harry Sonshine of Toronto Argonauts in the Big Four Football Union returned to Toronto empty handed during the weekend after a talent hunt for college players in the United States.

"None of them signed and none of them agreed to sign," Sonshine said. He added the players refused to commit themselves until after the New Year's Day bowl games and the National Football League college draft.

"They want to see what contracts are offered them by NFL teams," Sonshine said. Argo coach Bill Swiacki accompanied him on the trip.

Sonshine admitted he is interested in Ohio State's 5-star halfback, Hopalong Cassady.

"I've talked to him twice but he isn't going to make any decision until his college football schedule is finished in the spring. Winnipeg has given him a pretty substantial offer—quite a bit more than ours—and Detroit won't let him go easily."

Sonshine said he also had talked to Hardiman Cureton, tackle-guard and captain of the University of California at Las Angeles team.

Damage Suit Against Olson Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Trial of a $500,000 damage suit against boxer Carl (Bobo) Olson, brought by Honolulu fight promoter Herbert Campos, was postponed to Dec. 12 Monday in federal court because of the middleweight champion's scheduled fight Friday night at Chicago with Sugar Ray Robinson. Campos charges Olson repudiated a contract with him to put himself under management of Sid Flaherty of San Francisco. Flaherty is a joint defendant in the suit, which seeks a third of the net proceeds of Olson's fights since June, 1951.

Johnny Saxton Ousts DeMarco As Contender

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Saxton of New York, Duilio Loi of Italy and Fred Galiana of Spain were elevated today to top ranking in their divisions in the latest boxing ratings of Ring magazine.

Saxton, an ex-champion, replaced another deposed welterweight king, Tony DeMarco of Boston, in the No. 1 contender's berth in the 147-pound class. DeMarco, who was stopped last Wednesday for the second time by champion Carmen Basilio, dropped "fighter of the month," by editor Nat Fleischer.

Loi, who recently defended his European lightweight title and has a long victory streak, was made the leading challenger for champion Wallace (Bud) Smith. Jimmy Carter, the ex-champ, was demoted to second.

JUMPS TO FIRST

Galiana, who captured the European featherweight crown from France's Ray Famechon, jumped from eighth to first among the challengers of 126-pound ruler Sandy Saddler.

France's Charley Humez moved back from third to second among the middleweights while Argentina's slugging 160 - pounder, Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight king, was dropped to eighth.

Hecht, of Germany, advanced from sixth to fourth among the 175-pounders.

Studied Boxing To Flee Red Regime

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — A 229-pound Polish heavyweight who fled to the West said Monday he took boxing lessons only to get out of his Communist-ruled country. But, he added, he learned to like it so much that he will keep up the sport when he emigrates to the United States.

Boder Joseph Bietron told a press conference that he "hated" the Red regime, and that therefore he sought asylum when he came to Herford, West Germany with the Polish national amateur team for a boxing meet last October.

Says Dodgers Will Sell Jackie Robinson

NEW YORK (CP) — The Post says in a dispatch from Chicago that Brooklyn Dodgers have asked for National League waivers on Jackie Robinson.

The newspaper quotes an "authoritative source" as saying that if the Dodgers can get waivers on Robinson he would be sold to an American League club for as much as $75,000.

It says Chicago White Sox, in need of a third baseman, are among the clubs ready to bid for the veteran Negro.

In Chicago, Buzzy Bavasi, Dodgers vice-president, denied that waivers had been asked for Robinson.

Vic Obeck Confirms Report He Will Resign From Executive Of Alouettes

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

MAGGIES TONIGHT

Two senior "B" clubs will be battling desperately here tonight in an effort to shake the "Skid Row" jinx that has gremlined them on recent outings. The Belleville TPT's and Brockville Magedomas, both suffering from the complexes, will attempt to crash the win column in what should be a stern battle of the leelanes.

The TPT's who have been carrying the injury jinx as excess baggage for the past three weeks have emerged on the short end of the scorin in their last six games, while the Maggies after ripping off three wins and two ties in a row, sagged and dropped the next three pastimes.

It will be the third meeting of the clubs this season, with Brockville coming up with a 7-3 win at home and a tie down thisaway. Since knocking off our side they have bowed to Kingston, Cornwall and Whitby. But on the credit side they are the only club on the circuit that can claim a victory over the lavrid Whitby Dunlops.

Al Kuntz, former New York Ranger, is the new playing coach of the Maggies succeeding Emile Dagenais who got the heave-ho from his mentor spot after the Maggies failed to grab any win points under his leadership. Kuntz swept the Maggies into that five-game no-loss string, but of late hasn't been doing so good.

Reports from Brockville state the Maggies have or will protest the game played last Friday night at Brockville when the Colts kicked out a 4-3 victory.

According to the official scorer at Cornwall a Brockville player got a minor penalty at 8.37 of the second period and at 11.14 he was still there. In the meantime the Colts scored a goal which tied the score at 3-3. The report stated it was an error on the part of the official timekeeper.

Wren Blair, the ebullient bleater from Whitby has apparently tired of firing his columnar guns at the rest of the clubs, with special ammunition for the Kingston Goodyears. Now he turns his weekly tirade on this department and the TPT's. Here is your powder-puff-day dosage:

"Belleville TPT's appeared here at the Arena on Wednesday evening, once again without a full club. Eleven players (7) appeared in the lineup, and the result was a dull-ard April 30 when he was the Whitby scout. The game also drew the season's smallest crowd, but even at that, it's a wonder that a Belleville game here drew as many as it did. We have the opinion of dozens of local fans to go on (and we agree) that this Belleville outfit is about the most disappointing club in the circuit. George Carver, Belleville sports editor, spends so much of his time ranting and raving at everyone else's supposed shortcomings, that he has completely missed the fact that Belleville has turned out one of the poorest clubs we have seen in the Eastern Senior League since we have been connected with it."

At pre-season meetings the Whitby roar for dressing only 14 players was the loudest of the circuit. It eventually carried. What Blair should know and directly ignored it, was the fact that the TPT's had three of their best players on the injured list for the game in question. In fact the TPT's have been injury-riddled for the past three weeks.

But why bother with such stuff. The circuit knows the power of the Dunlops. They're about the most powerful club in Ontario to wear senior "B" uniforms and they should take the title in their stride. But Blair, disappointed at what he thinks that the 1400 fans at every game he boasted about before the season started, have not materialized and is taking it out on what he terms is the mediocrity of the rest of the circuit.

In other parts of the group circuit some outstanding hockey is being played. The Kingston-Belleville game here last Friday was the best seen on the ice this winter. And there will be more good hockey games here and east 'o here despite the fact the Dunlops are making a runaway race of it.

Denies Severance from Club Stems from 3-Year Contract Given Coach Peahead Walker

MONTREAL (CP) — This football-minded town today buzzed with speculation concerning Vic Obeck's decision to sever connections with Montreal Alouettes and anxiously awaited a statement the popular executive expects to make Thursday.

Monday Monday confirmed reports that he has decided to resign as a vice-president and general manager of the professional Big Four club, but he would not go beyond stating the decision has "nothing to do with a disagreement with coach Doug Walker."

"I have a lot of things to think over," Obeck said. "I expect to make a full statement Thursday.

"One thing I want to make clear is that my personal problems in connection with my football work have nothing to do with a disagreement with . Walker. We are the closest of friends. I have always held him in high esteem as a football man and as an associate."

STOPS SPECULATION

That statement stopped, at least for the time being, speculation that Obeck's decision to quit arose over opposition to a new three-year contract for Coach Walker.

But speculation continued that in his statement, Obeck would announce his resignation effective with the end of the current year.

The club may retain the football organization—president Leo Dandurand and general manager Ted Workman—declined comment.

News of Obeck's plan—which some reports said would enable him to devote full time to his television and radio interests while Montreal was extending a ticker-tape welcome to the Alouettes, eastern Canada champions and runners-up to Edmonton in the Grey Cup classic.

WALKER SAYS ALL WELL

Walker himself indicated that all was well with him and Obeck. The coach implied this in a brief speech he made Monday night at the annual dinner of the Montreal Sportsman's Club.

Walker, who left Wake Forest College to join the Als in 1950, was signed last year to a contract running to the end of 1956. In Toronto Friday, Dandurand announced that Walker had been signed to a new three-year contract running to the end of December, 1958.

It was understood that Obeck, who joined Alouettes last year, held only a few shares in the Alouettes and that the principal financial backer was Workman, a local wealthy Montreal industrialist.

In addition to his duties with the Als, Obeck has conducted a weekly half-hour national television sports show, sponsored by a cigaret company. Mentioned as his possible successor in the Als' executive office was John McGill, son of Air Vice Marshal Frank McGill, a longtime friend of Workman from college days.

COACHED McGILL

Obeck, a former rugged lineman with Brooklyn and Chicago in the National Football League, came to Canada in 1947 to coach McGill's entry in the senior intercollegiate Football League. He resigned that coaching job in 1954 but remained at the university as director of athletics until joining the Als.

Monday night's sportsman's club dinner, at which Walker spoke, saw Dave Gill, president of the Ottawa Roughriders receive the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy for Avatus Stone, Stone, voted the most valuable player in the Big Four, is in a Toronto hospital recovering from an attack of influenza.

Main object of the dinner was to honor the city's athletes and sports executives. More than 700 turned out for the dinner.

Two other top awards went to Doug Harvey, all-star defenceman for the National Hockey League's Montreal Canadiens, and to Ed Brooke, fencing expert who was chosen the city's outstanding amateur athlete.

The James Foley Memorial Trophy, given annually to the top sports executive, was presented to Jack Davies, long active in a variety of amateur sports.

'Sugar' Dances Olson Gloomy At Weigh-In

CHICAGO (AP) — A laughing, joking Ray Robinson and a solemn Bobo Olson were examined by Illinois athletic commission doctors Monday and found in top condition for their 15-round middleweight title bout Friday night.

Challenger Robinson, who at 35 is trying to become the first boxer ever to regain the crown twice, chuckled:

"They found out I could breathe, walk and see. I'm ready all right. And I'm confident. But I'm not going to make any predictions. I never have before any of my other fights, and I'm not going to start now."

STARTED DANCE

Asked about the ankle he injured in training at his Greenwood Lake, N.Y., camp that forced postponement of the fight from Nov. 4, Robinson broke out with several tap-dancing steps.

"How do I look?" he smiled.

Robinson, who scored a 12-round knockout over Olson in 1950 and took a 15-round decision from him in 1952, is a 2½ to 1 underdog for the Chicago Stadium scrap. It will be televised in Chicago and forced 150-mile radius blacked out.

Champion Olson will receive 33 per cent of the gate and the $75,000 TV-radio package and Robinson 25 per cent.

Rocky Nelson Wins Six Baseball Titles

NEW YORK (AP) — Glenn (Rocky) Nelson, Montreal's veteran first baseman, made off with six International League offensive titles, including the batting crown, official averages released Monday show.

Bulwark of the pennant-winning Royals, Nelson easily won the 1955 batting championship, finishing with a .364 mark to .329 for runner-up Dick Williams, also of the Royals.

Nelson bpt hit the most home runs, 37, who drove in the most runs, 130. He scored the most runs, 118, compiled the most total bases, 333 and drew the most bases on balls, 118.

Hockey Player Regains Sight

OTTAWA (CP) — Forward Ken Campbell of Pembroke Lumber Kings had regained about 90 per cent vision in one eye which was damaged in a Northern Ontario Hockey Association game last week.

Dr. S. Y. Shirley of Ottawa said Monday following an examination of Campbell's eye that there was no permanent damage and it will be just a matter of time before full vision is restored.

The 31-year-old Pembroke player was poked in the eye with a high stick in a rough-and-tumble contest last Tuesday with Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians.

Coach Cuy Simon of the Lumber Kings said earlier that it required eight stitches to close two gashes caused by the blow.

Campbell will be missing from the Kings' lineup for about two weeks.

Montreal's Losing Alouettes Get Winners' Royal Welcome

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, losers of football's coveted Grey Cup, came home Monday to a winner's welcome.

Seldom has this fanatically sports minded city seen anything like it. Thousands lined a five-mile parade route to cheer their conquered heroes, while others showered ticker-tape and paper of all kinds from crowded office windows.

The parade was a delayed welcome for the Als who for the second consecutive year lost the Grey Cup to Edmonton Eskimos in Vancouver Nov. 26. On the return from Vancouver most of the team stopped in Toronto to participate in the East-West all-star game Saturday.

A convoy of gleaming convertibles carried the Alouettes through the city as football fans shouted words of praise and consolation to their heroes.

EACH IN A CAR

Each car of the 12-car convoy carried a member of the Alouettes as well as one or two red-parka clad majorettes. Autograph hounds besieged the cars stalling the procession on numerous occasions.

At city hall, Mayor Jean Drapeau officially welcomed the group. He told the team: "Montreal had every reason to be proud of you and we are proud of you."

The mayor said the Grey Cup event "was only a means and not a purpose." He reiterated that the city is at present waiting for final estimates on the cost of a new football stadium. "Possibly next year, but if not then the following year, the Alouettes will play in the largest stadium in Canada," he said.

Douglas Walker, coach of the Alouettes, thanked the mayor for the "great demonstration" and said:

"I love Montreal and I love Montreal fans. We're going to get that cup for you pretty soon."

Famous Ball Great Honus Wagner Dies in Sleep Near Forbes Field

PITTSBURGH (AP) — John (Honus) Wagner, all-time great shortstop who became a legend in his lifetime, died in his sleep today.

Members of the family were at the 81-year-old baseball immortal's former baseball player when he passed away at his suburban Carnegie home, only a few miles from Forbes Field where he achieved lasting fame with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"He just slept away," a member of the family said.

Honus, a man who liked a sly joke as well as a base hit, had been in poor health several years Two months ago he slipped and fell in his home. The family said his death was the result of complications from the infirmities of old age.

Wagner, sometimes called the greatest player in baseball history, was a bandy-legged barrel-chested Dutchman. He finished a 21-year major league career in 1917 with a lifetime batting average of .329. His final public appearance was last April 30 when he went to Schenley Park, outside Forbes Field, where he sat in an open car at the unveiling of a bronze statue in his memory. All Honus could say, as he pipped a tear from his cheek, was:

"How about that!"

Honus must brush aside praise for his regards.

He played more games than any other major leaguer in history—2,785. He had the most times at bat—10,427. He made the most total hits—3,430. He made the most one base hits—2,431, the most doubles—648, the most triples—230, he batted .300 or better for 17 consecutive years and led the National League in hitting for eight years.

And Honus stole six bases in a world series—another record.

In his prime Wagner was 5 feet, 11 inches in height and weighed 200 pounds. His long arms and bow legs led Lefty Gomez, one-time New York pitcher, to say Honus was the only baseball player who could tie his shoelaces without bending down.

Honus was a coal miner at 12. Later he joined an older brother in the barroling business But another brother, Al Wagner, got him an offer of $35 monthly to play for a Steubenville (Ohio) ball club. Honus, who loved to play baseball, said that was for him.

Oil Kings Like Coach Hannigan

EDMONTON (CP)—L. Rasmussen, manager of Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Junior Hockey League, said Monday night that "everybody's happy" about the team's coaching as a result of Monday night's game.

Regina Pats beat Oil Kings 5-4. There had been reports late last week that coach Ray Hannigan, formerly of Schumacher, Ont., had been placed on a two-game "reduce or else" trial by the management.

Hannigan is in his freshman year as coach.

To date in 16 WJHL games Oil Kings have won only five and are last in the four-team loop.

Tip to Toronto Maple Leafs! Better Score That 1st Goal If You Want to Win Games

MONTREAL (CP) — The pace-setting Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League apparently support the sporting maxim that first goals tend to be winners.

So do those first-day New York Rangers, driving hard as ever at their heels with 31 points to Montreal's 37 and two games in hand.

The 67 NHL games played so far this season show that the team scoring the first goal has gone on to victory 37 times, drawn 16 times and faded to drop 13 decisions. Two of the 67 were scoreless ties.

16 OUT OF 24

Rangers have sneaked in the first goal 14 times in 24 games, winning nine and drawing three. Fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs, in last spot, both could do with some playing power to preserve their early leads.

Hawks, who share a 22-point total with third-place Detroit Red Wings, have a six-one, six-tied record for the 14 games where they scored first. Toronto, with fifth-place seventh Boston Bruins have 20 points, led first 10 times, and won five of those.

Detroit and Boston each have gone ahead first eight times, each identical records of winning four of those and drawing two.

Big Jean Beliveau of Montreal continues to lead in the scoring competition with 29 points based on 16 goals and 13 assists. This is two points more than rival Gordie Howe of Detroit. Howe has four fewer goals but second place all his own after a slow start.

Canadiens' Bert Olmstead and Maurice Richard follow with 26 and 25 points respectively. Olmstead boosted his assist total to 21, still the league's best, while Richard's 14 goals kept him ahead of Rangers' Dave Creighton and Andy Bathgate, who also have 25 points.

Detroit's Ted Lindsay, league badman with 89 minutes in penalties, is pressing Beliveau's goal-scoring leadership from seventh place with 15 markers.

There have been five hat-tricks so far this season and aptly enough Rangers have scored two of them. Wally Hergesheimer

Four Ontario Centres Approve Two-Year Term for Aldermen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There were landslide victories and tie votes as many of Ontario's cities, towns, villages and townships held their municipal elections Monday.

In one case the town clerk cast the deciding ballot.

A woman mayor was elected to a record fifth term in one city and in a northern district town a new mayor and a whole new council swept into office.

Other highlights of the voting results:

Four centres—Toronto and suburban North York, Brantford and Sudbury—approved a two - year civic term of office;

TWO WOMAN MAYORS

Toronto and Welland turned down plans for new city halls;

Two women mayors were elected, one in her second bid for public office;

Toronto re-elected its first Jewish mayor for a second term;

London returned all but one member of city council;

Sudbury turned down a proposal for commercial Sunday sports but approved $850,000 plans for a rail-way underpass and a city library.

STARTS RECORD TREND

Toronto chose a two-year term for municipal officers after turning it down in previous votes. The four centres which voted on the question now join the 19 of Ontario's 25 cities who approved the measure previously

Electors in Toronto turned down a proposal for $20,000,000 skyscraper city hall and Welland voters defeated a by-law for a $380,000 city hall.

Bernadette Smith became the first mayor of Woodstock to return to office for a fifth term; no other mayor has held the post for more than three years. Mrs. Jane Forrester, Chicago-born doctor's wife, was elected Bellefield's first woman mayor. She polled a record aldermanic vote. She was not in her first attempt as a civic candidate.

Only one city official, Alderman Stanley Lee, who was appointed to fill a vacancy last August, was turned out in London elections. All other incumbent officials, including Mayor Ray Dennis, 60, were returned.

Theatre manager Napoleon Boucher edged out Mayor Albert Mongeon in Hearst and was joined on the elected list by six new councillors.

NEVER QUIT TRYING

Candidates Leon Metcalf and W. H. Johnson tied with 283 votes for the last spot on Capreol council since Alistair MacLean tipped the scales for Metcalf.

A tie vote resulted also in Sault Ste. Marie when Walter Chisholm and William Yarema each polled 3,598 votes for a place on city council.

There was no indication what the breaking action would result.

In Gananoque, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river, Aurelia Lucy, 70-year-old boat line agent squeezed into city council by a 10-vote margin.

He commented:

"I must have been lucky—this was my 13th try."

Trend Towards Longer Shows Now Seems Clearly Defined

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The trend, of U. S. television programming is now appears fairly well defined. It will be a year when the program of 90 minutes and longer predominates.

This is a healthy development for both the industry and the viewing public. As far as the industry is concerned big programs—in content as well as length—are a strong answer to the proponents of pay-see TV, a public that already has a variety of feature length entertainment on its TV screens is not likely to enjoy the prospect of paying to see unknown quality feature length entertainment on the same set.

Some observers believe that the networks' bitter opposition to pay-see TV has inspired the trend to longer shows. The motive is unimportant. What matters is that the public is benefiting with a variety of more imaginative programs than it saw a year and more ago.

WILL BE MORE

"Ford Star Jubilee" (CBS-TV), in presenting Noel Coward and Mary Martin as the only performers in a 90-minute period, uncovered a huge audience eager to be amused. Edward R. Murrow's "See It Now" pulls a big audience that wants to think about it. NBC-TV holds these diverse audiences in equally diverse 90-minute formats.

Now Robert E. Kintner, president of ABC, has placed his network on record as following the trend begun by NBC and CBS, "It is my guess," he said, "that next season will see many 1½ and two-hour programs in the daytime and nighttime on a regular basis. . . There is nothing sacred about the half-hour and hour slicing of programming."

Indeed there is not. In the field of dramatic shows, for example, it's impossible to treat with much critical seriousness the half-hour dramatic shows that simply don't by the hour programs. Now we have much speculative talk about 90-minute "Caine Mutiny Court-Martial" on CBS-TV and "Bonanza" whetted many a production pinag-nation.

Think Malenkov Is Promoted

LONDON (AP) — Georgi Malenkov, deposed Soviet premier, was described in a Moscow radio broadcast Monday as "first deputy chairman of the U. S. S. R. council of ministers." That would make him also a first deputy premier, the council being the Soviet equivalent of a cabinet.

It is not clear whether Malenkov is again moving up the ladder of power in the Soviet Union. Since he was forced out of the premiership last February he had been described merely as a deputy chairman—without the "first."

Chemical Plant Blast Hurts 8

EDMONTON (CP) — One man was seriously injured and seven others required hospital treatment after an explosion Monday at a chemical plant on Edmonton's eastern outskirts.

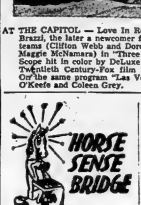
The blast in the acid-recovery unit of the $53,000,000 Canadian Chemical Company plant rocked the area for miles around and shrouded the sprawling plant in a heavy pall of smoke.

D. Pickersgill, plant fire department chief, was severely hurt while fighting the fire which followed the blaze. Four of the eight men taken to hospital were released soon after treatment.

Forest Fires Swept Big Area

TORONTO (CP) — The department of lands and forests said Monday a preliminary survey shows there were 2,247 fires in the province this year. They burned more than 351,500 acres.

T. E. Mackey, chief of the department's forest protection service, said lightning was the chief cause of the fires. Lightning fires burned 261,225 acres.



Cost of extra fire-fighting services was $2,365,000 of the loss of saleable timber was 170,758,761 cubic feet on crown land and 440,368 cubic feet on private land.

The value of the saleable timber affected by the crown only was $1,711,991. Value of the private property other than timber burned was $38,768.

There were 196 prosecutions and 93 convictions for infraction of the fire area. Two men were killed fighting fires.

AT THE CAPITOL — Love In Rome — Jean Peters and Rossano Brazzi, the later a newcomer from Italy, form one of three love teams (Clifton Webb and Dorothy McGuire, Louis Jourdan and Maggie McNamara) in "Three Coins in the Fountain," Cinema-Scope hit in color by DeLuxe now at the Capitol Theatre. The Twentieth Century-Fox film was made in Rome and Venice. On the same program "Las Vegas Shakedown" starring Dennis O'Keefe and Coleen Grey.

1 ♦	2 ♠	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♦	5 ♠	5 ♦	Pass
5-NT	Double	Pass	Pass
	Double	All Pass

The west two diamond bid was an overcall in opponent suit. Such a defensive bid guarantees to partner no losers is that suit with a hand of nine tricky, as good as an opening two bid.

It is an order to partner that the pair should not stop short of a game in something; unless they can defeat opponents for more by a penalty double. These are what the ops promises and orders.

Partner of the ops is expected to show his longest suit. But if there is an intervening bid, partner of the ops may pass until a later round. Which is what happened here.

When west doubled three spades he announced expectation of more gain by defeating it than by going to game. This nullifies the east obligation to keep the bidding alive any further.

Realizing that he was in trouble with spades as trumps, the south player decided to take a chance at no-trump. Defeat of this looked as though he could not be blamed for doubling.

It is likely that north considered it a waste to bid clubs. This as you can see, would be like jumping from the hot skillet into the boiling soup. A rescue, Gibraltar, is in your own hand.

West ran his four hearts and then could not defeat the doubled three no-trump contract. When such a thing can happen, anything can.

Imogene Coca Had No Reason For Giving Up Fat Contract

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Have you ever done something in your life for which you can give no good reason?"

This was Imogene Coca's comment on the fact that she gave up a television contract which would have guaranteed her $100,000 annually for the next nine years.

It happened a couple of months ago, and Imogene is still not quite sure why she did it.

"Everything in my life has been calculated," she observed. "This is the one thing I did that was not reasoned out.

NOBODY PROTESTED

"But think it must have been right or somebody would have protested. told my lawyer and my agents my decision and all they said was, 'Shouldn't you think it over?' told them had thought it over and I wanted out.

"Then they told NBC and the network people said, 'Shouldn't she think it over?' They said I had thought it over, and that was all there was. The contract was dissolved."

She has had no regrets. Her earning power will no doubt exceed what NBC would have paid her. She has returned to night clubs, having played the Sahara in Las Vegas, and now is appearing here at the Beverly Hilton. Following she'll do a satire on TV in a spectacular for her old "Show of Shows" boss, Max Liebman. She is being sought for her dramatic debut on TV by the "Steel Hour" and "Producer's Showcase."

So don't fret about our Imo; she's doing fine.

VARIETY IS KEYNOTE

That isn't true of her last adventure in TV. When she, Liebman and Sid Caesar split up their Saturday night show and tried to a half-hour format. It died.

"It's almost impossible to fit a revue-type performer into a 20-minute show. You don't have time to work up to anything or to give a variety of performances."

Variety is the keynote of her future career instead of sticking to TV, she'll dabble in all fields.

Despite her new-found freedom, she has nothing against the weekly TV. "I think it's swell to do a weekly show that it is to do TV once a month. When you're on so seldom, you have to make each appearance really count. You can't afford to have any mistakes."

Russian Church Officials Guests At Reception

TORONTO (CP) — Three Russian church officials Monday night ended their second day in this country with a first-hand look at a Canadian church.

Archbishop Boris of the Russian Orthodox Church, Archpriest Konstantin Ruzhitsky, rector of Moscow theological seminary, and Anatole Gorbachev, seminary registrar, were guests of the United Church of Canada at a reception in Toronto's Metropolitan church.

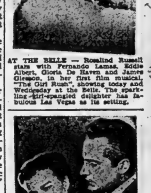
Three hundred clergy and laymen greeted the Russians at the reception which preceded a brief service in the church.

One of those who shake hands and chat with the archbishop was James Endicott, former United Church minister and a winner of the Stalin peace prize, Mr. Endicott said he was in favor of such visits because he felt they helped break down world barriers.

"I can't understand why, when the Russian Orthodox Church is in communion with the Anglican Church in Canada,' Mr. Endicott said.

VISIT NIAGARA FALLS

Speaking through an interpreter after the church service, Archbishop Boris said:



"My dear friends, brothers and sisters in Jesus Christ. It is a great pleasure for me to greet you on behalf of our church. From a land far away, even on the other side of the ocean, I come with two helpers to bring greetings.

"Although we are separated by lands and seas, our hearts beat together in Christian love and understanding. Our compatriots in Moscow and the holy synod of our church send the people in this church their blessings and not only by our greetings and blessing to all the people of this land so the Kingdom of God may be established and strengthened."

Wednesday the Russians go to Niagara Falls. Thursday they take to Welland and dine at Lambton golf club before returning to Russia late next week, they are scheduled to visit Ottawa and Edmonton.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, December 7, 1955

March 21 to April 19 (Aries) — Neither an overfriendly nor a hindering day. Selfishness and thoughtlessness of others can boomerang undesirably. Acquiescence, rightly applied, can be helpful as you go forward.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your Venus' position now sponsors the new and unusual in methods, ideas, materials.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Today's influences stress a need for observation and forethought. Well made plans, coupled with calm action, will bring efforts to desired conclusions.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Today can be gainful if you profit by past experiences.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Not a complicated outlook today but, nevertheless, be choosey in planning and directing your efforts so that you may get the most for your work. Be honest in intent, motivated by selfless desires. You will benefit.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — It might be more advantageous now if you keep a schedule and don't deviate too greatly from sound thinking. But, don't let good leads slip by.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Probe prospects carefully, and side-trip the risky ventures. Most matters and activities will call for keen judgment now. Finish tasks started but plan on new ideas, too.

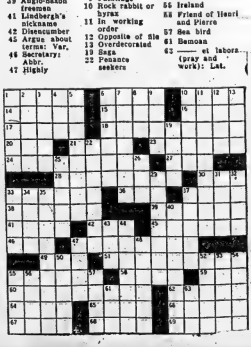
October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — This should be an opportune day for new businesses, travel, making essential changes and renovations, for science and investigations. These are all in your line and can be very profitable.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius).— You may be doubly enterprising now. Independent, and impressive, too. Your intuition should be unusually keen but keep a level head while. Fresh opportunities in creative work.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn3 — Freshly favored: Railroading, engineering, aeronautics, radio, electronics, chemistry, all research, new discoveries. Carpentry, mining, dealing in all kinds of metals can advance.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Steady, if not showy, achievement possible — especially in skilled trades, agriculture, inventions. Venus' aspect stresses attention to personal needs but do not neglect duties.

February 2 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Confidential and government matters need tactful handling now. The day holds promise for trained and skilled work.



„You born today have sturdy and likeable qualities; can be agreeable under duress and irritations. Study carefully your best points and develop them fully. You are enterprising, soundly ambitious and intelligent. Your natal planet, Jupiter, favors unusual achievement in many fields, such as law, journalism, writing, music, business management.

Birthdate: Allan Cunningham, Scotch poet, man of letters.

Cleveland Boy, 17, Chained To Tree Then Set Afire

Says Three Strange Youths Poured Turpentine on Him

CLEVELAND (AP) — A frail, scholarly boy, his naked body blistered with burns and tree limb dragging from a chain around his waist, lurched into Fairview Park Hospital Tuesday night through a kitchen door. He said three other youths had chained him to a tree, drenched him with turpentine and lighted it.

Suffering second- and third-degree burns over 85 per cent of his body, 17-year-old Earl R. Fryman was in poor condition today in the hospital.

The attack took place in the heavily wooded Rocky River valley near the westerly suburb of Fairview Park. Fryman had to walk a mile to reach the hospital, which sits on the edge of the deep valley.

He told police that three strange youths about his own age picked him up in a car on Detroit Ave. Sunday morning as he was hitch-hiking to school. But instead of taking him to school, they held him captive and drove around Cleveland until dusk, he said.

CHAINED TO TREE

Then, for some reason, the three became "mad at everything," and drove down into the river valley where they chained him to a tree, secured the chain with a padlock, and set him on fire. Fryman said the boys explained their motive.

He said that when the youths left he broke loose from the tree and rolled on the ground to put out the flames.

Police found his clothing snagged on a branch overhanging the river. An empty turpentine can lay nearby and Fryman's school books were on the river bottom.

The chain locked around him when he appeared at the hospital was about three feet long. The tree branch in the chain was 12 feet long and about an inch and a half in diameter.

Mothers Race For Prize Money In Foster's Will

TORONTO (CP) — The three Toronto mothers who have borne the most children in the last 10 years will be rewarded Christmas early in the new year, thanks to an unusual will left by the late Thomas Foster, millionaire and former city mayor, who died in December, 1945.

Mr. Foster willed that $1,250 be paid to the mother who has borne the most children since his death; $800 to the mother of the second largest family; and $450 to the mother of the third-largest.

The will required that the mother be a Toronto resident since a year before Mr. Foster's death. All children must be borne in wedlock.

TWO HAVE SEVEN

"Mr. Foster never intended there be a race for prize money," said Arthur L. Fleming, executor of the will. "He was always greatly impressed with the place a mother occupies in her home and the trouble she has to in looking after her children."

"This is his way of benefitting mothers who have the most to care for. He was a member of a large family himself."

Two mothers, Mrs. Madeleine King and Mrs. Evelyn Bright, both have seven children. Both were born in the last 10 years. In the case of a tie, Mr. Foster's will says the money will be divided evenly. Applications must be in by Jan. 10, Mr. Fleming said.

Prime Minister Eden May Talk To Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Eden probably will address Parliament during his visit here in February with British Foreign Secretary Macmillan.

However, a government spokesman said plans for the visit have not yet been fully worked out.

It also is likely that the British ministers will attend meetings of the cabinet defence committee and committees.

Eden and Macmillan will come to Ottawa after a Washington meeting with President Eisenhower beginning Feb. 4 and expected to last several days. They are expected here about Feb. 8 or 9 and probably will spend two or more days in the capital before returning to London.

Elected 11th Time, Has Never Faced Vote

BURKS FALLS (CP) — For a man whose name has never appeared on an election ballot, Reeve Stan Darling is doing all right in municipal politics.

Tuesday the popular insurance broker was elected reeve of this village, 45 miles south of North Bay, for the 11th straight term, by acclamation.

Martin Appeals To Reds to Help Control Missiles

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) Health Minister Martin of Canada appealed today to Russia for help in solving the deadlock over international guided missiles.

He warned that perfection of the dread new weapons poses the threat of an arms race greater than the world has ever known.

Canada's chief UN delegate, addressing the First Committee (Political) committee, coupled his appeal with a sharp denunciation of Soviet political maneuvering.

He called for early agreement on those disarmament measures which now appear feasible, and on arrangements for warning against surprise attack, as proposed in a draft resolution sponsored by Canada and the Western big three.

Martin said the major powers are devoting an increasing proportion of their research effort to perfecting means for delivering nuclear weapons "almost instantaneously to any part of the world." Defence against these weapons was "not yet scientifically possible," but would require many years to develop.

Tillsonburg Folk Saw Flying Saucer And Have Photograph to Prove It

TILLSONBURG (CP)—A family of four say they have seen, watched for several minutes, photographed and are prepared to describe in detail a noiseless, seamless, round object which moved through the sky near their home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Huron Clark, their sons, George, 19, and Floyd, 18, reported yesterday that they took a picture of what they believed was a flying saucer. They said it was shaped like a right-angle turn to the east and disappeared.

But the object took so long to do this, George had time to run inside the farm home, return with his inexpensive camera and make two exposures.

Tuesday when the film was developed and printed by the London Free Press there appeared in the picture a hazy, circular, an oval-shaped ring with a light-colored centre.

The family was the butt of flying saucer jokes until the photographs appeared.

VIOLENCE TOLL STILL MOUNTING IN MOROCCO

Ben Youssef Sets New Govt. in Motion

RABAT, French Morocco (AP)—Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef today sets Morocco's first representative government in motion amid a mounting toll of violent death in the French protectorate.

Mohammed Bekkai, nominated premier by the sultan Nov. 26, presented his 20 cabinet ministers at the ruler's palace at noon for the oath-taking ceremony.

The U.S. task for Bekkai's government will be to hammer out a new agreement with France replacing the 43-year-old treaty under which the French have held the territory under their control.

The French have promised the Moroccans widely expanded self-government at home, but plan to retain control of the northwest African country's defences and foreign relations. Morocco's biggest nationalist party, the Istqlal (Independence), already has announced that it wants complete independence.

With nine of the 20 seats, the Istqlal is the largest single faction in the new cabinet. The other members are nationalists of a more moderate stripe, like Bekkai. They include six members of the Democratic Party for Independence (PDI), four Independents and one representative of the large Jewish minority.

ADVISED SULTAN

Bekkai himself is an Independent and a close adviser of the sultan, whom the French ousted from his throne 2½ years ago because of his pro-nationalist leanings, then brought back from exile in a move to ease the government of five successive sultans as a grand vizier.

El Mokri's successor, Bekkai, is a 48-year-old French army veteran who lost a leg in the 1940 retreat of France and relieved as a lieutenant-colonel. Before this personal ties link with the French, he was the sultan's trusted personal representative in France during Ben Youssef's two years of exile in Madagascar. He participated in the ruler in the negotiations which resulted in his return.

The PDI party is claiming the last of his ministers, the bodies of eight Moroccans were found at Selibia, Mediterranean port city near the Algerian frontier. Their heads had been crushed.

Police Arrest Husky Indian In Probe of Pig-Sty Murder

MELBOURNE, Ont. (CP) — Edward Waucaush, 38-year-old Muncey reserve Indian, today was charged with murder in connection with the pig pen slaying last weekend of a bachelor farmer.

Waucaush was arrested at his home on the Muncey reserve by three OPP constables at 7:30 a. m.

The six-foot-three inch treaty Indian was wanted by police for questioning in connection with the slaying Sunday night of Daniel Mullins, 59, and the shooting of his 30-year-old mother, Mrs. Minnie Mullins.

The arrest climaxed a search which started Tuesday when a hunter found a car owned by Mullins abandoned in a lane on the reserve.

The car had been the object of a province-wide search after Mullins was shot and killed while feeding his pigs.

Police armed with riot - guns, rifles and tear gas bombs scoured the reserve until dark Tuesday night looking for the suspect after it was learned he had borrowed a .22 calibre rifle and was last seen in the

Says Govt. Makes Dairy Body Scapegoat for Butter Policy

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government was accused today of delay of making the National Dairy Council of Canada the scapegoat of its "impractical" butter price-support policy.

Grant M. Carlyle of Calgary, president of the council, told the annual meeting of the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association that the policy has resulted in consumers paying a fixed, artificially - high price for butter. It also permitted seasonal spreads such as margarine to be sold at lower prices.

Mr. Carlyle said the council, which represents some 600 dairy processors, believes that the long-term aim of the butter industry should be towards consumption of butter on the free-market with a free market price.

However, he said "I have never suggested that the present price of butter is due to expire next May."

(Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the federal - provincial agriculture conference Tuesday that he will urge the cabinet to extend the support policy beyond May 1 unless some groups are successful in apparent attempts to break down the program. In an interview, he said one of these groups is the National Dairy Council of Canada.)

While Mr. Carlyle proposed lower butter prices to consumers and no subsidization in the price received by producers, he did not suggest any method to make this possible.

However, he said most countries have some method of controlling the price and marketing of dairy products.

The butter processing industry he said, wants no more than a fair profit at any time. If the earnings of the industry are considered over a period of years it will be found that they are modest.

The statements were included in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Plot Against Argentina's Govt. Is Broken

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A plot against the government which installed seventy military officers has been broken in Mendoza, a city in western Argentina, Saperoli news agency reported today.

The account said the plot was discovered Tuesday after an air force non-commissioned officer told authorities about it.

There was no official announcement of the plot, or even any indication here that one had been discovered.

The provisional government of Gen. Pedro Aramburu has been in office only 24 days. Gen. Edgardo Lonardi, leader of the revolt which overthrew dictator Juan Peron in September, was ousted Nov. 13.

CLEMENT ATTLEE RESIGNS AS LABOR PARTY LEADER

Has Held Office For Twenty Years

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Clement Attlee bowed out today as leader of Britain's Labor party, paving the way for an anticipated three-way contest for the leadership.

His resignation, just 28 days before his 73rd birthday, was announced at a private meeting of the parliamentary Labor party in the House of Commons. Character istically, Attlee spoke only briefly, making no fuss about his profits.

Today's announcement means that Attlee no longer holds any office in the Labor party. Herbert Morrison, ex-deputy leader, is expected to take charge of the party until elected by a new leader.

The former prime minister's departure after 20 years in office ended a record which may be a first in political leader in this century. When he was defeated by succeeding pacifist-minded George Lansbury in the autumn of 1935 he was regarded as a compromise choice, and few thought he would stay long.

IDEAL CHAIRMAN

But this small, unspectacular man, who combined with it the power to lower the political temperature in any situation, proved an ideal chairman for a thrusting party.

He suffered a stroke recently but war up and around again five days after. His decision to retire came after repeated urging by his family and particularly his wife, Violet, who drove him car on election campaigns.

Attlee's going may open new difficulties within the party. The struggle for the succession, billed here as the "leadership stakes," is expected to involve three leaders of major personality, and may leave bitterness in its wake.

Those expected to run are Hugh Gaitskell, 49, Morrison who will be 68 next month; and Aneurin Bevan, 58, fiery left-wing leader.

Normally Morrison, as Attlee's No. 2 man, would be in line for the post, but parliamentary analysts are none too confident of his chances. He has not been at least by the time another election is in sight, and many Labor MPs have been critical of his recent performances in the House.

GAITSKELL FAVORED

The new leader will be elected in balloting among the parliamentary Labor party, and the result will probably be made known before Christmas. He must secure and obtain a clear majority of the votes cast. There now are 274 Labor members in the House of Commons.

Most British lobby correspondents are making no secret of their support for Gaitskell as the probable choice. He entered politics after the war, has risen steadily and considerably in the last two years. It is generally believed that Gaitskell will accept an earldom and move up to the House of Lords, the traditional practice of the party in that more leisurely chamber.

FOUND IN CREEK

ORILLIA (CP)—Richard Lanman Mawdsley, 63-year-old Oro township resident was found dead this morning in Brough's creek about a mile from his home.

His body lay in about a foot of water where he had apparently fallen over the edge of a bridge without a railing.

Violent Gas Explosion Buries 32 Germans Alive

Crashing of Roof and Walls Heard Two Miles Away

FRANKFURT, Germany (CP)—A new downtown apartment building crashed in ruins following a terrific explosion early today, killing 26 German residents, including the owner-architect.

All 32 persons in the building were buried by the tumbled bricks in the worst disaster of West Germany's vast post-war rebuilding program. Twenty-five apparently died instantly. Another succumbed to injuries in hospital later.

Seven persons were removed alive but injured from the 20-foot-high mass of wreckage. They were three men, two women and two children, including a 13-year-old boy who was carried out on a stretcher after being buried six hours. A mumsy was "found alive" ran through the crowd of spectators.

The early-morning explosion collapsed the building while most occupants were still asleep. The roof and all walls crashed with a roar heard two miles away.

Police said that at the time of the blast there were 11 men, 11 women, a newborn baby and a visitor in the building.

BLAMED ON GAS

Gas from the building heating system was believed the cause.

The adjacent apartment house, damaged by the blast, was evacuated as a safety measure. On the other side of the wreckage was a four-storey apartment building still under construction.

As the rescue operation continued, workers brought out bits of clothing, blankets and books. A soldier digging into the wreckage found a child's small red accordion.

A United States Army crane lifted giant blocks of concrete from the heap. After each block was removed, 150 German police and American soldiers closed in immediately and started digging with their hands. A pneumatic drill cut through some chunks of concrete.

It was the worst disaster of its kind in post-war Germany.

One survivor, a man in pajamas, was found with an overturned bed, a bathtub which sheltered him from the debris. A 28-year-old woman was rescued between two blocks of concrete which had protected her similarly.

Mendes-France Expects Victory

PARIS (Reuters) — Ex-premier Pierre Mendes-France, leader of a new left-wing coalition including the powerful French Socialist party, today forecast victory over Premier Edgar Faure in the battle for the right-wing parties in the Jan. 2 general election.

He told a crowded press conference that his newly formed Republican Front would present voters with a choice between "a clear-cut program of action" and a government "which has never been able to agree on anything."

The Socialist party Tuesday night voted overwhelmingly to form an alliance with the former premier if Radical Socialist party in a move to split the first stable government since the war.

Will Ask Russian Clergy to Seek Prelate's Release

TORONTO (CP)—A letter asking visiting Russian churchmen to "show their good faith" by negotiating the release from a Siberian labor camp of a Ukrainian Catholic Church prelate was to be delivered today.

Rev. George Dorey, United Church moderator, met with officials of Church in Canada this morning and agreed to deliver personally the letter containing the request.

Rev. Peter Chomyn and Rev. Leonard Dribnenky, priests representing the Canadian Ukrainian Church, said they have asked Archbishop Boris, leader of the Russian party, to negotiate the release of 63-year-old Joseph Slipyj, metropolitan of Halych, archbishop of Lvov and bishop of Kemenetz in the Ukraine.

The Canadian priests said they asked that the cases of seven Roman Catholic bishops sentenced with Metropolitan Slipyj also be considered. They said four other bishops, sentenced to forced labor, at the same time, have since died.

The Canadian priests said they decided to submit the letter as a "positive approach to test the Russian's good faith."

They asked Archbishop Boris if, "in view of Russia's religious freedom, the Orthodox Church has any objection to re-establishment of the Ukrainian Catholic in the Ukraine." It was abolished in 1946.

Dog Whimpering Over Spot Guides Police to Body Buried 2 Years Ago

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—A woman's skeleton, chipped by police hammers from a concrete tomb in the home of a former city clerk, has started a bizarre investigation.

The grisly find—solved the disappearance 29 months ago of Mrs. Barbara Alexander, 27. But in turn it led to new and macabre puzzles.

Mrs. Alexander's body, the hands bound behind her back, was found in the basement of the home of her husband, James, 48, a former school teacher here.

"The body was pointed out to us by the grief-stricken husband," county attorney Ray Whittaker. "That person was Mrs. Rose Alexander."

Rose Alexander is James' former wife and also his present—wife. Married some years ago, they had four children and later were divorced. Alexander then married Barbara Alexander, who had two children by a previous marriage and one by Alexander. All the children lived at Alexander's home.

DUCKS NUMEROUS BUT WISE

Ducks are quite numerous in the district, but hunters are convinced that modern generations of waterfowl are wiser, and have learned to avoid decoys and areas where hunters are known to set up their camouflaged shelters. 28 hunters were checked one morning by Conservation Officer Winters. The total was divided into eleven of a species which was edible." There was an additional total of nine, but these were old squaw and merganser.

Theatre Guild Training Program Is Being Planned

Increased activity in theatre work is definitely indicated from the results of the meeting of the Belleville Theatre Guild held last week at Pine Grove School. Ed Bloomfield, chairman of the training survey committee, gave a report summarizing efforts of the committee in the past month to uncover experienced persons willing to help the Guild initiate an active training program in all phases of theatre work.

Mrs. Elaine Jardine gave a brief report on the progress of the Guild act play she will direct for the Guild for festival competition early in the new year.

The committee reported that it had successfully secured acting people who are prepared to give training in stage direction, acting, costuming, lighting, set erection and production, stage management, front-of-house management, business and tickets.

The committee was also very pleased to report that Mrs. Joan Tanner and Mrs. Ruth Cooper have prepared to help any and all workshop play directors who felt in need of assistance.

The committee's inquiries revealed that expert assistance is from Toronto, Kingston and Ottawa is available in a practical out if the Guild desires to take advantage of these training sources. Mrs. Lillian Valance, who is the executive professional experience in English Theatre, has very generously offered her services to the Guild. The Committee was asked by Mr. Court Miller, who was in the chair in the absence of the president, to meet with Mrs. Valance and prepare, if possible, a detailed program of training activity for the New Year.

It was also reported that a gratifying response to the training questionnaire sent out recently revealed that a large number of Guild members desire instruction in practically all phases of theatre work.

The committee recommendations, endorsed by the executive, were: to make an immediate start on at least two workshop plays and institution of a training program in the most popular courses as revealed by the returned questionnaires. It is fully expected that extensive activity will commence with the first meeting in January.

Mrs. Jardine stated that she had chosen a tentative play but preferred to withhold the title until it had been read and approved by the executive. She did state that the cast included fourteen parts, eight female and six male, and that she thought she had successfully negotiated the difficult problem of choosing a play with good public appeal which would still meet the rather special requirements of festival work. Casting will take place at the first meeting in January and will be restricted to people who are paid-up members of the Guild in accordance with the constitution.

The meeting closed with a 10 minute address by Mr. Sam Wolfe who is business manager of the Dominion Theatre in Kingston. Mr. Wolfe outlined some of the operating procedures of this group with particular attention to purchasing practices. Mr. Wolfe also offered his services to the Guild and has been instrumental in lining up possible help in Kingston in voice and movement.

Location of New Pound for Dogs Still Undecided

Belleville city council is having trouble locating its proposed new dog pound.

Initially a new dog pound was proposed for the East Moira St. district.

The type of building was approved by city council and tenders were called for its construction. But tenders received were considered too high and residents living near the proposed site disapproved of the dog pound being built in their locality.

Last night at city council a new suggestion was forwarded in the form of a recommendation to purchase certain property owned by Fred Eigle on Coleman Flats for the sum of $4,000. The property consisted of five buildings on Dundas Street and a building which could be developed into a dog pound.

It is considered thought the purchase price was too high and after 20 minutes discussion on an amendment table' by Alderman Ben Safe to offer $3,750 for the property.

The original recommendation was moved by Alderman Graham, Frank Grandaine, who said he felt the Coleman Flats property was the most suitable site for a new dog pound. He felt the building could be developed at reasonable cost.

But other aldermen had different views. Alderman Enos David asked how much it would cost to purchase the property, while Alderman Safe questioned the necessity of a new dog pound entirely, noting that the project may cost $7,000 or $8,000 before completion "and we would still have an old building."

Alderman McCabe, as chairman of the special council committee appointed to study the matter of a new dog pound, said she had been "shocked" at the price of $4,000 for the Eigle property. "I feel it is too much and the property would take considerable to put into condition," she said.

WANTS LAND FOR ROAD

Alderman Keegan took a slightly different view. His opposition of council to the proposed purchase was based into the fact from Highway 401. He noted the route of this proposed road would be almost Fahey Street and pointed out if the city purchased the property in question would mean that much less property to appropriate to the right of way.

Mayor J. Both brought up the question of no services being available at the property and asked if a cesspool would be allowed in the area.

Alderman Grandaine took exception to the attitude of certain aldermen of the committees of special committee failed to attend special meetings and criticized others on the committee trying to do the work.

"Obviously that remark is aimed at me," Alderman Safe commented, "but I would like to let know of the last meeting of the committee I was unable to attend at others."

He wanted on the record, however, that he was in favor of a new dog pound.

Alderman Graham said he also favored a new dog pound but he felt the present site "unsatisfactory tion." He wanted to know how urgent the need for a new pound was and suggested council might be buying the property at the present time.

Alderman David brought in an amendment to the recommendation which would have offered $3,500 for the property in question, while Alderman Safe tabled the second amendment offering $2,750 which was ultimately passed by council.

Name Clem Crowe To Coach Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clem Crowe was named today as the man who will guide the British Columbia Lions through their third Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

Crowe, former coach of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four, replaces Annis Stukus, fired by Lions' directors at the end of the 1955 season. He was selected at a closed directors' meeting Tuesday night.

Council Officially Winds Up Business, Adjourns Till Jan.

Belleville city council officially wound up its business for this Monday night and at the conclusion of the two-hour conclave was adjourned until the inaugural meeting early in January.

Little business of importance was transacted at the meeting although aldermen waxed loquacious on a couple of topics, one of which resulted in council voting $2,500 to the Belleville Arena Commission to assist in reducing the commission's current bank draft.

Alderman Tice as Arena Commission chairman noted that the loan was necessary because of certain emergency payments, which the commission was forced to make. Expenditures had included painting, roof repairs, purchase of turnstiles, insurance and utility payments.

He defended the position of the commission by noting that since the beginning of the current operational season for the arena the commission had shown a profit of $350.

Ald. Tice was unable to answer a question from Ald. Grandaine as to what the anticipated revenue of the arena would be this season. He noted, however, that at present the ice was providing six to seven hundred dollars a week and receipts were coming about $400 every two weeks.

Alderman Gerald Hyde, as committee chairman, noted that the financial position of the arena was worse than had been represented in the press and suggested a special meeting of council be held in the near future to discuss the matter.

He added actually the arena was roughly $23,000 in the hole and in his opinion would be unable to pay back what was owing the city.

MUCH FREE TIME GIVEN

He pointed out, however, that the arena was owned by the city and that much free time was being afforded juvenile hockey. He felt the arena could break even if the commission could but would not be able to catch up the deficit owing from past years.

One of the reasons for the present financial position of the arena was there was no more Trent Valley Intermediate hockey to help pay expenses. He felt the city had no alternative but to loan the commission the $2,500 requested.

Alderman Safe agreed that the commission had done the best they could and suggested that the arena was "one of the costly civic necessities," and that it must carry itself. He also suggested no fashion possible.

Alderman Keegan also felt the city must provide the funds asked, while Ald. Graham felt promotion was needed for the arena. He also suggested also that the commission might be in a position to insurance by reducing the insured risk.

After a bit more discussion the recommendation to loan the commission the required funds was passed by council.

A Coleman Street resident spoke to council on the proposed agreement, which he said he had with the city exempting certain of his property from taxation. He said back in 1909 the city had requested permission to construct a culvert across his property to which the commission built was to tax free.

However, since that time, he had received several demands for taxes, which he had been forced to pay.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

Alderman Ralph Graham recommended the matter be referred to the finance committee for investigation. Council on such an agreement it would be honored," he said.

Council approved the closing of a portion of Wilkins Street in the western limits of the city where the Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. are to construct a new plant. Council also passed recommendations authorizing the construction of a sanitary sewer leading into the property and also a macadam roadway.

Both costs will be paid out of the general rate, but Alderman Safe, as chairman of public works noted the city would get the money back in two years out of taxation.

A public roadway is to be allowed through C.N.R. property in Front Road and the park yard owned by Mr. Spiegel is now located. Under the terms of an agreement a 20-foot roadway is to be open through the property during the daytime and closed at night by a gate.

Mrs. Anne Haggerty as acting city clerk will receive a bonus of $500 for her added responsibilities since the death of the late city clerk-comptroller H. D. Bateman.

Mayor J. Both said he would like to see Mrs. Haggerty hired permanently as city clerk and hoped that next year's council would consider the matter favorably.

City alderman have great faith in Mrs. Haggerty. She has worked untiringly at her job since Mr. Bateman's death and has asked nothing for the overtime she has put in," he said.

CARRIES OUT WORK WELL

Alderman Gerald Hyde added that Mrs. Haggerty had carried her position very well and well merited the additional consideration entertained by council.

Alderman Argue and Alderman McCabe confirmed what previous speakers had said about Mrs. Haggerty's ability and devotion to her position.

As council adjourned for the year, Alderman Mosam spoke briefly to council noting that he could not allow the occasion to pass without saying he had enjoyed his association at city hall during his two-years as an alderman. He jokingly referred to his defeat at the polls on Monday and observed that he now on the "retirement" list.

Mayor J. Both also assured he had enjoyed his work and responsibilities at city hall "I have enjoyed my work whether or not you councillors think I have," he said.

Bryson Reid Takes Seat In Council

Alderman Bryson Reid, sworn in as council member three weeks ago, was elected Mayor Anne Haggerty to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Jane Forrester, who moved to Ottawa.

Alderman Reid ran eighth in the 1954 municipal election and as the next in line was asked to fill the vacancy caused by Mrs. Forrester's resignation.

However, the legality of Mr. Reid being sworn in as alderman to fill a vacancy caused by resignation of a council member to continue the unexpired office was questioned prior to the recent election campaign.

There was no comment on the matter at last night's meeting of city council which now stands adjourned until next year.

Bandit Wears Hallowe'en 'Horror' Mask

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP)—A lone gunman with a flair for details welcomed nine employees of the First National Bank to work today, locked them in a vault one by one, and escaped with a packing box of currency.

The holdup man, masked with paper Hallowe'en horror mask and a muffler, was waiting behind a screen when Mrs. Vickie Lochner arrived to open the bank shortly before 8:30 a. m. Officials said he apparently entered the building with a key.

As other employees and bank officials arrived, the gunman directed them into a large vault used for storing records. While waiting, he disconnected all but one telephone, and used that one to turn in a false fire alarm, giving an address at the other end of this southern Wisconsin resort city.

When bank vicepresident George Allen arrived, the holdup man ordered him to open the money vault. He then stacked currency into a packing box he had brought up from the bank's basement. He left in a 1955 car belonging to the bank's cashier.

Stricter Attention by Cheese Industry to Home Markets Theme of Convention Talks

With addresses, awards, verbal bouquets and exhibits set among the best to date, the 48th annual British Empire Dairy Show opened here yesterday.

Bearing testimony to opinions of the high standard of the show were the cheese exhibits, held under high-class row after high-class row in the market room of city hall.

In all there were 128 entries—an increase of 20 percent over last year's show. Out of all these came the entry of Max Frehner, Western Ontario cheesemaker, to take the championship award.

There were 90 entries of large cheese, the rest being made up of stiltons and square cheese.

The show itself got under way early yesterday with the usual convention business session in the morning. Highlight of yesterday's events came with the afternoon session, when the convention and show were officially opened.

Prominent figures of the cheese industry and business were present to address the assembled cheese makers, legislators and municipal officials.

HOME MARKETS ADVOCATED

Most of the speeches were concentrated on the necessity for the cheese industry to pay greater attention to the home markets, with suggestions for moving the industry inward and away from dependence of past methods and a complete summation of the cheese industry as a whole.

Among the panaceas suggested to boost home consumption was more uniformity in the cheese produced; introduction of cheese suited to the marketing of cheese in packs containing individual portions.

Charles N. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers, said the packaging of cheddar cheese may now be the chief factor in setting Canadian domestic prices instead of the export of Canadian cheese itself. Two problems face the Canadian industry —to place all cheddar imported from countries with cheap living costs than Canada under a tariff that will ensure the Canadian product fairer competition.

Second problem is the substitute for any products which, he said, will constantly provide competition and without government protection the dairy industry could drop to a level unhealthy to the nation's economy.

In 1955, Canada's consumption of cheese will roughly approximate its production, he pointed out.

NOT INCREASING HERDS

He also warned the ines is near when shortages of home-produced powder, canned milk or cheese may be experienced in Canada, because dairy cattle have not increased with the population.

"Prices of cheddar must be improved if sufficient cheddar cheese is to be available for the prospective market that is likely to exist in Canada," he said.

Mr. Heath had two ideas for achieving more attractive prices. One was the marketing of individual portions of cheese in various sized packs for sale in supermarkets, taverns and restaurants. This scheme should be fixed in with a trade name, he added.

"It is my opinion that we just cannot go on successfully trying to merchandise cheese as Ontario Cheddar Cheese. My solution is putting a name on the cheese and establishing a standard for that cheese and afterwards to provide uniformity in accordance with that which was originally established."

BIG BY ELECTRIC CLOCK

Second idea was the use of the Dutch Auctioning System of initially selling cheese. This procedure replaces an auctioneer receiving verbal bids by an electric clock controlled by push buttons operated by the buyers. Once the button is pressed the clock stops and the two buyers will be shown as bidding the same.

The long series of speeches was touched off by E. W. McNeil, president of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association.

"The cheese maker," said Mr. McNeil, "I maintain is the key man in the cheese industry.

"And as I see it, good cheese makers are becoming a scarce commodity. Hence the Industry should give attention to this problem and should immediately to take steps to correct this undesirable condition.

"Cheese makers today are not remunerated sufficiently for manufacturing cheese.

"In the main, cheese making in a seasonal job, calling for a seven-day week while it lasts, then being balanced by five or six months of lay-off. Factories must strictly comply more than ever with government regulations, which in turns paid to labor and the 48-hour week have caused younger men to turn their back on cheese-making as an occupation.

LARGER FACTORIES NEEDED

"It appears to me that in order to make the job of cheese making more attractive we will have to think in terms of larger factories equipped with the latest labor saving devices, or else smaller two and three vat factories — which have been often in the past been used as a convenience."

Other remedies to halt the decline in the industry included assurance of a year-round volume of milk to guarantee continuous employment and improved marketing of products priced to the present economy of the country.

He said nearly 41 million pounds of New Zealand cheddar has already arrived in Canada, under a tariff of one cent a pound.

"I very much doubt if we cheesemakers can hope for an improved standard of living if cheese from countries whose cost of production cannot be compared with those in Canada is freely allowed into Canada following the payment of one cent per pound tariff," he said.

Mr. McNeil's speech set the keynote for most of the following addresses.

George S. White, Member of Parliament for Hastings-Frontenac, told the assembly the cheese industry still has a few members in Parliament interested in its welfare.

He told them not to be discouraged by press reports on their business.

"We who are interested are not discouraged," he said.

DEVELOPING NEW TASTES

"We hope as time goes on we will be able to do something for your industry."

Commenting on the loss of overseas markets and the increase in imports he said the Canadian is acquiring a taste for kinds of cheese other than Canadian.

In Europe the people have been educated to the popularity of cheese and in some countries it is served four times a day.

He said he was amazed on a recent tour to observe how elaborate and enticing were the methods used for displaying the cheese.

He said he had suggested to the responsible ministers that the imported New Zealand cheese should be placed under the Export-Import Act but the minister did not agree the importation was such it warranted such a move.

Proper education of the consumer toward the cheese also was stressed by the next speaker, O. J. W. Shugg, director of public relations for the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

"Somewhere along the line between the milk producer and the consumer there very often is a great loss in the quality of cheese," he said. Sometimes, however, this off-flavor is caused by the consumer placing the cheese in his refrigerator.

Within the last five years his organization had spent upwards of a half-million dollars promoting the cheese industry in Canada.

"That is just a drop in the bucket when you consider the job that is yet to be done," he said.

A problem now being faced was the consumption of imported fancy cheese, a great deal of which was being consumed by immigrants coming from countries in which it is being imported.

Harold Parker Honored for 35 Years of Service

Thirty-five years of continuous service to the Income Tax division of the Department of National Revenue was honored Tuesday when staff members of the Belleville office honored director Harold A. Parker with a presentation and buffet party. 80 staff members and guests attended the function.

"My appointment to Belleville office was the nicest thing they ever did for me in Ottawa," said Mr. Parker in an informal address. "I am very happy here."

Mr. Parker spoke briefly of the recent convention at Montebello, Quebec.

"You would be surprised at the planning in the division," he said. "They are planning 25 years ahead. By 1965 they expect Canada will have 6,000,000 taxpayers and by 1975 more than 7,000,000.

In a few brief asides to youngster staff members Mr. Parker said: "I can recommend the taxation division as a career, especially the assessing and investigation branches. If you work hard and put your heart in it you can almost certainly rise to become a director."

"Thank you for getting together in this friendly, family way. Thank you for your kindness to me and to Mrs. Parker."

Mrs. Parker, presented with a bouquet, spoke briefly.

Dominic Marrocco, president of the staff association, and chairman of the meeting, briefly outlined Mr. Parker's career in the Income Tax division.

Frank S. Follwell, M.P. for Hastings South, representing Hon. Dr. J. J. McCann, Minister of National Revenue, paid tribute to Mr. Parker for his great public service to the people and to the government of Canada."

He also paid tribute to the staff of the Belleville office, which, under Mr. Parker's direction, had set an enviable record of efficiency and good public relations.

Following the addresses guests and staff members took part in a period of entertainment under the direction of Miss Lois Farnell and Miss Norene Callaghan.

FARM PRICES ARE PROBLEM

The consumer price index, that yardstick of prices which most of us still think of by its earlier name of the cost-of-living index, was unchanged in Canada in October.

There was a time when an unchanged cost-of-living index was good news—and indeed it would still be good news if we only read the headlines. Perusing the story, however, we learn that, while the index as a whole was unchanged, there were minor changes in the sub-indices. For instance, slight increases were reported in prices for clothing, fuel oil and coal. These increases were offset by lower food prices, especially for beef and pork.

It is not certain that this is an even trade, as far as the fortunes of the average Canadian are concerned. Living may cost him no more today, but if this trend continues he may face troubles in the future.

The same day that the October consumer price index was announced, the 17th annual federal-provincial agricultural conference was held at Ottawa. At this meeting federal experts forecast that cattle and hog prices likely will decline next year, in the wake of rising production.

Now lower food prices are always welcomed by urban residents. Food expenditure forms a large proportion of the average family's budget. Food is a necessity and paring these expenditures is difficult, if not, in some cases, impossible.

Still, cheap food can be obtained at too high a cost in a country like Canada which still, it spite of a vast industrialization program in the west, revolves or so, depends for its prosperity largely on the prosperity of the farmer.

Many of the factories in cities manufacture goods which the farmer requires in order to produce food for the nation. If the farmer is not making enough money, he cannot afford to purchase these goods. In recent months farm income has been declining at what, in the opinion of many, is an alarming rate. If the general price level were falling, if the farmer's reduced number of dollars would still enable him to buy as much as he did when his revenue was higher, there would be no need for alarm. But, unfortunately, this is not the case today. The prices which farmers are receiving for their products are declining; the prices of the goods which the farmers must purchase are either rising or remaining steady.

Some adjustments in the fortunes of various groups in the country are inevitable, and quite often desirable. In the case of Canadian farmers, however, there is little evidence to support any such contention. Agriculture, as a class, ever rose to a point where they were out of line with other groups. It is true that the prices of farm produce rose steeply, but it is also true that these prices, during the depression, were far too low, and that they were prevented from rising during the war years by the operation of certain controls. When controls were ended, the increases in the prices of farm produce were not only understandable but, indeed, desirable. A fall from peak prices would also have been understandable, and perhaps also desirable, but the decline has been much greater than it ought to have been, having regard for the price levels of other goods.

Just what steps, if any, can be taken to remedy this situation is a question for the experts to answer. It is certain, however, that their answer will affect many Canadians who are not farmers.

AVIATION PIONEER DIES

Glenn L. Martin died Saturday. The same day a Comet III jetliner landed at Sydney, Australia, completing a flight from England in 24 hours, 23 minutes flying time. The contrast in flight regard that the death of one of aviation's greatest pioneers on the same day as the setting of another milestone in aviation history as symbolic of the pace at which the air age is expanding our horizons. Yet, so rapid has been and these is aviation in recent years, this coincidence does not strike us as truly remarkable. The simple truth is that so many new records are set by writers that we have long thought the world these days that it would have been rather remarkable if Mr. Martin had not died on a day, or shortly after a day, on shortly before a day, when some new achievement was recorded in the field of aviation.

More striking than the coincidence of his death coming on a day when a new aviation mark was established is the record of his own accomplishments. He was the first man to make an extended flight over the ocean. He was also the head of the company which is now undertaking the task of making the first attempt at a satellite of earth, the U.S. government project which may set the pattern for landing stations for spaceships of the future. Is there any other field in which the lifetime of one man could encompass such striking progress?

DISCRIMINATION?

The Canadian Pacific Railway has officially denied accusations of racial discrimination in its hiring practices.

Maybe so—but how many porters or sleeping car attendants have you seen who were white-skinned?

QUICK CHANGE ARTIST

It takes a child to change a man!
He may be very wild before
And run to pleasure when he can;
The weeds may grow about his door;
His money may fling awey
As if life's needs would pass him by
But he will change the very day
He hears his babe's arrival-cry.

Oh, he may tramp around the place
And scorn the duty morning brings;
May laugh at failure and disgrace
And sneer at wisdom's threatenings.

Oh, he may call ridiculous
Our pride in little sticky thumbs,
But he'll turn boastful, just like us,
The moment that his baby comes.

On law and morals he may frown
And make of sacred things a jest,
And even talk the clergy down
Who seek to hold him to his best;
But he will pennies start to save
For trinkets of cars and horns and drums
And, just like us, at childhood rave
The moment that his baby comes.

A West Belleville lady on hearing that a curling club has been formed here, expressed the hope that it is a gentle game and not like football.

At Emmanuel Church last evening a social hour was held and during the evening a purse containing the sum of $125.00 was presented by the members of the congregation to the pastor, the Rev. A. M. Hodgins, as a token of their esteem and in recognition of the great service he has rendered the people under his care.

A man named Dickson, employed by the Bell Telephone Company, while excavating on Pinnacle Street this morning found a little fortune instead of a Bank bill two feet underground. He thought at first sight that it was an old piece of paper, but something induced him to pick it up and to his great joy he found it to be real money and a goodsum at that. When his companions heard of his find they became excited and commenced to dig with enthusiasm hoping for similar fortune, but up to the time of going to press no more money has been found.

MLA or MPP Old Question

(Ottawa Times Gazette)

For many years there has been much argument over whether members of provincial Legislature assemblies should use the letters MLA after their names. (Member of the Legislative Assembly) or the letters MPP (Member of Provincial Parliament). There has been just as heated an argument over whether the head of a province should be entitled to carry the title "Prime Minister" or "Premier." We can recall that back about 1928 or 1929, in the Ontario Legislature, the late Col. Fraser (Prince Edward) was convicingly in favor of "MPP" as opposed to "MLA."

So far as Quebec is concerned, the government is going to end the argument. Premier Duplessis is introducing a bill to make members of the provincial legislature Members of Provincial Parliament. He will, of course, also confirm "Prime Minister" as his own title, since in French there is no equivalent of the title "Premier." It is "Premier Ministre."

As a matter of fact, the Quebec Prime Minister is correct. In official language, the head of a provincial government is "Premier Ministre." The term "Premier" in most provinces.

We can recall that when Hon. G. D. Conroy was Minister of Department of Ontario, he insisted on calling himself "Minister." Legal authorities at the Parliament Buildings tried to convince him that he was not the head of the Minister of the Crown," he was "Prime Minister" in the Canadian view, and held to it, that only the head of the federal government should use that title. Nevertheless, it says, "We are all heads of governments, and in the language of the same."

Of course, the question is purely an academic one as it does not matter very much what titles are given to heads of governments or members of legislative assemblies. It can be argued with just the same as being an MPP. Indeed since the provincial body is officially known as the Legislative Assembly, possibly the former is more correct.

Employees Buy Shares

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

Inland Cement Company, which, through Inland Ore Co., is going into mining business on the Steep Rock range in order to assure the supply of ore, is noted among other things in the United States for an employee-shareholder plan.

The annual report of the company recently issued, tells that since the plan was made peretive in 1951 it has sold 1,903 employees, or 47 per cent of those eligible elected to participate and now hold options on 222,615 shares out of 500,000 authorized for the purpose. Employees pay a year at a price of $69.75 per share which is revered quarterly to the current market price around $82.50. It looks particularly good in the light of company earnings which rose around $9 per share per year. Shares in companies of that character are frequently rated as worth 10 times earnings, which in this instance would put them at Inland Steel a value of $90 per share.

Undoubtedly this form of employee participation is a comparatively new idea in its more general application but it would seem reasonable. From the beginner it gives the worker a new sense of responsibility and a direct interest in the welfare of the company that could hardly be expected of those who merely work for wages. Likewise the dividends become in their way a form of pension, to provide an extra to the wages while working and also to the retirement allowances.

Supermarket Headaches

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

Stores of many kinds are getting bigger and bigger and congestion, south of the border, particularly, are reported to be going in for super-supermarkets. The trend is evident in Canada, too.

They're "open" all day when the stores will be so huge that shoppers will need motorized carts, traffic lights and maps to get around.

Of course, if it comes to this, a market traffic control is sure to follow. One can almost hear the call coming in over the patrol radio:

Report 321 Car 321 Proceed immediately to the intersection of aisles 6 and 32. There's been a collision between two shoppers' carts. The aisle is littered with turnips and traffic is backed up to the breakfast food section."

Progress is indeed a wonderful thing, but every forward step seems to bring new problems to replace the old. When they start requiring drivers' licences for shopping carts, that'll be the time to start bunting again for the little corner grocer.

Banks in U.S. Woo Women

(North Bay Nugget)

One day soon women may get perfumed cheques and compliments with bullish cheque books, if U.S. bankers crown their efforts to woo feminine customers.

It seems the bankers are really serious about the idea of getting after lady business, ever since they discovered that outside the metropolitan centre women do 85 per cent of the family banking.

Since it is mama who usually holds the family purse strings, does most of the spending, and causes the pay cheques, it has dawned on the banking fraternity that she also is likely to patronize the bank that makes her feel most at home.

So nowadays the U.S. banks are tripping over each other in their efforts to make banking as much fun as shopping in the supermarket.

Alas, Gems Prove Real

(Scientific American Reprints)

To fix phony Pitkdown man, recently exposed as a hoax, the Brighton jewelry mulit- now sold Sir Hannay diamonds, first "synthetic" gems.

In 1920 a Scotsman, J.B. Hannay, stirred a quantity of bone meal and sugar together and sealed the mixture into a series of wrought iron tubes. By heating the tubes to redness in a forge and then quenching them rapidly Hannay found he subjected the mixture to immense pressure and thus converted charcoal into diamonds.

All but three of Hannay's 56 tubes exploded. In the residue of the unexploded tubes, however, he was said that small diamonds were present. Hannay accepted at face value and recorded in the London Times.

Subsequently attempts by a number of experimenters failed to repeat Hannay's results. The stones were treasured, and for decades Hannay's achievement was recorded as an important development in scientific accomplishment.

However in 1943 the authenticity of the stones' validity was challenged by two British physicists, Kathleen Banaister and Kathleen Lonsdale. They subjected the stones to X-ray crystallography, a method based on the atomic structure of substances. The analysis showed that Hannay's stones were genuine diamonds.

Then the matter rested and might well have remained but for the discovery by a group of physicists at the General Electric Co. in the course of manufacturing synthetic diamonds by a process anyone can duplicate, demonstrated in Scientific American in only under pressures 20 times greater than Hannay's tubes could exert.

Then the British subjected Hannay's stones to a second examination. Again the X-rays showed they were genuine.

There can be little doubt, it is said, that the whimsical Scot put natural diamonds in his experimental tubes.

Drive to North Is Very Late

(Vancouver Sun)

It must surely be interesting to a half starved East Indian or Chinese to have real to him that the north there are several million acres of productive land which, unhelped in this matter by the Royal Commission on Canada's economic future which is now studying development of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, is not at its nationwide study.

The Royal Commission has had the benefit of good thought and planning in the briefs presented by the Canadian Institute of Mining.

They point out that transportation, which is necessary for the development of the sub-Arctic is not railways and a network of highways such as we have. To point out, make possible not only the mining of rich mineral deposits but also lumbering, cattle raising and agriculture.

In particular, they stress the value of a railway to the Great Slave Lake area which although known to have vast mineral wealth has been cut off from markets by almost prohibitive freight rates.

Taking rails and roads into a near-empty area the size of Western Europe is a big job and it will be but it would be fatuous to suggest that it is an area of technical progress it isn't feasible.

The royal commission will serve a useful purpose if, by production of an ambitious blueprint for the north, it reveals Canadians that theirs is a three-ocean nation and that, in extending toward the third, they are very late indeed.

Strength for The Day

WEEDS AND FLOWERS

Someone once told the English poet, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, that children should not be prejudiced in favor of religion. That they should be kept open eyed and when they reached the age of discretion should be given all religions presented to them so that they could make a rational choice. This sounds fine; but the only trouble with it, however, is that it is impossible. Coleridge was being told that it would work, took the garden which was planted into a garden full of weeds and declared that here was a garden not prejudiced in favor of flowers and fruits. Coleridge then declared that so far as he was concerned, he preferred to be prejudiced in favor of roses and strawberries.

If we are going to work the "hands off" theory in matters of religion, then let us advocate it and put it into operation with reference to etiquette and general deportment. Let us allow our children to grow up without any training in the social amenities and then let them decide later whether they want to be polite or courteous or superfluous. Keep hands off as regards dishonesty. Let children lie and steal if they want to and let them later decide whether this is the best way to live.

But if we put such theories into practice we will have a nation of bigger jails—and for that matter, bigger insane asylums for the parents.

Personal Health

Rabies Continues To Be Very Rare

physician says.

Had a courteous letter from a physician the other day—a physician who probably doesn't share my opinions about medical matters.

The good doctor said that I have made statements to the effect "that rabies does not exist" and that you do not approve of the Pasteur treatment of victims of dog bite nor of vaccination of dogs against rabies."

In reply I assured the doctor that I have never said rabies does not exist. I have merely said that I don't know and I don't believe anybody knows that rabies occurs in man.

I suggested to the good doctor that if he or any other doctor thinks he knows that rabies occurs in man it is up to him to prove it scientifically.

"In the interest of truth," wrote the doctor, "we wish to be properly informed. Will you please quote references to scientific studies on which you base your opinion."

I'll cite one such reference presently, though it may not be what the doctor considers scientific.

First let me say I should not submit to the Pasteur treatment in any conceivable circumstance. The only advice I ever give about it is: Do as your own

I'd follow the veterinarian's advice in regard to vaccination of my dog.

Now I refer the good doctor to the conclusion reached by Dr. Denison and Dowling of the Jefferson County (Birmingham) health department from their vast experience in dealing with dog bites and rabiphobia questions in the "rabies capital of North America":

"Rabies is primarily a veterinary problem. Regardless of its prevalence among dogs, it will probably never cause sufficient morbidity or mortality among human beings in this region to allow its classification as a public health problem of importance."

These public health authorities published the report of their experience in the Journal of the American Medical Association July 30, 1938—clearly, for the American people, before the politicians of the United States decided that Uncle Sam should turn the screws.

"If rabies were as easily contracted by man as is commonly supposed, it would in Alabama become one of the leading causes of death. Instead, it continues to be a very rare disease."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Good coffee is no different from good pie or good bronzed steak or anything else in life: it depends entirely on who makes it.

We have more or less accepted as a fact that the worst coffee in the United States and that hardest to get anywhere else in the world, especially the English, knows how to make it.

Essentially some of the most dreadful coffee I have ever tasted has been in the United States generally, across the United States, a short drive or ride the way you are accustomed to it more than anywhere else. And when a Frenchman, accustomed to coffee like to the sharp, strong black sediment that he drinks from childhood on, first tastes the smarmy, cloyingly sweet and blandly creamed coffee of America he is inclined to be just as disgusted as we are when in Paris or Rome or Bordeaux, the grim waiter brings us a molasses-black brew of their drugstore coffee.

Coffee in North Africa is like syrup, and just as oriental as Turkish cigarettes. Growing on a cold troopship in Greenock, Scotland, I got in a dirty little dockside cafe a big thick mugful made of pure coffee my memory cherishes. While the sickening stuff was something to do with the coffee. It often has. A person who has smoked too much in the past four hours can't expect to taste even what is normally good coffee when encountered in restaurants and at lunch counters. Coffee which is to be slapped together by hasty waitresses out of materials in which the humblest cook would not be the main consideration. If you want a good cup of coffee at home or Bordeaux means that people like coffee in a hundred different ways, or else they would not know it and just go through the motions.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR LOVE OF BEAUTY

Never do I cease to love all beautiful things. Looking out from my library window today I see the bare trees, naked in the sunlight. A short time ago the whole landscape was glorious in its Autumn colors—a sight to inspire the soul with what God wrought. But in a few days some trees have a singular beauty all their own. The branches, many lacelike as they stand out against the blue sky.

How much we owe our artists for their love of beauty, and their ability to interpret the form and feeling of landscapes, events, and of human beings. Artists interpret and translate. The love of beauty is a universal one. We see it on the pickets of our books, in the hand-made furniture in the modern buildings now being erected, and in the fine highways that wind about our country.

All of life is beautiful. How wonderful and exquisite are the feathered bodies of our birds. All perfect in the arrangement of color. Small birds fascinate me. I studied the colors of many a warbler this summer with my field glasses, and saluted many a colorful bunnishness as it dipped its slender bill into flowers for its food. A short time ago small creatures live upon the beauty of flowers.

I awoke this morning in my northern home, to note outside a beautiful sunlight. I knew that billions of crystal flakes, perfect in design, must be falling softly. I replaced the Creator to give us human beings much to love and over which to wonder. In the swirling bits of snow upon the hemlock near my window, there is a hint that many an artisan could repay there with labor and love.

What a contrast in the color and printing of books and magazines to those of fifty years ago! If you find your mind with a love of beauty, it will creep deep into your heart and life will take on new hope and an enlivened spirit

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Children's Aid Field Work Is Said Paying Dividends

The work of the county Children's Aid Society and the preventative office, Mr. Elliott, is paying dividends in fewer children coming into the care of the society is the feeling of Hastings County councillors.

Discussing the work of the field officer hired last spring, county councillors Wednesday morning at their December session generally agreed that his work was relieving the county of some financial burden.

The discussion came after the reading of the juvenile and family court committee report by Limerick Reeve M. J. Hamm, who noted that a report of the field officer's work in each municipality was now being forwarded to municipal officials.

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow, said that the preventive officer had been responsible for three C.A.S. wards from his township being returned to their homes. He was confident that the social worker would show results.

Other reeves whose municipalities had been visited by the preventative officer had much the same to say with Reeve J. Davis noting that in his opinion the decision of council to provide for the social worker had been a good move.

MONEY WELL SPENT

"I feel it was money well spent," he said, "and that results will improve as he gets further acquainted with the work. Providing for the officer was a good thing and good foresight on the part of the county."

Early in the year council voted $5,000 for the hiring of a preventative officer for the C.A.S. on the understanding that his work would reduce the number of children coming into society care.

The report indicated there were now 151 children in the care of the local society with an additional 36 children for which this county was responsible being cared for in other centres. CAS costs for the year were expected to be close to the $55,000 provided for in the estimates.

Although CAS costs were expected to remain within the estimates, such is not the case for indigent accounts according to Reeve Earl Sager, finance committee chairman, who reported for the finance and public property committee.

Total of indigent hospital accounts to the end of November was $48,056. The year's budget for this purpose was $39,000.

WELFARE COSTS UP

"Welfare costs this year have not only been higher than last year, but are also higher than budgeted for in our estimates," the finance chairman said, "and your committee would like to make it clear that under existing laws, only a full realization by everyone of his or her responsibility as a strict, close screening of all welfare recipients and conscientious administration of welfare funds, can keep this expenditure down."

Belleville's agreement with the county on administration of justice costs will be up for revision in 1958, council members learned following the report of Reeve C. H. Bushard as chairman of the administration of justice board.

He revealed that Belleville's present share of the present administration of justice costs was 26.573 per cent, while Trenton pays 13.575 per cent. Belleville's five year agreement ends December 30, 1955, while that of Trenton would normally run to the end of 1957.

MAY SEEK NEW PACT

It is quite possible, however, that the county will seek another agreement with the town of Trenton should proposed annexation proceedings go through.

Deputy reeve B. Harder, of Sidney, noted that Trenton is seeking to annex a certain area north of the town which would take property from both Sidney and Murray townships. The population of Trenton would be increased by about 700 people if the annexation went through, he said.

The division for administration of justice costs between Trenton and Belleville and the county is on a population basis and is renewable every five years, or following annexation proceedings.

Net cost for administration of justice for the first six months was $41,409. Of this Belleville's share was $11,458, and Trenton's share $6,203.

285 RESIDENTS IN HOME

Deputy reeve Harder as chairman of the County Home board, said there were now 205 residents in the county home of whom 45 were from the city of Belleville. There were 48 persons in the infirmary wing of the home.

The reeve congratulated other councillors for their co-operation in screening applicants for admission to the county home. Home superintendent Kenneth York also expressed his appreciation to council members for their co-operation.

Deputy reeve Charles Long, of Tyendinaga township, presented the report of the agricultural and reforestation committee. The report indicated a total of 10,000 trees had been planted in the county forest at Bird's Creek near Bancroft and zone foresters Mr. Edwards recommended planting of another 10,000 trees next year. Efforts are being made to purchase additional property in the Bird's Creek district to add to the county forest area.

The report showed that nine township municipalities had passed by-laws under the Brucelosis Control Act and that municipalities not yet included to give the matter serious consideration.

Reeve Earl Sager noted that several townships had undertaken spraying projects for warble fly control but pointed out there was little advantage unless all municipalities co-operated, "Warable flies do not stop at the township boundary," he said.

It was generally agreed the only way to continue a satisfactory control of warble fly was for this to be done on a compulsory basis.

WARBLE FLY CONTROL

County councillors think that some thing should be done to provide additional spraying apparatus for the county buildings.

Reeve Chas. Buskard broached the subject, noting that he did not think it fair that county councillors should have to pare their cars three or four blocks away owing to lack of space.

Reeve Davis said jurors attending court sessions had the same problem and noted that it was time council decided to make use of what grounds were available to provide additional parking.

Reeve Buskard said that before the council session was over he would introduce a recommendation dealing with the provision of additional parking space.

ASK ASSESSMENT TRANSFER

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora village, requested that $35,000 in assessment be transferred from Marmora township to Marmora village for county tax purposes. (Annexation proceedings had recently been completed which brought this amount of property into the village, he said.

The Dungannon school fair board, through Reeve Tracey Adams requested a $15 assistance grant for the fair which is held annually in the basement of the township consolidated school.

Reeve Adams told the board had a misfortune this fall following the fair when the home of the secretary burned, together with the fair's finances.

Grants of $100 each for the educational associations in South, Centre and North Hastings were approved, as was a grant of $500 to the county Tuberculosis Association.

St. Lawrence Seaway Chiefs To Visit Panama

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Members of the St. Lawrence seaways authorities of Canada and the United States will visit the Panama canal zone next month to study the handling of cargo ships and collection of tolls on the big inter-ocean waterways, it was learned today.

The delegation will be made up of members of the tolls committee set up by the two countries to work out methods of collecting tolls when the St. Lawrence seaway opens in 1959. They will leave from Washington Jan. 17.

Meantime, the tolls questions will be taken up anew here Friday when the two committees get together at a meeting of officials of the two authorities charged with construction of the seaway.

TALKS START THURSDAY

Lionel Chevrier, president of the Canadian authority, will arrive here late today by plane from Ottawa with a half-dozen officials. They will meet with Lewis G. Castle, administrator of the U. S. Seaway Development Corporation, and members of his staff.

Meetings will start Thursday. The first will deal with details of construction of a new railway-highway bridge over Potleys gut, which links the U. S. mainland at Massena, N. Y., with the western end of Cornwall island in Canada. Decision to build the bridge was taken at a meeting here in October.

Thursday's talks also will touch on the establishment of aids to navigation in the Welland international section of the St. Lawrence running east of Lake Ontario.

POLICE RECOVER AUTO STOLEN HERE

Ontario Provincial Police have recovered a car reported stolen from J. B. Boyce and Sons. The car was found in a wooded area abandoned on a side road north of No. 2 Highway and east of the city.

Bringing Up Baby

Mom Collected by Mrs. Steve Gerber (Mother of 5)

One would think that the coming of a sixth child would hardly be a novelty or cause for complete delirium. Not in the country, writes the father. "We had almost forgotten what a wonderful thing it is to have a new baby in the house. It's a cozy, warm feeling, with all of us newly drawn together. Three full-fledged Davy Crockets and two future brides (who are naturally spinsters) are quiet with awe and astonishment. Lots of starry-eyed peeking into the crib—and offers of help we haven't heard in a long-time. In short, it's a happy event, and we do feel fortunate."

• • •

New babies grow fast and need a good supply of body-building proteins surprisingly soon. That's why many doctors recommend meat at the same time fruit and cereals are introduced. Gerber Strained Meats are protein rich, savory and smooth-textured. Made from juicy, selected cuts, they're specially processed to remove most of the fat and fiber for extra-easy digestibility. All 6 varieties are solid meat with just enough broth to enhance flavor and consistency.

Tell it to this column. Many of the anecdotes and helpful hints in this column come from mothers (and dads) like you. If you have any you'd like to send them to me at BOX 68, Toronto 18, Ontario.

Bag it! A large, inexpensive plastic bag makes a good repository for baby's soiled clothes. Makes sorting easier, prevents odors in the family wash hamper.

• • •

Gold mine of good eating. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks are rich in vitamin A, blood - building iron and also provide a good supplementary source of protein. And Gerber Egg Yolks have a delightfully different, emsarellike texture, coupled with a delicate, fresh-egg flavor—so give them special meal appeal. Important: they're heat - sterilized for baby's protection.

Springbrook United W.A. Elects Officers

The regular monthly meeting of Springbrook United church W.A., was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Delbert Fleming, on Thursday afternoon. With the playing of quiet music the meeting was opened in the regular manner, followed by singing a Christmas carol.

This - - - and That

(By HARRIET STAVENS)

There seems to be some truth, possibly too much truth, in the contention that we hear so much about the unpleasent incidents but not nearly enough about simple, yet heroic, impulses. The former tend to discourage, but the latter help restore our hopes. Last October there was a serious train wreck near Cornwall. Nine coaches were derailed along the tracks. Carol O'Flynn from Belleville, happened to be a passenger. Carol is a final year student, nurse-in-training, at a Montreal hospital. She had been home visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. O'Flynn here in the city. Carol was not injured severely and could easily have escaped from her coach but there was also a little boy who had been thrown against a hook and impaled. She went to the lad's rescue and tended him to the best of her ability and her training. After giving all the immediate help she could to the injured boy, she turned to the aid of other injured passengers in her coach. She stayed doing everything in her power to alleviate the suffering passengers who had been hurt until succour from outside arrived.

Carol O'Flynn apparently did not think that she had done anything unusual, but nurses rarely do. The president of the Canadian National Railways thought otherwise. In due time, Mr. Donald Gordon wrote to Carol personally, not formally, and thanked her for her bravery, her poise, and her masterful conduct. He thanked her in the name of the railroad, expressed gratitude for her inspirational leadership under trying circumstances. Tangible, evidence followed when Carol received a sterling silver compact with the C.N.R. crest and a suitable inscription on it.

We are proud to pay tribute in a small way to Carol O'Flynn from Belleville who, by her example, is deserving of our highest praise.

GOING SHOPPING?

We learned as we browsed about the shops that the demand for turkeys this year seems to be away from the merely dressed bird of former years to the all-cleaned, ready-to-stuff bird. As far as we could ascertain, the price of turkeys is expected to be reasonable. On the whole, meat prices appear to be holding steady. Small oven-stuffed chickens are a very economical buy, while beef, pork and lamb continue at about the same prices.

Citrus fruits have reached their peak quality now. Housewives who like to make homemade marmalade will probably make a note of this in order to be ready for work, right after the holiday, if not before Christmas.

Men who are wondering what to buy for "that special girl" may be interested in considering an evening sweater. There is a wide variety just now. It does seem that, in these items, it will be a black and white Christmas— all encrusted with pearls, fringe, or beading. One in particular caught our eye —a white sweater with a dolman three-quarter length sleeve and a deep narrow V-neckline outlined in lace and just touched with rhinestone.

Party aprons are something special this year, many in nylon, strewn with flowers, touched with velvet and rhinestones.

For anyone wishing to do a quick redecorating job before Christmas, there is a new spray-on paint remover on the market. Push-button action in the packaging makes it easier to use and, we are told, it does a faster, cleaner job.

Good Shopping!

You may have read recently where a columnist on a woman's page was criticized for never commenting on politics. She replied that her column was about people and things, that there is about people and things from here and there so, as a woman's column, we congratulate Belleville's first woman mayor-elect, Senator Cairine Wilson, after the finest legal minds debated about whether or not a woman could be a Senator since there was an argument that a woman was not legally a person, commented they decided a woman, after all, was a person."

Harmony Studio Club Holds 'Passing Night'

Last evening, "Passing Night" was held by the Harmony Studio of Music Club at the home of Mrs. E. Cornish, 194 Bleecker Avenue, with Mrs. C. Scott presiding, who extended a cordial welcome to the members and pupils.

The program consisted of selections rendered by those pupils who are passing from grades I to 5, as follows: Grade 1-2—Heather Scott, "Lily as a Rose"; Study No. 3 by Carl Czerny, and "Bourree", by J. S. Bach; grade 2-3—Linda Clare, "Invention," by H. Willan; "Chorale," by J. S. Bach and "Lavender Blues" arranged by H. Willans; grade 4-5—Helina Marsakas, "Bourree," by Mozart, and "L'Avalanche," by Stephen Heller.

The following numbers were also enjoyed: "Sonata in C. Minor" and "Palladique" in three movements, by Ludwig Beethoven, played by Mrs. E. Cornish. Miss Lois Bradshaw rendered "Trees"—a recital version by Rachel Lynn; while Miss Helina Marsakas and Mrs. R. Veley brought the program to a close by a delightful rendition of "In Shubert's Day," an arrangement by Rich Kreisler.

Bountiful refreshments were served by the hostess.

ORMT Assoc. Hears Report Of Convention

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville branch, Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association was held on Sunday afternoon at the home of Miss Bessie Handley, with the president, Mrs. F. E. Houston, in the chair.

After a short business session, Mrs. John Deacon was called on to give a report on the zone convention held recently in Kingston. In a most interesting address, Mrs. Deacon gave the highlights of the convention, and through her splendid report, brought inspiration to the teachers who had not been able to attend.

Miss Margaret Scott, a pupil of Miss Handley's, played a group of piano solos which were much enjoyed. Her numbers consisted of "Prelude and Fugue in D Major" by Bach; "Ecossaises" by Chopin, "Rosemary", Bridge; and "Viennese Melody" by Friedman-Gartner.

Mr. John Withers, organist of Christ church, brought a number of his choir boys who created an excellent impression by their artistic singing and fine appearance. Their numbers were in keeping with the Christmas season and included "How Far is it to Bethlehem?", "In Dulce Jubilo," and "Little Road to Bethlehem."

At the conclusion of the meeting, tea was served by the hostess.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR HUSBAND AND HIS RELATIVES ARE WRONG; NOT YOU

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Three or four years ago, my husband's sister just walked out and left her children. I took her little girl into my home to raise and love like my own.

However, my husband got to where he would run around at night and drink, and several times he told me that he didn't come home on account of the kids. So I finally told him that I would send the little back to his other sister, who had been looking after he before I took her. His reply wha that I should do as I pleased; that I wanted her and not him. So I did take the child back, though it nearly broke my heart.

Now, the in-laws are rude to me because I returned the child, even though I had done all I could. She didn't even have clothes when she came to live with me, because her own father would not do anything for her. So I dressed her from head to toe, took her to work with me and kept her right by my side day after day for over a year; then I quit work and stayed home to take care of her. I treated her just like one of my own, and did my best to make her happy, for I felt sorry for her. I still love her, and miss her very much.

What I want to know is, do you think I did very wrong to return her to these other relatives? It seemed that I had no choice, with my husband acting the way he did. After all, it was his sister's child, and I should think he would have been glad to have her in his home. — Mrs. M.H.

Dear Mrs. M.H.:

If anyone has done wrong in this situation, it seems to me it has been, first, your husband, and then his relatives; your husband, for not backing you up and co-operating with you in your unselfish efforts to take the place of the mother who abandoned this little child, and his relative, for reproaching you because it finally seemed necessary to return the child to them since your husband was making an issue of it.

There is no reason in the world for your feeling guilty about the matter, and you should try not to let anything any of these others say make you feel so. You did all you could, and evidently received neither co-operation nor appreciation from anyone. You should now tell yourself that circumstances beyond your control took matters out of your hands, and you can do no more.

When the relatives who now have the child are rude to you, try to remain calm and undisturbed. It is they who are in the wrong, not you. Refuse to allow them to draw you into any quarrels, arguments or discussions. If you are forced to say anything at all, then simply say that it was far from your own wish to give up the child; that, on the contrary it broke your heart to do so, but that it appeared to be your only alternative. Then say no more at any time. Be as pleasant and polite to these people as you can in the future, but having taken your stand, have too much dignity and poise thereafter to keep defending yourself or repeating any explanation. In time, they will undoubtedly stop talking about it.

As for your husband's attitudes and actions, I can only say that so far from the child's presence in his home being the cause of them, I think he is merely using it as an excuse for them. Or, to put it another way, I am very much afraid that the child's absence will solve no problem, but that he will continue to stay away from home at night just as he did before. Only, now, he will have to find some other excuse. I am sorry to be skeptical, but I believe you had better be prepared for this, and be ready to figure out some other way of handling the situation.

Mother's Helper

WHEN you're no longer using that bathinette, you can make it into a handy serving table. Strip it of all extra gadgets, clean it, and paint it. A sheet of plywood makes a new top, if needed. You'll find it most useful for informal entertaining, and it will fold to be taken along in the car for picnicking.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

EYEBROWS AND LASHES

Perhaps you fancy that eyebrow-weeding is a modern innovation. Chinese lovelies plucked theirs thousands of years ago. Beauty trends go in cycles. We have been tormenting ours now for more than thirty years, and it is a wonder that the poor little scientists have survived. When the idea first struck the beauty - seekers, some women destroyed their eyebrows and lashes, used a black crayon to provide such substitutes as they thought fetching. We have come to realize that nature is a pretty good beauty doctor and that eyebrows were designed to contribute to a pleasing facial expression. Delete them and the feminine face is vapid and uninteresting.

The modern lovely, true to her individualistic breed, has no fixed outline. Her eyebrows may be arched, fairly straight, uplifted, or of normal width. As long as they conform to her particular type of face it is enough, provided they have a well-groomed look and form becoming frames for the eyes.

Tweezing, as an indoor amusement, is not enjoyable. However, most women find that there are a few stray shafts beyond the fold, and these of course must be removed.

When making your toilet, take a tiny brush and press all of the hairs in the brow straight up; then, from above, press lightly down. you will be surprised to see the slenderizing result. A little brilliantine on the bristles of the brush will impart luster.

There are several shades of pencils to emphasize make-up. If black is used, one must have a decided coloring of hair and eyes—both very dark—or the result will be hard and brittle. Blonde eyebrows over blue eyes are made more alluring by the use of a dark brown crayon; it should be applied only to the shafts, never allowed to press into the flesh unless you want an unnatural look, which, of course, you don't.

The girl with long, dark, curly eyelashes is the envy of those who have short, scant growths. But these latter ones need not despair.

Bathe the eyes twice a day, first with warm water, then with cold, and dry gently. Dip your finger in warm mineral oil and pass it along the eylids. Move your finger back and forth lightly, so that the oil is forced into the roots of the shafts.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

BRIDE-TO-BE HAS MIXED UP POINT OF VIEW ABOUT CHOOSING ATTENDANT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are to have a small wedding in church. My fiance is going to ask his brother to be his best man. As I have no sister, and have many girl friends (but would not want to choose one because of possible hurt feelings on the part of the others), would it be proper for me to ask the best man's wife to be my matron of honor? I've known her for only the last few months, and wouldn't want to impose any obligations on her. — Reader

I don't at all approve of your point of view about choosing your attendant. You are disregarding all your girlfriends, whom apparently you have known for a long time, and considering choosing a woman whom you have known for such a short time. A bride-to-be who has no sister (or cousin) naturally chooses her dearest friend, or one of her dearest friends, to be her maid (or matron) of honor. This is accepted by her friends as the proper procedure, and I am sure you can depend on them not to have "hurt feelings" about something that is, and must be, taken for granted. On the other hand, I should think they would all wonder why you passed over all of them to choose someone you had known for such a short time. About this choice of yours, I think they would be quite justified to have "hurt feelings." You'd better reconsider.

TIPS ON ADDRESSING CHRISTMAS CARD ENVELOPES

You should address the envelopes that so proudly carry your Christmas cards with such care and devoted attention that they will brightly smile your Christmas greetings to your friends even before your Christmas cards speak your greetings. Christmas on your envelopes . . . Christmas on your cards!

Here are 6 tips to give your envelopes that well-groomed look, that come-hither look they should have:

1. Write in your "very best" handwriting. Carefully. Legibly. Illegibility, gets you nowhere . . . and too often, alas, gets your letters in exactly the same place. "Address your Christmas card envelopes plainly" is the ever-hopeful plea of the Post Office Department. This is good, practical advice. It's thrifty advice too, for carelessly - addressed envelopes may never arrive where you want them to arrive, or they may be futilely detouring around the country in an effort to find out just what you did mean by some of the illegible and abbreviated scrawls you scribbled in the address. Write with care, dear envelope addresser . . . your friends want to receive your Christmas cards, and you want them to receive your cards.

2. Do not abbreviate. (Only exceptions: "Mr." and "Mrs.") Abbreviating is a lazy person's way of writing. Remember: It takes only a second or two to write a word in full . . . just about as long as it takes to make the period after the abbreviation. Try it!

Warning: Abbreviations are the chief reason for mishaps to envelopes, Particularly in the names of states and provinces. It's so often so difficult to make out whether it is N.J. or N.Y.; Mo. or Me or Md.; Wash. or New.; Cal. or Col.

Ontario, a lovely word and lovely to look at, takes only a split second more to write than Ont. Alberta is so much better-looking on your Christmas envelopes than Alta.

Write in full these words in addresses: Street . . Avenue . . Road . . . Park . . . North, South, East, West.

3. Do not write "City" as an address. If the letter must be re-addressed, this too often leads to confusion.

4. Do not write any unnecessary curlycues. No "To" or "For" before the name. No "No" before the street address. And no need for a comma after the street number . . . this often causes misreading of the number.

5. Use the zone number whenever possible . . . that's what it is for. And remember the zone number should be written after the name of the city . . . not after the name of the province. And please . . . no comma before or after the zone number.

6. Four lines are generally best. clearest, for addressing envelopes: (1) name; (2) street-address; (3) city; (4) province. Like this:

Pleasant City 5

Spiced Beef for Christmas Entertaining

By Mary Moore

Because I am still hearing from enthusiastic readers about the recipe for Spiced Beef that I gave you last April, and because you are going to have extra mouths to feed at Christmas time, and because Spiced Beef is a traditional Christmas meat, and because it is not expensive, I am going to give you another method today.

If you buy your beef this weekend and start the corning-spicing process it will be ready for Christmas time.

A piece of brisket is ready to cook and use after 10 or 12 days in the pickle. A piece of rump will be ready in 18 days, but may be left in the spiced brine as long as 28 days before it is cooked.

SPICED BEEF

Be very choosy in selecting the beef. Insist on Red Brand. If you buy brisket be sure it is well-trimmed and has only shallow fat layers between the layers of lean meat. Your butcher will respect you if you insist on the very best. Brisket will be cheaper and tastier than rump. Buy 5 lbs. unrolled brisket or rump beef. To 2 cups boiling water (2 Imperial quarts plus 1 cup) add 4 tsp level measuring tablespoons salt, 1-3 oz. each mustard seed, whole cloves, cayenne pods, stick cinnamon and mace, and 1 oz. cut root ginger. Boil this five minutes and cool it. Add 1 cup white sugar and 1-9 oz. salt petre (buy at drug store). Place beef in large stone crock and pour cold solution over. If it does not cover the meat add cold water until it does. Meat should be turned in pickle every 3 or 4 days. Let brickets stay in pickle 10 to 12 days; rump 18 to 28 days.

When ready to use simmer meat in the brine until tender—3 to 4 hours. Let cool in cooking liquid. Lift from liquid and keep cold in glass or pottery bowl, pressed down with weight to make it firm and compact for slicing. To serve slice as thinly as possible. Delicious for cold cuts platter, or snacks or sandwiches. This meat will keep for weeks if refrigerator and wrapped carefully, but do not freeze it.

Spiced beef is always better served cold in thin slices. But if you prefer to use it hot all spices should be left out of the pickle. You would then have plain Corned Beef.

Corned beef is what is used for New England Boiled Dinner or Jigg's Corned Beef and Cabbage.

For New England Boiled Dinner boil potatoes, cabbage wedges, turnip, carrots, and, if desired, beets with the meat (adding each at the proper time). But they will hold their shapes and taste better if cooked separately—then assemble on meat platter at serving time.

For Jigg's Corned Beef and Cabbage cook corned (but not spiced) beef 3 or 4 hours. Cook wedges of green cabbage separately and until just barely tender. Use very sharp knife to slice hot corned beef.

Shannonville H-S Bazaar, Euchre Proceeds Total $212

The Shannonville Home and School Association held its Christmas bazaar and euchre recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bickman, Shannonville.

The gay tables started selling at 4 p.m., when friends and neighbors were greeted by the president, Mrs. J. Kilburn. The novelty table was made possible by the school girls and supervisors, Mrs. Mickle Sero and Mrs. Holland. There were shining sequin earrings; tiny pin cushions; aprons, both large and small; embroidery and hand crochet work with many, many more items.

A fish pond, under the charge of Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Bickman, found the fishermen and fisherwomen really out for business, especially when a gay doll or dainty gift dangled from the hook; while the post office, with its gayly wrapped parcels, donated by kind friends from the village and as far away as Manitoba, and convened by Mrs. Hill, did a flourishing business and was closed in no time.

HOME SEWING

The home sewing table was well laden with beautiful aprons of many colors and styles; wash cloths dressed up with pretty ribbons; washcloth cats with shining eyes; stuffed toys of all descriptions; embroidered table runners; handmade flowers; pot-holders; crocheted collars with sequin trim; ties with crochet; knit sweaters and socks, all of which was done by the Home and School ladies and overseen by Mrs. Helen Louis.

The homecooking table displayed an array of cookies, pies, and layer cakes; other cakes, beautifully decorated for this special occasion for the children. Many a with a sweet tooth found homemade candy in various sorts. Mrs. Willis Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Hill were in charge of these.

HOT BEEF SUPPER

A hot beef supper was served from 5 to 7.30 p.m., which was enjoyed by many from the village and surrounding district. The tables were decorated with Christmas placemats, and bowls of raw fruit, making all feel that Christmas was just around the corner. Mrs. Walter Brant, Mrs. Helen Nugent, and Mrs. Boyce Cook, with other Home and School Association members, were kept busy serving; while Mrs. Nellie Howard, Mrs. Fred Louis, Mrs. Gordon Sager, Mrs. Kilburn did a fine job keeping things warm and ready in the kitchen.

EVENING EUCHRE

In the evening a euchre was held with nine tables in play; the winners were: Mrs. George Hamnett; Helen Nugent; low, Mrs. Roy Sager; men—Don Nugent, Fred Louis; low—Clarence Hagerman; lone hand—Mrs. Helen Nugent. The travelling prize went to V. Waite.

A draw was made on a three-tier Christmas cake, donated by Mrs. Ray Reid, baked by Mrs. Peter Marion, and decorated by Mrs. Nellie Howard. The lucky winner was Damon Hinchey; the draw of a pair of chickens was won by Stephen Reynolds of Belleville, and the door prize of two baskets of groceries went to Mrs. Leslie Reid and Douglas Fuller.

Delicious refreshments of pie, cake and coffee were served by the ladies of the Home and School Association.

The proceeds from this annual bazaar and euchre amounted to $212.

A most grateful "thank-you" goes to Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Bickman, who so willingly opened their home for this event, and worked so faithfully to make it the success it was.

A play "Ship Ahoy" will be held in the Orange Hall on December 9, by the Volunteer Fire Brigade of Deseronto, with a cast of 30 and sponsored by the Shannonville Home and School Association.

The monthly meeting of the Association will be held in the school room on December 12. It is hoped all members will be present.

Child Should Be Seven Before Taking Music

CALGARY (CP)—Music teachers here feel that a child should be at least seven years before starting music lessons.

Mrs. W. G. Egbert, one of the teachers, says the method of reading taught children in schools today is of little use to the younger child starting to take music.

"The old system taught them the sounds of letters, which was a big help to beginners in learning to read music," she adds. "At any rate, a child is more adept in studying piano if he has been at school at least a year."

Miss Jean Evelyn said there are some exceptions, "But if a child is in Grade 2 in school when he begins music lessons, he will get along like a house on fire."

Jack Hutton said he thought a child should be 9 or 10 years old before starting music.

"If they start at too early an age, they lose interest in music, and many children even develop a strong dislike for the piano. Of course, a great deal depends on the teacher."

Another teacher, Miss Joyce Hackett, said the child of five who has a talent for the piano needs almost constant supervision at home to ensure continued progress. She said she does not like to accept children under seven.

Miss Mary Munn said: "If a child of five is unhappy at just producing noise from a piano—and the musical child is—he should receive training.

"However, lessons must be short and simple, and the child should have an experienced teacher. It is better to put this type of child's intellect and talents to use early."

Mrs. J. Kline, as well as giving an opinion on minimum ages for music students, said they should not be started too late.

"If children start any later than eight," she said, "by the time they are in their 'teens they become discouraged because they are still playing juvenile pieces."

RCEME 27 Squadron Holds Yuletide Dance

The first annual Christmas dance of 27 Technical Squadron RCEME (M) was held Friday evening, in the Moose Hall. Upwards of 100 officers and men, their wives and friends were in attendance and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

Sgts Cec Ruttan and Vic Allen and Corporal Paul Lewis were in charge of the organization of the function and they must be commended for a job well done. The hall was gaily decorated in red, yellow and blue, the RCME colors. Music was supplied by the Mellow Tones and several spot and variety dances kept things going at a merry pace.

The highlight of the evening was a presentation to the officer commanding the unit, Lt. K. D. H. Willcocks, on the occasion of his forthcoming marriage. Corporal Paul Lewis presented Mr. Willcocks and his fiancee, Miss Vader, with a beautiful mahogany mantle clock, suitably inscribed to mark the occasion.

Out-of-town guests included: Major Ted Harvey and Mrs. Harvey of Kingston, and S/Sgt. Si Morehen and Mrs. Morehen of Toronto.

Christ Church E.B.W.A. Meets For Business

Members of the Evening Branch of the W.A. of Christ Church met on Monday evening in the parish hall for their last business meeting of the year.

The devotional service was in charge of the president, Mrs. A. Cooper, with Scripture portion read by Mrs. J. Spencer. The secretary, treasurer and Sunshine Fund reports were read by Mrs. W. Edwards, Mrs. H. Hill and Mrs. Spencer, respectively.

Arrangements for the Christmas supper party next week were discussed and it was decided to again send Christmas greeting cards to the shut-ins of the parish.

CASH DONATIONS

As is customary, it was decided to send cash donations to several worthy causes such as Sunday school by post; Church Army; Cowley Fathers; a boy in the Indian school at Palampur, and for Christmas cheer baskets in the parish and others.

Mrs. Cooper expressed appreciation to all who had carried on during her absence especially thanking the vice-president, Mrs. L. Mason.

Hostesses, Mrs. G. O'Brien, Mrs. F. Clare and Miss Frances Reid, served tea and sandwiches during the social half-hour.

The sheath is managing to undergo some changes despite its attenuated lines. There is the jumper sheath and now there is the sheath with the two-piece look, an example of which is shown here. It is of brown wool jersey combined with brown miniature tweed. The jersey top has a slicker of the tweed, with collars and cuffs of it too. The straight line tweed skirt has plenty of drape and there are pockets in the side seams and a leather belt.

Little Benny's Notebook

Mr. Peevy was standing outside the fire house in his sailer hat and his blue coat with the brass buttons being Dooey Shorty Jaddo's 80 year old grandfather, and started to talk to him, saying, Did you ever find any berried treasure, Mr. Peevy?

No, but I helped to berry some, Mr. Peevy said. I was diving for a cargo of sunken gold in the Pajama Sea off the coast of Japan with a few frends, he said, and I said, Didn't you find it?

No, but we were glad we looked, because we stumbled on something just as good, Mr. Peevy said. It was a bed of 2000 giant oysters, and each oyster had a giant perl in it, and each perl was so perfect it shone like a diamond. Must of been a million dollers werth of solid perls, ruffly speeking, he said.

Why did you have to berry them? I said, and Mr. Peevy said, Because we sighted a pirate ship bearing down on us, so we berried the perls in the crater of an extinct volcano.

You were lucky it was extinct, I said, and he said, That's what we figured, but we wasn't taking no chances. Fortunately we had a big asbestos case of skyrockets. Well sir, we spilled out the skyrockets and filled the case with the giant perls and berried it in the volcano. So the pirates didn't find a thing except the skyrockets and some worthless cancelled checks, and while they were sailing away that pesky volcano came to life and hasn't stopped spouting fire from that day to this. But if I ever heard of it dying down again I'm going to head an expedition to rescue those perls, because I know they're still safe in that asbestos box. Well, I'm going now, he said. Which he did, not saying where.

Fluoridation Given Cautious Approval

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba government Tuesday gave cautious support to the fluoridation of water supply but left it to municipalities to decide whether they want to do it.

The first statement of government policy on fluoridation, released by Health Minister Robert Bend, departed little from the non-committal position taken before. But it did say there was "no reason why children should not receive the benefit of fluoridation" provided medical and dental opinion was favorable, and the machinery and testing procedures were carefully supervised.

Continued Price Supports For Butter, Eggs Indicated By Agricultural Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Continuation of federal price supports for butter and eggs has been indicated by Agriculture Minister Gardiner, with a couple of reservations.

He told a reporter Tuesday night he will urge the cabinet to continue butter supports beyond next May 1. The policy probably would continue unless some groups were successful in apparent attempts to disrupt it.

He said at the federal-provincial agricultural conference that the egg support program should continue as long as it is not allowed to be broken down by abuses.

Mr. Gardiner's comments on butter supports were made in amplification of a statement he had made earlier to the conference, apparently indicating continuation of the support policy. The government has agreed to buy up surplus butter on the market at 58 cents a pound until May 1.

MONEY-EARNERS

The twin topics of butter and eggs—important money - earners for most farm families—were discussed Tuesday as the conference got down to specific cases.

One proposal was that the federal government provide old age pensioners with a pound of butter and a dozen eggs a month. It came from Mrs. George Prosser of Blackstock, Ont., president of the women's branch of the Ontario Farmers Union.

This morning Mr. Gardiner and provincial agriculture ministers were to meet in closed session.

Mr. Gardiner told the conference Tuesday that the butter support program has been given unfavorable publicity by statements from some organizations. It was understood he referred to recent statements by the Dairy Council of Canada—an organization of butter distributors—which disputed his statement that Canada's butter surplus was 10,000,000 pounds. The council said the surplus was about 65,000,000 pounds.

HARM PROSPECTS

The minister said that publicity which over-emphasizes the surplus can only harm marketing prospects.

A federal report to the conference said government holdings now total about 65,000,000 pounds—highest in history for this time of year.

The government has been trying to dispose of some of its butter holdings. About 8,000,000 pounds were sold recently for export to Communist satellites at about 37 cents a pound wholesale, compared with the 58 cents the government paid. The Canadian retail price is around 65 cents.

Indications are that butter disposal may cost the government up to $3,000,000 this year—about the cost of price support in the last five years.

BUY STORAGE EGGS

Federal egg support, which began in 1949, provides for government buying of surplus eggs in storage Dec. 1 each year at 38 cents a dozen.

Mr. Gardiner, elaborating on his reference to possible future abuses breaking down the program, said egg supporta worked well until 1954 when "we found that things had got out of control altogether."

He said he had promised the federal cabinet that he would not ask that the plan be continued if it cost as much this year as it did in 1954. The 1954 cost was $350,000. This year only $50,000 was spent —for freight charges on western eggs brought east to be sold.

4,000 Stamps, 2,000 Covers In Collection

TORONTO (CP)—William Vanson, a retired policeman who began collecting stamps as a boy in his native England, snapped up the "gem" of his collection at a recent Toronto auction.

Mr. Vanson says it is the "finest stamp/s cover I've ever seen."

A cover, in stamp circles, is an envelope, card or document which has moved through a mail service of some kind.

In this case, it is a stampless cover because it is dated June 28, 1837—three years before Roland Hill introduced stamps in Britain, the first country to use them.

A member of West Toronto Stamp Club, Mr. Vanson has 40,000 stamps and 2,000 covers. His gem is an "Advice of Remission" addressed to Daniel D. Brodhead, an agent in Boston for the S. Navy 118 years ago. Signed by J. C. Pickett, as "fourth auditor," it tells Mr. Brodhead that the naval secretary has approved a $93,329 expenditure for provisioning a fleet anchored in Boston harbor.

The outside of the document once sealed with wax, bears the address and a type of postmark.

Mr. Vanson, who retired from Toronto police force in 1953 after 30 years service, could not put a price on his prize but says he is sending it to a cover expert in Sidney, Ont., for appraisal.

Hereditary Failing of Buchans Has Been Itch to Write

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A Scots clergyman named John Buchan started it 100 years ago.

Between sermons, he did some journalistic work and set the pattern for the "Writing Buchans."

His son John, later the first Lord Tweedsmuir, achieved world fame as an author of adventure stories and biographies. And the daughter and three sons of the romantic Scot who was to become governor-general of Canada all fell victim in turn to what a relative calls the "hereditary failing" of the Buchans—the itch to write.

Alice, the daughter, wrote novels and biographies.

The eldest son John, present Lord Tweedsmuir, has written two books and many articles.

William, the second son, has recently completed a novel.

Alastair, the third son, is a newspaper man, diplomatic correspondent for the observer.

WIDOW WRITES

The family failing doesn't end there. Susan Lady Tweedsmuir, widow of the author of "Prester John," "The Thirty-Nine Steps" and "Greenmantle," has written plays, children's books and reminiscences. She is in her early 70s and published her latest book, "A Winter Bouquet," last year.

Other writing Buchans were Anne (as O. Douglas) and Walter, sister and brother respectively of the well-known author, whose library has been bequeathed to Queen's University at Kingston, Ont. The first Tweedsmuir was governor-general of Canada from 1935 until his death in 1940, aged 64.

"My father read every day of his life," recalls the present Lord Tweedsmuir. "His library was a very big one, and we were allowed to take books out only if we replaced them in exactly the same place. He regarded books as the tools of his trade, and we had to respect them as he did."

TALES ON WALKS

A natural story-teller, he amused his children by telling them stirring adventure tales on long morning walks. He wrote for publication in a "villainous longhand," his son says, but had a secretary who could decipher it.

The present Lord Tweedsmuir, who once went to Canada to recover his health, wrote a book about his experiences called "Hudson's Bay Trader." Now he is preparing a series of articles, based on a recent visit, for publication in Canada Review. His wife, Priscilla, a Conservative member of Parliament, writes articles for newspapers and magazines.

The latest family book is "Kumart," by William Buchan. It describes the last days of British rule in India and Orville Prescott, reviewing the novel in the New York Times, said recently it is written with "such beauty of style and such enormous skill in evoking the Indian scene that the familiar nature of the plot doesn't matter at all."

TWEED

Coffee Shop Changes Hands

TWEED.—It has just been announced that Raymond Kwan, who operates Chinese restaurants in Port Hope and Oshawa, has purchased "Gerry's Coffee Shop" in Tweed, from Gerald A. Quinn, and will take possession on December 15th. The restaurant will be closed for a few days prior to this date for redecorating.

The present restaurant was originally known as the "King George Cafe" and was operated by Gerald's father, the late Mr. John Quinn.

Gerald opened the restaurant in October 1931, and has operated it since that time with the exception of a few years while he was in Hamilton and during that time it was managed by Foster Hinds.

Mr. Quinn has no immediate plans for the future and he and Mrs. Quinn will take a short holiday before entering any other line of business.

It is understood that Mr. Kwan has other substantial interests in Oshawa, but intends making his home in Tweed and will occupy the apartment over the restaurant. He will be assisted in the business by his nephew.

Canada and Britain to Hold 2-Day Conference on Trade

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Britain open confidential talks Thursday on prospects for expanding two-way trade. Indications are that both wheat and import controls may come under review.

But any attempts by Canadian officials to find out how British feels towards signing a new International Wheat Agreement likely will fail. One British delegate said he knows nothing about Britain's attitude. Her decision would have to await the next IWA meeting in Geneva next February.

Britain's greatest concern is the two-day session of the Anglo-Canadian continuing trade committee will be to find ways of boosting sales of her goods to Canada.

Britain's shipments have lagged far behind Canada's. In the first nine months of 1955, Canada's exports to Britain rose to $529,400,000 from $458,900,000 last year. In the first eight months, Britain's exports to Canada totalled $261,800,000, down from $270,200,000 a year ago.

DOLLAR DRAIN

The Anglo-Canadian trade gap has widened to a point where it is causing, for Britain, a serious drain on her vital dollar reserves spent to balance the trade deficit.

Criticism in Canada of British exporters ranges from "slow deliveries" to "lack of interest in producing for the small Canadian market." A British delegate said Britain is keenly aware of these criticisms.

While Canadian officials are generally satisfied with the increase of exports to Britain, they said they will keep pressing for further reductions in British import curbs.

Those remaining mostly restrict imports of manufactured goods.

Britain is Canada's top wheat consumer. Each year Canadian officials like to get an idea of what Britain may require in the year ahead. This year there also is the question of whether Britain will rejoin the International wheat pact which she left in 1953 in an agreement over prices.

Canadian officials are willing to make some price concessions if Britain will sign a new pact when the current one expires next July.

CNR Is Host To 200 Orphans

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways' central station in downtown Montreal broke out circus-theme Christmas decorations Tuesday and invited more than 200 boys and girls from city children's homes and orphanages to watch the fun.

There's a burly elephant who plays a horn, a bear with a drum, a clown with a fiddle, an animal trainer with a whip and a seal balancing colored balloons on the tip of its nose.

President Donald Gordon of the CNR and Mrs. Gordon were hosts to the kiddies at the official opening. Later, there was a party and dispensing of gifts.

Coffin Lawyer Will Present Defence Evidence

OTTAWA (CP)—Arthur Maloney, Toronto lawyer, is expected to dispute today the crown's theory that possession of various articles belonging to three American hunters was evidence that Wilbert Coffin, 44-year-old Gaspe prospector, was guilty of murder.

Mr. Maloney is appearing before the Supreme Court of Canada on behalf of Coffin, convicted at Perce, Que., in July, 1954, of murdering Richard Lindsey, 17, of Holidaysburg, Pa., in June, 1953. Lindsey's remains were found with those of his companions in the Gaspe peninsula mountains in July, 1953.

The other hunters were Eugene Lindsey, 47, Richard's father, and a friend, Frederick Claar, 20.

Coffin's conviction was unanimously confirmed by the Quebec Court of Appeals. He is scheduled to be hanged Feb. 10.

OPINION NOT BINDING

The Supreme Court, which refused Coffin leave to appeal his conviction, is reviewing the case at the request of the federal cabinet.

Its opinion, which will not be binding, is expected to be used by the cabinet in deciding whether to order a new trial or commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Maloney argued Tuesday that the trial judge, Mr. Justice Gerard Lacroix, erred in admitting as evidence testimony about a .32-60 calibre Marlin-type rifle loaned to Coffin by an acquaintance, Jack Eagle.

The rifle has never been found, nor has the murder weapon.

Mr. Maloney argued that the crown sought by putting together various bits of evidence to prove that Coffin may have used the borrowed rifle to kill Lindsey and conspired with his brother, Donald, to destroy or hide the weapon.

Mr. Maloney said the evidence was irrelevant and based on hearsay and therefore inadmissible. He said it may have prejudiced the against the accused.

Th vidence included testimony by Eagle that Coffin told him the rifle was at his father's house at York Centre, six miles from Gaspe, and that provincial police officers said they acted on "precise information" in searching Coffin's camp for the rifle.

Mr. Maloney also argued that the trial judge should have left it open to the jury to decide that Coffin could have stolen various articles belonging to the hunters but could still be not guilty of murder.

The articles traced to Coffin by police included a truck gasoline pump, similar to one Richard Lindsey purchased in Gaspe, a hunting knife, a pair of binoculars and a valise containing clothing.

Coffin was spotted by police at the trial as saying he drove Lindsey 65 miles to Gaspe to buy a new pump for the hunters' truck, which was stalledon a trail when he met them June 10, 1953.

When Coffin returned with Lindsey to the main hunting party he said he saw two other Americans in a jeep. They were not identified.

In alleging Coffin did not get a fair trial, the defence seeks to show the possibility that some other person than Coffin could have killed the Lindseys and Claar.

GIRL KILLED

TORONTO (CP) — Six-year-old Sharon Joan Gelder was killed Tuesday night when she was struck by a car while crossing the street near her home.

Took Time Off To Kill Wife, Then Himself

HAMILTON (CP)—A man who had arranged time off from work killed his wife with a shotgun blast Tuesday night, police said, and then took his own life with the same weapon.

Garnet Leach, 51-year-old factory engineer, was found in a darkened school yard across the street from his home in east-end Hamilton. Marjorie Leach, 44, was dead when found in the kitchen of the house by police, who had intended to break the news of her husband's death.

Leach had been shot in the stomach. A shotgun lay beside his body. Mrs. Leach was shot in the chest. A 15-year-old boy, Leo Marceaux, discovered the man's body as he rode his bicycle through the school yard.

Leach was an engineer at Building Products Ltd. Police said he had arranged with a fellow worker to fill in for him on his night shift. Shortly after the man's body was found, police went to his home. When nobody answered their knocks, the officers broke down the door. Mrs. Leach's body was in the kitchen.

Police said a note was found on a living-room mantel but would not divulge its contents.

Indians Will Hold Pow-Wow With Officials of Government

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian representatives from across Canada open a three-day pow-wow with federal government officials here Dec. 12.

Out of the meetings likely will come a number of changes to the Indian act which governs the lives of Canada's 150,000 Indians on reservations from coast to coast.

The government already is known to have some changes in mind.

The Indians themselves likely will have proposals to make to their white brothers on various topics, including liquor rights, use of Indian trust funds now totalling close to $25,000,000, and increased freedom and responsibility.

A government spokesman said that whatever changes are agreed upon will be proposed by the government at the new session of Parliament opening Jan. 10. It is likely that the special Commons committee on Indian affairs, which sat at the last session under the chairmanship of Don Brown, Liberal member for Essex West, will be reconvened at the new session.

The three-day parley will be under the chairmanship of Citizenship Minister Pickersgill, who administers Indian affairs. It is likely, to be a colorful affair with some of the 27 Indian delegates in full-dress regalia as they were when they last met federal officials in Ottawa in 1952.

RELEASES NAME

OTTAWA (CP)—Air force headquarters Tuesday released the name of the seventh victim of the crash of an RCAF Bristol transport plane near Marville, France, Saturday. He was FO Joseph P. Hrenyk, 22, of Mission City, B.C.

In International Relations Year for Canada Ended Better Than It Began

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—In international relations, the year 1955 for Canada ended better than it began.

On Jan. 27, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons that the international situation was "quite grave" because of the Formosa crisis.

The previous day, after a sometimes bitter debate, the Commons approved by a vote of 213 to 12 the ratification of the Paris agreements for admittance of a rearmed West Germany into the North Atlantic alliance. All 12 opposed were CCF members.

By late August, External Affairs Minister Pearson was saying in a Vancouver speech that "the time is coming—and soon—when we should have another and searching look at the problem" of Canadian recognition of Communist China.

VISITS TO RUSSIA

In October, Mr. Pearson made a 19-day official visit to Russia. About the same time, Fisheries Minister Sinclair visited Siberia and Red China.

On Nov. 16 Mr. St. Laurent told newspaper men, after hearing reports from Mr. Pearson and Mr. Sinclair, that he believed the outlook for peace is hopeful.

Mr. Pearson's return to Ottawa in mid-November coincided with collapse of the Big Four foreign ministers' conference at Geneva. He said:

"I went off to Russia convinced that one important reason for the relaxation of international tension that seems to have taken place is that NATO is built up and strong. I believe even more now that nothing should be done to weaken NATO strength or unity."

He said the Soviet leaders had made it clear to him in Moscow that one of Russia's primary objectives is to smash NATO.

TASK FOR DIPLOMACY

Mr. Pearson said before he went to Russia that though the diplomatic climate was warmer, no major agreements had yet been worked out between East and West. But the negative results of Geneva, he said on his return, didn't mean that the process of negotiation was necessarily ended. All resources of diplomacy should be employed to work out an accommodation with Russia.

Though Mr. Pearson's Russian visit did not produce any concrete results immediately — he did not expect that it would—it was probably the year's highlight for Canada in the field of international relations, more in the way of prestige than anything else.

Canada continued to be deeply concerned with the preservation and strengthening of NATO. This concern became even more apparent after the Big Four meeting in Geneva in July.

In October, Mr. Pearson said: "NATO has assumed special responsibilities for the maintenance of peace and security. The discharge of them has never required that we should brandish our arms, where it began and even across the ocean."

About the same time, he said that if the U.S. became involved in a major war Canada would be in it from the start. That did not mean, of course, that Canada would automatically spring to the support of the U.S. in any and every war in which the U.S. might become involved.

At Singapore in October, Mr. Pearson outlined a "significant" increase in Canada's contribution to the Colombo plan for co-operative economic development in South and Southeast Asia. Canada has given $13,000,000 to the plan since 1951, the contribution this year being some $20,000,000.

In early February, Prime Minister St. Laurent attended the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London. He said in the Commons on his return that he had told the prime ministers that Canada couldn't take on any additional defence commitments.

At the United Nations, Health Minister Martin played a key role in continuing disarmament discussions. But the Russians rejected President Eisenhower's plan for mutual aerial inspection and at year's end little new progress was apparent.

They do require, however, that we should not now discard them and thus give grounds to any potential aggressor for believing that it might be safe to take risks with peace."

CANUCKS IN EUROPE

With the increased emphasis on North American defence, there was some talk in the capital of bringing home some or all of the 12 RCAF fighter squadrons based in Europe. But Mr. Pearson said it was important that Europeans see the physical evidence of Canadian cooperation in NATO—that is, the air division and the Canadian infantry brigade.

After the Formosa scare in the spring, the situation in the Far East remained relatively calm.

Canada pulled most of its infantry brigade and its three destroyers out of the Korean theatre after two years of armistice. It maintained its participation on the three-nation international truce supervisory commission for Indochina. About 180 Canadians, mostly members of the armed forces, work on the commission.

The Formosa crisis had repercussions in the Canadian Commons. On March 24, Mr. Pearson said Canada would not become involved in any war between the Chinese Nationalists and Communists over the Chinese off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu — if that war could be kept local. He added:

"What I most fear in this matter is that even limited intervention, defensive in purpose, by the United States might have a chain reaction with unforeseen consequences which would cause the conflict to spread far beyond the locality

Cripple Makes New Career For Himself

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Don Kilgour, 47, has made a new career for himself although he has been bedridden for the past 13 years.

Crippled by arthritis, the former linotype operator has suffered severe pain and many hospital ordeals but faces undaunted the challenge of making a living.

Mr. Kilgour was employed by the Sherbrooke Record when arthritis began its painful attack. In 1951 he started selling magazine subscriptions but found that to represent a subscription company he had to deal by money order.

Unable to travel to the post office for money orders, he explained his plight to the company, which then agreed to deal with him by cheque.

His most severe attack came in 1946 while he waited for a taxicab in cold weather. For 5½ years he tried treatments at various hospitals—Hotel Dieu here, Toronto Western Hospital and Queen Elizabeth Hospital, also in Toronto, and twice in St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal.

Aside from magazine subscriptions, Mr. Kilgour now has a selection of Christmas and greeting cards, pen and pencil sets, wallet, tool kits, bulldog books, note paper and the like.

But Don Kilgour admits ruefully that he is a salesman with a difference—people must come to him, he cannot go to them.

New Serum for Treatment Of Intestinal Cancer Being Produced at Foundation

By PETER MAITLAND

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A serum for the treatment of intestinal cancer is being produced and tested at the newly-formed Percy Gardiner Medical Foundation headed by Dr. Gordon Murray.

An authoritative source says the serum has been in use on human patients only a short time.

Dr. Murray, famous for his "blue baby" heart operations and the development of an artificial kidney, announced last spring a serum for breast cancer. It is still undergoing tests.

The latest serum, the source said, has shown "promising results" although Dr. Murray is making no claim of cure.

SYMPTONS EASED

The action of both serums so far is remissive—only alleviates patients' symptoms but not curing them. Since tests have been made only on cancer patients for whom all hope has been abandoned, accurate forecasts of the serum's effectiveness are difficult to make, the source added.

It has been found, however, the serum would dissolve cancer cells in a test tube. The next step is to make it work inside the body.

The cells are contained in fluid drained from cancerous growths in advanced stages.

In announcing development of the breast serum to the Toronto Academy of Medicine last March, Dr. Murray said the serum was made by injecting horses with human cancers, then drawing off the blood.

"Naturally," Dr. Murray said, "we selected only patients in whom all other forms of treatment had been tried and who were in the final and late stages of cancer . . . which is a very severe test of the use of any such serum."

Dr. Murray reviewed several cases and said some had shown "striking improvement" and were able to carry on normal activities.

But he emphasized: "There is no proof we have cured any patient of cancer."

He added, however: "To date, the effect of this (breast) serum treatment has been equal to the other forms of treatment if not surpassing it."

Development of the two serums was a result of an investigation Dr. Murray started in London, England, five years ago and continued here and in New York.

STUDY CHANGES

The basis of his work was the observation of pathological changes in the reaction of body-tissue cells before a cancer spreads. The changes indicated that the cell walls of tissue adjacent to lymph nodes are affected by drainage of some unknown material from a cancer.

Development of the serum consisted of finding an anti-body to combat the mysterious material.

Similar work is carried on at foundations in New York and Denmark.

Percy Gardiner, a Toronto financier, set up last week a foundation to look after the financial operation of Dr. Murray's research program.

Projects are carried out in a modern laboratory by a staff of about seven. Selected patients are treated free at Toronto hospitals.

Testing System Will Be Used In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP)—A new system to test present and prospective motorists in Nova Scotia will put all the province's drivers within 25 miles of an examining station.

The intensified drive is patterned after a testing system in use in Halifax for the last eight years and will require motorists to have their eyes tested, take an oral examination and drive over a selected three-mile stretch of highway.

E. S. Campbell, registrar of motor vehicles, said the province-wide examination system is a means of combatting the highway death toll by insuring the competency of all license-holders.

Under the scheme, Nova Scotia is being divided into eight districts. A trained full-time examiner will be appointed for each, conducting examinations at key points on specified days every two weeks.

BAN PROSTITUTION

UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA PLAYS HOST TO RUSSIAN CLERGYMEN

Host during their stay in Canada, Rt. Rev. George Dorey, moderator of the United Church of Canada, is seen welcoming Anatole Gorbachev, Archpriest Konstantin Rushitzky, rector of Moscow's theological seminary and Archbishop Boris, exarch for North and South America of the Moscow patriarchate, to Toronto. Asked last May to visit Canada by the United Church, the members of the Russian Orthodox Church will spend five days in Toronto before visiting Ottawa where they will meet Prime Minister St. Laurent. Before returning to Russia on Dec. 19 to celebrate the feast of St. Nicholas, they will fly to Edmonton from the cities to visit "at least 10 Orthodox churches which acknowledge the Moscow patriarch." United Church ministers expect to return the visit next July at invitation of their guests. — Central Press Canadian.

Defence Dept. High Command Turnover Almost Wholesale

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—This year saw an almost wholesale turnover in the high command of the defence department.

The biggest commotion was raised over the retirement at 52 of LL-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff, regarded as Canada's most brilliant field commander in the Second World War.

He was replaced Sept. 1 by a man nearly five years his senior, LL-Gen. Howard Graham, head of the army's central command since 1951.

The announcement of the replacement of Gen. Simonds came less than a year after Hon. Ralph Campney took over as defence minister from Brooke Claxton.

IN NO. 2 POST

Air Marshal Frank R. Miller, 47, in August succeeded Brig. C. M. (Bud) Drury, 43, as deputy defence minister, No. 2 post in the department.

Before the year was out, the retirements of Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, 54, as chief of naval staff, and Dr. E. M. Solandt, 46, as chairman of the defence research board, were announced.

Admiral Mainguy is to be succeeded Jan. 16 by Vice-Admiral Harry George Derwil, 52, and Dr Solandt March 1 by A. Hartley Zimmerman, 53.

Air Vice-Marshal Plant advocated in a Toronto speech in early June that the army be scrapped to make way for a bigger air force and was promptly removed from his job which involves tri-service policy He was made head of the RCAF's air material command.

No official reason was given for Gen. Simonds' retirement when it was announced June 8 except that, in the words of Mr Campney, he had "completed the normal four-year term"

Gen. Simonds was chief of the general staff four years and seven months. His predecessor, Gen. Charles Foulkes, now chairman of the chiefs of staff, held the post five years and seven months

Of the last 19 armed forces chiefs, only three, including Gen Simonds, served roughly four years

It is generally understood that Gen. Simonds did not want to retire but had planned to stay on at least another year as chief of staff.

In the Commons, the Progressive Conservative Opposition raised a fuss about the general's retirement. They maintained that Gen. Simonds' talents were being wasted and asked why he was not promoted chairman of the chiefs of staff as had been done in the case of Gen. Foulkes.

Gen. Simonds publicly advocated military conscription on two or three occasions, the last time just a few weeks before he was retired.

Air Marshal Miller, a native of Kamloops, B.C., is the first RCAF officer to become deputy defence minister.

Mr. Drury had been deputy minister since 1949 and was said to have wanted to get back to private business for some time. He became president and general manager of Provincial Transport Company at Montreal, his home city.

No reason was given for Dr Solandt's departure to join Canadian National Railways as vice-president in charge of research and development

But it was said that for some time he considered his work finished at the defence research board which he has headed since its foundation in 1947. As chairman of the board, he received $17,000 a year. As CNR vice-president he will get a reported $25,000.

No reason was given either for the retirement of Admiral Mainguy chief of naval staff since Nov. 1, 1951, though it was expected after Gen. Simonds retired.

Register Cars Same as Ships Lawyers Suggest

TORONTO (CP)—A sub-committee of the Canadian Bar Association Tuesday suggested that automobiles in Ontario be registered by a method similar to that used for ships.

The suggestion was made to the Ontario legislature's select committee on certificates of title for motor vehicles by a sub-committee of the commercial law section, Canadian Bar Association.

F. K. Higginbottom, appearing before the committee, said the sub-committee feels that if the provinces were divided into 19 districts, less confusion would result and the public interest would be better served.

The sub-committee suggested that, to meet the problem of what registration district would apply to a motor vehicle, the system used for ships under the Canada Shipping Act be used as a model.

Under the act, any approved port in Canada can be the home of ships.

MARKED ON CARD

"We would hesitate to suggest that Ontario motor vehicles would have their home port of registry marked on the stern, but see no reason why the registration office, for the purpose of the respective acts, should not be endorsed on the owner's registration card," said the sub-committee's brief.

The vehicle's "home port" would be the one where the vehicle was first registered. Provisions would be made for transferring registration of a vehicle from one office to another upon payment of a fee.

The district registration offices would have records showing conditional sales, chattel mortgages and liens against any vehicle.

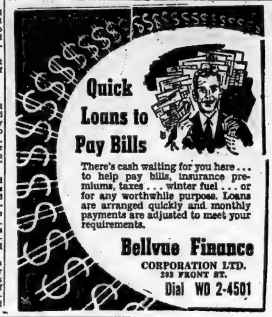
"The home-port registration idea seems particularly appropriate for objects which move about and this fact underlies the registration of ships which may be found anywhere in the world," the brief said

Little Benny's Notebook

Today in school Miss Kitty told us about conscience, saying. Without conscience the world would be even worse than it is, if that is possibl. But just as little drops of water make the miley ocean, so little drops of conscience make our caracter, and our caracter makes us what we are, sometimes unfortunatsley. Now I want you all to try and remember the last time your conscience spoke to you and saved you from doing something you would of been sorry for. Who can think of sutch an occasion? she said

Which nobody raised their hand, and Miss Kitty said, Come come, I'd be sorry to have a class without a single conscience. Well Benny? she said.

Meening me waving, and I said, One time I accidently slid on a loose rug and rocked over a lamp and broke the bulb, but it wasn't my fault so I didn't see any excuse to go around explaining, and just then I saw my mother looking into the room on account of having heard the sound of the noise, and my conscience spoke to me and I told her exactly what happened.



Do you really call that an example of your conscience saving you from something you would of been sorry for? Miss Kitty said, and I said, Sure, it saved me from being accused instead of coming right out and confessing, and that would of been sure to make me sorry.

Oh dear, sutch a class, sometimes I wish she didn't, starting the thing tells me I'd better not ask for any more examples, Miss Kitty said.

Which she didn't, starting the spelling lesson instead.

May Face Fine Of $5,000 a Day For Raw Sewage

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—City manager W. S. Orr told city council Tuesday night it may have to pay a fine of $5,000 a day if it fails to build a sewage treatment plant by next July.

He said the International Joint Commission on pollution of boundary waters is seeking approval from Washington and Ottawa to fine municipalities that fail to construct plants.

The commission is taking the action to reduce pollution of boundary waters caused by dumping of raw sewage.

Orr estimated cost of a sewage treatment plant at between $1,750,000 and $3,000,000.

Psychologist Wins $64,000

NEW YORK (AP) — A pretty young psychologist who became interested in boxing through her husband answered a knotty question on the sport Tuesday night to pocket $64,000 in television winnings.

Dr. Joyce Brothers, 28, of New York, became the second person to win the top prize on the CBS show "The $64,000 Question." The first was Capt. Richard McCutcheon of the Marine Corps.

Dr. Brothers, wife of Dr. Milton Brothers, a hospital interne here, answered a lengthy question ranging from boxing in ancient Rome to the modern ring.

Toronto Woman Dies of Burns

TORONTO (CP)—An 88-year-old woman died of burns Tuesday night when she apparently fell asleep in bed while smoking a cigaret.

Police said Margaret Hoskin was resting while her sister, Agnes, prepared supper. She apparently woke to find the bed clothes ablaze and ran to the bathroom where she collapsed. The sister was treated for shock.

Firemen extinguished the fire before it spread through the house.

DOG WHIMPERING

Barbara Alexander vanished in July, 1953, but, for reasons not explained, her disappearance was not reported by Alexander until "about nine months later," the county attorney said.

Asked by the missing woman's parents at Hardin, Mont., to continue an investigation, police questioned the present Mrs. Alexander.

On Monday, police chief C. J. Carter said, Mrs. Rose Alexander signed a statement relating these details:

She went to the Alexander home in 1953. Barbara came to the door and stumbled against a pile of bricks. The bricks toppled, killing her. Rose, shocked and frightened, dragged the body into the house and returned several days later to bury it in the basement.

Alexander was building the home and the basement was unfinished. Carter said the body apparently was placed in dry cement, then was wet down and covered with dirt and a concrete floor.

Where was Alexander at the time his wife was killed? Where were the five children? Police say they do not know.

Some time after the incident Rose Alexander returned to live with her former husband.

Alexander resigned as a shop instructor at Casper high school last spring, and in August he and his family moved to Worland, Wyo., where he now works as a machinist. The home here was left unoccupied.

Acting on Mrs. Rose Alexander's statement and at her direction, police began drilling in the basement Monday night. At first they were unsuccessful. Then the Alexanders' pet dog, a Saint Bernard, came to the basement and whimpered over a spot in another corner.

Officers dug there, and within minutes unearthed the body.

WILL APPEAL ACTION

NEW YORK (AP)—A 21-year-old man who knocked a woman down in a subway car and then stabbed her to death with 18 slashes from a paring knife has been allowed to plead guilty to manslaughter. Judge Nathan R. Sobel accepted the plea of Everett D. Benson Tuesday and threw out a first-degree murder indictment. William I. Siegel, assistant district attorney, announced that he will appeal the judge's action. No date has been set for sentencing.

Lucky Timing Gets Bank Robber $500 at Cornwall

CORNWALL (CP) — A young bank bandit's lucky timing netted him $500 and a clean getaway here Tuesday.

Unmasked, he walked into the Bank of Commerce and demanded $500 just as a 24-year-old teller had finished counting a $500-stack of $10 bills. The youth grabbed the money and disappeared into a crowd of Christmas shoppers before bank officials knew they had been robbed.

Teller Norah MacDonald said a well-dressed youth walked up to her wicket and slid a note into the cage. The note read: "I want $500. Be careful, I have a gun."

He took the stack she'd just finished counting and walked out. Miss MacDonald, unnerved, fled into the bank's basement.

Police said accountant H. F. McKinnon saw Miss MacDonald go downstairs and followed her to see what was wrong. When she told him the bank had been robbed he ran outside and found a policeman.

SHOUTS IGNORED

Bank manager A. L. Anderson said he heard Mr. McKinnon yell "Holdup, Holdup," but had paid no attention.

"I thought he meant there was a traffic holdup outside," Anderson said. His first inkling something was wrong was when McKinnon reentered the bank with a police constable.

Police threw up roadblocks but found no trace of the bandit. They said today there was no apparent connection between the holdup and the $20,000 robbery of a Cornwall supermarket two weeks ago.

Gypsum Company Workers Return

WINDSOR, N. S. (CP)—The 400 employees of Canadian Gypsum Company plants returned to their jobs today after a weeklong walkout which brought an announcement of disciplinary action from the management.

Company manager Michael King said today that between 80 and 70 workers filed into plants at Hantsport and Wentworth on the midnight shift Tuesday "without incident."

RCMP constables, who had patrolled the villages since a stone throwing incident threatened a general outbreak of violence last Wednesday, returned to their detachments early today after ensuring a quiet back-to-work movement.

Lancasters Now Number Only 30 in RCAF

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF is down to its last 30 Lancasters. But at least some of these are likely to be around for a few years yet.

To thousands of Canadian wartime airmen, the passing of the Lancaster bomber must seem like the demolition of an ancient and favorite landmark. They were the carriers of RAF bomber command's mortal blows at Germany.

Some of the Lancs recently retired from the RCAF are meeting a cruel fate. In air fire parlance, they are being cannibalized—broken down for spare parts to be used for other Lancs still in service.

The two maritime reconaissance squadrons at Greenwood, N. S., have recently converted from Lancasters to U. S.-built Neptune bombers and the coastal patrol squadron at Comox, B. C., is expected to do the same. That will still leave some Lancs on search and rescue and photography work for the next two or three years.

SPARE PARTS SCARCE

Because production of Lancasters ceased in 1945, spare parts now are hard to come by. That's why those being retired form the focal point for a scavenger hunt.

The Lancaster was developed by A V Roe Aircraft Co.

Altogether, 7,366 Lancasters were built, 430 of them in Canada. At its peak strength, bomber command, including 6 RCAF groups, had 42 squadrons of them. During the war, the Lancs flew more than 156,000 operations and dropped 608,612 tons of bombs. Although not the first four engine bomber to enter service, it had by 1944 become predominant in bomber command and was one of the most potent factors in the defeat of Nazi Germany.

The Lanc was used in many different roles: vast saturation raids, low- and high-level precision attacks, such as the 1943 breaching of the Mohne and Eder dams and the 1944 sinking of the Tirpitz.

Atom Progress, Polio Vaccine Top Scientific Achievements For Canadians During 1955

By JOHN R. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—In the world of science this year Canada reached the threshold of industrial atomic power and flexed a haymaker at one of the world's dread diseases—poliomyelitis.

The year's chief achievement in peacetime uses of atomic energy was a decision to build an experimental electricity-producing atomic power plant in Ontario at a cost of $13,000,000 to $15,000,000. The federal government also contracted for a fourth research reactor at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic project to help solve problems still blocking economical atomic power.

The Salk polio vaccine programs of both Canada and the United States were made possible by research at the Connaught Medical Research Laboratories in Toronto.

PRODUCED IN QUANTITY

The laboratories devised a method to produce polio virus in quantity. This paved the way for large-scale production of the vaccine for tests in 1954 and the 1955 vaccination program.

Canada gambled that the vaccine would work.

Long before April 12—the historic day the University of Michigan announced that its evaluation of the 1954 experiments proved the vaccine at least 60 per cent effective—Canada had spent $1,000,000 producing the immunization agent. Federal and provincial governments, which shared the cost of the program, also had worked out a system of distribution and free injections.

If the Ann Arbor, Mich., announcement had said the vaccine was useless, $1,000,000 would have been wasted, embarrassing both the federal and provincial governments. However, it was realized that if no vaccine were available April 12 and it was judged effective, the anti-polio program would have to be delayed until the fall.

SYNE PROGRESS

By the end of June when the program was halted by previous tests until early 1956, some 880,000 Canadian children had received at least two of their three shots. It is expected 2,000,000 of the country's 5,225,000 children under 15 will be inoculated by the end of next March.

Health Minister Martin has given qualified credit to the vaccine for having had a share in the abnormal incidence of the disease in 1955. Its true effectiveness now is being studied by the health department and a report likely will be issued early next year.

The incidence of polio in 1955 has been about one-quarter of the five-year average from 1950-54, although it is noted that the average includes the 1953 epidemic, the worst in history.

Up to Nov. 19 there had been 881 cases compared with the five-year average of 3,715. Paralytic cases were 486 compared with the average of 1,941 and deaths totalled 28 as against 96 in the same period in 1954.

IMPORTANT PROGRAM

In the atomic field, the health department in 1955 also launched a research program into the effects of atomic radiation on human beings. It involves possible genetic effects on humans and methods for disposal of dangerous radioactive wastes.

Detailed design of the demonstration atomic power plant now is in progress. It will be built jointly by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., the crown company charged with atomic research, the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission and Canadian General Electric at Des Joachims, Que., 150 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The plant, expected to produce about 20,000 kilowatts of electric power, likely will be in operation in mid-1958. It will not produce electricity at a competitive cost but its construction will provide scientists with the information necessary to build a plant that can compete with coal-burning electric stations.

The fourth research reactor will be built by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal at a cost of $250,000 to $300,000. The small, low-cost "swimming pool" reactor will be used for research on uranium fuels.

POWERFUL NEW PILE

Two of the other three reactors at Chalk River also figured in the news.

Atomic Energy of Canada disclosed that NRU, code name for the new $40,000,000 pile being built at Chalk River, will be five times as powerful as the famed NRX reactor. It will have a power of 200,000 kilowatts when it goes into operation in June, 1956.

The $11,000,000 NRX pile, which develops 40,000 kilowatts, suffered its second breakdown in 2½ years on July 25. The reactor, built in 1947, went back into operation Sept. 22.

The other reactor at Chalk River is the "ZEEP" (Zero Energy Experimental Pile) built during the Second World War.

Other developments during the year:

1. Canada and the United States signed agreements for a wider exchange of information on the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes and defence against atomic attack.

2. Colombo Plan funds were earmarked to provide India with a Canadian-built atomic reactor and Burma with a cobalt-60 beam therapy unit for cancer treatment.

3. A junior size cobalt "bomb" unit was developed for sale to small hospitals.

4. W. J. Bennett, president of Atomic Energy of Canada, forecast that Canada's uranium production will be a $180,000,000 business by the end of 1958.

'Uranium's Got Sex Appeal' So Financier Took a Gamble To Open Blind River Field

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—A geologist and a financier who gambled because "uranium's got sex appeal" uncovered the billion-dollar uranium field on the doorstep of this century-old lumbering town.

Tenacious Franc R. Joubin solved a metallurgical riddle and brought to light hidden underground riches of the atomic age. Joseph H. Hirshhorn, Latvian-born New York and Toronto promoter, staked $20,000 on Joubin's theories after other financiers refused. He's in line for an estimated $30,000,000 payoff.

Ontario's mines minister, Hon. Phillip Kelly, calls the 42-by-25-mile field south and east of here the world's greatest single potential source of radioactive mineral. He puts its proven worth at a billion dollars and its indicated worth at three billions.

Behind the discovery lies a tangled thread of circumstance, climaxed by what was probably Canada's most fantastic airborne claim-staking bee.

An unknown man, probably one of the hundreds of prospectors who ranged the area for more than a century in search of base and precious metals, unwittingly provided the clue which led to the field. At some time, no one recalls when, he left a chunk of ore the size of a man's fist in the mining recorders' office at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., some 90 miles west of here. It was identified only by the word "uranium."

One day in 1948, Son hotelkeeper Alme Bruton idly passed his geiger counter over the assortment of ore samples in the recorder's office. The unknown's sample set the instrument chattering.

Bruton, long an active mine hunter, and his prospector-partner Karl Gunterman set out to trace the source. But first they tipped Joubin, whom they had consulted on other properties, that they knew where there was a piece of radioactive ore.

A month or more later, they took the geologist to Long Township just east of here. At a spot almost within hailing distance of the Trans-Canada highway and the Canadian Pacific Railway line to the Soo, they showed him a set of open pits which apparently had been worked by an earlier prospector.

Joubin's geiger counter chattered vigorously over the pits. He scooped up samples and shipped them away for assays.

But his hopes were dashed when assays showed only the barest trace of uranium. He and other geologists who followed him to the spot attributed the geiger counter reaction to thorium, then regarded as worthless.

Joubin, who was born in San Francisco 44 years ago of French parents and grew up in British Columbia, turned back to the business of making a living as a consulting geologist.

He never forgot Blind River and his interest was quickened "when I picked up a couple of facts." The key fact he found in a paper by a French scientist reporting that uranium was soluble in sulphuric acid. Joubin remembered pitchblende in the Blind River pits and theorized that surface water had formed sulphuric acid and had leached away the uranium.

"Then I did what I should have thought of in the first place," he says, ("I had the samples assayed for thorium—and there was none."

SURE OF URANIUM

Since thorium is practically insoluble, Joubin was sure he'd find uranium underground. His theory could be proved only by diamond drilling. For that he needed money—and for three years he had been trying unsuccessfully to get financiers interested in the field.

He turned to the 55-year-old Hirshhorn, an associate in development of the Rix uranium property in Saskatchewan's Beaverlodge country.

Joubin explained his theory. "Shoot, it's a deal!" said Hirshhorn, and he put up the $20,000 for the drilling program.

Claims Bruton and others had held in the area had lapsed. In 1953, the Joubin-Hirshhorn interests moved in and staked, mainly to the east of the old claims. The diamond drills went to work April 6, 1953. By May, drill cores were on the way to a Vancouver assay office.

The assay reports offered clinching proof of Joubin's theory. Out of 56 assays, 50 were good. The grade was low, about two pounds of uranium oxide to the ton, but there were indications of a huge ore body. And it was close to a paved highway and the railway.

Where would more of the mineral be found? Joubin, the geologist, had the answer. The mineralization in the first find, now the Pronto mine, lay along what is known geologically as the contact between two rock types—mississagi quartzite and the basement complex.

CLUE IN BOOK STORE

Joubin remembered a map, drawn in 1822 by Dominion government geologist W. H. Collins, which traced the course of the contact. It was long since out of print. But a tattered copy was turned up in a second-hand book store in Toronto. It indicated the contact took the form of a giant reverse S, with a total length of 100 miles.

Joubin and Hirshhorn had a small mining exploration company called Technical Consultants Limited. Its staff was far too small for the fast, major staking operation the map indicated.

The men made a deal with Preston East Dome, a Timmins area gold mine which Hirshhorn controlled. It had the men—and $ had money in its treasury to finance the operation.

A force of 15 men was flown in by waves from South Porcupine, 250 miles to the north. They were landed on the numerous lakes in float-equipped planes which left South Porcupine heading in other directions to conceal their destination. The assault was mounted from the north to preserve secrecy.

In 30 days, the legal limit in Ontario for recording claims, the crews had staked 1,400 claims covering 56,000 acres along the course of the reverse S. Lawyers, who had accompanied the staking parties to swear out their affidavits on the spot, turned up at mining recorders' offices all over Ontario at 8 a.m. July 11, 1953, to record the claims.

The news was out and one of Ontario's greatest staking rushes followed. In a few weeks another 8,000 claims were recorded by newcomers. Now virtually the whole area is solidly held.

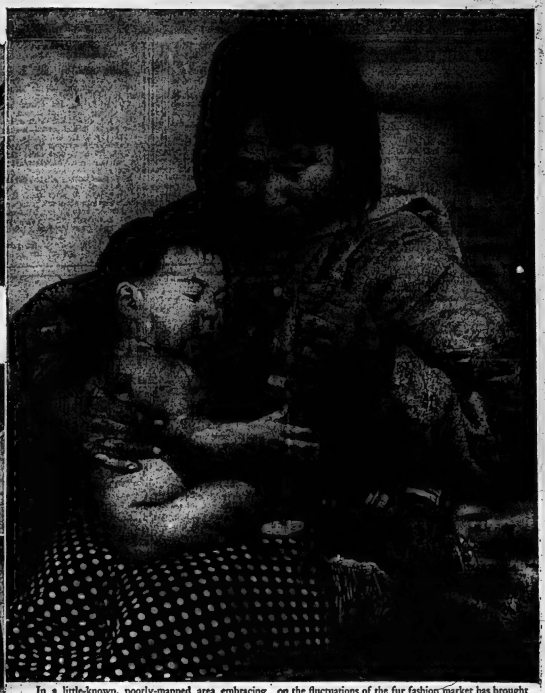
Canada's Northern Citizens



During the Eastern Arctic's short summer months Eskimos, like this family at Sugluk, P.Q., pitch their sealskin and canvas tents at the mouth of a river where heavy runs of fish in July and September will ensure good supply of food to carry them through the long winter.

Despite his contact with white man, and new goods which fur trading has brought him, the Eskimo is still a primitive man. Here, in the warm confines of their winter igloo, a Baker Lake family is engaged in fashioning traditional sealskin clothing and snow-knives to the accompaniment of gramophone music.

Faces of the north reflect the childlike, yet rugged, simplicity of the Eskimo. This nomadic race, living by its creed of "Iyonamut" ("it can't be helped"), has little concern for the future. Immediate problem is to obtain adequate supplies of food. Year-round, from their summer camps clustered at the mouth of a river, or their winter igloos on the desolate tundra, they set out in search of the seal, walrus and caribou that make up their main diet. Skins of these animals also provide material for clothing.

In a little-known, poorly-mapped area embracing some 872,000 square miles north of the treeline, Canada's 9,600 Eskimos carry on a centuries-old culture that is a successful adaptation of the limitations of their environment. With the advent of the white man, the Eskimos turned to fur trapping, enriching Canada's economy with a wealth of furs. But an economy which now depends on the fluctuations of the fur fashion market has brought problems as well as benefits to Eskimos like this Chesterfield Inlet family. Sparked by field-men of the federal Department of Northern Affairs, a rapidly-developing Eskimo handicraft industry is helping to ease economic problems.

Oldsters Taking Up Piano, Free Movie Music Is Spur

TORONTO (CP)—Increasing interest by adults in learning to make their own music is seen by David Ouchterlony of the Royal Conservatory, of Music.

"At the conservatory," says Mr. Ouchterlony, who supervises the conservatory's 20 branches and 4,900 students, "we find the same surprising adult interest." A lot of old-timers, for instance, are taking up the piano "and doing very well."

Among the 79 adult piano pupils in night classes this fall he has a truck driver and a business executive. Some of the pupils are in their 60s.

Professional musicians, he explained, are happy to discover that people are not getting rid of their pianos just because they can get better music free on radio or television.

Instead, Mr. Ouchterlony said, they are buying pianos to learn to play music they enjoyed through radio and TV programs.

MODEST BEGINNERS

Mr. Ouchterlony said learning to play the piano is a "very personal thing" with most adults.

"They don't want others to know. They dread those office kidders," he said.

Many grownups think pieces assigned to children are infantile. To nurse the adult along, Mr. Ouchterlony said, the teacher gives him a difficult piece made easy — A French Canadian folk song or a special arrangement of "O' Susanna" for instance.

Is it more difficult for an adult to learn the piano than a child?

Yes, said Mr. Ouchterlony.

The adult's greatest handicap is learning finger exercises, he said.

"But a grownup will grasp ideas three times as quickly."

While emphasizing that the adult student isn't likely to become a concert artist, Mr Ouchterlony said the piano will enable him to derive more enjoyment of music.

Crop Body Plans January Meeting

TORONTO (CP)—Topics such as long-range weather forecasting and seed-cleaning will be discussed at the four-day annual meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association in Toronto, Jan. 24-27.

Three other farm groups will hold their annual meetings during the same week. Ontario potato growers meet Jan. 25, seed growers Jan. 26 and turnip growers Jan. 27.

Speaker at the crop improvement association's annual banquet will be Dr. Raymond W. Miller of Washington, consultant to the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations.

Plans to Appeal To Court Against Hog Sale Plan

STRATFORD (CP) — The provincial secretary's office, it was reported Tuesday, is not disposed to act on an application by Theodore Parker, Elliee township farmer, for dissolution of the Ontario hog producers' co-operatives.

A letter to Nelson McFarlane, Mr Parker's solicitor, from R J Cudney, deputy provincial secretary, made known the position.

Mr . Parker said that he has instructed Mr. McFarlane to proceed through the courts to have the co-operative dissolved and its proposed marketing scheme declared null and void.

The co-operative plans to establish marketing assembly points in Ontario centres and to have all hogs marketed through these agencies. For this service a charge of 25 cents a hog is to be levied.

Mr. Parker's application was made under the Ontario Corporations Act. He charged in effect, that some of the 11 directors of the co-operative are not, in reality, hog producers.

Soulanges Area Plans Announced

OTTAWA (CP)—General plans for development of the Soulanges section of the St. Lawrence seaway between Lakes St. Louis and St. Francis were announced Tuesday by the seaway authority. Cost is estimated at $37,320,000.

Estimated cost rose by about $1,100,000 through a new plan for accommodation of traffic on provincial highway No 3 at its intersection with the seaway channel.

Hon. Lionel Chevrier, seaway authority president, said in a statement that it has been decided to construct a two-lane tunnel under the upper end of the lower lock instead of installing a movable bridge as originally planned. This would prevent interference with the flow of traffic.

Mr Chevrier also said it has and the third a railway bridge.

been decided to build separate single locks at the lower end of the Beauharnois canal instead of the twin flight locks originally contemplated under plans developed some years ago. Provision would be made to convert to twin locks if the need arose in the future.

Additional facilities in the Soulanges section will include installation of movable spans in three existing bridges. Two are combined highway and railway bridges

Spot of Optimism Seen on Murky Cyprus Picture

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — A spot of optimism appeared on the murky Cyprus picture today with the spreading hope that Britain and Greece may soon resolve their bitter dispute over the future of this British east Mediterranean island colony.

Political quarters here forecast Tuesday night—against a background of continued terrorist attacks and stringent British punishment—that a solution to the Cyprus problem, agreed on by Britain and Greece, would be announced "within a few days."

They said this solution carried the agreement of the Greek government and Archbishop Makarios, leader of the Enosis (union with Greece) movement in Cyprus. It included an acknowledgment by Britain of the right of Cyprus to self-determination in the unspecified future, they added.

BOYS WHIPPED

No official comment on these forecasts was available.

Despite the cautious prophesies of better days ahead, stern measures, including whipping sentences to schoolboys, were maintained by the British authorities.

A Paphos court today sentenced three Greek Cypriot schoolboys to be lashed under emergency regulations imposed in Cyprus 10 days ago.

The schoolboys, aged 17 to 18, were sentenced to 10 strokes each of the whip for political offences. They had pleaded guilty to taking part in an unlawful assembly in Paphos on Nov. 17.

Among the brighter signs was the calling off of a four-day student strike against the emergency laws which was to have begun today. Leaflets distributed in the main towns of Cyprus said the strike was off "until further notice" because of "unexpected developments."

Eden Government Faces First Test

DURHAM, England (CP)—Prime Minister Eden's government today faced its first test at the polls since sweeping to power last May as voters turned out for the first of two by-elections scheduled this week.

A moderately heavy vote was expected today in the Durham county riding of Gateshead West in northeast England, where the Labor party is expected to repeat its victory of last spring. The second by-election will take place in the Scottish riding of Greenock, also a Labor seat, Thursday.

The Gateshead West by-election was a straight two-party fight between Harry Randall, Labor, and David Arnold Wright, Conservative.

The Greenock vote will also be a two-party fight between Conservative Ian MacArthur and Dr. J. Dickson Mabon.

Present standing in the House of Commons: Conservatives and associates, 344; Labor 274; Liberals 6; Sinn Fein 2; vacant 4; total 630.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Four children died early today in a fire which swept "like a flash" through their four-room frame home. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Joseph Hazlett, and two other children escaped. "It was like an explosion, without the sound," Hazlett was quoted by police.

PICTON

W. Blakely Wins Reeveship In Vote Reversal

PICTON. — Woodrow Blakely was elected reeve of Picton in Monday's contest. His majority over Carman Scott was 67. This is exactly the same majority that Scott had over Blakely in last year's contest. On Monday, 1,331 votes were cast for the reeveship, 134 more than the previous year. Blakely had 699 votes on Monday and 565 last year. Scott had 632 on Monday and exactly 631 last year. Blakely won on the increased vote.

Councillor Randolph Clapp again led the polls with 869 votes, 152 more than last year. In second place was Councillor Lindley Cainan, increasing his vote from 570 to 653. Third was Councillor Ern Ward, 675; fourth, Merle Pearsoll, 647 votes to become the second lady councillor in the town's history; 5th Andrew Jarvis, 607; Sixth and final candidate elected was Robert Hill, 572.

Just missing election by ten votes was veteran councillor Herbit McKibbon with 562 votes— 48 more than he got last year.

William Henley Jr., polled 492 votes and Ralph Myatt, 247 votes.

Mayor H. J. McFarland and Deputy Reeve Sam Gentile, received acclamations.

Woodrow Blakely, deputy reeve in 1954 returns to 1956 council as Reeve; Miss Pearsoll and Robert Hill are making their debuts; Herbitt McKibbon leaves council as does Reeve Scott.

Wheat-Marketing Problems Studied

WASHINGTON (CP) — Information on wheat-marketing problems faced by the United States and Canada was exchanged Tuesday at a three-hour meeting of agricultural and trade officials representing the two governments.

Mitchell Sharp, associate deputy minister of trade and leaders of the Canadian group, termed the meeting "most useful" and said it included a detailed review of the wheat - marketing situation. The session was with U. S. agriculture and commerce department officials.

The meeting developed from Canadian complaints about U. S. methods of disposing of surplus food products on world markets. The two groups first met here six weeks ago and agreed to get together periodically to discuss marketing problems.

Sharp told reporters they agreed to meet again in January, possibly in Ottawa.

FEAR ABDUCTION

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—The 19-year-old daughter of a Pueblo minister vanished Tuesday night, and police fear she was abducted from the rear of the family home. The search for Donna May Upton was spurred by the finding of a scarf believed to be hers on a prairie northeast of here. The pretty hospital student's wrist watch, its bracelet snapped as if in a struggle, was found near the rear of the family's home.

Manager Guilty Of Operating Unsafe Factory

KITCHENER (CP) — A plant production manager was convicted Tuesday of operating an unsafe factory at New Hamburg, 15 miles west of Kitchener.

But no penalty was imposed on Woodrow Doerr of the Haha Brass Ltd., pending the outcome of his counter charges that four plant employees are responsible for the offence.

The charge against Mr. Doerr was laid two weeks ago by a labor department inspector who said he found four presses operating in the factory without labor guards Sept. 22.

It is expected Mr. Doerr will proceed with his counter case against four employees whom he claims were responsible for the unsafe conditions. The trial was adjourned to Dec. 13.

ROUSES INTEREST

Court officials said that if Mr. Doerr proves his case, he will be exempt from any fine or punishment for his conviction.

E. B. Jolliffe, Toronto lawyer representing the four employees, said it will be the first time the countercharge feature of the Ontario Shop and Office Building Act has been tested in court.

Mr. Doerr, under the act, charged employees Dan Liebil, Nick Elter, Hendrick Bertel and Dennis Stagg with keeping unsafe machines. All four are from New Hamburg.

The unusual aspects of the case sent labor department officials and representatives of the international Machinists Union to Kitchener for the hearing.

Import, Export Of Natural Gas To Be Considered

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Federal Power Commission Tuesday announced it will consider proposals by Midwestern Gas Transmission Company and Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, both of Houston, Tex., to import and export natural gas from and to Canada.

The companies sent applications to the commission some weeks ago and coal and other interests immediately expressed opposition.

Midwestern wants authority to import up to 204,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, to be purchased from Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Limited, at the border near Emerson, Man.

Tennessee proposed to sell up to 86,735,000 cubic feet daily to Trans-Canada near Niagara Falls for export to the Montreal area. This export would continue for three years after service was started, or until Trans-Canada is ready to begin deliveries in eastern Canada to the proposed all-Canadian line.

DEMONSTRATES KILLING

MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—Miss Faye Grubb, 19, Tuesday demonstrated to police how she strangled a grade-school girl whose body was found in a well. She was charged with murder. Police said Miss Grubb admitted she strangled Jewel Smith, 10, with a piece of curtain and then threw her body in the well after binding the hands and feet. No motive has been established.

Bar Dutchman's Indonesian Wife From Canada

TORONTO (CP)—A Dutch immigrant couple said today their son in Holland cannot come to Canada because Canadian immigration officials will not admit his Indonesian wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Geradus Haster, who came to Canada from Amsterdam five months ago with the understanding their son would follow them, said the Canadian embassy at The Hague has refused their daughter-in-law a visa because she is an East Indian.

There is a job and living quarters here for their son, who is a bricklayer, they said.

Their son Johan, 25, first applied for admission to Canada in 1952, they said. He was told by A. A. Ewan, Canadian immigration attache at The Hague, that his wife's East Indian origin barred her from entry to Canada.

He told the attache his wife is a Netherlands citizen.

Had Five Wives Given Five Years

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP)—A 54-year-old electrician Tuesday was sentenced to five years for having five wives.

Judge Charles Cowley passed sentence on Carl Eugene Jentzsch after Jentzsch pleaded guilty to a charge of "unlawful cohabitation." The charge listed the names of five women.

Cowley granted Jentzsch's request for a one-week stay of execution "so that my sister can take over."

Jentzsch, head electrician at a nearby naval supply depot, maintained he was following the true beliefs of the Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) Church in practising plural marriage, although the church outlawed polygamy in 1890 and has excommunicated people who continue the practice. Officials claim Jentzsch has had "more than 20" children by the five women.

STIRLING

River Valley W.I. Holds Yuletide Meet

STIRLING — The Christmas meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Roy Tucker with Mrs. Claude Tucker as co-hostess.

The rooms were beautifully decorated in the Christmas theme with evergreens, streamers, bells and two lighted trees, both laden with gifts for adults and children.

There were 30 members, four visitors and 25 children in attendance.

Mrs. Roy Bush opened the meeting and all sang "Jingle Bells," and "O Come All Ye Faithful," with Mrs. Phil Conley, officiating at the piano.

Mrs. Thomas Hanna presented a full financial report up to date.

The president welcomed the group and gave a few suggestions for sharing Christmas with others. Letters of thanks were read.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Friendship Link secretary, gave a brief resume of recent letters received from the Link Institute and from Associated County Women of the World, through their secretary, Mrs. John Bell. They were particularly interested in the work being done and by the girls' clubs.

Mrs. MacMullen also paid tribute to Miss Grace Hessman, a member of River Valley Society Gals who recently won the 4-H silver tray.

CALENDARS RECEIVED

Abbot's Leigh W.I. in England forwarded 50 copies of 1956 Somerset Federation W.I. calendars and each member received a copy to carry home.

Mrs. George Hessman outlined the work of the Girls' Club to date. The Institute voted a sum of $50 to assist the girls in purchasing reference boxes.

A collection was taken to purchase grapes for the inmates of the County Home and cars were arranged to convey those who wish to pay a visit to that institution.

Mrs. Allan McDonell presided over the program planned by herself and Miss Marion Carlisle.

A few children assisted as follows: recitation, Jean Donohoe; piano solo, Marie Hessman; vocal solo, Christine DeBruyn.

Mrs. Ernest Carr gave a humorous paper on the motto.

Two new Canadians, who are Institute members, Mrs. John Zoldema and Mrs. Peter De-Bruyn, sang a Dutch carol. They also displayed picture books, Dutch pastry, Dutch chocolate coated Christmas letters of the edible variety and Dutch cookies. The latter were later sampled by all.

HOLLAND'S CHRISTMAS

Mrs. Peter De Bruyn gave an interesting and descriptive account of how Christmas is celebrated in Holland. Early in December they have "Santa Claus Day," with a real good time planned for the children and all work together as a family group.

Christmas Day is set apart as a Holy day. The Christmas story is read at Sunday School, carols are sung with "Silent Night" as a prime favorite. The church service is based on the theme, "Christ came in order to save the people," and His birthday is reverently observed, as the people have joy and happiness in their hearts.

Thanks were expressed for her message.

Gifts were exchanged from the two trees after which the lunch committee and hostesses served Christmas refreshments.

Mrs. Frank Carr voiced thanks for hospitality, program and refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Mr. Bram Humphreys, of Belleville, was guest speaker, and delivered a fine message which was most fitting for the occasion.

The Frankford quartet added much to the service, in their message of song accompanied by Miss Roe Ann Wallace at the piano.

After the benediction, all gathered in the Church Hall, for a friendly get-together; cookies and tea were served by the Club.

Singing was enjoyed and a vote of thanks extended by each visiting group. All joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne".

Mrs. Coleman Townsend and Mrs. Harry McMullen spent Tuesday in Madoc and spent the dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs. George Allore.

The entire community extends its sympathy to the family of the late Mrs. Ambrose Wright.

Creative Minds in TV Fight To Provide Longer Programs

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television has a short screen. Thousands of intensely creative executives, producers, directors, writers, camera men, designers are striving daily to make it longer.

Something has to give. What is giving is the once sacred concept of half-hour and hour programming. The program of 90 minutes and longer, viewed with increasing frequency this year, will be commonplace in 1956.

Noel Coward and Mary Martin, appearing as the only performers in a 90-minute program on CBS-TV in October, sang that "90 minutes is a long, long time." When the returns were in they learned that the public didn't view it as a long time at all.

Audience rating systems (which are far from being scientifically perfect) indicate that the regularly scheduled half-hour and hour quiz, variety, comedy and dramatic shows still are the most popular. One reason is that they fall in with specific regularity, while time concept of most of the 60-minute programs brings them at irregular intervals or at off-beat hours. Even so, many 60-minute shows have beaten their opposition with relatively high frequency.

Some observers believe longer programming is merely the network's answer to those proponents of pay-see TV who would have the public put a quarter in a slot on the set in order to see something big or new or different. Personally I don't view it thus.

With some obvious exceptions there are few fresh and stimulating things that remain to be done in 30 minutes of television. There are many hour programs today which could be done better in 90 minutes. (And some, of course, that could well be reduced to 15 minutes.) But to the best creative minds in the industry the rigid concept of a half-hour or an hour program is basically a cramping affliction.

Personally I choose to believe that these talents, striving to enrich the TV screen, will lengthen the time and broaden the scope of television programs in 1956.

Ronald Reagan Says 'Oscar' Voting Rules Are Not Fair

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Are the academy awards unfair to some actors?

Ronald Reagan thinks so, and he proposes two changes in Oscar voting rules to insure fairness. His complaint:

1. A star might lose a nomination because he is named for two different roles.

2. Supporting - acting awards too often go to those who are really stars.

On matter No. 1 he observed that a player like James Cagney might get votes for both "Mister Roberts" and "Love Me or Leave Me." Likewise Jennifer Jones could be selected for "Love is a Many Splendored Thing" and "Good Morning, Miss Dove," the late James Dean for "East of Eden" and "Rebel Without a Cause."

"This matter probably hasn't arisen before," Reagan said. "In the past, most actors were under contract to the studios, which would get behind one performance and give it a push.

"But today actors are in a free-lance market. They might do great pictures at two or more studios. The campaign might split the vote for the players, thus depriving them of a nomination.

This might have happened in last year's voting. William Holden failed to be nominated despite two brilliant performances in "Executive Suite" and "Country Girl." It's possible that he got more votes than the five nominees, but missed out because his tally was split.

Reagan's solution: Four total number of votes for any actor should be counted. If he gets votes for more than one film, he should run for the final Oscar on the basis of the picture which attracted the most votes. This would prevent unfair competition by actors who were up for only one picture."

Reagan also thinks the awards for supporting players have been abused by studios that reduce the billing of stars to supporting status in order to sang an Oscar.

He observed that Eva Marie Saint was actually Marlon Brando's leading lady in "On The Waterfront," not a supporting actress, Walter Huston starred in "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," though he won the Oscar for support.

"I heartily agree that Frank Sinatra should have won an Oscar for "From Here To Eternity" the actor added. "But he certainly has never been a supporting player. He should have won it as a star.

"Abuse of the supporting category is robbing the real supporting actors of much-needed recognition. I'm speaking of those who make a living in supporting roles, who depend on one big scene in a picture to make themselves known."

Officials Believe Threat of War In East Eases

WASHINGTON (AP) — High American officials believe the threat of war between Israel and the Arab countries has eased.

They credit this easing of tension to intensive diplomatic efforts by the United States, Britain and the United Nations.

Both Arabs and Israelis, despite their continuing dispute, now are thinking in terms of negotiating a compromise peace settlement rather than resorting to violence to settle their long-standing differences, Washington believes.

The present view bars contrasts rather sharply with fears expressed some two months ago when Egypt's big arms deal with the Communist bloc convinced many that an explosive war was likely in the immediate future.

MAY BE TEMPORARY

While diplomacy, in their view, has lessened the immediate threat of full-scale fighting, these officials acknowledge that this improving outlook may be only temporary. No formula has yet been found for Arab-Israeli peace talks, despite Western and UN efforts to encourage a permanent settlement.

Israel's foreign minister, Moshe Sharett, made it clear Tuesday that he does not share what he described as "a wave of optimism" he found apparent on his prospects for Mid-East peace.

After calling on State Secretary Dulles he reported "no improvement" in the picture, and "I see the possibility of things getting worse."

Officials said Sharett's gloomy outlook applies more to long-range peace prospects rather than the immediate situation.

"Man Alone" Sets New High for Suspense and Sustained Excitement

Ray Milland comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre in Republic's first director showing "A Man Alone", a tense and thrilling drama of the old west which presents this fine actor in a radical departure from his recent film characterizations but one well-calculated to grip and hold the interest of all audiences.

Co-starring with Milland in this top-budgeted production, which also marks the renowned actor's debut as a director, are Mary Murphy and Ward Bond. In featured roles is a long and impressive list of talented artists headed by Raymond Burr, Arthur Space, Lee Van Cleef and Alan Hale.

VIVID DRAMA

Filmed in Trucolor amidst the majestic splendor of western Utah "A Man Alone" is a strong story of dynamic emotion and physical violence; mass hysteria, lynch mobs and, above all, a consuming love that burns into a rugged man's soul.

The tightly-woven screenplay by John Tucker Battle concerns a notorious gunman, wanted for murders he did not commit, who unexpectedly finds sanctuary in the quarantined home of a sheriff and love in the person of the sheriff's beautiful daughter.

In the powerful, offbeat role of the gunman, Academy Award winner Ray Milland is said to add still greater prestige to his illustrious name; and critics are already acclaiming his debut as a director.

Spectacular photography, apparent throughout "A Man Alone" is the work of Lionel Lindon, one of Hollywood's top cinematographers; and the powerful musical score is from the pen of Victor Young.

On the same program the added first run comedy hit "Lay That Rifle Down" stars the one and only Judy Canova in her latest and riotous comedy.

AT THE BELLE — Rosalind Russell stars in her first screen dancing and singing role in Paramount's musical "Wonderful Town" which opens Thursday at the Belle. In her dance at the Belle, Co-starred with her are Fernando Lamas, Eddie Albert and Gloria De Haven in a VistaVision, Technicolor production set in Las Vegas.

AT THE McCARTHY — Shelly Winters is cast as Willa, an affection-starved widow who falls easy prey to a scheming murderer in "The Night of the Hunter." The picture, a United Artists release, opens Thursday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Those who live dangerously are foolish unless they are equipped to be resourceful. They need to be prepared to overcome difficulties. And this applies as well to bridge players who go out on a limb.

South got himself into a double-locked contract of three no-trump in the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠ 3
♥ 7 5 4 3
♦ K 6
♣ 6 5 4 3 2

WEST
♠ K J 10 4
♥ A K Q J
♣ Q J 10 9 4

EAST
♠ 9 7 6 5
♥ 10 9 8 2
♦ 9 8 7 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A 8 2
♥ 6
♦ A Q J 10 4
♣ K 7

Take a look at the west cards and you will see why he felt so confident of beating South. Look again at the west hand and you may be willing to bet your last button on defeating three no-trump.

But what alibi does a good bridge player have for deliberately setting himself into a bad fix? His ability to take advantages of any opportunity that may get him out of the hole.

West started out by taking four cold heart tricks. This meant that south must take all that remains. His can grab the five solid diamonds, two top clubs, and spade ace. Where is his ninth?

He tried and lost the fourth heart tricks, south shed his two small diamonds. To the fifth trick, west led his spade king. This was taken with the south ace. Four diamonds and club king were cashed.

Now the player now has left three cards. South holds a diamond, a club, a spade jack. Dummy has ace and two small clubs. West kept spade queen and two of his own best clubs.

At this particular spot south led his last diamond and west is called upon to play a card of some kind. He has a choice of giving up his spade queen or letting go of one of his clubs.

If he frees spade queen, south spade jack and dummy club ace will take the rest. Instead, if west flings a club, dummy will take the last two tricks with ace and small club.

A rock of Gibraltar may not even halter a dangerous foe who refuses to falter.

WILL DAM RIVER

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — The eastern Scheldt river in southwest Holland will have to be dammed despite protests from oyster breeders that it will mean the extinction of the famous Zeeland oysters. A flood control committee said the Scheldt will have to be closed by dikes planned to hold back floods more than three feet higher than the disastrous ones which swept the country in 1953.

Unprecedented Shuffle Marks Red Wings' Drive For Eighth League Title

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THA . . MORE LIKE IT

It's perhaps a mite too bad that M'sieu Blair of the Whitby Dunlops, who tabbed the TPT's as being the most "colorless and poorest" club in the senior "B" group, was not in one of the Memorial Arena pews last night. He would have had at least one eye full besides a chestful of surprise.

Whether it was the moral effect of having the regular defencemen back behind the blueline or mebbe Coach Danny Cox injected some mysterious virus into the club's collective bloodstream is hard to say. Suffice it to say, all 'youse guys and gals who were on Christmas shopping spree or getting over election hangovers, that you would hardly have recognized the crew garbed in TPT colors that mere or less easily chalked up the fourth straight defeat on the sweaters of the Brockville Magedomas.

After six lickings in a row it was heart-warming to watch the gang come up with an effort that not only resulted in seven —count 'em—goals, but also a two-way fore-and-aft defensive display that held the dangerous Maggie front lines down to a brace of markers.

Their effort was a distinct about-face from those of the past four or five outings insofar as effectiveness is concerned. Last night they were dangerous to the extreme in front of the Maggie net. They shot hard and true as the diminutive goalie, M'sieu Bouzek of the Maggies will testify. Every goal they scored was well-earned and climaxed well-organized plays. Let's hope they come up with a similar exhibition against those pesky Goodyears in Kingston tonight.

For the first time since, it seems, away back when, the Teeps were at full strength. Jake Wade was back in harness and for a guy who has been out of hockey all season the Point Anne stalwart came up with an outstanding chore.

And matching his effort was that of the "Ole Smiller" Bill McMaster, who finally coaxed and cajoled Coach Cox and Manager Doran into allowing him to don a uniform after being out of action for some time with a shoulder injury. The Smiller' was the presence Jeffs, breaking up play after play of the incoming Maggie front lines.

Sammy the Man was used up front in a wing position and if you think Sambo didn't fare well look at the scoring records. He was good for two goals and ripped along at top speed all night.

The Vern Goyer, Davy Jones, Keith MacDonald line was clicking like a pair of castanets all night. They accounted for ten scoring points with big Vern tipping home passes on two occasions and MacDonald finding an inhiber ones beaden getting three helpers. Davy came, up with a trio of assists. It is hard to pick out any individual star as every man on the 'team gave a fine accounting of himself. However, his first goal in a Belleville uniform, neatly deking the Maggie goalie out of position and poking the puck in the net.

However, tonight is another night. The Common trek to Kodiakville and meet them Goodyears in another scrimmage, the third in a row in a few nights, thanks to the vagaries of the schedule-makers. On both previous occasions our side has been on the short end of a one-goal decision, with the Goodies' goalie, Ken Johnson, being the hero both times. If the TPT's come up with another exhibition like that of last night against the Maggies the story could be different.

The victory was the TPT's fourth of the season as against nine defeats and is also giving them nine points behind the third place Brockville crew. A win tonight will piggy-back them into third slot behind the second-place Goodyears.

Two-in-One Deal

League Managers Said Bitter Over Chicago-Brooklyn Trade

By JOE REICHLER

CHICAGO (AP)—Rival National League managers were bitter today over the Chicago-Brooklyn trade that sent hard-hitting third baseman Ransom Jackson to the world champion Dodgers for reserve third baseman Bobby Adams and spare outfielder Walker Morryn.

The transaction, announced Tuesday night, caused eyebrow-raising among baseball people who were almost unanimous in the belief that Dodgers got much the better of the deal. One National League manager, expressing surprise that Cubs would consent to such a deal, growled:

"Those Dodgers were going to be tough enough to beat as it was. But who's going to stop them now? Last year they had seven men in the lineup who could hit the ball out of the park at any given time. Now they've got eight. And with Don Newcombe on the mound, they have nine."

NEVER COMING

Cub personnel manager Wid Matthews, who made the swap with Brooklyn President Buzzie (Buzzie) Bavasi, announced there will be a "fall" to transaction sometime next week. The "fall," it is reported, is Russ Meyer, the veteran right hander, who will report when the Cubs are below the 40-player limit and have room for him. Cubs released Walker Cooper and the 42-year-old catcher was expected to sign with St. Louis Cardinals.

The two-for-one deal put Cubs one over the player limit.

It was the only major swap completed at the big league meetings which ended Tuesday but several others are hanging fire.

The proposed 15-player deal between Washington and New York involving southpaw Mickey McDermott's transfer to New York in exchange when general manager George Weiss of Yankees refused to include three of his prize minor leaguers — second baseman Bobby Richardson, shortstop Jerry Lumpe and outfielder Norm Siebern. Bill Dewitt, assistant to Weiss, said the multiple deal was "left hanging" but Charlie Dressen, Senators' manager, indicated the trade is still "hot."

ALSO AN IMPASSE

A big three-way deal among Chicago, Cleveland and Baltimore also reached an impasse when manager Paul Richards refused to let Indians' have catcher Hal Smith. In handing Orioles, Dodgers obtained a strong righthanded hitter who is ideally suited for Ebbets Field. The 29-year-old player since coming to Chicago late in 1953, has hit 87 home runs, including 21 last season.

Cubs, obviously sacrificing power for speed, believe Hoak will, provided he plays as he should, have lacked for so many years.

TOPS HORSE SALE

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Pert Rodney, a pacing colt by Rodney, sold for $5,200 Tuesday to top the Tattersalls sale of standardbred horses as 86 head brought $60,050, an average of $613.

Pert Rodney was consigned by Whitehall Farm of Charlotte, N.C., and bought by Frank Hastings of Berlin, Md.

Famous Front Line Divided Skinner Splits Howe, Lindsay Red Kelly Gets Forward Spot

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Red Wings, lagging in their quest of an eighth straight National Hockey League title, will try to pick up momentum with an unprecedented shuffle of their forward line.

Coach Jimmy Skinner, seeking to narrow the 17-point gap now separating the third-place Wings from the league-leading Montreal Canadiens, announced Tuesday that his team will take the ice against Boston Bruins Thursday night with Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay playing on different lines for the first time in nine high-scoring years.

Seeking to diversify the Detroit offensive, Skinner picked Red Kelly as an all-star defenceman for the last five years, to fill Lindsay's left-wing spot with Howe and centre Earl (Sonny) Reibel.

POTENT SCORER

Kelly, who has made occasional appearances as a forward this season, is a potent sharpshooter in his own right, having finished as high as sixth in the league scoring race.

Lindsay's new linemates will be Alex Delvecchio, who has centred the Howe-Lindsay line in the past, and Bill Dineen, a right-winger who has seen effective duty on the power play with Kelly and the Howe-Lindsay-Reibel trio.

Throughout their seven-and-a-half reign the Wings have been essentially a one-line team, extensively featuring Howe, a four-time NHL scoring champion, and Lindsay, who has won the title once and finished second behind his linemate on two other occasions.

This year's statistics have been even more lopsided than usual with the Howe-Lindsay-Reibel line supplying 24 of Detroit's total of 37 goals. They've scored almost him second place in the NHL scoring race, two less than Montreal's Jean Beliveau, while Lindsay and Howe are running second and third behind Beliveau's 15-goal total with 15 and 14, respectively.

HAVE HIT SECOND STRING

But if opposing defences have been unable to cope with Detroit's big guns, they have been effective in bottling up the Detroit second- and third-stringers, and the Wings have suffered accordingly.

Their 97-goal total compares with 77 for the second-place New York Rangers and 73 for the Canadiens. Even Chicago Black Hawks, the NHL's long-time poor relations who currently share third place with the Wings, are four goals up on the champions.

The key to Skinner's experiment would appear to be Kelly. Despite the territorial limitations of his defence post, he hasn't dropped below the 20-goal mark in six years. He ranks eighth among active NHL players in total points scored.

Playing on a line with Reibel, a 25-goal man last season, and Howe, whose output over six years has ranged from 29 to 49, the 28-year-old redhead can reasonably be expected to do better.

Lindsay, one shy on the 20-goal mark last year for the first time in nine seasons, has a promising sidekick in Delvecchio, whose current nine-goal total for 25 games indicates possible improvement on his personal high of 17. Dineen also has hit 17 as a rookie two years ago, but dropped to 10 last season and currently has five to his credit.

British Crowd Boos Winner Gordon Wallace

LONDON (Reuters) — Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., Tuesday night won a 10-round decision over Terence Murphy of London, Commonwealth British light-welterweight title.

Wallace's win was unpopular with loud booing drowning out some cheers for the Canadian.

Wallace, who six weeks ago knocked out Randy Turpin, former world middleweight champion, in the opened in workmanlike style. He scored with left and right swings to the head and body to get a slight cut over Murphy's right eye in the first round.

After a sluggish start, Murphy soon commenced from the fourth round to the seventh. He began to outbox Wallace and steadied him with stiff left jabs and hard rights. Wallace tried to retaliate but found Murphy a difficult target.

The last three rounds provided a tough battle of punch and counter punch in which the Canadian, finishing stronger, put in some good work in the last round.

Mayor Sends Apology To Hockey Club

NORTH BAY (CP) — Mayor Merrie Dickerson, as chairman of the city police commission said Tuesday he has sent a letter of apology to the Pembroke senior hockey club over a fracas at North Bay's Memorial Gardens Saturday.

"I don't know who is at fault, nor do I particularly want to," said the mayor, who received a complaint regarding police activity at the game. "These things happen in the heat of a game.

"I only know that I don't want this to jeopardize the happy relations between Pembroke and North Bay. As far as I am concerned the matter is closed."

The mayor said he does not intend to become involved further except to seek a ban on the wearing of uniforms by police when hired by the commission to keep order. Pembroke had complained that a North Bay constable had struck a Pembroke hockey player during a fracas at the penalty box.

Highest Bidder Will Get Belair Stud

NEW YORK (AP)—Executors of the estate of William Woodward Jr., announced Tuesday that Nashua, the three-year-old champion of 1955, and other horses of the Belair Stud will be sold to the highest bidder.

The sale of the Belair stable, one of the most prominent in the United States, has been rumored since the death of Woodward, Oct. 20. The executors, the Hanover Bank and Edith W. Ludewig, called for sealed bids to be received not later than 11 a.m., Thursday, Dec. 15.

"Thereafter they will be opened by the executors and the successful bidders notified," said the bank and Ludewig, who was secretary of the Belair sportsman. "All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for 10 per cent of the amount bid or they shall be void."

SECOND TO CITATION

There have been various estimates of the value of Nashua, second biggest money-winning horse in the world. Nashua earned $752,-350 by winning 10 of 12 races this year—the most ever picked up by a thoroughbred in one season. His total earnings are $945,415 and he is stands second to Citation, who retired with $1,085,760.

During his brief racing career, Nashua has won a world record $100,000 or more, including a winner-take-all match race against Swaps at Washington Park, Chicago, last August. Swaps beat Nashua in the Kentucky Derby.

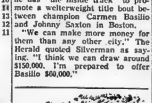
Among stakes Nashua won this year was the Flamingo Stakes, Florida Derby, Wood Memorial, the Preakness, Belmont Stakes and the Arlington classic—all $100,000 plus races—as well as the Dwyer and the Jockey Club Gold Cup.

Plante, Worsley Continue Battle For Top Honors

NEW YORK (CP) — Montreal's Jacques Plante was a bit sharper but New York's Lorne Worsley was a lot busier this week as they continued a tight race at the top of the efficiency standings for National Hockey League goaltenders.

The stocky Canadian netminder gave up one goal in each of three games during the week while blocking all the shots directed at him for a .958 average. That boosted his season's record two points from the previous week to .935.

But Worsley stayed just one point behind Plante, even though he let in five goals in two games. The lanky netminder had 108 shots to handle in his three games and stopped 103 for a .954 mark and a .738 record for the year, also a two-point gain.



Detroit's Terry Sawchuk of Boston added a point to his record, carding a .929 mark for the week and .918 for the year, while Chicago's Al Rollins had a bad week, slipping from first place to fourth, trailing third place to Sawchuk.

Detroit's Glen Hall and Toronto's Harry Lumley each dropped four points fs..912 and .903 respectively.

THE INSIDE TRACK

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Herald Tuesday quoted flight promoter Sam Silverman as saying he has "the inside track" to promote a welterweight title bout between champion Carmen Basilio and Johnny Saxton in Boston.

"We can make more money for them than any other city," the Herald quoted Silverman as saying, "I think we can draw around $150,000. I'm prepared to offer Basilio $60,000."

Chiefs Franchise Headed For Parts Unknown

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse Chiefs' International League franchise today appeared headed for either Toledo, Ohio, or Miami, Fla.

Syracuse owner Martin Haske announced Tuesday that he has received a second offer from Miami interests to buy the franchise. Keith Kiggins, a representative of the Storer Broadcasting Company of Miami made him an offer.

Haske said the Storer interests told him they were not interested in consulating their bid with that of Sidney Salomon of St. Louis. Salomon, an executive of the old St. Louis Browns, has offered to purchase the franchise as the agent of a group of Miami businessmen.

ON CIVIC COMMITTEE

The Chiefs' owner said the Toledo offer came from Fred W. Galliers, representing a civic committee to return baseball to Toledo.

Haske predicted that the league would approve either franchise shift but he declined to discuss the amount of the various offers.

Tuesday night, Haske announced he would hold off until Thursday on the disposition of the club. At the same time, Major Donald Mead's office announced that a baseball rally and mass meeting would be held in the city auditorium Thursday night to decide finally the future of the Syracuse franchise.

Argos $50,000 In the 'Red' Claims Paper

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram said Tuesday that Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League have lost $50,000 this season and that there is talk of a move to heard this month may increase the loss to $100,000.

The story said losses during the regular season amounted to $75,-000, but earnings in playoff games and the team's share in the Grey Cup gate reduced this by $25,000.

Detroit Lions of the National Football League are suing Argos for damages for signing quarterback Tom Dublinski and lineman Gil Mains.

Argos also are being sued by halfback Whizzer White, seeking his full season's salary of $9,500. He says he was cut because of injuries, despite a clause saying he couldn't be cut for that reason.

TPTs Snap Losing Streak; Win 7-2 Over Brockville

Score Two in Opening Minutes Of Season's Best Performance; Club Back at Full Strength

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

What a whale of a difference a couple of defencemen make. The TPTs, unleashing their most potent offensive of the season, swept aside Brockville's bid for victory here last night, defeating the Magedomas 7-2 to take over undisputed possession of fourth place.

With the team at full strength for practically the first time this season, including Jake Wade and Bill McMaster behind the blueline, the Coxmen were not to be denied. They scored the first two goals in three minutes of the first period and were never headed. They were full value for their victory and looked like the hockey club they are supposed to be.

Faced by the Goyer, MacDonald, D. Jones line which accounted for nine scoring points, the TPTs grabbed a first period 3-2 lead, scored a brace in the second and two more in the third while holding the Maggies scoreless.

It was the best two-way effort of the season for the TPTs. They checked hard going fore and aft and an eye-pleasing spectacle for fans was their effectiveness in front of the fo nets. They had Wade and McMaster playing sizzling defensive hockey in front of Parlo who again came up with a fine effort.

Referees Jim Crombie and Ned Vitarelli of Peterborough had a comparatively easy time. They handed out but eight penalties, all minors, in the fast clean fray with the teams splitting the sentences.

While Mulholland was Jones and Goyer racked up nine scoring points, Goyer scoring twice and MacDonald getting one and three with Davy collecting three assists, the rest of the club came up with fine efforts. Sammy the Man scored twice with Wilson and Toodle Greenlaw getting the others.

The TPTs unleashed their offensive from the opening whistle and in a little over three minutes had rammed home a two goal lead.

Sam Mulholland playing up front slammed in Peter Jones' pass at 2.23 and thirty seconds later with the TPTs still on the attack, Bob Wilson standing well out drove in Keith MacDonald's passout.

The Maggies passing plays were clicking and Richardson threw back pucks that were labelled. Richardson broke away from a TPT gang attack, raced down the ice and forced before Wade dumped him heavily into the nets.

The TPTs again threw on the power and 31 seconds later Keith MacDonald blasted a waist - high shot past Bourada on assists from Vern Goyer and Davy Jones.

Brockville turned on the pressure and with seconds to go Thompson fanned a high one from 40 feet out. The puck struck Bob Wilson and deflected into the net behind Parlo to end the period at 3-2.

Goyer, Davy Jones, MacDonald line which had been functioning smoothly all night went the TPTs four - goal lead after three minutes of the second heat, when Goyer scored after a neat passing play with Jones.

Al Hamm, Brockville playing coach swept into the clear on a breakaway, raced in on Parlo and the goal smothered his shot.

Vern Goyer put the TPTs in a 5-2 lead when he drove MacDonald's long wing pass past Bourada in a neat goalmouth play.

Parlo and Gibson started a pushing match when the Brockville winger parked in the crease. Sticks flew high and both got the gate for roughing. The game was fast but clean with but five penalties being handed out thus far.

Brockville tossed four forwards into the fray going into the third period and drove hard in the opening minutes with Parlo brilliantly keeping them off the scoresheet.

But the TPTs were not to be denied. They took over the offensive and midway through the period Mulholland scored his second goal on a pretty three-way passing play with Peter Jones and MacDonald. Four minutes later Toodle Greenlaw took Gus Leonard's close pass in, deked Bourada out of position and flipped in the puck to increase the margin to 7-2.

Play maintained a fast pace with Rockburn getting the gate at 18.08 with no damage done then Wilson and Clarke engaged in a high sticking argument and Toodle Greenlaw getting the others.

The Maggedomas tried desperately to whittle down the margin but it was the TPT's night to howl — and howl they did.

The teams:

Belleville: goal, Parisi; defence, Mulholland, Wilson; forwards, F. Jones, Macdonald, D. Goyer, Davy Jones, Fryia, Leonard, Greenlaw, Hill, McMaster, Wade.

Brockville: goal, Bourada; defence, Rockburn, Thomson, Pressley, Richardson, Edwards, Erwin Duncan, Edwin Duncan, Lomer Gibson; McManus, Kuntz, Clarke, Charron, Legris.

Referees: Jim Crombie, Ned Vitarelli.

Softball Brass Solidly Behind 'Masked Men'

HAMILTON (CP)—The Ontario Amateur Softball Association wound up a three-day session Monday with a solid endorsement of the much-maligned man behind the mask—the baseball umpire.

The OASA sub-committee and executive committee meetings were attended by 20 club officials from throughout the province.

Association president John Brady of Oshawa stressed the absolute authority of the umpire as four individual suspensions were upheld and a fifth lifted.

The executive committee turned down appeals from Fred Garrity and Norm Giroux of Capreol. Garrity received a two-year suspension and Giroux a one-year ban, both dating from last October for an offence committed during the final Intermediate C series championships at Capreol. Umpire Abner Barnes of Oshawa was the official he was pushed against a screen and knocked to his knees.

NOT ELIGIBLE

The committee ruled that coach James McWhirter and Jack Spencer of Hamilton will not be eligible for softball in the 1956 season because one-year suspensions handed down last August by the Hamilton Fastball Association will still be in force after the league player-signing date next year.

Suspension of Ronald Martin, a Windsor junior, was lifted. Martin was suspended after a dispute with umpire Joe Gallo of Galt in a playoff game at Woodstock.

The next OASA annual meeting will be held in Hamilton the weekend of March 30-April 1, 1956, it was announced.

Commission May Cancel Palermo's Boxing Licence

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania athletic commission today ordered Frank (Blinky) Palermo to appear next Monday and show why he should not forfeit his right to a licence as a fight manager.

The order, served on Palermo's counsel, Morton Wilkie, alleged that Palermo has a long record of association with "known criminals and gamblers."

Palermo's trainer, Jimmy Wilson, also was ordered to appear before the commission.

The commission, in its citation, said Palermo has been engaged in "acts prejudicial and detrimental to boxing," which under the state boxing code would deny him the privilege of a licence in Pennsylvania.

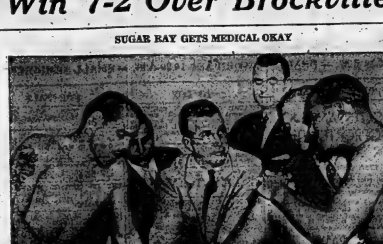
Last Thursday the commission had Palermo and Wilson before it on another matter—the investigation of reports that one of Pa. lermo's fighter, heavyweight Coley Wallace, had said he was given a sedative before a fight in Cleveland on Oct. 1, 1954.

One 'Visit' Ruled Plenty In American League

CHICAGO (AP)—The American League acted Tuesday to reduce the time of games by permitting only one visit to the pitcher's mound by a manager, coach or non-player.

Earl Hilligan, head of the league's service bureau, said a violation of the rule will result in a pitcher's automatic removal from the game. The league adopted the new rule unanimously after considerable discussion about the length of games.

The average game in 1955 lasted two hours and 31 minutes.



A previous rule that permits the catcher and one infielder to confer with the pitcher was not changed.

Canucks Edge Hamilton Cubs

KITCHENER (CP)—A goal by a new Hamburg junior B player brought up for the game provided the winning margin for K-W Canucks as they downed Hamilton Cubs 4-3 in senior O.H.A. action before 870 fans.

With the score tied in the second period Larry Babcock took a rink wide pass from Howie Young and was in all alone on Dennis Riggin to score the winner. The fourth Canuck goal was by Sonny Larose on the open net with only two minutes remaining and Riggin out. Budd Youngberg and Kent Douglas scored the other Canuck goals. Gerry Sullivan and Guy James scored for Hamilton.

SUGAR RAY GETS MEDICAL OKAY

Middleweight champion Bobo Olson, left, looks solemn as he hears Dr. John Pribis of Illinois State Athletic Commission pronounce Sugar Ray Robinson's injured ankle okay. Pribis is remembered for the knockout Robinson earned over him in 1950 or the 15-round decision Sugar Ray gained in their second meeting in 1952. They clash again on December 9 in Chicago. This time Olson is a 2½ to 1 favorite over the once-beaten Sugar Ray who at 35, is trying to become the first boxer to regain the crown twice. (Central Press Canadian).

Minor Leagues May Get Piece Of TV Revenue

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Baseball League appears to hold out a glimmer of hope to the minors in the form of revenue from a proposed television "game of the week" broadcast. The majors turned this down, however, on player requests for a $7,200 minimum pay, unlimited winter ball and an inside roll on negotiating a new world series TV contract.

The National went out of its way to label as "very important" its decision to ask Branch president Walter O'Malley to continue his efforts to work out plans to use revenue from the proposed TV broadcast of major league games on Saturday afternoons to aid the minors.

O'Malley last week revealed his proposal to set up a network television package with three-quarters of the money going to the minors.

WORK OUT PLAN

The minors, through the presidents of their class B, C and D leagues, have asked the majors to help work out a plan for "immediate relief of the damaging effects of TV broadcasts into minor league territory." Although this request was not acted on by the American League, and was rejected by the National because of its "monopolistic" language, the National voted to lend a hand.

The latter proposal to restrict radio and TV broadcasts to stations within the "home" territory (75 miles) of the club was rejected by the majors.

The majors also turned down the minors' proposal to change the law on returning servicemen, making them count on the player limit after 30 days instead of one year.

On the player demands, the majors refused to go along with the increase from $6,000 to $7,200 in minimum pay. They also rejected a proposal to let the players participate on their own with exhibition league teams and refused to let the players informed re the new world series TV contract. The old series pact expires after the 1956 games.

Bulldogs Edge Maroons 4-3

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs tightened their grip on second place here Tuesday night by edging front behind in the third frame and George Gee supplied the winner at 9:12. Bulldogs played strong after the Maroons had wiped out a first period 2-0 Windsor advantage with three unanswered goals in the second.

Gee and John Siewer were the Bulldog scorers in the first. Eddie Bunch, Bruce Hamilton and Eric Unger scored for Chatham.

RETAINS TITLE

LONDON (AP)—Dai Dower, 22-year-old Welsh miner, survived a count of eight in the fourth round and went on to retain his British Empire featherweight title Tuesday night with a clear-cut points victory over Jake Tuli of South Africa.

Tuli weighed 131½, Dower 133½.

Record Proves It

Sustained Offence Is Secret Of New York Rangers Success

By MEL RUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don (Bones) Raleigh, veteran of 10 campaigns in the National Hockey League, says the secret of New York Rangers' success this year is a "sustained offence."

"Our opponents can't beat us by stopping one big line as they did in other years," says the slim 29-year-old centre from Kenora, Ont. "This time we've got three big lines that can score."

His contention seems to be borne out by the scoring statistics. Eleven players in the NHL have scored 10 or more goals in the first third of the season. The Rangers have four of them. No other team has more than two.

Dave Creighton has 12, Wally Hergesheimer 11 and Dean Prentice and Boom Murphy 10 apiece.

The team has scored 71 goals in 24 games, tops in the league and four more than the Canadiens who have played two games more.

The Rangers will test their balanced attack against Toronto Maple Leafs at Madison Square Garden in the only game scheduled for tonight. The Leafs haven't won in their previous New York appearances this season and have split with the Rangers in two games at Toronto.

The Leafs will be looking to pull out of a last-place tie with Boston and are pinning their hopes on the fact that the team will be at full strength for the first time this season. Ike Horton and Jim Thomson are back on defence and Sid Smith and Eric Nesterenko have returned to the forward lines.

In addition Toronto will have a highly-touted rookie forward, Gerry James, who recently gave up football with Montreal Alouette Bombers in favor of a hockey career.

New York hasn't been beaten in seven gamer its longest unbeaten streak since 1949-50. The last time it made the playoffs. The team ran its string to six wins and two ties that year.

Egg Won't Break

Leafs' 'Crucial Goal' Man Sid Smith Looking for First of Any Calibre

MONTREAL (CP) — If Toronto Maple Leafs wanted a "crucial" goal in their last game, they had a man to get it for them, National Hockey League statisticians showed Tuesday.

But it isn't much consolation to Smith, last year's all-star left winger. After 17 games this season he's still looking for his first goal. To assess the value of individual players in relation to "important" goals the NHL compiled a complicated system and applied it to last season's play.

Five types of goals were classed as important: The first goal in a game; a goal that tied the score; a goal that put a team ahead; the insurance goal—a goal putting a team two goals ahead; and the proximate, goal—the one bringing a team to within one goal of a tie.

Thirty of Smith's 33 goals fell into the "important" category, giving him an average of .909. It was far and away the best among players who scored more than 20 goals during the season.

Smith topped the league in getting first goals in a game with 10 and also had seven tying markers and four winners.

Don McKenney, of Boston scored the most tying goals—eight—and Maurice Richard of Montreal and Earl Reibel of Detroit netted the most winners—six.

The two teams who led the league all season — Detroit and Montreal — had more runaway games and hence a lower average of important goals. Only .662 of Detroit's tallies and .667 of Montreal's were classed as important.

Toronto, involved in a lot of close games, had the highest average—.810.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, who led for the league goal-getting lead and won the scoring championship, had only .579 of his goals classed as important. Of Richard's 38, .711 were in the crucial group.

Several players came up with perfect 1,000 averages but scored few goals. Fleming Mackell of Boston, with 11 goals, was the top goal-getter with a perfect mark.

VOTE FOR HEADGEAR

CHICAGO (AP) — The National League Tuesday voted to require all players to wear protective headgear while batting.

There was considerable discussion of the proposal before the vote was not announced, several officials raised objections.

The American League does not have such a mandatory rule.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

When Pasquale "Pat" Abbruzzi, a stocky footballer from Warren, Rhode Island, scored 15 touch-downs for the Montreal Alouettes, and gained 1277 yards by bucking his body through the Big Four opposition — both records— he proved among other things that physical handicaps can be overcome.

For Abbruzzi, who is but 5 ft. 9 inches tall and weighs 205 pounds, has one arm three inches shorter than the other and a pair of legs that would look better on a grand piano than on an athlete.

But you can't beat whatever destire a boy may form in his heart, whether it's the ballet or the football field, or an athlete. And Pasquale Abbruzzi developed a love for football when most Italian kids were learning about bocce. He was different. He already knew about blocks and was studying tackles.

The fact that he had four brothers who played football failed to smooth his path to stardom. For Ma Abbruzzi was determined that her fifth son wouldn't enter adolescence as a candidate for medical science. She'd had her share of watching her boys come home on Saturdays with an assortment of injuries. Firmly, but with motherly tenderness she said, "Pasquale, no football."

That made life rough for a kid growing up in a small town in which his brothers were considered Crowleys, Laydens, Millers and Chalmers — all rolled into one.

But the urge to play was too strong and he joined the kids in a sandlot game. Of the 22 lads on the field, Pasquale was the only one who was forbidden to play. So perhaps it was fate that he should break an arm. Fearful of the consequences he concealed the injury for a week until the pain became unbearable and his mother's concern attracted his mother's attention. Surgery corrected the injury but it left him with a short arm.

Life rolled by swiftly for Pasquale afte rthat. His mother's silence was quite common in the Abbruzzi home. He went on to overshadow his brother Duke at Providence, decided to throw in his professional lot with the Alouettes and became a star overnight.
